MAYORALTY FIGHT WILL BE LIVELY

Leighton Calkins Returns and is Prepared for the Campaign.

PLANS ARE UNDERWAY

Theodore Martin, Democratic Nominee, Is Also Hustling For Votes and Is Confident of Being Elected As City Executive.

Councilman Leighton Calkins, who was nominated for Mayor on the Republican ticket at the primaries last week, returned home last night from East Gloucester, Mass., where he has been sojourning for several weeks, following an extended automobile trip through the New England States. Mr. Calkins, who went away for the benefit of his health, has been greatly benefitted and is prepared for the campaign.

In an interview with a reporter for The Daily Press today, Mr. Calkins said that it was with reluctancy that he entered the Mayoralty race, realizing that if elected it would mean that he would have to devote a great deal of time to the office. However, now that he has been nominated he will wage an aggressive campaign for the office. Mr. Calkins said that he would be governed entirely by the plans of the City Republican Committee. As yet he has not decided to what extent he will speak during the campaign.

"I consider it simply and purely a business proposition," said Mr. Calkins, "a question of keeping the expenses within reason in our city. If the people chose to elect me Mayor I shall be pleased to serve them. If my opponent receives the greatest number of votes I shall submit to the will of the majority."

That Mr. Martin proposes to wage a lively fight is the prediction of his friends, and many of them express confidence that he will be elected as the executive of the city. He is said to have assurance of the support of the Democratic organization and every effort will be made to secure his election.

The rumored opposition to Mr. Martin among some Democrats seems to have entirely disappeared and he is counting on getting the full party vote at the November election. The friends and supporters of Mr. Calkins believe that he is as strong today as when he was elected a councilman and they feel sure of his election. They point to his record as a councilman, declaring that he has accomplished much for the benefit of the city in his present position.

COUNTY TAX BOARD PREPARING FOR APPEALS

No appeals from assessments in any part of the county have been filed with the County Board of Taxation as yet, but arrangements are being made in anticipation of more than the usual number. The fact that tax bills are not yet distributed and the time for filing will not expire for some weeks is holding the appeals back.

Tax collectors in all the county municipalities are reported to be making arrangements for accepting part payment on taxes under the act passed making payment on the installation plan permissable. This method should prove a boon to many who feel pinched for money at present owing to the financial depression. Even with the new plan adopted difficulty is expected in making full collections.

PRESIDENT ENGAGES IN SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN

Washington, Oct. 1.—President Wilson today entered the senatorial campaign in earnest by writing and making public two letters indorsing the candidacies for re-election of Senator Shively, of Indiana, and Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon. The President paid a glowing tribute to each man and eulogized their work and the support they had given the Administration.

OPENS STUDIO AT BINGHAMTON.

Miss Hope Irene Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, who was formerly soprano soloist at Trinity Reformed church, but who resigned several months ago, has just opened a studio at Binghamton, N. Y., under most favorable circumstances. Miss Miller plans to do solo work at Binghamton.

DOES NOT EXPECT WAR TO END SOON

C. H. Humphreys Writes Interesting Letter to H. Clifford Smith.

C. H. Humphreys, who was formerly connected with H. Clifford Smith, of Dunellen, in the express business, and who was summoned to England shortly after the war broke out to rejoin his regiment, has written an interesting letter to Mr. Smith. The letter is addressed "Court Prion Torquey," England, and reads as follows:

"I got back my commission in my old regiment, the East Anglian Royal Engineers, and am now in charge of thirty men, horses, transport, etc., at a small village on the East coast and expect before very long to be sent abroad. The tide seems to have turned in our favor, but there is little doubt that we shall not be demobilized for at least another twelve months. I have my horse and am in the saddle from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. every day, except Sundays, when we quit at 1 p. m.

"We are busily engaged in building trenches to guard against invasion and are working hard. For the most part everything is quiet as usual here. Prices are a little higher, but nothing to speak of and then only in certain directions. Of course, there are guards everywhere and it does not do to play any fool tricks with them or else you will get a bullet through you. Several people have been shot already for replying to the guards with profanity, when challenged. Business is going on much the same as usual, except fishing boats."

FINAL AUTHORIZATION OF BRIDGE BONDS

Freeholders Will Offer $35,000 Issue at Public Sale.

Final authorization for the issuance of the $35,000 bridge bonds by the county is listed for action at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders this afternoon. The bonds are to be sold at public sale. Advertisements for them will appear in a few days after the meetings if the prepared resolution goes through. They will be for twenty years in denominations of $1,000 each and will bear four and a half per cent. interest.

County Collector Leavitt when seen yesterday was optimistic regarding the sale of the securities despite the condition of the bond market and the fact that municipalities in other States have been obliged to raise the rate of interest to as high as six per cent. before being able to dispose of their bonds and get the money needed for improvements and necessary work.

Bond dealers in New York say that there is never any trouble for them to sell Union county securities and for that reason they are apparently always willing to invest in them and do so in preference to many others that are offered.

Hawkins, Delafield and Longfellow, the noted bond attorneys of New York, have passed upon the legality of the proceedings under which the bonds will be sold. Their approval covers the resolution to be offered at the meeting.

WILL DISCUSS QUESTION OF TROLLEY EXTENSION

The local Building Trades Council will hold its weekly meeting tomorrow evening in its rooms on West Front street, at which time it is expected that the proposed South Plainfield trolley line will again become a subject of discussion. The building mechanics are vitally interested in this project, as a majority of the buildings which will be erected in that village in the course of the next year or two will be constructed by the craftsmen of this city.

UTILITIES COMM. INACTIVE.

Trenton, Oct. 1—The New Jersey Public Utility Commission has decided not to suspend the new mileage schedules of the railroads of New Jersey by which mileage is increased from 2 to 2¼c. Under the new rate it will cost $25 for 1,000 miles as against $22.50 under the old rate.

C. OF C. MEET TONIGHT.

The local Chamber of Commerce will hold its first regular session of the season this evening at the Babcock building. As this is the first regular meeting since late spring, it is expected that a number of items of important business will be presented.

BOY AUTO VICTIM IN A SERIOUS CONDITION

Youth Hit in Newark Last Night by Local Man's Car May Die From Hurts.

Suffering from injuries sustained when hit by an automobile owned by Godfrey J. Weinman, of 16 Westervelt avenue, this city, and driven by "Sonny" Cross, a colored chauffeur, William Noke, fourteen years old, of 88 Cutler street, Newark, lies in a serious condition in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark. The accident occurred last night when the youth, who was playing in the street with a number of companions, ran directly in front of the automobile, which was traveling at a moderate rate of speed.

Cross was driving on Bloomfield avenue near Webster street, when he struck the boy and hurried him with all possible speed to the hospital. The chauffeur was afterwards taken to the Second Precinct police station, where he was held a prisoner to await the outcome of the victim's injuries.

Inquiry at St. Michael's Hospital made by a Daily Press reporter, this morning, indicated that the boy's recovery was a matter of grave doubt. He is suffering from a fractured skull and possible internal injuries, the hospital authorities having been unable to determine the exact extent of the hurts.

DEATH OF PETER B. FITZ RANDOLPH

Succumbs to Paralysis at the Home of his Brother in This City.

Peter B. Fitz Randolph, of New Durham, aged 81 years, died last night, at the home of his brother, Samuel F. Randolph, of 1364 East Randolph road, this city, following a stroke of paralysis three weeks ago. Mr. Randolph had been living for the past twelve years with his brother, Alexander Randolph, of New Durham, and came to this city just prior to his illness to visit his brother, Samuel Randolph.

Mr. Randolph was a successful farmer for many years, but of late had lived a retired life. He was a native of this city, the old homestead in which he was born still standing near Muhlenberg Hospital. He was the son of the late Elkanah Fitz Randolph, who at one time owned a large tract of land on the south side of the city. He was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of this city.

Beside two brothers, Mr. Randolph is survived by one sister, Mrs. Rachel Randolph, of Alfred, N. Y., and several nieces, among whom are Mrs. Frank S. Wells, of this city, and Mrs. L. D. Morris, of Lambertville, and one nephew, George Wooden, also of Lambertville. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The Fitz Randolph family has a number of branches throughout this section, particularly throughout Piscataway township. The name Fitz Randolph was quite prominent in this section during the early days, as far back as the Revolutionary days. The head of one of the families living at that time in the Greenbrook section of Dunellen, according to tradition, was the one who led Washington up to the Rock which now bears the name of the nation's first president.

PLAINFIELD ELKS ATTENDED "OPEN HOUSE" AT ELIZABETH

Delegates from the local lodge of Elks attended the "open house" feature of the Elizabeth B. O. P. E. lodge at that place, last night, the affair following a monster public demonstration in which 250 members of that organization took part. The Elizabeth Elks, winners of first prize for the most unique costumes at the parade in Long Branch last month, repeated their part in the parade in Elizabeth last night, and their line of march attracted considerable notice from the townspeople.

Long before the antlered paraders were scheduled to leave the clubhouse hundreds of witnesses lined both sides of Broad street and the Elks were cheered continuously as they passed in review. The procession took a short route through several of the uptown streets and returned to the lodge, where "open house" festivities were in progress. Good cabaret numbers and other events were provided for the hundreds of guests who availed themselves of the opportunity offered to inspect the quarters and the event was one of the most successful of its kind ever conducted in that town.

LOPER B. LAIDLAW ELOPES IN AUTO

He and Mark Hanna's Niece Wed Without Parents' Knowledge.

The announcement of the marriage, following an elopement, of Loper Baird Laidlaw, who is well-known here, where he has visited many times, and Miss Alice Carrington Rand, of Minneapolis, will be received here with considerable interest on the part of friends of Mr. Laidlaw. On numerous occasions he has been a guest at social functions in Plainfield.

Mr. Laidlaw, of Spanish descent and filled with the romance of his ancestry, yesterday eloped with Miss Rand, in his automobile and the two were married just across the State line of Connecticut by Judge Malcolm Merritt, of Port Chester, N. Y.

Then they returned to the Greenwich Field Club in company with the bridegroom's friend and adviser, Daniel Hicey, of Stamford, and ordered a wedding breakfast. They telephoned to friends and the Laidlaw family inviting them to the breakfast, but owing to the sudden notice only a few responded. The bridegroom's parents took the announcement as a joke and did not respond to the invitation.

E. J. Laidlaw found that his son was not joking, and that he had missed the opportunity of congratulating him. The bride is a daughter of L. S. Rand, a broker, of Minneapolis, and a niece of the late Mark Hanna. Her acquaintance with Mr. Laidlaw was formed this summer while Mr. Rand had a summer cottage at Greenwich, Conn.

PLAN FOR FULL PAID DEPARTMENT

Fire Committee Will Recommend Appointment of Five Men.

The Councilmanic fire committee at a meeting, last night, decided to put on five additional paid firemen between November 1 and January 1. The men will be chosen from a list of eligibles who passed the required examination sometime ago. After the new men are employed it is the intention of the committee to abolish the fire alarm whistle which is now located at the old Spicer plant on Madison avenue. The new men will take the place of the call-men, it being the purpose of the committee to eventually establish a full paid department.

The committee received bids for installing a new boiler in No. 3 house on West Fourth street. Winn & Higgins and George J. Tobin each submitted a bid of $170. A. M. Griffen and C. W. Krausse also submitted bids, but they were much higher, it is said. The committee learned that the new auto fire apparatus for the Netherwood district is expected in Plainfield within a short time.

INVITATIONS TO WEDDING RECEPTION ARE RECALLED

Because of the dath of Mrs. Reed's sister, Mrs. Madeline Mack, which occurred last week, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Reed today recalled the invitations to the reception following the marriage of their daughter, Miss Madeline Reed and William Arrott, on Saturday afternoon, October 10.

The marriage ceremony will be performed at the appointed hour by Rev. Dr. J. P. Sea le, president of Rutgers Theological Seminary, who was formerly pastor of the Reformed church, Somerville, and who officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Reed. Only the members of the immediate families will witness the marriage of Miss Reed and Mr. Arrott.

MISCELLANEOUS "SHOWER."

Miss Marie Moore entertained a number of friends at her home on Arlington avenue, last evening, in honor of Miss Leora Henry. The affair was a complete surprise. Music and games were features of the evening. Miss Henry received many gifts, the event being in the nature of a miscellaneous "shower." Guests were present from Westfield, Fanwood, Scotch Plains and this city.

BUSINESS MEN'S ADV. WRITER.

Attention is caled to the advertisement of the Business Men's Association in today's issue of The Daily Press. It was written by R. F. R. Huntsman, of East Front street, advertising manager for the Brooklyn Standard-Union, and one of the best known adv. men in this part of the country.

AUTOISTS, BEWARE! THE CHIEF IS RILED

Department Head Intends to Stop Use of City's Streets as Speedways.

Chief of Police Kiely has started a strenuous crusade against automobile drivers who are using the city streets for a speedway and unless his timely warnings are heeded it is likely that wholesale arrests will follow. Some weeks ago a policeman mounted on the department motorcycle undertoo to bring all offenders to justice and a loud howl went up from those who had to pay fines in the police court. Charges of indiscretion and anxiousness on the part of the policeman to increase his arrest record were made with the result that a lull was caused. Since that time and particularly in the last two weeks numerous accidents have been recorded on the police blotter and several motorists have narrowly escaped serious injury in various parts of the city.

Invariably those concerned in the accidents, a majority of which were of a minor nature, took immediate steps to effect a mutual settlement as a means of avoiding publicity and the blame for the collisions was never placed on the right shoulders. It is the opinion of the police department that many of the accidents have been directly due to fast and reckless driving on the part of chauffeurs and owners and until someone is made an example of the practise will probably continue.

Chief Kiely has made a careful study of the situation and has concluded that arrests are the only means of impressing the fact that the law must not be violated on the minds of flagrant offenders. Exceeding the speed limit in the city's business thoroughfares, and autosists are doing it daily, places the lives of pedestrians in jeopardy and it is a wonder that more serious accidents have not been recorded. Most of the victims have had lucky escapes from fatal injuries and the seriousness of the situation has not occurred to the offending driver.

The police department intends to use every means available to force autoists to abide by the city's traffic regulations in this particular phase and a careful watch will be kept in all sections of the municipality hereafter. Examples will be made of the guilty parties and through this means the police expect to diminish the accident record which has been so perceptibly fattened during the past few weeks.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE OF MINERAL WATER CONCERN

Pending the suspension of business by the New York Stock Exchange, J. Hartley Mellick, of this city, has become the New Jersey representative of Carl H. Schultz, of New York, manufacturers of artificial vichy, still vichy, Appollinaris, ginger ale, club soda, etc., and is now introducing these mineral waters in Plainfield and throughout the State. Owing to the European war it is impossible to get foreign mineral waters and there is a great demand for those made by Carl H. Schultz, which are far less expensive and claimed to be purer than the imported. All first-class druggists and grocers carry these waters.

TAX OFF GASOLINE AND PUT ON AUTOMOBILES

Washington, Oct. 1—The sub-committee of the Senate finance committee on the section of the war tax bill taxing gasolene 2c per gallon, today reached an agreement to recommend to the full committee that the tax on gasolene be stricken from the bill and a tax on automobiles be substituted. The tax on automobiles proposed is as follows: 25c per horsepower on all passenger autos to be paid by the individual owners and a tax of $1 per horsepower to be paid by manufacturers on sales of automobiles.

WITHDREW FROM CONTEST.

In the election of William Newcorn as chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, Tuesday night, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the firm of Reed & Hetfield, says that he declined to become a candidate for the chairmanship, being unable to devote the time to the office. Mr. Hetfield's name was mentioned as a candidate, but he declined before the meeting was held.

TAXES PAYABLE.

Tax Collector William R. Townsend is today receiving the payments on the 1913 tax bills, which, by law, have become due and are payable on this date. Unpaid taxes become a lien on the property after December 20. Taxes are also being accepted by Collector George Brown, of the borough.

ALLIES PROGRESS ON BOTH WINGS WHILE THREE GREAT RUSSIAN ARMIES FORCE GERMANS BACK

FOOD QUESTION DECLARED TO BE A GRAVE ONE IN AUSTRIA, AND GOVERNMENT IS TRYING TO RELIEVE SITUATION.

ANTWERP RESIDENTS ARE CALM UNDER FIRE

Germans Again Reported to Have Evacuated Malines, But Keep up Intermittent Cannonade—Notre Dame Cathedral at Wavre Destroyed by Fire—Termonde Flooded, Bombarded and Burned—Aeroplane Attack by Japan.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The following official statement was issued at the French war office today: "There is no modification in the situation as a whole. We have progressed, however, on our left at the north of the Somme, and on our right in the southern part of the Woevre region.

Official statements are made that the Russian advance into Hungary has completely demoralized the Austrian army in Galicia and that they are retreating westward toward the strong fortifications at Cracow.

Petrograd, Oct. 1, (Central News Cable)—The army under General Rennenkampf has advanced along the railway from Grodno to Augustow and is now moving on Suwalki, where the Kaiser has his headquarters. In the fighting between Grodno and Druskeniki the Germans under General Hindenburg were driven from strongly intrenched positions.

Three great Russian armies are now operating against the Germans and Austrians, in addition to the two minor forces which mark the extreme north and south of the Russian battle line. General Rennenkampf is repelling the German's attempted invasion north of Poland into the provinces of Grodno and Vilna. Heading southwest from Warsaw a new army of fresh troops is pushing in the direction of Breslau, with its left in a position to co-operate with the third big army which is pursuing the Austrians westward toward Cracow.

The Russians on the extreme left have penetrated the Carpathians at three points and are now on the plains of Hungary withing 120 miles of Budapest. The three defiles in the mountain range through which they are pouring are Dukla, Sanck and Uzsok.

London, Oct. 1.—The food question is a grave one in Austria, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Chiasso, Switzerland. The Austrian Emperor has issued an edict empowering the government to take all measures necessary to alleviate the situation. The price of corn has doubled and is increasing at the rate of 3 per cent daily. Roumania's embargo on the export of corn has caused consternation in Austria, according to the despatch, and it is said that Austria is now making desperate efforts to get wheat from the United States; but the blockade of the Adriatic makes relief from this quarter doubtful. The shortage of food is also felt in the German army, the despatch declares.

A news agency from Constantinople states that the newspapers there point out that the closing of the Dardenelles is due to the fact that English and French cruisers are steaming about the mouth of the Dardanelles and examining merchant steamers. It is asserted that the straits will remain closed until the allied fleets depart.

Antwerp, Oct. 1, (By cable from Charles Hodson, special correspondent of Central News Ltd.)—The people of Antwerp remain calm and confident, notwithstanding the bombardment by the Germans. The local press assures the people that the attack is but a demonstration for strategic purposes. Yesterday's battle near Malines began early in the morning when the Belgian regiments marched out past Fort Waelem. They were heavily shrapnelled from the direction of Moerbeck, but took up positions which they had held all day. The Germans flew two observation balloons under cover of a terrific artillery fire and pushed their infantry forward. The infantry was deliberate, so much so that no strong effort was made to dislodge the Belgians before nightfall.

I am informed that the Germans have again evacuated Malines, possibly in fear of a repetition of Tuesday night's punishment, but an intermittent cannonade continued all night under the glare of the burning villages.

At 3 o'clock this morning a small red flare appeared at the pinnacle of the church of Notre Dame in Wavre. In a few minutes the whole spire was blazing like a torch until it fell. Termonde has been flooded, bombarded and burned.

I started on a motor trip yesterday with the object of penetrating the shell shattered area of Malines. The visit did not materialize, but I reached Broum En Vliet, a stream a thousand metres from the outskirts of the town, where we found the bridge held by entrenched mitrailleuses. Strong Belgian forces are holding positions which I am not permitted to detail. Our car had crossed the bridge when a soldier shouted in English: "The Germans hold the town." We accordingly returned and were informed that Belgians entering Malines early yesterday morning had found the Germans in possession. Brisk street fighting ensued and the Belgians retired. I gathered from the Belgian soldiers the information that the town is badly shattered.

The fort of Waelhem in the southern segment of the circle of fortifications about Antwerp blew up yesterday afternoon from an explosion in its magazine. The fort had been badly damaged by the German bombardment.

Tokio, Oct. 1.—The Germans today riddled two Japanese aeroplanes who had gone up to throw bombs on the Forts at Kiao Chau, but even though badly damaged the Japanese aviators managed to get back to the Japanese lines.

The Japanese war office announces that an artillery duel

JOHN MURPHY'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services of John Murphy, son of Mrs. Mary Murphy, of North avenue, were solemnized this morning at St. John's church, where a requiem mass was said at 9 o'clock, Rev. E. J. Dunphy, the pastor of the church, being in charge. Interment was at Saint Mary's cemetery, Plainfield. The deceased, who was only twenty-eight years old, had during the past two years been working for a contractor by the name of George Ryan at Mineola, L. I. He was driving one of the contractor's trucks through Glenhead, near Mineola, at 6:30 o'clock on Monday morning, when he was either knocked off or fell off of the truck, the family having not heard the full particulars as yet, do not know which, crushing his skull. He was taken to the hospital at Mineola, where he died that evening at 7 o'clock.

FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE.

A house owned by Mrs. Frank Margentino, of North avenue, burned down at Allen Park, New Brunswick, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The house was tenanted by Alexander Kane, a former resident of Plainfield. The fire is said to have originated in the chimney. The building was valued at $8,000. It was insured for $6,500.

FUNERAL OF JOSEPH C. APGAR.

William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Court Dunellen, Independent Order of Foresters, will hold services of their respective orders at the late home of their deceased member, Joseph C. Apgar, at 222 Front street, tomorrow evening at 8:15 o'clock. The members of the above orders are requested to assemble at the W. G. Holton Hall by 8 o'clock so as to march to the home in a body. Another service will be held at the home on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The officiating clergyman will be Rev. D. W. C. Ramsey, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mr. Apgar was a member, and Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The deceased was very fond of music and arrangements have been made for special music at the service. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

CONCLUDE SERVICES.

The forty-hour devotional services which ended at St. John's Catholic church at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening were very well attended, the church being crowded at all the services. The devotion commenced at the hour of the regular Sunday morning services, 10 o'clock. Special devotion services were held on Sunday and Monday evenings. The pulpit of the church was occupied on Monday evening by Rev. William Gilifilin, of Sayreville, who delivered an inspiring sermon. The altar of the church was beautifully decorated for the services with flowers and there was special music by the choir. Miss Jennie Hazelin acted as organist in place of the regular organist, Miss Anna Rinehart, who was operated upon at St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, for appendicitis, yesterday.

ROTHBERG'S IS A REAL SERVICE STORE

This shop for "Most Things Men Wear" does more than supply the needs of its patrons. While essentially it's a place for the distribution of men's and boys' wearing apparel and caters to the wants of its patrons, included in every purchase is a service of inestimable value. It's because here you will find most efficient salesmen—men who understand your wishes and wants without volumes of talk—men who are considerate of your personal needs—who will not sell you a suit of clothes, a hat, a tie or anything else, unless it's the thing for you. Neither will they, by the art of persuasion or otherwise, force upon you something you do not want.

Joint Meetings of the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, the Borough of North Plainfield and the Borough of Dunellen, N. J.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Construction of Trunk Sewer and Sewage Disposal Works.

CONTRACTS A AND B.

Sealed proposals for furnishing all labor and materials for constructing a trunk sewer—Contract A, and sewage disposal works—Contract B, for the Joint Meeting of the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, the Borough of North Plainfield, and the Borough of Dunellen, addressed to C. M. Dolliver, Esq., Secretary of the said Joint Meeting, will be received at the meeting place of the said Joint Meeting in the City Building, No. 149 North Avenue, Plainfield, New Jersey, until 8:00 P. M. on October 7, 1914, and at that time and place will be opened and publicly read. The bids shall be in accordance with the plans and specifications for the works on file with the said Joint Meeting, and at the office of George W. Fuller, Engineer, 150 Broadway, New York City, from whom copies may be obtained. A deposit of Twenty-five ($25) Dollars will be required for each set of plans and specifications furnished, which sum will be refunded if said plans and specifications are returned in good condition within thirty (30) days after bids have been received and acted upon by the said Joint Meeting.

Proposals shall be made on the blank form of Proposals accompanying the specifications, and may be for either Contract A—Trunk Sewer, or Contract B—Sewage Disposal Works, or both separately. Any proposal containing bids not asked for or which does not contain prices in words and figures for all items given in the Form of Proposal or which is otherwise not in conformity with this Notice, may be rejected.

Each proposal shall contain the full name of every person, firm or corporation interested in the same, and the address of the person or firm or the president and secretary of the corporation bidding, and shall be accompanied by a certified check upon a National Bank or Trust Company, drawn to the order of the Joint Meeting of the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, the Borough of North Plainfield and the Borough of Dunellen, in the sum of Twenty-five Hundred (2,500) Dollars for each contract bid upon.

The bidder to whom a contract may be awarded shall attend at the said meeting place of the said Joint Meeting with the sureties offered by him within ten (10) days (Sundays excepted) after the date of the notification by the Secretary of the acceptance of his proposal and there sign the contract for the work in triplicate. In case of failure so to do, the bidder will be considered as having abandoned the same, and the certified check accompanying his proposal shall be forfeited to the Joint Meeting.

The checks of all unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon demand, and also the checks of the successful bidders upon the execution of the contract and the furnishing of the required bond. Before the execution of the said contracts, respectively, the successful bidder thereon shall furnish a surety company bond in the sum of Fifty (50%) Per Cent. of the price named therein conditioned upon the faithful performance of such contract. Such bond shall be satisfactory to the said Joint Meeting, both as to form and surety.

The Joint Meeting will not be responsible in any manner for verbal answers to any inquiries regarding the meaning of the drawings or specifications given prior to the awarding of the contracts.

C. M. DOLLIVER,
Secretary.

ALLIES MAKE PROGRESS ON BOTH WINGS

at Tsing Tau continues. A German torpedo boat destroyer sank in the harbor. Apparently the ship was not in action. From another source it is stated that the German destroyer was sunk by Japanese siege guns.

It was officially announced late this afternoon that a Japanese mine sweeper off Kiau Chau was blown up and sunk. Three men were killed and thirteen wounded. Another Japanese mine sweeper was damaged, one man being killed and six injured.

A severe engagement has been opened by the German warships which cannonaded the Japanese positions near Tsingta, seat of the government off Kiaochou, the German leased territory in China. Two officers were killed. German aeroplanes assisted the warships.

Rome, Oct. 1.—Austria's reply to Italy's protest at the mines set afloat in the Adriatic is an offer to pay immediate indemnity of $1,000,000 to the families of the men killed in the trawling vessels which have encountered explosives. The Italian Government has forbidden all shipping in the Adriatic and Ionian Seas until torpedo boats which have been sent out can gather the mines.

Amsterdam, Oct. 1.—A superior hostile force operating south and north of Albert, a village 15 miles northwest of Peronne, has been repulsed with losses, says an official statement given out by the Berlin War Office, dated late last night. The statement continues: "There is no news from the front of the battle line. We are making slow progress in the Argonne against the fortresses on the line of the Meuse. The enemy attacked us in Central Vosges, but was repulsed.

Paris, Oct. 1.—Italy is ready to make a protest to Turkey against the abolition of the capitulations at Constantinople, according to a Rome despatch.

The National Committee formed to take charge of the work of sending winter clothing to the soldiers urges that prompt measures be taken in the way of furnishing these supplies.

It is officially announced that the reserve territorials and men of the auxiliary service of the north of France, who were withdrawn from that section at the time of the German invasion, while others were sent back home because they were not needed, now also have been sent home temporarily.

London, Oct. 1 (Central News Cable).—A despatch from Vienna by way of Rome says that General Von Auffenberg has been injured seriously as a result of a fall from his horse.

The Italian War Minister has authorized the commandants of regiments already mobilized to grant brief leaves of absence to the men.

Albanian delegates have arrived at Brindisi and are proceeding to Constantinople. They declare the Albanian Senate has placed the State under the protection of the Sultan.

Despatches from Rome declare word has been received there that 31 German transports bearing troops attempted to land soldiers near Windau on the Baltic coast of Russia and were repulsed. The transports are said to have been convoyed by seven warships.

An official statement issued in Budapest, according to a Rome despatch states that the Hungarians have recaptured Uzsok Pass, in the Carpathians.

Although at present there is no marshal of France, says a Bordeaux despatch, a decree dated September 29 fixes the salary of this post at 30,000 francs. The Matin points out that this is a significant step and is an augury permitting of the highest honors. The post is the highest in the French army, and although it was originally a royalist post, the rank was retained when the French army was reconstituted in 1875.

The secretary of the Admiralty announces that H. M. S. Cumberland has captured the following vessels off the Cameroon River: Max Brock, Renata, Amsinck, Paul Woerman, Erma Woerman, Henrietta Woerman, Alline Woerman, Hans Woerman, Jeannette Woerman, all of the Woerman line, and the Arnfried, of the Hamburg-American line. They have a total tonnage of 30,915. The vessels contained general outward and homeward bound cargoes, including a large amount of coal. The gunboat Soden also was captured. The German floating dock, Herzogin Elizabeth, which was sunk, can be raised it is believed. The Woerman line is one of the principal steamship lines of Hamburg and has a fleet of 43 vessels.

The crew of the steamer Selvy, which was sunk by a mine in the North Sea, while on a voyage from Shields to Antwerp, was put ashore at Lowestoft today.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Russia's advance continues according to a despatch from Petrograd received today at the Russian embassy. Several towns have been captured in the onward, inexorable march of the Muscovite army. The despatch follows: "On September 28, after stubborn fighting, our troops captured Augustowo and Koperz. The German siege artillery continues bombarding at Ossowjelz, but without success. At Scutckin and Andrejew only unimportant skirmishes are reported."

PEACE CONFERENCE IS SAID TO BE IN SESSION

Washington, Oct. 1—First Chief Carranza's representative in Washington, today, received telegrams, indicating that the peace conference scheduled for today at Aguascalientes was being proceeded with. This is contrary to information received at the State Department, which was to the effect that the conference had been posponed until October 5.

WILL REVISE RULES REGARDING CONTRABAND

Washington, Oct. 1.—Great Britain is to revise its proclamation in regard to contraband, with special reference to Holland. That county has given notification of an embargo on the shipment of foodstuffs out of the country, including the transshipment of goods received from abroad. This, in effect, was the outcome of a conference at the State Department today, in which the British ambassador took a leading part.

Pending the revision of the proclamation by Great Britain, the British ambassador has assured the State Department that foodstuffs in neutral ships consigned to Holland will not be treated as contraband, and an understanding has been reached whereby Great Britain has agreed not to molest shipments of any sort to Holland in American vessels. The agreement was arrived at between the British ambassador, Secretary Bryan and Counselor Lansing.

NEW PASTOR TO PREACH.

Ludwig Englander, the composer, who died recently, left several musical pieces, which may be produced shortly. One of them is called "The Education of Love."

BRITISH RAILWAY PORTERS.

And the Magic of the Sixpence or the Shilling as a Tip.

I never had much fault to find with the British porter and sixpence system for baggage, E. S. Martin writes in Scribner's. You have nothing to show for your trunk when you give it up but the British constitution, and that is not written, but you have to take things as you find them, and under the British system we usually found all the things we took, even our umbrellas.

And the British railway porter is a lovely institution. He is the real father of his country. I was in a perfect frame of mind to appreciate his fatherliness. I wanted him to do all the work, including the necessary thinking, and he did it. I loved to have him hustle in and find us proper seats in trains. In that particular of service I am seldom able to realize Jane's reasonable expectations, but the British porter did and I honored him for it with admiration and shillings.

And isn't a shilling a dear little talisman? I was so pleased with them. They do so much for you and leave you with a cheerful glow and a sense of having parted with a true friend. You can get quite a lot of them for $5, and they are the cheapest thing for the money that you can buy in England. Even their fractions are nice; very desirable and convenient; companionable while they stay with you and remunerative when they leave. I tried to keep always provided with shillings and their silver fractions, and duly also with pennies, which are issued in England in large folio editions.

I can remember when our honorable little cents were of a dignified amplitude like that. Did they buy more then, do you suppose? Certainly they were of more relative importance in the scheme of things than cents are now, and I'm not sure but that it would be an operation worth trying on the high cost of living to make them big again.

MARRIED BY JUDGE.

Miss Bella Perrine, of West Second street, and Jerry Paoli, of 1185 South Second street, were married by City Judge William G. DeMeza in the latter's office on Park avenue, last night.

You "strolled" beside the Seine,
"A pilgrim in old Portugal,"
"A saunterer in Spain."
You "tramped" through Transylvania,
You "lounged" through Lombardy—
"You never merely traveled"
With a Baedeker like me.

You took "a motor swoop through Greece,"
"A donkey trip through Wales;"
You went "through Holland on a bike,"
"Afoot through Yorkshire dales;"
You saw "Crete from a caravan,"
"The Rhone from a canoe"—
You never took the vulgar train,
The way I had to do.

You felt "the spell of Sweden,"
"The charm of Russia's plains,"
"The magic of the Dolomites,"
"The lure of English lanes."
I used to feel—and, oh, how much
It made me think of home—
The higher cost of living
In Dresden or in Rome.

SWEEPING MINES FROM THE SEA A HAZARDOUS JOB.

How Trawlers, With Naval Reserve Crews, Remove Danger to Navigation.

Among war's heroes are the mine sweepers, who daily take their lives in their hands that British warships and merchant vessels may have safe passage in the North sea.

These mine sweepers are naval reserves and they use trawlers for their hazardous work. Every move they make they place their lives in jeopardy, but the trawlers proceed slowly, with eagle eyed sailormen in their lookouts.

The mine sweeper's task is a risky one because the contact mines are very "quick on the trigger." The slightest contact of a vessel serves to set them off, and sometimes even being dragged from a vertical position, as when they are caught by the wire "net" of the sweepers, will cause the mine to explode.

But such an explosion as this is not often fatal. While one of these mines exploded by contact with a ship is powerful enough to destroy a Dreadnought, the force of the explosion does not carry far through the water, and a mine exploding at even a short distance from a vessel does little or no harm.

Mine sweeping is done in this way. Two trawlers work together, accompanied by a destroyer. Each trawler drags behind her a steel hawser with a heavy iron weight on the end that scrapes along the bottom of the sea. These two iron weights are connected by a wire. The two trawlers are thus connected by the wire, which forms the mine "net."

Several hundred yards apart the two vessels pursue parallel courses, moving slowly along. When there is a dragging of the wire the men know they have snagged a mine. Slowly the two boats converge and the infernal machine is drawn to the surface, where one shot from the nearby destroyer explodes it and one more menace to shipping is removed.

A PEACE SUNDAY WAR FUND.

Red Cross Asks Churches For Special Collection on Oct. 4.

National headquarters of the American Red Cross has expressed the hope that churches throughout the United States will take up special collections on Sunday, Oct. 4, the day set aside by President Wilson to offer up prayers for the cessation of the great European war, these special collections to be used to further the war relief work of the Red Cross society.

The idea, it is announced, comes from Miss Mabel Choate of Stockbridge, Mass., daughter of Joseph Choate, former ambassador to the court of St. James, and at her suggestion one of the pastors of Stockbridge has already agreed to give the collection on Oct. 4 to the Red Cross.

WAR BILL WILSON O. K'D. $35,000,000 STAMP TAX.

The bill providing for a war revenue tax and which measure has received the indorsement of President Wilson calls for an additional tax of 50 cents a barrel on beer, from which it is estimated $32,500,000 will be raised; a tax of 12 cents a gallon on dry domestic wines and 20 cents on sweet domestic wines, to bring in $8,000,000; a tax on licenses for tobacco manufacturers and dealers, to raise $4,000,000; a tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, to raise $20,000,000; a special tax on bankers and brokers, to raise $5,800,000, and a stamp tax along the lines of the Spanish-American war tax on bonds, certificates, shares of stock, bills of sale, drafts, checks, mortgages, telegrams, and the like, to bring in approximately $35,000,000.

The total estimated revenues from these sources is $105,000,000. The proposed tax on railway freight earnings was dropped as a result of a White House conference.

"COUNT" BUYS GASOLINE BUGGY.

John K. Van Ness, alias "Count" has purchased an automobile touring car from John R. Haskard, of West Front street. Although the "Count" is known to be an ardent admirer of the "horseless carriage," this is his first attempt at automobiling and it is understood that he will use the machine in his daily trips about town, substituting it for "Shank's mare," which has heretofore been his old reliable.

PATIENTS RECOVERING.

Mrs. Hart Farley, who was seriously injured in an automobile crash on Park avenue two weeks ago, is now well on the road to recovery, according to a report received this morning from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she is an inmate. Milo Rosso, the Italian who was waylaid on Norwood avenue, last Saturday afternoon, is also recovering.

TWO MEN SENTENCED.

Arraigned in the city court, this morning, on a charge of disorderly conduct and with assaulting Daniel Kiely, of 923 West Third street, Howard Hall, colored, of 243 East Third street, was fined $5 with the option of spending twenty days in the county jail. Kiely, who was under the influence of liquor, according to the police, was also disorderly and was sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail.

ATTACKING CIVIL SERVICE.

The Trenton Times calls attention to the recent statement made by Comptroller Edward I. Edwards, in which he attacks the Civil Service Commission as being too great an expense for the State. He says that he has spoken to a number of hold-over Senators and several State officers who agree with him that the law should be amended so that instead of one State body having control of the work, a local examining board will be provided in each county or municipality where it may be adopted, in order that the expense will be lessened upon the State. A much better plan is suggested, by which the law might be administered by the one central body as now, with a part of the expense assessed against the municipalities or counties, pro rata.

But, as the Times suggests, it would be well to ascertain public sentiment on the subject. The Civil Service system is now in operation in the four largest counties of the State—Hudson, Essex, Passaic and Mercer—with a combined population, according to the 1910 census, of 1,391,676, or considerably more than one-half of the total population of the State, 2,537,167. At the referendum elections held on the question the majority in favor of adoption in these four counties was 34,636.

Seven cities have voted to accept the Civil Service law, including the four largest—Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Trenton, Elizabeth, Orange and South Orange—with a combined population in 1910 of 951,457. Now there are more than 1,000,000 people in these seven cities. The majorities in favor of the proposition totaled 22,257. If there were great opposition to the system it would be natural to expect that opposition to be manifested in boss-ridden Essex and Hudson, but the former gave 11,377 in favor, and the latter 18,741.

It may be that the hold-over Senators from Warren, Sussex, Cape May, Ocean and the other small counties look favorably upon any plan that will relieve them of a few dollars of expense; for that is all that would be saved to them. Whatever unpopularity the Civil Service system is under comes from the placing of the examination of election officers in charge of the commission, by the Geran law; and there is good reason to believe that this was done by the enemies of Civil Service for the very purpose of making it unpopular.

The situation then is that approximately 60 per cent. of the people of New Jersey are now under Civil Service, and, so far as is known to the public, Mr. Edwards is the only person who is dissatisfied; and his dissatisfaction, as has previously been explained, is due to his inability to ignore the law in making certain appointments to the State House service, and in his own department. If there is any intention on the part of any of the parties to continue the attack, it should be made manifest in the political platforms, and this was not done on Tuesday.

That the direct primary law makes it possible for a man of moderate means to seek office, at little or no expense was never better proven than in Union county last week, as is attested to by the statements of expenses filed. In the old days of conventions the plums usually went to the men who could make the largest contribution to the campaign funds, or in some counties to the man who could buy delegates. This was especially true in the rural districts. Now it is all changed. Several of the men named did not spend a cent, and few spent more than $100. A few days ago the New York Sun printed an article in which it was stated that the new primary law has been a failure. Surely, any law which decreases the possibility of buying office cannot be called a failure.

It remains to be seen how the Democratic and Republican parties will pull through the coming campaign for it is the first time in many years that new leaders have been chosen to head both organizations.

An East End Civic Association is to be formed. If the organization succeeds in accomplishing as much for its section as has the West End Civic Association, it will be a power in the community.

It's pretty safe to predict that William N. Runyon will be elected to Assembly by one of the largest votes ever given a candidate of any party in Union county. There's a reason.

Paterson editor has been given a job paying $9,000 a year. What can an editor do with all that money?

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In answer to the question in last night's Press (Tuesday's), as to the correct pronunciation of "Przemysl" I would like to enlighten you in the solution of this puzzle. As near as we can say it in our language, it is pronounced "Frem-'i-sil." Accent on first syllable. Pronounce "e" in Frem as in "Fret." Pronounce "i" in both syllables as in "it."

GEO. C. M. SMITH.

Woodbrook Farms have sent the following answer to Rev. Edwin Shaw's open letter which was published in last night's Daily Press.

Dear Sir:

Your open letter addressed to Woodbrook Farms in yesterday's issue of this paper invites newspaper discussion of questions which it has never been the policy of the Farms to take up with its customers in this way, for the reason that if you or any other patrons of Woodbrook will honor the Farms with a visit, we can show you the whole process of milking, cleaning and bottling. They make clear at a glance, why it costs more to produce milk in the Woodbrook way from the selected herd of tuberculin tested cows, why it is that Woodbrook milk regularly heads the list in order of low bacteria count in the official monthly reports of the Plainfield Board of Health.

Our customers are always welcome at the Farms and it seems to us "fair play" to request that this invitation to visit us may be understood as our standing answer to any similar questions in the future, without further answer in the public press.

Advantages of Buying in Plainfield

Reasons Set Forth by a Competitor in Trade in Plainfield Contest Held by the Daily Press

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In looking over the columns of the Daily Press advertisements of August 3, was directed Tuesday to visit Sam Rothberg's clothing store, and purchased a very fine light haring-bone worsted suit, at a saving of at least $10 to me. Now a satisfied customer is the best advertisement one can have.

On August 7, I found in the Daily Press, Rosenbaum Bros. advertisement and one Saturday went to the store, and made a remarkable purchase of a white serge dress, trimmed in Persian silk, at a saving of $5 in price. In no other town or city could you secure such values for the money.

Many of the Plainfield stores have values of the same nature.

Mail order houses do not give as great a value for the money; they make a larger profit than our local merchants, and have less expense to get their trade. They are never as satisfactory as you cannot see what you are buying, and not as easily returned, when not satisfied, and is an extra expense in so doing.

Trade at home and build up your own town, be a booster, not a knocker; get the habit of buying at home.

Best reason: No other town or city can offer any better values for your money. No more reliable class of merchants and merchandise, with their stores right up-to-date in every respect. I not only found this to be true in this instance, but a great many times before this.

With best wishes for the welfare of the Plainfield merchants, and also the Daily Press, who are doing a lot towards boosting Plainfield, I remain

F. A. DUTTENHOFER.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

An invaluable aid to the Republican shrievalty candidate, George C. Otto, will be the fact that he is widely known to the rank and file of the electorate in the county at large. Mr. Otto's successful candidacies for Assemblyman and Freeholder in other campaigns, have put him in close touch with the voters everywhere, and he is going into the fight a finished campaigner.

The Republican and Democratic candidates nominated at the primaries last week yesterday filed a formal designation with County Clerk Calvert jointly naming the county committee of each party as their campaign committees. This action is merely a matter of form, to comply with the provisions of the corrupt practices act.

In its "Men and Affairs" column, the Newark Sunday Call, Sunday, told in just one short sentence what kind of a man is John H. Capstick, the Republican nominee for Congress in this district. His election was predicted.

In declaring that Mr. Capstick "is a positive man, and extraordinarily vigorous and far-seeing," the Call summed up the Montville man's qualities, the latter's friends assert. The article read as follows:

"John H. Capstick, of Boonton, who has been nominated for Congress by the Republicans in the Fifth district of this State, against William E. Tuttle, Jr., (Dem.), of Westfield, is likely to win out; for the district is normally Republican, comprising Morris and Union counties. A big Progressive and Socialist vote two years ago made a division which elected Mr. Tuttle. Mr. Capstick is a manufacturer and has been a member of the State Board of Health and held some other offices, in which he has done well. He is a positive man, and extraordinarily vigorous and far-seeing. His neighbors like him, which always speaks well for a man, and he has been successful in his private affairs. He will make a very energetic campaign, that is sure."

EVENING SCHOOL TO RE-OPEN OCT. 13

Studies in Advanced Subjects Will Be Introduced as a Feature.

The evening school classes for foreign born pupils and those needing very elementary work will be held in the High School this year, instead of the Stillman building, occupying the rooms in the new part of the building. The opening night will be Tuesday, October 13, since October 12 is a holiday. Pupils will enter the Arlington avenue door and go into the gymnasium in the basement for assignment to the classes.

This year, the Board of Education is planning to make a new departure in the evening schools by offering classes in advanced subjects—mechanical drawing, bookkeeping, typewriting, stenography, arithmetic, English, sewing, cooking, millinery, etc. In order to find out in just what subjects classes are needed, the High School will be open to register applicants for classes on Monday evening, October 5, and Tuesday evening, October 6, entrance on Arlington avenue.

All members desiring to do advanced work of any kind should appear at the High School and register on one of those nights. From the number of applicants, the Board will be able to determine what classes are needed, and will arrange to meet these needs as far as possible. The hours will be as last year, 7:00 to 9:30, and after the first week the nights will be Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday.

DEAN ATKINSON TO PREACH.

Rev. John R. Atkinson, now dean of the Cathedral of St. Phillip, Atlanta, Ga., will be the special preacher at the "Peace Service" at Grace church, Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. There will be special music by the choir, and Udo Gossweiler, 'cellist, will be the soloist. This service is authorized by the ecclesiastical authority of the diocese. The general public is invited and will be welcomed.

MODERN DANCING AND COMEDY FEATURE PROCTOR'S BILL

John Brewster in her sketch entitled "Betty," leads off on Proctor's week-end bill with four other tip-top acts that go hand in hand with the Miss Brewster gives a charming exhibition of clever acting intermingled with mirth and music. Arnie and Gertie Falls, knockabout comedians, take some bumps that thrill the audience and also display some apt comic moves.

Harry Linton, the Hoosier boy, is right up to the mark as an entertainer, as is also Les Kellers, who gets rid of a wealth of European comics during his stand before the footlights. Modern dancing, a feature that is always appropriate and welcomed by the theatre lover, is portrayed by Nyack & Williams. Photo-plays are changed daily and tonight's bill is a first-class one.

IMPORTANCE OF REGULAR ATTENDANCE.

By AUNT CATHY.

Dear good parents, let us play this day for a few minutes, let us do our planning together, let us see how many seconds of the school days belong to your child.

We all take a school day of five hours, three in the morning, two in the afternoon. First we must allow forty minutes for opening exercises, recess and three dismissals. That leaves us four and a half hours, or two hundred and forty minutes.

Let us take a class of forty pupils—and here permit me to say that classes far excel this number—of pupils, often in several grades. Dividing two hundred and sixty minutes by forty, we get an average of six and a half minutes for each child in the classroom.

If the teacher began at 9:15 to instruct Willie Jones for six and a half minutes, then Mary Brown for another six and a half minutes, and so on one by one until the last pupil on the roll had received her attention, it would be past 3 o'clock. All would be weary, dull and in no mood to return to such a school, or rather to a school with such a system.

We will see how many minutes—and minutes only—each child is entitled to; we also see how futile it would be to use them in individual instruction.

That each and every child may receive more benefit from school than his average allotment of time would permit, many have worked together to devise plans for his good. Superintendents and supervisors have made out courses of study; class teachers have spent hours arranging the details of each day's work in each subject. They realize every minute must be spent wisely; that the task before them calls for the highest type of economy of time, effort and energy.

All parents will see this on reflection; and then they will understand why we teachers earnestly urge obedience, thoughtful attention and regular attendance, day after day.

What It Means to the Child Who Is Absent Only One Day.

If a child is absent for a single day he loses all his fellow-pupils have acquired in four and a third hours of work economically planned, and carried out earnestly by a teacher guarding each second.

Let us grant our absentee come to school early the next day; in that time she would hardly be able to explain fully all he was to do for the day then before him. There would be no time in which to explain yesterday's missed work clearly, perhaps not even in a hurried way; and a teacher's duties to her class as a whole begin long before 9 o'clock and although she may be willing to assist pupils individually, it is often simply impossible for her to do so.

If a pupil misses so much in one day, it is easy to calculate what a loss a week or more of absence means.

As a rule, many pupils are apt to be weak in one subject, sometimes more. If they are studious both at school and at home they can keep up their average, but if a pupil is irregular in attendance and indifferent to "home study," how can he ever strengthen the weakest link in his chain?

The more irregular he is in attendance the more he gets to "just hate that old jography," or whatever subject is not to his liking.

This disliking a subject, then school in general, brings us to the value of regular and prompt attendance as one way to help develop character; to inculcate a respect for law and order, and a just regard for the rights of others.

Reward For Regular Attendance.

As a rule, each teacher has some tangible way of showing her approval of pupils coming to school on time every day.

Perhaps it is only the giving of a star to the class that has the highest record for attendance. If parents only realized all that star means to most of the other pupils in the class they would hire an airship to get pokey Johnnie to school on time, or, better still, they would make him understand it was his duty to be prompt out of respect to the wishes of his teacher and classmates. That unless he respected the rights of others he would never be justly entitled to vote and help makes laws to govern his fellow-citizens. And it is not always pokey Johnnies who disregard the interests of their classmates and themselves; oh no. One day a sweet little maiden, apparently so demure, was strolling slowly along listlessly picking a flower here and there. Someone called to her, saying: "Violet, you had better hurry; it's almost 9 o'clock; you might be late for school." With a toss of her beautiful curls she glibly replied: "Ich gab ble, what do I care for the teacher and her old star."

At first such remarks strike as funny; but afterwards? Ay, afterwards. The pain that fills our souls as we reflect, and wonder why some children are so lawless, so indifferent to the golden opportunities thrust in their very hands. They do not seem to realize it is a duty to respect the rights of their classmates about the coveted star.

A Very Important Lesson.

That to be prompt and regular in attendance is a fine lesson in the first step of citizenship; in fact a necessary lesson, one to be welcomed.

Only grave and serious reasons should be permitted to cause absence at any time; but if a child must remain at home half a day, be sure to have it go the other half, that it may learn all it possibly can, and also find out about the lessons it has missed, if only from a classmate.

Tardiness Is a Bad Habit.

As to tardiness, there is rarely any good excuse for it. Let promptness be a lesson in economy of time; a lesson in the joy of doing one's duty cheerfully.

Let every child strive to obtain 100 per cent. in promptness, and excellent in regularity. Everyone—except the sickly, can excel in these two subjects if in no others on their report cards.

Again I emphasize their importance as aids to developing character.

There is also a financial reason for regular attendance. In many States, if not most, the State gives funds to each local school district. Part of the amount given depends on attendance; so that each half day a child goes to school means so many bright new pennies from the State funds into the local treasury.

The amount given for each half day for each child varies in different States. Some States allow so many dollars toward each teacher's salary, this also lessens the local tax bills.

Doubtless, any State or county superintendent would cheerfully give inquiring parents correct and exact figures on these financial points.

Keep the Boys and Girls In School.

Parents will now see that there are three vital reasons why school boards and class teachers urge regular and prompt attendance. First, that a pupil may not fall behind in their lessons; second, that early in life children may understand some of the duties of citizenship; and third for financial reasons.

ADVERTISING CLUBS OF AMERICA MEET

Three Days' Session of Affiliated Organization Being Held.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 1—At the convention of the Affiliated Advertising Clubs of America, which is to assemble in this city tomorrow for a session of three days, the movement fathered by W. S. Shryer, of Detroit, to develop American market to the fullest extent in lieu of depending upon the development of South American trade to take the place of the commerce lost through the war in Europe, will be considered at length. The movement is backed by many of the advertising clubs, and by a large number of manufacturers.

Mr. Shryer, who recently returned from a trip to South America and Europe, says South America simply cannot take the surplus of exports resulting from the present war, and that American manufacturers must develop the American markets. He says, too, they must supply America with products heretofore imported from abroad. In this way, the outlet for manufactured products will be made permanent, for the depression in Europe is bound to continue long enough for American manufacturers to become so thoroughly established in their new ventures that they cannot be dislodged, as they might possibly be in South America by an ultimate renewal of European competition.

The convention wil be held under the auspices of the Adcraft Club and the Detroit Board of Commerce. Invitations have been extended to every business man in Michigan. Delegations from Buffalo, Rochester, Cleveland, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other cities have promised attendance.

Prominent among those who are scheduled to address the convention are Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of Philadelphia; James Keely, of Chicago, and the publishers or other representatives of numerous other leading newspapers of the country, together with a large number of representative manufacturers, merchants and advertising agents.

BISHOP'S DAUGHTER A BRIDE.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 1.—The Church of the Holy Spirit at Mattapan was the scene of a brilliant wedding today, the bride being Miss Elinore Lawrence, daughter of the Bishop of Massachusetts and Mrs. Lawrence, and the bridegroom, Lewis Hunt Mills, of Portland, Ore. Mr. Mills, who graduated from Harvard last June, was prominent as a football player during his college career.

BROWN'S CASE UP FOR TRIAL.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1.—William C. Brown, former president of the New York Central lines, was arraigned before Federal Judge Landis today to stand trial on a charge of rebating. Thomas J. O'Gara, president of the O'Gara Coal Company, who is alleged to have profited by the rebates, was arraigned at the same time.

STATE D. A. R. TO MEET OCTOBER 15

Plainfield Members Will Attend Annual Session in Jersey City.

Plainfield members of the Daughters of the American Revolution are much interested in the approaching annual meeting of the State Chapter, to be held at the Woman's Club, Jersey City, on Thursday, October 15, with the Paulus Hook Chapter, as hostess organization. Mrs. James F. Fielder, wife of the Governor of New Jersey, is a member of the entertaining chapter.

A business session in the morning, a luncheon and a reception will constitute the program of the day. Among those who will present department reports are three chairmen from this vicinity—Mrs. F. W. Langstroth, of Rahway, a member of the Elizabeth Boudinot chapter, and whose department is the one having in charge the work against desecration of the flag; Mrs. Mathias Steelman, of Elizabeth chairman of the department of patriotic education and a member of Boudinot chapter; and Miss Anna E. Todd, of Dunellen, the regent of Camp Middlebrook Chapter, whose department is that of conservation. From other parts of the State there will be reports of State chairmen on the different branches of the work.

For the luncheon the women of the Jersey City chapter are making excellent preparations. They expect to have as their guests about 150 of 200 members of the organization from New Jersey, and a few invited guests from other points.

REV. DR. GLAZEBROOK MARRIED IN JERUSALEM

Announcement is made of the marriage of Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, rector emeritus of St. John's Episcopal church, Elizabeth, and now U. S. consul at Jerusalem, and Miss Emmeline Rumford, a trained nurse, formerly of Elizabeth. The ceremony was performed at the Episcopal Cathedral, Palestine, September 5. The couple went to Joppa and their wedding journey.

Dr. Glazebrook is well-known in this city, where he has preached several times. He was rector of St. John's church, Elizabeth, for many years. President Wilson appointed him consul at Jerusalem.

CLEVELAND LIQUOR FIGHT.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 1.—With announcement of plans for a spectacular and strenuous "dry" fight and the opening of campaign headquarters the advocates of prohibition in Cuyahoga county have sprung suddenly into the limelight and have caused the liquor interests to sit up and take notice. The committee to conduct the active campaign, which is backed by nearly a dozen organizations and a large number of influential citizens has been organizing quietly for several months. The leaders are endeavoring to raise $30,000 to push the "dry" campaign in this county. The organization is declared by those active in it to be non-political. They say the fight will be neither political nor religious, but a straightaway campaign against the liberal proposal to amend the Ohio Constitution and in behalf of the proposed State-wide prohibition amendment.

IRRIGATIONISTS AT HELENA.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 1.—An interstate irrigation conference, for which preparations have been making for several months, was opened here today with an address of welcome by Governor Stewart. The roll call showed an attendance of delegates from more than a dozen of the so called arid States of the West. The sessions here will continue through the week and at their conclusion a majority of the delegates will proceed to Calgary to attend the annual meeting to be held there next week by the International Irrigation Congress.

GREECE BUYS AMERICAN COAL.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 1.—The Government of Greece has placed an order for 100,000 tons of coal with the Pocahontas Coal Company and the Consolidated Coal Company, which is now being sent to the seaboard for shipment. Heretofore Greece has obtained its coal from Wales. The Berwind-White Company, the largest exporter of American coal, announces that inquiries are being received almost daily concerning the delivery of coal to South America. Most of the coal that goes to South America is shipped on a cash basis.

PLAINFIELD NEWS.

There is no better way to keep out-of-town friends informed as to Plainfield news than to mail to them from time to time a copy of The Press after you have finished with it, sometimes marking an article of special interest.

Better yet, you might send some one out-of-town a subscription to receive The Daily Press every day at the rate of 10 cents a week or $5.00 a year.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Critics and theatregoers alike have for years been clamoring for originality in stage offerings and at last something new is promised, something novel—something out of the beaten path. It is William Harris, Jr.'s, production of "The Misleading Lady," to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday night. It defies classification. Because it contains so many ingredients, it has been termed a theatrical cocktail, for it co-mingles straight comedy, swift-moving melodrama, delightful characterizations, rollicking farce, forceful drama, delicious satire and a touch of tragedy. Not only is its plot original, but it is developed originally and played originally. Another peculiarity is the introduction of characters from time to time who apparently have nothing to do with the action but who in the end fit into the scheme nicely. Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey, the authors, declare that the sole purpose of their whimsical play is to amuse and entertain and it certainly does that in an irrepressible way.

It is a fact that few people have seen Maude Adams outside of the theatre. The young woman is at once the most popular actress on the American stage and at the same time the least known personality of any prominence before the footlights. She never rushes into the strong rays of publicity. Her likes and dislikes, her tastes and inclinations, outside of the theatre, are all a matter of conjecture. Has she any fads or foibles? No one knows. That she loves children is known and also that she is found of driving behind horses. She has never experienced the joy of speeding in a high-powered automobile, because there would be no joy in this for her. Never have her views on woman suffrage, either for or against, been aired. Success has not turned her head. Miss Adams realizes that her obligation to the public is to give it the best that is in her and she conserves her energies in order that she may do so. She feels that she is responsible to the public for the members of her company and sees to it that there is never any shirking. She has absolutely no patience with the player who for some reason or other lets down in his work. Her decree is, "If you are not well, don't come to the theatre; let your understudy play. But if you do come be prepared to do the best of which you are capable." Miss Adams is very jealous of the regard in which she is held and is careful in her efforts to strengthen it. If she does not rush into print with her views and opinions it is because she feels that her views and opinions are of no moment and that the public interest in her lies wholly in her power to please and amuse it while in the theatre. That she has this power is being manifested to a greater extent than ever during her present tour. Her new Barrie play, "The Legend of Leonora," gives her a role in which she is delightful and one in which she is winning lavish appreciation. This play will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night, October 8.

TAKES OVER RAILROAD.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 1.—The Seattle, Renton and Southern Railroad is now the property of the City of Seattle, the transfer having been made today in accordance with the agreement recently made between the City Council and the receivers of the property. The purchase price was $1,600,000. In future the line is to be operated in conjunction with the regular municipal system. The Seattle, Renton and Southern road is 12 miles long and extends from the business centre of Seattle to the coal mining and manufacturing town of Renton. The purchase of the line permits the city to connect the northern and southern divisions of its municipal system, which hitherto have not reached the business district. The Renton line has been in litigation for many years and recently has been conducted under a receivership.

MAC SAYS

Plainfield High School athletes are scheduled to usher the football season on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. Incidentally the open season for doctors will also make its 1914 debut at that time.

Jack Martin's return to the game was a source of relief to Manager Dooin yesterday afternoon. The Philly pilot has been having his troubles with the shortstop job since Jack has been away and he was immediately sent to the fore upon his return to Quakertown. One hit was his contribution yesterday.

Mrs. Martin accompanied Jack to the big city yesterday and is getting her first taste of baseball traveling. Wonder what effect a strict surveliance will have on the local youngster's playing during the remainder of the season?

So many candidates have reported for the Holy Cross football team that Coach Martin is seriously contemplating sending a new eleven to the fore in each quarter. Several times last season a few extras would have come in pretty handy for the local management.

Connie Mack secured one big advantage when he called the turn of the coin bringing the first two world's series contests to the Quakertown. Fans can't see how the Mack crowd can lose the series now.

George Leighs has once again been honored by the managership of the Hope Chapel basketball team. George has had considerable experience in this work and will no doubt arrange a series of contests for the Chapelites that will be on a par with those of past seasons.

A plentiful sprinkling of Plainfielders was in evidence at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon when the National League champs met the Giants in a bargain day bill. Among those who were in the grandstand were Roundsman Charles Flynn, of the local police force; George Tobin, Charles Woolston, Dr. Frederick Greene, of Hope Chapel; Joseph Burd, Tony Lusardi and Melvin Draper. They made up several different parties.

Headline—If the Pets get eleven runs they may get trophy—We are also aware of the fact that if the Boston Braves beat the Athletics they will be hailed as the world's champions.

Albin Calrstrom, Flick Luyster and Frank Bruggy are leading the race for popularity honors in the Publicity Club. Seldom does a day pass but what one or all of this trio breaks into print in the Elizabeth or Plainfield sporting tribunals.

Only faint football squeals have been heard coming on the wings of the wind that blows from Dunellen this year. Whatsmatter with all the talent in that little town where the gridiron sport has always found a welcome in past seasons?

Perth Amboy News—Dexters delay organization—Optimistic news from the Holy Cross camp may have had its effects on the Amboyites.

Considerable interest has been manifested in the Senior-Junior bowling clash on the Elks' shutes tonight. As is the usual case in meetings of this kind the juniors rule a popular favorite and the old guard will be out to root its head off for the newcomers.

It is to be regretted that the management of the Roselle High School eleven has found it necessary to cancel the games already scheduled for the gridiron warriors. The call to arms found football material a minus quantity in that institution and the result is an abandonment of the pastime for a year at least.

A number of Plainfielders witnessed the sports at the Trenton fair yesterday. Among the localites who watched the airships soaring among the clouds and the horse races was Chief of Police Kiely.

Take a tip from us—the Athletics are due to gather in another world's championship this month.

LINEUP FOR OPENING GRIDIRON ENCOUNTER

Plainfield and Somerville High Schools to Meet in Curtain Raiser.

The Plainfied High School football team will lineup for its first game tomorrow afternoon against Somerville High School. Plainfield and Somerville are old rivals, and they always put up a great fight. In last year's contest Somerville led for the first three-quarters, but the local lads managed to nose out a victory in the last few minutes. Manager Updike, of Plainfield High School, has arranged a hard schedule for his team, some of the teams being High School of Commerce from New York, South Side High School from Newark, and Phillipsburg High School. The local team will have to show a good brand of football to stand a chance with these teams. Tomorrow's contest will be a good chance to size up the High School team and figure out its chances with the bigger elevens. Coach Patch has not yet decided who he will start in tomorrow's contest although he has plenty of good material on hand.

NOTHING DOING.

Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn National League Club, said yesterday that he would not accept the challenge of the Brookfeds to play a series of games for the championship of Brooklyn. He said he would be glad to play such a series if the Brookfeds were in organized baseball, but under the conditions he would be unable to get a sanction for such a series from the National Commission.

A PRACTICE MATCH

The Junior and Senior bowling teams of the local Elks will meet in a practice match on the Watchung alleys tonight. "Bill" Nash will lead the Seniors, while Chauncey Stout will head the younger set.

DATES FOR SERIES ARE ALL ARRANGED

Philadelphia Will Get the First Two Battles, the First Being Played Oct. 9.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1—The first two games of the series for the baseball championship of the world, to be contested this year by the Boston Nationals and the Philadelphia Americans, the respective major league pennant winners of 1914, will be played at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Friday and Saturday, October 9 and 10. The third and fourth games will be at Fenway Park, Boston, on Monday and Tuesday, October 12 and 13. The fifth game, if one is necessary, will go to Shibe Park on Wednesday, October 14, and the sixth back to Fenway Park, on Thursday, October 15. Should it be found necessary to play a seventh game the owners of the Philadelphia and Boston clubs will decide the place by tossing a coin.

The schedule as arranged is subject to weather conditions. In any event the first two games will be played in Philadelphia and the next two in Boston. After that the fifth and sixth games will alternate. The series will be continued only until one of the teams has won four games. Tie games, of course, count in the schedule as postponements. The clubs must remain in either city until their schedule obligations in reference to decisive contests have been filed.

Chairman August Herrmann, President Ban Johnson, of the American League, and President J. K. Tener, of the National League, who form the National Commission, met President James E. Gaffney, of the Boston Nationals, and President Ben Shibe and Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, to arrange final details for the approaching classic. Chairman Herrman flipped a coin, which Mr. Gaffney called wrong. This gave the opening honor to the city of Philadelphia.

No changes were made in the rules which maintained a year ago. The players will share in the proceeds of the first four games irrespective of drawn verdicts. Sixty per cent. of the remainder after the National Commission deducts 10 per cent. of the gross will form the players' pool. Of this the winning team will divide equally among its eligible members 60 per cent. and the losing team 40 per cent.

The National Commission, after consultation with the interested club owners, decided upon a scale of prices from $1 to $5 a seat in Philadelphia and from 50 cents to $6 a seat in Boston. In each city the box seats will sell for $5 each, grandstand $3 and pavilion reserved $2. Unreserved or general admission tickets will be sold at $1 each in Philadelphia. At Fenway Park, Boston, a section of the centre field bleachers will be thrown open to 50 cent patrons.

Tickets in each city calling for reserved seats will be sold in series form. That is, each purchaser will have to buy for three games instead of for individual contests. In case three games are not played at both cities the unused coupons will be redeemed by the National Commission, which has full charge of the world's series.

Robert E. McRoy, former secretary of Ban Johnson and later associated with the business management of the Boston Red Sox, was selected as special representative of the National Commission to superintend the distribution of reserved admissions. McRoy and the triumvirate discussed the situation at great length, so that every precaution may be taken to thwart the usual activities of the scalpers.

President Tener named Umpires Kiem and Byron to represent the National League; Ban Johnson, Dineen and Hildebrand. There will be three official scorers, one of them J. G. T. Spink, of St. Louis. The Boston and Philadelphia chapters of the Baseball Writers Association each have been asked to appoint a representative to collaborate with the Mound City man.

The list of eligible players, as announced by Chairman August Herrmann, follows:

Philadelphia—Connie Mack, manager; Baker, Barry, Bender, Bressler, Bush, Collins, Coombs, Davies, Davis, Kopf, Lapp, McAvoy, McInnis, Murphy, Oldring, Pennock, Plank, Schang, Strunk, Thomas, Thompson, Walsh, Wyckoff and Shawkey.

Boston—George Stallings, manager; Cather, Cocreham, Connolly, Cottrell, Crutcher, Davis, Deal, Devore, Dugey, Evers, Gilbert, Gowdy, Hess, James, Maranville, Mann, Martin, Mitchell, Moran, Rudolph, Schmidt, Smith, Tyler, Whaling, Whitted and Strand.

"BRAVES WON'T WIN A GAME," HANK O'DAY.

Hank O'Day, manager of the Chicago Cubs, a National League supporter, and a former umpire on the old circuit, is not at all clubby in his predictions of a world series winner. Despite the fact that a world's series has never been won in four straight games, O'Day is put on record as having declared at Boston yesterday, after the Braves had won the pennant, that the Boston team would not win a game from the Athletics in the coming series for the world's highest baseball honors.

"I do not think the Braves will take a game from the Athletics," said O'Day. "They are so weak a squad that I do not see how they can do it, despite their having succeeded in winning the National League title. Stallings will not get a game, because he does not possess the hitters to beat Connie Mack's twirlers. And it will be Bender and Plank who will star again. Stallings does not fear the Indian at all, but I am inclined to believe he will be surprised. Bender is a good fall pitcher and manages to get in shape for the big event. Plank is the man Stallings thinks will be the star, and after what he did last season I believe he also will cut a big figure in the result of the games, but one cannot overlook Bush and Bressler. They are two youngsters, but they have the stuff and Mack may astonish the wise ones by depending upon them. The Braves are a bunch of young fellows who do not know what it is to go through a nerve-racking series. They have been under a strain all summer and have held up well under it, but in these last few games they have shown a tendency to break, although they did beat us."

RUTGERS WILL PLAY FIRST GAME HOME SATURDAY

Practice for the football squad was resumed at Rutgers College on Monday afternoon, with about fifty players in uniform. Taking the tip from the game with Princeton, Saturday, Coach Foster Sanford is now drilling the men in the use of the forward pass. It is believed that Rutgers will resort to open play in the remaining games of the season.

The first home game will be played against R. P. I. on Saturday of this week. A band has been engaged and other preparations made for a record crowd. Last week R. P. I. lost to Williams, 37 to 0, and the Scarlet followers hope to have Rutgers surpass this score. The men are all in excellent shape after the gruelling contest with Princeton.

FRITTS AND RUNYON IN MEETS SATURDAY

Former Will Appear in Newark and Runyon Takes Part at Celtic Park.

Two local athletes will compete in athletic meets Saturday, one in New York and the other in Newark. Jack Fritts and Ralph Runyon, both members of the Pastime A. C., of New York, are the men, and the latter will try his ability against policemen at the Newark games, while Runyon will take part in the Metropolitan Senior championships at Celtic Park. Fritts originally planned to enter this big meet when it was scheduled but it was postponed two weeks because of the death of James E. Sullivan. The local policeman had already made arrangements to enter the Newark meet this week and so had to withdraw from the New York events.

Runyon will take part in the high jump and pole vault. The last named is his specialty and he should make a fine showing in this event as he did at Travers Island last year when he finished second to a college star. He has been spending much of his time practicing lately and is in fine form. The new pole which the club gave him to use at Milltown on Labor Day is much better than the old one, being two feet longer.

Fritts has been entered in three events in the Newark games and stands a fine show of taking some good prizes away. He will take a chance in the mile walk and although he has never done much in this line he is no beginner and will make the other entrants go the limit. One of his running specialties is the half mile and he will probably have an easy time with his rivals in that event. The hundred yard dash is also one of the events that he will enter.

LOCAL ATHLETES WILL TAKE PART IN SMALL CLUB GAMES

Several Plainfield athletes, including John Fritts and Ralph Runyon, two of Plainfield's finest, will take part in the Small Clubs athletic championships which are scheduled to be held in Washington Park, Brooklyn, on Saturday, October 10. Many of the noted athletes of the east will be present and the competition will undoubtedly be of high order. Willie Weber, the Elizabeth star runner, will be present and also several other good athletes from the county seat.

There will be a large number of events on the list and all kinds of athletes will have a chance to compete. Many handsome prizes have been offered and it is expected that there will be a large entry list.

PARK CLUB WILL ENTER UNION COUNTY LEAGUE

Union County Bowling League delegates will convene tonight at the home of Elizabeth Elks, in Westfield avenue, Elizabeth, to reorganize for the 1914-15 season. The great race to the championship has won many new friends for the league, and it is probable that two new clubs—the Park Club, of this city, and the Westfield Golf Club—will ask permission to enter teams in the race.

Last season the tournament was a big success, Ilderan being the winner after a hard tussle with the Roselle Casino. The clubs in the race last year were: Ilderan Outing Club, of Rahway; Roselle Casino, Cranford Casino, Elizabeth Club, Elizabeth Elks and the Elizabeth Town and Country Club.

BOUND BROOK BOYS IN RUTGERS TOURNAMENT

The annual fall tennis tournament for the championship of Rutgers College began on Tuesday, September 29. The first prize will be a silver loving cup, and the second an "All Comers" tennis racquet. Interest in the tournament is keen, as the record number of entries indicate.

It is believed that the finals will be played by Roy M. D. Richardson and William C. Wells, Jr., both of Bound Brook. Richardson is captain of the varsity tennis team and one of the most consistent players in college. Wells is also a member of the varsity team, playing on court number one. Inasmuch as he has played continually this summer, he is generally conceded the championship.

TO NUMBER PLAYERS.

Princeton, Oct. 1—It was announced here last night that in the football games this fall the Princeton players will be numbered. Large figures will be sewed on the backs of the jerseys. This, it was pointed out, will enable the spectators to distinguish the players by referring to the list which will be given them. The custom will be inaugurated Saturday against Bucknell.

BRUGGY MAY JOIN NATIONAL CHAMPS

Former Local Ball Tosser Offered a Contract by Manager Stallings.

Frank Bruggy, formerly of the Pets, yesterday received a contract from the Boston Nationals and it is more than likely that he will be enrolled with that club before the end of the present week. The securing of Bruggy by the Braves ends one of the most bitter fights ever waged by league clubs for the services of a local baseball player. Since mid-season Frank has been a magnet which brought scouts of all varieties camping on the trail of the Lawrence club and the Braves securing his services are putting one over on several other clubs in organized baseball and at least two on the Federal circuit.

The Toronto scout was one of the most persistent seekers of Bruggy's services, but the signing of the big fellow with Boston practically ends his chances of going to the Canadian city.

Still another agent is said to have paid a lot of attention to Bruggy is the Buffalo Federal scout. He trailed Bruggy and other Lawrence players so closely that he is reported to have made enemies for himself in that camp. Since the return of Bruggy to Elizabeth, where he now lives, he has bobbed up in New York and made it a point to get into communication with the new Stallings recruit.

Sandy Hook Point, and the Horseshoe, just beyond, are the best of all nearby places for fluke. The fish are still hanging on, and from present indications they will last well into this month. The fish bite well there through June, July, August and September. During October, while they are not so numerous, the experienced fishermen may reasonably look forward to catching some extremely large ones in the very deep water in the channel, and the hole at the upper end of the Horseshoe. Some of the captains have been doing well over on the Rockaway and Coney Island shores this season. During the summer fluke are generally so plentiful that they can be caught right off the beach. When high tide comes early in the morning, fishermen can start from Water Witch and drift right down past the Hook, and this drift will take them down through the best fluke grounds in the bay. When the tide turns, the will carry back over the same course.

Other excellent channels for drifting for fluke are the Pumpkin Patch and Fishkill channels, reached by rowing either from Carnarsie, Goose Creek or the Raunt. Between Fishkill channel and the Raunt lie Horseshoe channel and Black Wall channel, both excellent places and famous for uncommonly large fluke.

Almost every one who goes weakfishing catches an occasional herring. When the fish is reeled in it is usually the signal for merriment among the fishermen. These are the sea herring that arrive a little ahead of the weakfish and mingle with them when they come in. They average about a pound, and are a beautiful fish to look upon. Their large, silvery scales have a pearly hue, which runs into a deep blue on the back, and the fish has very graceful lines. They are surface feeders and will come up close to an anchored boat if the occupants are very quiet. They make a game fight for their size, but it is of very short duration. At times they will leap from the water in an endeavor to shake the hook off. Shrimp is the bait they like best, and this accounts for so many of them being taken by the weakfish anglers who are using that bait. Some fishermen hunt these fish specially with very light tackle and a small hook attached to a six-foot single gut leader. In October a large herring enters the bays and inlets and remains until December. This is the hickory shad, better known as the fall herring or shad herring, and they reach a weight of two and a half pounds. The true shad does not take the hook. The round herring, a pretty, bright silvery fish, running about four inches in length, comes into the bays in great quantities and the lit-

23 OUT OF 27 GAMES WERE SAURER WINS

Local Ballists Had a Great Season on the Diamond, Beating Many Rivals.

Although there are a few minor games yet to be played this season, the schedule of the Saurer Baseball Club is practically completed and the record that this team has made is worthy of mention. To date the team has played twenty-seven games and twenty-three of these were chalked up in the victory column. The club has lined up against some of the strongest teams in this section of the State.

One of the fine features about the Saurer aggregation is that every man who has played on the team in any game this season, has been a Plainfielder, and Manager Martin is not guilty of having ever gone out of town for a man, no matter how important the series. Out of a bunch of raw material which confronted him at the beginning of the year, Martin has rounded out a fine team which is unbeatable in this city, and if another chance were given them at the Westfield crew, would make a good showing for the county title.

The team has been in action every Saturday since the season started with the exception of one and has been supported by large crowds. Towards the last of the season, Martin took over the Woodland Park franchise and played four games at that place to large Sunday crowds, all of these contests resulting in wins for the locals. Only three teams have had the honor of defeating the Mackmen this year and the Westfield aggregation had the "high sign" on the locals twice while they went down to defeat in the last game after ten innings of play.

The scores of the games played to date are as follows:

Saurer, 9; First Baptist, 4.
Saurer, 8; First Baptist, 0.
Saurer, 4; Royal Giants, 2.
Saurer, 12; Monroe Avenue, 3.

HUNT CLUB ENJOYS EARLY MORNING CHASE

An even dozen members of the Watchung Hunt Club met the hounds at daybreak this morning for the midweek chase. The start was made at the clubhouse, the hounds being thrown in nearby. The run led in the direction of New Market, crossing numerous ponds. The hounds were checked at Somptown and were cast in again on the Valley Farm, continuing across an open country back to the clubhouse.

There was only one mishap. Mrs. Ruths C. Finch was thrown from her mount, falling in a ditch, but she was not injured. She immediately remounted and finished. Those who finished were Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; Mrs. Rufus C. Finch, Lawrence Smith, Miss Mary Barker, of New York; Harry A. Bourne, A. C. Fox, Smith, Jr., and Huntsman Harrison. R. H. Towner; William Palmer

HOLY CROSS TO PRACTISE AND THEN HOLD PARADE

Manager "Doc" Doyle, of the Holy Cross football team, announced this morning that a short signal practice of the eleven would be held on the field opposite the rink on Watchung avenue, Saturday afternoon, prior to the contest with the Franklins. Both teams will meet at that place and parade through the business section to Cricket Field.

The football management has engaged the T. A. B. Fife and Drum Corps to head the line of march and all players are requested to be on hand at the appointed hour.

DEXTERS DELAY MEETING.

Owing to other arrangements, the scheduled organization meeting of the Dexter football squad of Perth Amboy, was not held last night. It has been decided to organize at a later date, probably during the latter part of the week. As a result the proposed opening of the team's schedule may be postponed from Sunday until the following week.

WATCH FOR JACK MARTIN'S COMMENT ON THE WORLD'S SERIES

Jack Martin, shortstop on the Philadelphia team of the National League, a former member of the Boston champions, will write special articles on the world's series for the Plainfield Daily Press following the close of the National League season. Martin is expected home next week and will be at this office daily to answer queries pertaining to baseball.

Martin is particularly well-fitted to comment on the Boston Braves' chances of winning the world's title as he is acquainted with each individual who will take part in the series and knows his strong points as well as his weaknesses. Jack also knows a majority of the Athletics and will describe the playing ability of all performers. Last year Martin's stories of world's series contests in this paper were the subject of much favorable comment and he has promised to supply the same service again this season.

DUFFY AND SHANNON TAKE FOUR GAMES

Both Pinners Hit the Wood Hard But Fail to Make Any High Scores.

Four players took part in the Knights of Columbus bowling tournament, last night, on the club alleys, Shannon being the only one who succeeded in taking three games straight from his opponent. The pinning was close and some of the games were not decided till the last frame. Duffy, Cannon and Strappe were the other three players and they had about an even break.

Duffy and Cannon started matters going at a furious pace in the first match when the former took two and then battled eight frames with his opponent for the third. Two victories had an effect on Duffy and he lost the third, the scores being 194 to 161. Shannon took on Strappe in the second match and made a clean sweep in all the games without exerting himself in the least. Nineteen points was the closest the loser got to his opponent, this being in the first game. The next match was the most exciting of the night, when Strappe and Cannon, both looking for revenge, faced each other and pinned their very best. All scores were low, the highest being 196, which was made by Strappe in the second game. He won the first and third games but dropped the second.

A 200 and a 192 in the first two games of the Duffy-Shannon argument were enough to give the former the two decisions, but he lost the third when his opponent hit the two century mark. Duffy and Shannon each won four out of six games played, which will give their individual averages a boost. No high scores were accounted for last night, 201 being the highest in all four matches.

The scores are as follows:

Duffy	179	201	161
Cannon	131	142	194
Strappe	143	159	166
Shannon	162	181	191
Strappe	137	196	162
Cannon	171	181	155
Duffy	200	192	178
Shannon	159	149	200

Those who will play tomorrow night are:
E. Taylor vs. G. Taylor.
Wilson vs. Moynihan.

MARATHON CLUB ORGANIZES FOR ITS SECOND SEASON

The opening meeting of the Marathon Club was held last night, at the home of LeRoy Adams. Two new members were received into the membership of the club. They are Leon Larison and Harold Bach. LeRoy Adams was elected president, Clarence Krausse, vice president; Oscar Dilts, secretary and treasurer. It was decided to have a basketball team this year and Oscar Dilts was elected captain and Leon Larison manager.

The Marathon Club would like to arrange games with any team averaging about 125 pounds, on opponents' courts. Address all communication to the manager, 23 Summit avenue, North Plainfield. The club is in its second year and has a total of seven members, including some of the best athletes of the borough school.

PLAINFIELD HIIGH SCHOOL SCHEDULES ISSUED BY THE DAILY PRESS.

Football schedules containing the Plainfield High School team's 1914 contests were issued today by the sporting department of the Plainfield Daily Press. These schedules have been donated to the school and will be distributed among the students.

JACK MARTIN DAY SET FOR OCT. 10

Bunch of Former Players Will Join Jack's Team and Play Against Pets.

When Jack Martin and his team of "old timers" appear here on October 10, the Plainfield Pets will have to go some if they intend to take the game away from the players who represented this city several years ago. Martin has collected a fine assortment of old relics and, although it's a long time since some of them appeared on the diamond, they will undoubtedly make it hot for the present players.

Cliff Randolph, who has been pitching for the Perth Amboy team all season, will be on the firing line and will be received by Billy O'Loughlin, who played with the local team some years ago. Norman Barnes, a member of the Central New Jersey championship team of 1911, will cover the first base position and Brit Martin will occupy his usual corner at second. Plainfield's "finest" will be there with bells on at shortstop, and Jim Emery, another popular player, will cover the difficult position. In the outfield will be Gilman, Scott and Adam Schott, who have made records with the local nine.

This infield is as good as any that has played in this city this season and will make the locals go some for the game. All of these men are also fine hitters and Manager Dorflinger had better get the best pitcher available to twirl against this team. The securing of a band is under consideration and there will be other festivities for the honor of the Plainfield "leaguer."

PETS HAVE SIGNED STRIKEOUT ARTIST

Bound Brook Twirler Secured by Dorflinger to Work Against Saurer.

The last game of the season between the Saurer club and the Pets will be staged Saturday afternoon, on Parker Field and both lineups will be slightly changed. This is the third of the post-season series for the silver loving cup which was put up for the most number of runs and the Saurer delegation is now leading by ten counters.

Wilson will be out of the Saurer lineup for the first time this season as he will appear on Cricket Field in a football uniform Saturday. Alberts will play left field, Miller centre and Johnny Dixon in right. Manager Dorflinger will have another new pitcher on the mound. He has secured the services of Eugene Mathews, of Bound Brook, who has made a fine record this season. Mathews has been a good pitcher for a number of years and while in High School always had the "Indian" sign on opposing batters. He has pitched for the Bound Brook Y. M. A. team all season and has made a fine record. He is only nineteen years old, weighs 164 pounds and stands 6 feet, 1 inch in heighth.

What he will do against the hard-hitting Saurer aggregation remains to be seen but if supported properly the game should be one of the best that has been played between these two teams. The remainder of the lineup will be exactly the same as in the last two games. Degnan, the High Bridge umpire, will again be on hand.

LOTS OF COMPETITION IN N. P. H. S. TENNIS TOURNEY

The opening matches of the North Plainfield High School tennis tournament for the singles championship were played yesterday afternoon, on the Mountain avenue, DeLacey avenue, Park Golf Club and Park Club tennis courts. The competitors drew for opponents and there being an odd man Townley drew bie.

The first round was played off with the exception of the match betweent Van Deventer and McDonough, which was postponed until today. The feature match was between French and Van Mater, in which the former defeated Van Mater, one of the champions in last year's doubles, by taking two out of the three sets. The winners of the first round will play in the doubles match.

The matches in the second round, which will be played today, are between Hutchinson and French, Tomkinson and Dunning, Townley and Ball, and Chandler will play the winer of the match between Van Deventer and McDonough, which was postponed from yesterday.

The results of the first round are. Dunning defeated Force 7-5, 4-6, 6-4; Tomkinson defeated Moraller, 6-0, 6-0; Hutchinson defeated Van Camp, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0; French defeated Van Mater, 3-6, 10-8, 6-3; Chandler defeated M. McDonough, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1; Ball defeated Pasch, 6-2, 8-6.

The doubles match will start as soon as the singles are played off, which will probably be tomorrow.

—Is not one of the problems facing you at the present moment a want ad problem?

GAME SCHEDULED BETWEEN SAURER AND ROYAL GIANTS

Probably the last baseball game of the season in this city will be played on Columbus Day, when the Saurer aggregation will meet the Royal Giants, who have been crying for a game with the Mackmen for the past two months. Manager Martin has consented to play this bunch on this date and a good game is expected. MacLaughlin will be on the firing line for the Saurers, but nobody knows who Kline is going to sign for this game.

Martin will put forth his strongest team and intends to take his opponents into camp for the third game of the series. These teams have met twice already this year and the honors are now evenly divided, each team having won a contest.

RECREATION NOTES

The Bryant School Club, originally the Folk Dance Club, will meet tonight at 8:15 in the Bryant School.

The Dunbar Club will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Washington School. The feature of the evening will be a prize waltz with first and second prizes. This proved so popular when it was given a short time ago that it has been decided to repeat it. A Literary Club for the men will be started. The kindergarten room will be at their disposal. No doubt this will prove very popular with those who are not so interested in dancing.

The Civic Club, under the direction of R. S. Rowland, will meet tomorrow night, at 8:15 in the Stillman School Auditorium.

A Wonderful Treasure House of Fine Furniture is Transported Bodily to Wanamaker's For Disposal

On E. 23d St., New York, near the ferry, is a modest 15 foot two-story front. That is all a passing world may see of the Aimone Manufacturing Company's workshop.

But behind it, unseen by the casual passerby, is a cluster of buildings extending through to 22d St.—cabinet-making shops, finishing rooms, artists' ateliers and five great floors of galleries and showrooms, a veritable treasure house of really fine furniture.

Furniture the Aimones made or brought from Europe:

(1) Adaptations of the purest and best types in period furniture;

(2) Verisimilitude copies of fine antique pieces of historical interest.

(3) Rare antique pieces, Italian marbles and terra-cottas and objects-d'art personally selected by Mr. R. C. Aimone on annual visits to the art centres of Europe.

(4) Lacquered furniture in black, red, bistre, blue and green, made in the Aimone workshops, among the first—certainly the finest—examples of lacquer work done in America.

The entire collection, valued at more than $400,000, is to be offered to the public at greatly reduced prices, because the twenty-years' lease on the Aimone buildings is about to expire, and the salesroom and workshops are to be given up for new and larger ones.

To thoroughly appreciate what these Aimone stocks are you must know something of the men who made and assembled them. For head and heart, as well as hands, enter into the making of fine furniture.

Carlo A. Aimone was born and brought up in an atmosphere of things historical and artistic in Italy.

He served his apprenticeship in Turin, Italy, with his uncle, a highly skilled cabinet-worker, who had learned his trade in the best shops of France and in Turin.

He came to America—where he believed the demand for correct furniture was to have its highest development—a finished cabinet-worker, and started business in a little loft at 117 Prince St., in 1878, with one helper.

Three years later his brother, Raimondo C. Aimone, came to America and joined him.

By this time C. A. Aimone had gathered around him a small band of the best workmen, among them wood-carvers whose reproductions were endowed with the lightness and grace of the master wood-carver, Grinling Gibbons, "court carver in wood to His Majesty George I."

Twelve men were with him when, in 1881, he moved into larger quarters at 30 and 32 South Fifth Ave.

The business grew. Seven years later more space was required, and the entire building at 177 Prince St. was taken over.

During the next five years the correctness and careful attention to the minutest details in the Aimone products became generally appreciated throughout the United States, and the move to 23d St. was made.

Now—twenty years later—another step upward is to be taken.

To facilitate this move all stocks on hand are to be disposed of through the Wanamaker stores, because no house in the world has a higher standard in furniture, and no house in New York has demonstrated an equal capacity for quick general distribution of fine furniture on so large a scale.

It is interesting to note, among other things that Every man in the Aimone works is a trained cabinet-worker; there is not a nail in the place; the only woods used are the finest woods of commerce, San Domingo, Mexico and Cuban mahogany, Circassian walnut from the Black Sea district, satinwood from Cuba and Ceylon, white mahogany, from Cuba and India, and straight-grained American oak.

None of the cheaper woods is used; no birch, no ash, no maple.

Every piece of lumber is bone-dry when bought, kept in a kiln from 4 to 6 months, then piled up for a year before being used.

All large curved pieces are double veneered on both sides, the very small curved pieces on one side. They cannot warp or change their shape.

All delicate pieces are mortised together the stronger pieces are dovetailed. None can warp or split.

All mirror backs are of selected wood, finished as finely as the wood in front.

The enameled furniture is in a class by itself, the tone will never fade, nor the finish wear off.

Wanamaker's will show many pieces and parts of pieces, unfinished, in course of construction. They were taken from work in hand. They show how perfect in every detail, how fine from center to surface, this Aimone furniture is.

The offering of this collection is another testimonial to the high standard of the house in the history of which is written the Povley, Corvan, and other remarkable furniture purchases.

There Are 92,000 Articles in a Drug Store

And each article furnishes a reason for trading in Plainfield.

Talking with one of the biggest drug men in the country, last Friday, I was told that a recent inventory of a drug store showed over 92,000 separate and distinct articles —none of them a duplicate.

Think of it! That druggist had not only to keep in stock 92,000 different articles, but he had to be able to put his hand on every one at a moment's notice, and he had to sell each one at a fair price or lose a sale.

Think of the advantage to you of having near you a man who stands ready—day or night—to supply you with any one of these thousands of articles which you may need for convenience, or in a moment of dire distress; which may be needed to save your life, or a life that you love more than your own.

Do you want to call on that man only when you are in distress, or do you want to encourage him to keep his store at the top notch of efficiency by giving him all your trade?

Do you think it is fair to ring his night bell when you please, and in fair weather buy your Cuticura Soap in New York, because you can save a cent by doing so?

Your Golden Rule must be badly bent if that is your idea of being a Plainfield citizen.

Many Plainfield people seem to think that local merchants are good enough to attend to "odd jobs," but, when something worth while is needed they forget the man whom they do not forget in an emergency.

Do you use your friends only for convenience? Of course not, for you very soon would have none.

Remember that the local merchant has the stove to sell as well as the grate which you allow him to replace.

Remember that the local stores which are vital to your comfort in emergencies sell the thousands of nationally advertised goods at prices which show only a fair profit. Give these local stores a chance to grow bigger and better by giving them the support which you would expect, if you were serving them as they are serving you.

Do not imagine for a moment that the drug clerk, who has to know the location of 92,000 articles in his store, doesn't know where your heart is located if you buy only postage stamps of him.

CHAPTER XVII.

"Fowler Will Kill Me."

THE second operation upon Marcus Karenin was performed at the new station for surgical work at Paran, high in the Himalayas above the Sutlej gorge where it comes down out of Tibet.

It is a place of such wildness and beauty as no other scenery in the world affords. The granite terrace which runs round the four sides of the low block of laboratories looks out every direction upon mountains. Far below in the hidden depths of a shadowy blue cleft the river pours down in its tumultuous passage to the swarming plains of India. No sound of its roaring haste comes up to those serenities. Beyond that blue gulf, in which whole forests of giant deodars seem no more than small patches of moss, rise vast precipices of many colored rock, fretted above, lined by snowfalls and jagged into pinnacles. These are the northward wall of a towering wilderness of ice and snow which clambers southward, higher and wilder and vaster to the culminating summits of our globe, to Dhaulagiri and Everest. Here are cliffs of which no other land can show the like and deep chasms in which Mont Blanc might be plunged and hidden. Here are icefields as big as inland seas, on which the tumbled bowlders lie so thickly that strange little flowers can bloom among them under the untempered sunshine. To the northward and blocking out any vision of the uplands of Tibet rises that citadel of porcelain, that Gothic pile, the Lao Porgyul—walls, towers and peaks—a clear 12,000 feet of veined and splintered rock above the river. And beyond it and eastward and westward rise peaks behind peaks against the dark blue Himalayan sky. Far away below to the south the clouds of the Indian rains pile up abruptly and are stayed by an invisible hand.

Hither it was that, with a dream-like swiftness, Karenin flew high over the irrigations of Rajputana and the towers and cupolas of the ultimate Delhi, and the little group of buildings, albeit the southward wall dropped nearly 500 feet, seemed to him as he soared down to it like a toy lost among these mountain wildernesses. No road came up to this place. It was reached only by flight.

His pilot descended to the great courtyard, and Karenin, assisted by his secretary, clambered down through the wing fabric and made his way to the officials who came out to receive him.

In this place, beyond infections and noise and any distraction, surgery had made for itself a house of research and a healing fastness. The building itself would have seemed very wonderful to eyes accustomed to the flimsy architecture of an age when power was precious. It was made of granite, already a little roughened on the outside by frost, but polished within and of a tremendous solidity. And in a honeycomb of subtly lit apartments were the spotless research benches, the operating tables, the instruments of brass and fine glass and platinum and gold. Men and women came from all parts of the world for study or experimental research. They wore a common uniform of white and ate at long tables together, but the patients lived in an upper part of the buildings and were cared for by nurses and skilled attendants.

The first man to greet Karenin was Ciana, the scientific director of the institution. Beside him was Rachael Borken, the chief organizer. "You are tired?" she asked, and old Karenin shook his head. "Cramped," he said. "I have wanted to visit such a place as this."

He spoke as if he had no other business with them.

There was a little pause.

"How many scientific people have you got here now?" he asked.

"Just 392," said Rachel Borken.

"And the patients and attendants, and so on?"

"Two thousand and thirty."

"I shall be a patient," said Karenin. "I shall have to be a patient. But I should like to see things first. Presently I will be a patient."

"You will come to my rooms?" suggested Ciana.

"And then I must talk to this doctor of yours," said Karenin. "But I would like to see a bit of this place and talk to some of your people before it comes to that."

He winced and moved forward.

"I have left most of my work in order," he said.

"You have been working hard up to now?" asked Rachel Borken.

"Yes. And now I have nothing more to do—and it seems strange. And it's a bother, this illness, and having to come down to oneself. This doorway and that row of windows is well done; the gray granite and just the line of gold and then those mountains beyond through that arch. It's very well done."

Karenin lay on the bed with a soft white rug about him, and Fowler, who was to be his surgeon, sat on the edge of the bed and talked to him. An assistant was seated quietly in the shadow behind the bed. The examination had been made and Karenin knew what was before him. He was tired, but serene.

"So I shall die," he said, "unless you operate?"

Fowler assented.

"And then," said Karenin, smiling, "probably I shall die."

"Not certainly."

"Even if I do not die, shall I be able to work?"

"There is just a chance."

"So firstly I shall probably die, and if I do not, then perhaps I shall be a useless invalid?"

"I think, if you live, you may be able to go on—as you do now."

"Well, then, I suppose I must take the risk of it. Yet couldn't you, Fowler, couldn't you drug me and patch me instead of all this—vivisection? A few days of drugged and active life—and then the end?"

Fowler thought. "We are not sure enough yet to do things like that," he said.

"But a day is coming when you will be certain."

Fowler nodded.

"You make me feel as though I was the last of deformity. Deformity is uncertainty—inaccuracy. My body works doubtfully; it is not even sure that it will die or live. I suppose the time is not far off when such bodies as mine will no longer be born into the world."

"You see," said Fowler after a little pause, "it is necessary that spirits such as yours should be born into the world."

"I suppose," said Karenin, "that my spirit has had its use. But if you think that is because my body is as it is I think you are mistaken. There is no peculiar virtue in defect. I have always chafed against—all this. If I could have moved more freely and lived a larger life in health I could have done more. But some day perhaps you will be able to put a body that is wrong altogether right again. Your science is only beginning. It's a subtler thing than physics and chemistry and it takes longer to produce its miracles. And meanwhile a few more of us must die in patience."

"Fine work is being done and much of it," said Fowler. "I can say as much because I have so little to do with it. I can understand a lesson, appreciate the discoveries of abler men and use my hands, but those others, Pigou, Masterton, Lie and the others, they are clearing the ground fast for the knowledge to come. Have you had time to follow their work?"

Karenin shook his head. "But I can imagine the scope of it," he said.

"We have so many men working now," said Fowler. "I suppose at present there must be at least a thousand thinking hard, observing, experimenting, for one who did so in 1900."

"Not counting those who keep the records?"

"Not counting those. Of course the present indexing of research is in itself a very big work, and it is only now that we are getting it properly done. But already we are feeling the benefit of that. Since it ceased to be a paid employment and became a devotion, we have had only those people who obeyed the call of an aptitude at work upon these things. Here—I must show you it today because it will interest you—we have our copy of the encyclopedic index—every week sheets are taken out and replaced by fresh sheets with new results that are brought to us by the aeroplanes of the research department. It is an index of knowledge that grows continually, an index that becomes continually truer. There was never anything like it before."

"When I came into the education committee," said Karenin, "that index of human knowledge seemed an impossible thing. Research had produced a chaotic mountain of results, in a hundred languages and a thousand different types of publication." He smiled at his memories. "How we groaned at the job!"

"Already the ordering of that chaos is nearly done. You shall see."

"I have been so busy with my own work. Yes, I shall be glad to see."

The patient regarded the surgeon for a time with interested eyes.

"You work here always?" he asked abruptly.

"No," said Fowler.

"But mostly you work here?"

"I have worked about seven years out of the past ten. At times I go away—down there. One has to. At least, I have to. There is a sort of grayness comes over all this, one feels hungry for life, real, personal, passionate life, lovemaking, eating and drinking for the fun of the thing, jostling crowds, having adventures, laughter—above all, laughter"—

"Yes," said Karenin understandingly.

"And then, one day, suddenly one thinks of these high mountains again."

"That is how I would have lived if it had not been for my defects," said Karenin. "Nobody knows but those who have borne it the exasperation of abnormality. It will be good when you have nobody alive whose body cannot live the wholesome everyday life, whose spirit cannot come up into these high places as it wills."

"We shall manage that soon," said Fowler.

"For endless generations man has struggled upward against the indignities of his body and the indignities of his soul. Pains, incapacities, vile fears, black moods, despairs. How well I've known them. They've taken more time than all your holidays. It is true, is it not, that every man is something of a cripple and something of a beast? I've dipped a little deeper than most, that's all. It's only now, when he has fully learned the truth of that, that he can take hold of himself to be neither beast nor cripple. Now that he overcomes his servitude to his body, he can for the first time think of living the full life of his body. Before another generation dies you'll have the thing in hand. You'll do as you please with the old Adam and all the old vestiges from the brutes and reptiles that lurk in his body and spirit. Isn't that so?"

"You put it boldly," said Fowler.

Karenin laughed cheerfully at his caution.

"When," asked Karenin suddenly, "when will you operate?"

"The day after tomorrow," said Fowler. "For a day I want you to drink and eat as I shall prescribe. And you may think and talk as you please.

"You shall go through it this afternoon. I will have two men carry you in a litter. And tomorrow you shall lie out upon the terrace. Our mountains here are the most beautiful in the world."

The next morning Karenin got up early and watched the sun rise over the mountains and breakfasted lightly, and then young Gardener, his secretary, came to consult him upon the spending of his day. Would he care to see people, or was this gnawing pain within him too much to permit him to do that?

"I'd like to talk," said Karenin. "There must be all sorts of lively minded people here. Let them come and gossip with me. It will distract me, and I can't tell you how interesting it makes everything that is going on to have seen the dawn of one's last day."

"Your last day!"

"Fowler will kill me."

"But he thinks not."

"Fowler will kill me. If he does not he will not leave very much of me. So that this is my last day anyhow. The days afterward, if they come at all to me, will be refuse. I know."

Gardener was about to speak when Karenin went on again:

"I hope he kills me, Gardener. Don't be old fashioned. The thing I am most afraid of is that last rag of life. I may just go on—a scarred selvage of suffering stuff. And then all the things I have hidden and kept down or discounted or set right afterward will get the better of me. I shall be peevish.

I may lose my grip upon my own egotism. It's never been a very firm grip. No, no, Gardener, don't say that. You know better; you've had glimpses of it. Suppose I came through on the other side of this affair, belittled, vain and spiteful, using the prestige I have got among men by my good work in the past just to serve some small, invalid purpose."

He was silent for a time, watching the mists among the distant precipices change to clouds of light and drift and dissolve before the searching rays of the sunrise.

"Yes," he said at last; "I am afraid of these anaesthetics and these fag ends of life. It's life we are all afraid of. Death! Nobody minds just death. Fowler is clever, but some day surgery will know its duty better and not be so anxious just to save something, provided only that it quivers. I've tried to hold my end up properly and do my work. After Fowler has done with me I am certain I shall be unfit for work. And what else is there for me? I know I shall not be fit for work.

"I do not see why life should be judged by its last trailing thread of vitality. I know it for the splendid thing it is—I, who have been a diseased creature from the beginning. I know it well enough not to confuse it with its husks. Remember that, Gardener, if presently my heart fails me and I despair and if I go through a little phase of pain and ingratitude and dark forgetfulness before the end. Don't believe what I may say at the last. If the fabric is good enough the selvage doesn't matter. It can't matter. So long as you are alive you are just the moment perhaps, but when you are dead then you are all your life."

Some Cookery Suggestions

HOMEMADE APPLE BUTTER.

ONE of the most delicious home products is a well made apple butter. It is comparatively inexpensive, and in families where there are children it is greatly appreciated.

Must Be Well Cooked.

Cider Apple Butter.—Put cider into a preserving kettle and boil it until reduced to one-third of its original quantity. Peel and slice into it as many apples as it will cover and simmer, stirring until the fruit is tender. Strain the apples out and add more fruit, proceeding in this way until all the cider has been absorbed. Put the mixture into a stone jar and leave overnight. In the morning return to the fire and boil to a soft brown mass. Put into jars and cover.

Old Fashioned Recipe.

Grandma's Apple Butter.—Boil one gallon of fresh sweet cider to one-half its original quantity. Then fill the kettle with sliced sweet apples and let them simmer gently but steadily all day until reduced to about one-half their original bulk. Stir frequently with a wooden spoon or paddle to prevent their scorching. If not boiled down sufficiently the first day, let cook longer on the second. Pack away in stone or wooden jars.

An Economical Way.

Dark Apple Butter.—Take thirteen quarts of apple juice from the press and boil down to four and a half. Have one bushel of sound, perfect apples pared, cored and cut into eighths, if large, or quarters if small. Put the apples into the liquid and cook until they begin to grow tender; then set where they will cook slowly and stir every few minutes. The kettle should never be set directly over the fire. Cook slowly a long time until a dark smooth mass is obtained. It needs no sweetening and will have that peculiar and agreeable tang that no other preserve, jam or marmalade ever has. It is an old fashioned sauce that needs to be revived and will keep in jars without tight sealing all winter if the storeroom is cold. The ingredients given above should make about ten quarts of butter.

Anna Thompson

Jumped From the Top of the Pool Into the Water.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Center Of the World.

"BUT, daddy, I should think that where each person is would be the center of the world for that person," said Jack thoughtfully in reply to something daddy had just said.

"Well, a certain king of Delhi, in India, thought he knew where it was," replied daddy. "About 700 miles northeast of Bombay and the same distance northwest of Calcutta stands the ancient city of Delhi.

"Its walls, gates, palaces, tombs and other great works are wonderful for size and beauty of architecture. The city once contained 2,000,000 inhabitants.

"Just a few miles from this ancient Indian city stands a very tall tower. The Brahmins say that it marks the center of the world, and the story they tell about it is quite interesting.

"Once upon a time a certain king of Delhi was very anxious to reign a long time and leave the throne to his family. So he called a council of pious Brahmins, and these pious men told him that near Delhi was the center of the earth and that if the king would drive down an iron rod into the earth near that point it would enter the head of the big serpent which the pious men said supported the earth at that point. Then a tower must be built over the rod. This would insure the king of a long reign and a sure inheritance for his children.

"The king did as the pious Brahmins advised, and then they told him that the serpent was transfixed. But the king hadn't as much faith as he possibly should have had, because after the pious men had gone away he went and pulled up the rod.

"The rod was all bloody, so he knew the pious men were right and that he had found the center of the earth and the serpent's head. But perhaps because he pulled the rod out all sorts of disasters followed him. Enemies beset him, and he not only lost his throne, but his head in the bargain, so the story goes. Of course no one really knows why that tower was built.

"But all the Brahmins believe that under this tower the serpent still lives and supports the world on its head.

"Not far from the tower is a wonderful well. It is thirty feet square and 120 feet deep. This well is, of course, for drinking purposes, but the natives make rather a queer use of it.

"You see, many visitors are attracted by the fame of the tower at Delhi, so the Hindus of the village make capital of their well.

"For a few pennies they will jump from the top of the pool into the water. It would be like Jack jumping off a six story building. But these Hindus do it without any fear whatever. Even old men take jumps occasionally."

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS
Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR
Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wipsy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

STORY OF HER TRIP TO GERMANY

Mrs. Catherine Cubberly, of the Borough, Had Exciting Experience.

HAD NARROW ESCAPES

Being An American, Plainfielder Was Treated With Every Consideration —Relates Interesting Details of the Journey In Foreign Lands.

Mrs. Catherine Cubberly, of the borough, who has just returned from a trip to Germany, has written an interesting account of her experiences to and from that country, telling in detail of the excitement and countless incidents which she had while abroad. Mrs. Cubberly's story follows:

"When I made a speech at the farewell party given me, before sailing to Germany, July 7th, by friends, saying I was like Eva Tanguay, 'I was going, but didn't know what I was up against,' little did I dream it was a true prophecy of my future in Germany. On the boat going over we had rain or fog. Horn blowing dismally till last day, then smooth sailing and a nice sunset when we arrived at Bremen Haven, July 19th. We anchored for the night, left boat in the morning at 9 a. m., got through Custom House, took train for Bremen, shipped bags and started for my destination, 'Buhl in Baden.' I studied German money on the boat going over, so found it easier to handle cash at stations.

"Ten shipmates of us kept together up to Heidelberg, then at 1 a. m., we had coffee. Then they saw me on the train with a cheer for the American, as they were all foreign born in my class, but citizens of America. At 3 a. m. next day I was met by my cousins, they receiving telegram of my arrival. Then followed a week of thunder, lightning and pouring rain, in which I made good writing letters and about 250 post cards to my friends in U. S. A. On July 18th, though stormy yet, we started on a trip, stopped off at Karlsruhe, saw the Gooso Herzog Fredrich castle, and many other noted buildings. All streets led up to the castle. It is well guarded. Had dinner, after which we started for Heidelberg. Still raining.

"At Heidelberg we went up to the castle by elevated train, looked around, saw the famous 'Barrel.' We walked down to get a view of the Neckarand surrounding city and market places and mountains. We took refuge in an old historic church during a very hard storm. This had been divided in a former time, one-half for Catholics, the other half of the building for Protestants. Then we went on to Weinheim. In walking along Fuchs Mill we got into Kirkenaurtsl, belonging to the Hessians. We climbed up the Windeck on the mountain, court house, banks, church over 600 years old, and many interesting places, when on August 1st war was declared. I couldn't get through to my boarding place in Buhl, so I remained and saw soldiers fitted up, each carrying only two sets of underwear, two pairs of socks in a paste-board box (their rule) marching toward the Caserne, near Manhermo to Exercuse or in trains toward Mihlhausen, where they fought their first battle. A few days later trains were decorated with flowers, and mottoes were written in chalk all over the trains. Hot coffee and sandwiches were served them at every station by Red Cross friends; also fruits and milk by the public. Then I went to Marmheim myself to the consul to register and get German money as banks stopped cashing our checks.

"The war was a fact, for excitement reigned everywhere and everyway. The consul took many gentlemen and myself to a German bank, but they oculd barely give up enough to carry us back to our stopping places. I was held up twice, but on showing passport and registration paper was allowed to go on my way rejoicing, getting back to Weinheim late. Trains had no schedule time now. It was a case of persistence and luck. I also saw nearly 400 horses led to train for war use, sometimes wagons left standing, and they got their cows hitched up and took wagons home, whether loaded or empty. People and children and women are all that are left in Germany. Those tourists in autos or motorcycles all had to show their papers, many had to leave their autos till after the war returning with us for Texas, U. S. A.

"Express checks laid in banks for weeks before cashed in German coin, so hindering many that would have left for U. S. A. sooner if they could. But the Germans were courteous to Americans all along the way and apologize for delaying you when they see our flag and passports. People gathering by hundreds at stations, soldiers by the thousands; all trains given up to them; no freight carried.

"KEEP TO THE RIGHT" LAW TO BE ENFORCED

Chief Kiely's Men Instructed to Rigidly Enforce Much-Abused Ordinance.

Chief Kiely's present crusade against those who have been violating the city's traffic regulations will be more far reaching than any ever heretofore undertaken by the local authorities, according to an announcement made by the police head this morning. Not only will automobile drivers be subjected to a strict surveilance, but the campaign will also be extended to those who drive horse-drawn vehicles about town.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced recently by the police officers in enforcing the "keep to the right" regulation in the business section. Drivers of trucks and other large vehicles have displayed an open indifference to the warnings of the traffic cops and hereafter those who persist in driving their steeds in the middle of the thoroughfare or on the left hand side will be ordered to appear in the city court for an explanation. Examples will be made of offenders and by this means the department hopes to be able to put a stop to the practice.

In commenting on the subject to a Daily Press reporter, this morning, Chief Kiely said: "There is an apparent feeling among drivers of horses in this city that automobilists have no rights, whatever. They are of the opinion that they can do and act as they please without regard to our regulations. I have issued orders to each of the patrolmen to enforce the laws and, if necessary, to make arrests. Many of the accidents recorded during the past few weeks have been directly due to 'piggishness' on the part of wagon drivers who occupy more than their share of the roads. Automobile chauffeurs are forced to crowd their machines to one side of the street and in some cases they find it impossible to pass the horse drawn vehicles."

UNDERTOOK TO TAKE A FALL OUT OF A HUSKY PATROLMAN

"I've got it on you and you can't do anything with me," was the retort handed to Patrolman Muir when he told Joseph Stevens to "move on" at an early hour this morning on North avenue. For an hour or more before the saucy street walker was located by the patrolman residents of North avenue were disturbed by wierd noises that resembled cat calls.

Sounds of "scat" and "me-ow" vibrated through the early morning air and Muir was requested to break up the kitten meeting. He traced the noise to the entrance of George Tobin's plumbing shop on North avenue, where he found Stevens engaged in chasing 200 or more imaginary felines behind a glass pole.

The man had imbibed too freely in amber fluid and was suffering a severe attack of "jim-jams." The officer's order to "move on" riled the man and he pulled a pint bottle of the best Scotch rye from his hip pocket and proceeded to pommell the minion of the law. Muir had a short tussel with the disorderly character but finally got him under control and hustled him to police head quarters, where he was lodged in a cell.

Arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, Stevens had not completely "thawed out" and was remanded to a cell until tomorrow, when some disposition will be made of his case. He is an old offender and has been giving the coppers in the business section considerable trouble of late.

LOCAL WORKER SPOKE AT ANTI MEETING IN FREEHOLD

Miss R. A. Lawrence, of this city, chairman of the State press committee of the New Jersey Association Oppposed to Woman Suffrage, was a speaker at the meeting held in the home of Mrs. George Edgar Schanck, at Freehold, Tuesday afternoon. The session was well attended and much interest was evidenced in the various suggestions made by the speakers.

Those who spoke besides Miss Lawrence were: Miss Caroline M. Holmes, of the Guidon Club, of New York, an Anti-Suffrage organization; and Mrs. Alexander F. Jamieson, acting president and organization chairman for the State of New Jersey.

The latter described the rapid growth and spread of the movement, and the steady enrollment of members in every branch in the State, twenty-six of which already exist, while several others are preparing for organization.

A number of signatures were secured to the charter of the organization founded in Freehold and this town promises to have a flourishing division of the Anti-Suffrage Association.

ROOSEVELT MAY ENTER CAMPAIGN

Progressives Hope to Get His Aid for Congressional Ticket.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT

Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., and John H. Capstick, Opposing Candidates, Are Planning to Wage Lively Contest in Fifth District.

The three cornered fight for Congressional honors in the Fifth district promises to be one of the most interesting in recent years. The candidates, former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Progressive; William E. Tuttle, Jr., Democratic, who seeks a re-election, and John H. Capstick, Republican, are all preparing for a lively campaign which will be on in earnest within the next two weeks. Congressman Tuttle was in Plainfield today calling on friends and while he is not just prepared to announce his plans for the campaign he gave every assurance that he would be in the contest to the finish.

Mr. Moy, in an interview with a reporter for The Daily Press, yesterday, said that during the campaign he would visit every city, town and village in the district and intends to speak at a number of meetings. Reports coming to him that he would not receive 400 votes in Union county nor more than 200 in Morris county, have only tended to spur him to greater effort and determination in his campaign.

It is now planned to bring some of the biggest men in the Progressive party into the district between now and election and there is a strong indication that Theodore Roosevelt will be among those who will speak in behalf of the Congressional nominee as well as other candidates on the Progressive ticket. The campaign committee hope to be able to make a definite announcement soon regarding the former President's visit to the district. George L. Record has offered to give Mr. Moy all the assistance in his power and he will probably be heard on several occasions in this vicinity. Mr. Moy does not intend to waste a moment campaigning and from the time he begins he will be busy day and night in an effort to win votes for the Progressive ticket.

While nothing has as yet been heard regarding Mr. Capstick's plans, it is known that he, through his manager, William Newborn, will wage an aggressive fight. Inspired by the flattering primary vote he received which gave him the Congressional nomination on the Republican ticket, Mr. Capstick feels confident of making a good showing in the election and winning out. His friends predict for him a large vote. On the other hand the many friends of Congressman Tuttle, who believe that he has made a fine record since going to Washington, are prepared to do all in their power to see that he is returned.

LOCAL CLOTHING MERCHANT CELEBRATING ANNIVERSAQRY

With the closing of his twelfth year of business in this city, Hyman Adelberg, of East Front street, has prepared his annual exhibit of exclusive fall and winter styles of men's, women's and children's wearing apparel. That the shopping public may have ample opportunity of inspecting one of the largest and best stocks of clothes in the city, the place of business will be open this evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. This occasion will be for inspection, no goods being on sale. An orchestra composed of local talent will furnish music for the combined anniversary and fall show of fashions.

Mr. Adelberg opened his credit clothing business in this city over the store he now occupies in 1902. The increased volume of business which the institution has experienced has been far beyond expectations, and the increase of floor space soon became a necessity. The store today is classed among the progressive houses of the city. Souvenirs will be given to adults this evening.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN A CYCLE CRASH

New Market Young Man Impaled on Wire Fence Post —Now in Hospital.

Defective brakes on a motorcycle were responsible for an accident at New Market, yesterday afternoon, that nearly caused the loss of two young men's lives. Robert Schworer, twenty-two years old, was piloting a twin-cylinder machine down the Main street grade at a speed estimated to have been forty miles an hour and in an effort to take a sharp turn in the road was compelled to ditch the machine. The driver and George Crouse, a companion who was riding on the rear seat, were pitched against a wire fence at the side of the thoroughfare and the former sustained painful injuries.

Schworer shut off the motor but the momentum of the vehicle forced it to shoot diagonally across the street. Crouse, from his position on the rear seat, was able to leap before the machine hit the fence and escaped unhurt. Schworer was less fortunate, however, and the sudden turn which he had given his cycle resulted in the fall of the heavy machine on his right limb. The leg was pinned between the vehicle and an iron post, being broken above the knee. He was thrown forward by the impact and his wrist was impaled on the pointed spear which ornaments the fence.

Those nearby rushed to the assistance of the victim and for a time it was thought that the driver was fatally injured. He was carried to the residence of Alexander Herlick and Dr. T. H. Platt summoned, the latter ordering his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance. According to latest reports the young man is resting comfortably today and no internal injuries have been found. With the exception of a bent footrest the motorcycle was not damaged.

MORE SUBSCRIPTIONS TO BELGIAN FUND

Money Being Raised in This City to Help the Innocent Sufferers Abroad.

Two more contributions of one dollar each have been received by the Daily Press for the fund being raised in this city to aid the widows and orphans and the homeless in Belgium. In addition to the money subscribed through the Daily Press the committee of local women having the matter in charge have received several hundred dollars which will be forwarded to the Belgian Relief Committee in New York.

The appeal is the most worthy one that has been made in Plainfield in many years. No idea can be gained of the great want and suffering in King Albert's little kingdom, as a result of the devastation wrought by the war. In the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post appears an article by Reginald Wright Kauffman, in which he tells of the awful conditions which he found in a visit of but a few hours to Ostend, whence the suffering women, children, and men who were not able bodied enough to take part in the war, were flocking by the thousands when he visited the city. All had lost every possession, except the few miserable trinkets which they were able to carry with them in their efforts to escape the carnage incident to the destruction of their homes.

It is hoped that many more contributions will be sent to the Press, in order to aid this worthy cause. No contribution is too small, and large ones are of course doubly welcome. The two contributions acknowledged today are from Mrs. E. M. F., Dunellen, and Mrs. Frank Stout, of this city.

FIRE DESTROYS VACANT HOUSE IN THE BOROUGH

Fire, the origin of which is a mystery, about destroyed a vacant house located between Green Brook and Prospect place, the borough, about 7 o'clock last night. The dwelling, a small one, was owned by Edward Sebring, of Lincoln place, the borough. An alarm was sounded from box No. 151, and when the department arrived the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the structure.

The fire apparently started in the basement of the house and quickly worked its way to the attic, having reached that point when the firemen arrived. The firemen were greatly handicapped in fighting the blaze owing to the dense smoke. The total damage is estimated at $1,000.

HOOD TRANSFER DECLARED LEGAL

Long Litigation Regarding Property Finally Settled at Trenton Today.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Property Will, Is Is Said, Soon Be Sold—Court Today Upheld Decision of Vice Chancellor Stevens—Mrs. Hood to Leave Plainfield.

Trenton, Oct. 2.—By a unanimous vote the Court of Errors and Appeals, the final judicial body to which the matter can be taken, today decided that Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood is the owner of the handsome property on Stelle avenue, where she now resides. This is the final chapter in a long drawn out litigation, lasting over a year. The decision sustains an opinion given in the Court of Chancery by Vice Chancellor Stevens some months ago.

The property was transferred to Mrs. Hood by her husband, Richard Haden Hood, some years ago, and prior to incidents which resulted in her bringing successful divorce proceedings against him. After the divorce had been successfully prosecuted Hood brought proceedings in the Court of Chancery to recover the property, claiming that the transfer to his wife had merely been one of convenience, and that there had been a secret understanding that the property was to continue to be his, in spite of the transfer. Mrs. Hood proved in court that such was not the case, and Vice Chancellor Stevens awarded the property to her, Hood appealing to the Court of Errors and Appeals, which handed down its decision today.

There are still pending other questions regarding the final disposition of the furnishings in the handsome Stelle avenue residence, and also regarding the final amount of alimony which Hood must pay. Temporary alimony has been fixed for several months.

When Mrs. Hood was told by a Daily Press reporter today of the decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals, she expressed herself as much pleased with the result but said that she had nothing to say for publication. She will leave Plainfield on Sunday, and after visiting friends at several places will take up her home in Philadelphia with her parents. The Stelle avenue property is understood to be on the market and it has been rumored that an offer of $75,000 has already been made for it, which was to be made final when the suit regarding the ownership was settled. Mrs. Hood said today that she had nothing to say about the sale at the present time.

FUNERAL OF ADAM NEUMAN IS HELD

Rev. Drs. D. B. F. Randolph and C. M. Anderson Officiate at Obsequies.

The funeral service of Adam Neuman was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the late home, 507 Watchung avenue, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including the entire force of clerks in the employ of Neuman Brothers, of which grocery firm Mr. Neuman was a member.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, of which Mr. Neuman was a member, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, a close friend of the deceased.

There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends, including those from the employes of Neuman Brothers. The burial was in Bound Brook and the pall-bearers were Walter McGee, Walter Manning, D. H. Pound, E. H. Beekman, John J. Praed and T. W. Jacobs, all of whom were associated with Mr. Neuman in the work at the Monroe Avenue church.

EUGENE A. MOORE.

Eugene A. Moore, son of the late David M. Moore, of this city, died yesterday, after a long illness. He was a native of this city and with the exception of a few years always lived here. Sometime ago he was afflicted with blindness and he never regained his sight. He is survived by two brothers, Walter Moore and Horace Moore, and a sister, Miss Moore, the last named of this city. The funeral will be private.

—Neuman Brothers' store, Watchung avenue and Fifth street, will be open tomorrow after being closed three days on account of the death of Adam Neuman.—Adv. ***

CURTAIN SOON TO BE LIFTED ON GREATEST WAR DRAMA WORLD HAS SEEN, SAYS EYEWITNESS

CORRESPONDENT, RETURNING TO LONDON FROM BATTLEFIELDS, SAYS OFFICIAL BULLETINS GIVE NO IDEA OF REAL SITUATION.

ANTWERP FORTIFICATIONS HOLDING OUT WELL

Battle Front Has Been Extended, and in Region of Roye Conflict Continues With Great Violence—Russians Claim Victory in Every Encounter and Are Advancing on Berlin at a Rapid Pace, Routing German Army All Along the Line.

London, Oct. 2—(By Herbert Baldwin, special correspondent of Central News)—I arrived Wednesday at Calais after a six days' tour of the country to the north of the Allies' left wing and northwest of the main armies. Without disclosing particulars things may be said which will go far toward removing any misgivings concerning the ultimate outcome of this immense struggle.

The French official communiques are informative to a degree unapparent to the multitude who have no conception of the vast scheme which is being steadily developed to the undoing of the German forces. Far from overstating the facts the official communiques tell but a fraction of the truth. The moment is rapidly approaching when the curtain can be lifted on one of the greatest dramas ever enacted.

The great battle line shown in official statements is becoming steadily greater and the position between Lassigny and Chaulnes, of the German right wing is such that its danger of destruction is imminent. The German lines which a few days ago faced due west are now pacing northward, being steadily bent backward on the main line, the principal points whereof are Chaulnes, Cambrai and Valenciennes.

Last Sunday five Uhlans, mounted on bicycles, were captured near Valenciennes. They stated that the shortage of horses brought them to this pass and they declared that they had almost nothing to eat for some days. The men were from Von Kluck's army. It has been apparent throughout the last stages of the battle of the Aisne that Von Kluck's position is being made ever and ever more precarious because of the general staff crowding reinforcements upon him. The obvious danger of a partial or complete failure of his commissarist has now manifestly begun.

"The indiscriminate laying of mines by the Germans necessitated counter measures by this country," says an official statement issued by the admiralty. "A system of mine fields has therefore been authorized on a considerable scale. The admiralty to reduce the risk to non-combatants announces therefore that it will be dangerous henceforth to cross the area between latitudes 51.15 and 51.40 north and longtitudes 1.35 and 3.00 east." Instructions have been issued to warships to warn all east going vessels.

The area which the admiralty has designated as a mine field covers the entire eastern end of the straits of Dover, touching North Foreland on the southeast coast of England, and including the Belgian coast at Ostend and for some distance east of that point.

Amsterdam, Oct. 2, (Central News Cable)—The position of Antwerp after the assaults on its fortifications in the last four days is excellent. The German forces have been decimated by the mitrailleuse fire of the Belgians and their dead can be counted by thousands.

It is learned from a good source that the German general staff has withdrawn from Luxemburg to Mainz, a fortified position on the east bank of the Rhine. Eighty automobiles were used in making the transfer of the officers and the equipment of the German headquarters.

Paris, Oct. 2.—The following official statement was issued by the French war office today:

"First on our left wing the battle continues with great violence, notably in the region of Roye, where the Germans appear to have concentrated large forces. The action is extending more and more toward the north. The battle front has actually been extended even into the region of Arras to the south.

"Second, on the Meuse the Germans tried to build near St. Mihiel a bridge which has been destroyed. In the Woevre region our offensive continues and it advances step by step, notably in the region between Agremont and St. Mihiel.

"Third on all the rest of the front only partial operations have been attempted on either side."

A news agency despatch from Nish says after 20 days of the offensive the Austrian forces have stopped 12 miles from the Drina on the Bosnian frontier. While these forces are awaiting reinforcements their troops at the north have been trying desperately to advance over the plains between the Drina and the Save to get at the right flank of the Servians. All their efforts there were defeated in bloody battles. Meanwhile the Servians and Montenegrins advance slowly but surely in Bosnia, breaking the stubborn resistance. They occupied on September 30 Romania and several other towns in the vicinity.

Tokio, Oct. 2.—A flotilla of Japanese destroyers has wrecked the German barracks at Tsing Tao and fire is reported to be raging within the fortifications. A Japanese fleet continues to bombard the fortress which is also being shelled by the British and Japanese batteries from the land side. A small magazine was blown up last night by a bomb dropped from a Japanese hydor-aeroplane.

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

Paul Ratti, of North avenue, was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

Miss Ruth Apgar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Newton Apgar, of New Market road, has entered Plainfield Business College.

Contractor Fred Russell has commenced grading the grounds about the new Lincoln School.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Costello, of Whittier avenue, are entertaining Mrs. Costello's cousins, Mrs. Thomas Harkins and Miss Agnes Bones, of Century, West Virginia, for a few days. Mrs. Harkins and Miss Bones have been visiting their brother, James Bones, of West Front street, Plainfield, for the past couple of weeks. They will return home the first of the week.

DOES NOT IMPROVE.

Henry Russell, of North avenue, who has been in the Muhlenberg Hospital at Plainfield for the past six weeks as the result of a growth on the face, shows little or no improvement. His many friends are fearful that the growth may prove to be of a malignant nature.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Nonemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Broshart and Mr. and Mrs. David Munday were among those from this place who attended the Trenton Fair yesterday.

Mrs. John Tinsman and William T. Piddington, Jr., were visitors at Newark yesterday.

THE ROTHBERG STORE

Is building its success primarily on the rights of the customer. We propose to look upon it as an institution, not merely for private benefit, but rather for the benefit of every person, every clothes buyer to whom we can extend its services.

We propose to make the Rothberg store—in merchandise, in equipment, in methods—stand first and last for service; a place where you may be sure of finding four-square goods sold by four-square methods.

There is no better example of the way we are fulfilling these principles than in the showing of new Fall Suits—priced $10 to $30.

VISITING IN THE BRONX.

William Gangloff, of Greenbrook road, instead of coming home after the completion of his daily duties in the city for the past couple of nights, has been journeying to the Bronx and remaining with his grandmother, Mrs. John Goodwin, over night.

Mrs. Patrick Costello, of Whittier avenue, is planning a three days' visit with friends at Gloversville and New Rochelle, N. Y., the latter part of the coming week.

Mrs. Irving Mundy, of Prospect avenue, spent yesterday in Raritan as the guest of her mother

Miss Mary Peterson, o Brooklyn, a former resident, spent yesterday in the borough as the guest of Miss Annie McMahon.

Contractor Frank Broshart is installing steam heating apparatus in the boothlack parlors of Ambruso Egidio, on North avenue.

William McMahon, has returned from a two days' visit with friends at Brooklyn.

Contractor J. F. G. Kinney is repainting the side walls of the Joseph M. Maier building on North avenue, so as to make the color of the entire building conform with its natural buff brick front.

Mrs. Harry Apgar and children, of Philadelphia, are visiting at the home of Borough Engineer and Mrs. L. T. Churchill on Fourth street.

LAY 2,000 FEET OF WALK.

Contractor J. S. Hawkyard has completed laying 2,000 lineal feet of concrete sidewalk for the borough on both sides of North avenue from Chestnut street west to the line of the Hall Printing Press Company, thus completing the first undertaking of this character upon the part of the borough. This is no spasmodic departure upon the part of the borough but rather a permanent one, the idea being to expediate the laying of needed walks. The new departure is a most commendable one as in some instances where an ordinance has been passed relative to the laying of a stretch of walk some of the property holders affected assume the attitude that they will lay their walk when they get good and ready to lay it and others residing out of town find it impossible to come to the borough to attend to it. The cost of doing the work is assessed by the borough against the respective properties.

NOVEL SOCIAL.

Plans have been completed for a novel social to be given under the auspices of Lakeside Council in Friendship Hall on Thursday evening, October 15. The event will be termed a "Railroad Party." Lots of fun is promised and only a nominal fee will be charged. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Zella Kelly has been substituting a portion of this week as a teacher in the North Plainfield schools.

The first autumn meeting of Friendship Circle was held yesterday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. Nelson Blackford, on New Market road.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

Rally day will be observed in the First Baptist church on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The Owl Club held its annual outing at Seidler's Beach, yesterday.

BOY SCOUT NEWS.

On Monday night, October 5, the executive board of Boy Scouts of America will hold a meeting in the borough hall at 8 o'clock.

The Plainfield Council, Boy Scouts of America, have extended to the Dunellen Council of Boy Scouts an invitation to attend their annual field day to be held on Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, October 17, at 2 o'clock. It is now expected that entire troop No. 1 and Columbus Troop will attend in a body, going to the field in a special car. It is sincerely hoped that the friends of the Boy Scouts of Dunellen will take this opportunity to attend these exercises, in order that they may become thoroughly versed with the movement and extend to our boys their hearty co-operation.

On October 20, the annual meeting of the Scout Council will be held in the borough hall at 8 o'clock in the evening, at which time the election of officers will be taken up.

PLANNING FOR FAIR.

Tentative plans for a fair to be held sometime during November were gone into at length at a special meeting of Defender Fire Company, No. 1, held in the borough hall, last evening. The purpose of the fair is to provide funds for the new uniforms and incidental fire apparatus.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vail, of Dunellen avenue, passed Wednesday evening at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George Romond, of Plainfield.

EYE SEVERELY INJURED.

While engaged in a mimic warfare with some chums after school hours yesterday afternoon, Gilbert Bolard, son of Councilman and Mrs. John J. Bolard, was struck under one of his eyes with a corn stalk, receiving a bad cut. The would swelled very rapidly, closing his optic, and he was led to the office of a nearby physician for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Doerr, of Brooklyn, are spending two weeks in the borough as guests of Mrs. Doerr's mother, Mrs. George Lee, of Grove street.

'Plains & Fanwood.

A peace service, to which all of the residents of Scotch Plains and Fanwood are invited, will be held in the Baptist church on Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock, in accordance with the proclamation issued by the President. Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church; Rev. George H. Houghton Butler, rector of the Episcopal church, and Dr. H. K. Carroll, pastor of the Methodist church, will be present to make addresses.

Interest has been revived again in the local Boy Scouts and a number of the men of Scotch Plains held a meeting in the Baptist church the fore part of the week and formed a scout council. Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, was elected president, and William Ward secretary-treasurer. Ira G. Walker and John Z. Hatfield are the other members. Martin Korff was elected scout master and will be assisted by Harry Paff and Robert Anson. Weekly meetings of the scouts will be held at the Baptist parsonage. Read Holiday is still the scoutmaster of the troop in the borough.

The members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church will journey to Bound Brook tonight, taking the 7 o'clock trolley, to attend the league rally to be held in that place. The local league has received the banner once offered at every rally for the league having the most members present and are going out for it again.

Louis Morrell, of Park avenue, has returned from spending several weeks with relatives in Summit.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, is working on plans for the annual bazaar that will be held in the church the last of the month for the benefit of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. William Terry, of the township, have returned from visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Hann, of Newark.

Miss Marion Hunter, of the township, has returned to her studies in Ohio after spending her vacation with her parents.

Work has been started on a house in the lower end of the township for a New York party.

LOUVAIN THE LOST

(An American Eye-Witness's Story)

Arno Dosch, the correspondent of the World's World magazine at the front in the European war, was an eye-witness of the burning of Louvain. In his article in the October World's Work he writes as follows.

"* * * The train ran slowly and did not reach Louvain until nearly evening. Some of the nearby towns were also afire, and at all the stations there were many soldiers. But it was not until we came in sight of Louvain that we realized the extent of the destruction. Some of us had not been able to credit it until we saw with our own eyes. I was prepared to find one or two of the more troublesome quarters destroyed, but the first thing that caught my eye was the roofless church of St. Pierre. Aroce the Grand Place the Hotel de ille still stood, but everything in between, a distance of half a mile, and everything for a mile beyond to the farthest rampart, was burned. All the handsomest houses in the northern end of the city were bare brick and stone walls. There were a few dwellings along the rampants to the east still standing, but these were burning, too, when our train went on two hours later.

"My first intination, as the train pulled in, was to go through the ruined town, but the train had hardly come to a step before a soldier drunk both from excitement and drink, shoved his head into the window and cried with an expressive gesture, 'Three cities razed! Three! There will be more!'

"He had hardly gone before another shoved in his head and cried 'English' in a menacing tone. We called back 'Americans,' but he did not understand. 'Americans from the United States,' I said in German. 'We are not enemies.' 'All who cannot speak German well are enemies,' he replied, fumbling at his belt. It looked for a second as if we were in for a struggle, but another more intelligent soldier pushed him aside with the exolanation. 'He's drunk.'

"I realized by this time it would be extremely dangerous to go down the streets of Louvain in the twilight with my poor command of German. Moreover, the final act of the destruction of Louvain was being staged right in front of us. While it was being played, during a period of more than an hour, the third soldier, who had not been drinking, but was much excited, remained at the window talking to us. As the station was crowded with other excited soldiers we did our best to keep him there.

"Meanwhile I could see directly out of the entrance upon the Place de la Station and down the Rue de la Station as far as the wrecked church of St. Pierre. Every house along that stately street was burnt. The homes of all our kindly acquaintances were gone. We had been told that the people had all been warned to leave, but I wondered what had become of a little Flemish woman of the restaurant with childbirth approaching, and the many lone women whose husbands and brothers were in the Belgian army.

"About a hundred English prisoners were led across the Place de la Station and, after they had been placed in cars, a long line of citizens of Louvain were brought around in a circle under guard. I could not make out at first what the purpose of this was as my view was temporarily cut off by a cow that was led to the main entrance of the station. But presently a bullet was run into the neck of the cow and, as it fell, I could see a group of about fifteen men in civilian clothes closely guarded. The long line of Louvain citizens was being led around them.

"It was difficult to make out what was going on. I asked the soldier at our window and he said carelessly, 'Oh, those are civilians who returned today to shoot us after we had burned half the town. These are the fellows we caught inside the town. We are going to shoot some of them.

"The outer line of civilians kept marching in a circle until they had all passed close to the men in the centre. Then the line opened and the inner group passed out to the right. A group of soldiers followed.

"After an interval of only a minute or two, hardly time for final absolution, we could hear the rifles of the firing squad. Evidently the careless soldier knew what he was talking about.

"'Hear that,' he said, as the rifles cracked, 'What did I tell you?'

"Immediately some one climbed on a gun carriage among the group of citizens standing motionless before the station entrance. I could not hear a word he said, but his expressive gestures showed he was exhorting his fellow townsmen to accept their fate and yield to their conquerors.

"While we talked, the butcher in the foreground skinned, the cow with professional coolness, and began carving the carcass. It was pearly dark by this time, and a number of soldiers came with candles and stood around the animal, the blood of which had spread over the station platform."

DIAMOND TRADE LOOKING UP.

New York, Oct. 2. The recent marked improvement in the diamond trade is regarded in business and financial circles on this city as one of the most trustworthy signs of an early and general return of prosperity. The diamond trade was one of the first to feel the depression arising from the European war. That the condition of the trade is now on the steady road to recovery is evidenced by the fact that several of the largest factories devoted to the trade in New York are now running full time. Many of those interested in the trade predict that one of the results of the war will be to make New York, instead of Amsterdam, the centre of the diamond cutting industry of the world.

REPORT GREATEST RAIN DEFICIENCY

Practically All of the 4.37 Inches Fell on September 24-25.

The month of September shows the greatest deficiency in rainfall for any one month in the history of the local weather bureau, according to the reports of Weather Prophet John Neagle. Practically all of the rainfall for the month, 0.37 inches, fell on the 24th-25th, while the remaining 0.1 inch fell on the 8th. This deficiency can be better understood when it is known that the normal for the month was 4.45 inches, the shortest being 4.07 inches. The deficiency since January 1, last, amounts to 6.93 inches. This is quite a remarkable condition when it is realized that on August 1 the rainfall was normal. The greatest number of hours with precipitation in September was nine. The total for the month was 0.38 inches. By way of comparison the following figures, showing the heaviest precipitation in September for several years past, are interesting:

1888, 8.89 inches; 1889, 13.1 inches; 1890, 9.12 inches; 1899, 8.87 inches; 1904, 7.02 inches; (24 hour rainfall was 7.70 inches); 1905, 8.49 inches; 1907, 7.44 inches. Least precipitation in September: 1887 1.62 inches; 1895, 0.79 inches; 1914 0.38 inches.

The following is the record of the temperature for September: Average 64.2 degrees; normal for the month 65.2 degrees; deficiency, 1.0 degree. highest, 95 on the 22d; lowest, 37 on the 29th; greatest daily range, 41 on the 17th; least daily range, 11 on the 25th; highest recorded this month for 28 years, 102 in 1895; lowest recorded this month for 28 years, 31 in 1904.

The prevailing wind was northwest. Number of days with .01 inch or more of precipitation, 3; number of days clear, 20; partly cloudy, 6; cloudy, 4. There was a thunderstorm on the 24th.

CHURCH RESUMES FALL AND WINTER ACTIVITIES

FIRE PREVENTION DAY FIXED FOR OCTOBER 9

Governor Fielder Issues Proclamation to Jersey Citizens.

Trenton, Oct. 2.—The citizens of New Jersey are asked to observe "Fire Prevention Day" on Friday, October 9, in a proclamation issued at the State House here yesterday by Governor Fielder. The executive calls attention to the fact that in many of the States steps have been taken to make special efforts to convince the people of the necessity for care and attention to those measures which make for a lessening of the deaths and the great loss of property by fire. The Governor asks for observance of this day and for the consideration of methods to prevent the spread of the ravages of conflagrations and states that October 9, the anniversary of the great Chicago fire has been chosen as a fitting date for this observation.

The proclamation suggests and requests that on the occasion of "Fire Prevention Day" a general attention be given to the collection, removal and destruction of all inflammable rubbish and refuse in dwellings, factories, public and private buildings and institutions; that all places be carefully inspected for fire hazards, to the end that proper precautions may be taken for protection against fire danger; that fire drills be held in factories, institutions and schools and a careful examination be made of all fire fighting apparatus and of appliances used for fire protection or prevention and that such other preventative means be undertaken as will tend to lessen the occurrence of fires.

PLAN HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL.

Only routine business was transacted at the meeting of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held yesterday afternoon. The election of officers was postponed to Thursday, November 5. It was decided to hold meetings on the first and third Thursday of every month. A Hallowe'en social will be held Saturday night, October 31.

World's Interest Grows In the Panama-Pacific Exposition

Netherlands and the Argentine Increase Appropriations to Participate---Japan Asks More Exhibit Space---"See America First" America's Slogan In 1915---Thousands Plan to Learn Their Own Country Better

Superb panorama showing the main exhibit section of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, with the colossal Tower of Jewels, 435 feet high, in the center. This photograph was taken in the latter part of August, 1914.

By HAMILTON WRIGHT.

THE war will not cause the postponement of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

As all the world knows, the Exposition has not been postponed. From the far corners of the globe there have come to San Francisco assurances of interest in America's great Panama canal celebration.

From the shadow of the clouds over Europe have come messages of friendship to the American people. Within three weeks after the war was announced the Netherlands increased the amount of its appropriation for participation from $100,000 to $400,000 and requested that construction be rushed upon the great Netherlands pavilion near the Palace of Fine Arts; France cabled that there had been no change in her plans; the first emissaries of English manufacturers who will take part in a collective display reached San Francisco the last week in August with one of the most costly and elaborate displays ever shown will be represented from England); the Argentine Republic, in view of the new trade alignments between the American continents, increased its appropriation from $1,300,000 to $1,700,000; Japan sent word through the acting consul general in San Francisco, Mr. Yasutara Numano, that Japan's display will be the finest that Japan has ever made and that it will be completed in every detail upon the opening of the Exposition, and Japan asked for increased exhibit space. The millions who wondered how the war will affect the foreign participation at San Francisco will gladly have called to their attention the fact that during the Russo-Japanese war Japan made a magnificent display at St. Louis.

Six months before the opening of the Exposition, which will be on Feb. 20, 1915, the first commercial vessel passed through the Panama canal. The canal is completed, but what its commerce will mean to the world has not been dreamed of. Historians a hundred years from now will be able to give the coming generation a better idea of what it means to cut 8,000 miles from the journey between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

THE photograph shows the vast main exhibit section, with the framework of the huge Tower of Jewels, the dominating architectural feature of the Exposition, rising in the center of the exhibit group. The size of the palaces may be inferred from the fact that the tower is 435 feet in height. The tower rises in seven terraces, the last terrace giving away to a group of figures supporting an immense globe typifying the world. It will be richly decorated with heroic sculptures signifying achievement.

On the extreme left of the picture is seen the framework of the great Palace of Fine Arts, which faces upon a large forested lagoon, in which its classic outlines will be reflected. This building, which describes an arc, is 1,100 feet in its outside perimeter.

Next and facing the harbor for more than 3,000 feet is the central group of eight vast exhibit palaces, forming a rectangle. The four palaces facing upon San Francisco harbor are, from left to right, the Palaces of Food Products, Agriculture, Transportation and Mines and Metallurgy. Paralleling these buildings from left to right are the Palaces of Education, Liberal Arts, Manufactures and Varied Industries. The Tower of Jewels rises from the space between the Palaces of Liberal Arts and Manufactures. The domes of each of these palaces are 160 feet in height and 100 feet in diameter.

In the foreground on the left is the superb Palace of Horticulture, surmounted by a glass dome 186 feet in height and 152 feet in diameter. The domes and minarets of this building suggest the famous mosque of the Sultan Ahmed I. in Constantinople. On the extreme right of the group may be seen the huge Palace of Machinery, 968 feet in length, 368 feet in width and 135 feet in height. The smaller structure in the foreground near the Palace of Machinery is the Service Building, the headquarters of the Exposition's Divisions of Concessions and of Works. The framework to the left of the Service Building is that of beautiful Festival Hall, where hundreds of great conventions and congresses will meet in 1915. This building will be illuminated by light rising through its floors.

The resources of South America, the vast continent but little known to the people of the United States, will be displayed upon an extensive scale. Said Senor Anasagasti, Argentina's commissioner to the Exposition:

"The expositions which for years past have taken place in all parts of the world are a clear and indisputable demonstration of the resources which each country has and are also the means of a commercial interchange throughout the entire world. To accept the invitation is to show in a simple way the extent of advancement of each country, is to show its culture, its science, its riches, its resources, and to open its doors to all those who desire to unfold their activity and their intelligence under the shadow of its flag.

"What, then, will be the result of the coming Exposition? It will be that all American countries will draw closer their relations and that the commercial development will increase to splendid proportions."

And the Exposition will go ahead with the indorsement of its well wishers in all parts of the globe. Thirty-nine nations have accepted America's invitation to participate.

Upon the Pacific coast and in the west and south thousands of prosperous communities have prepared to welcome the traveler on his way to the great international Exposition in 1915.

Today the Exposition gives a glimpse of its future glories, its sculptured marvels, its palms and giant tree ferns and blossoming orange trees. Ten out of thirteen of the great main structures to be built by the Exposition are completed. One of the unfinished buildings is an auditorium at the civic center of San Francisco, to cost more than $1,000,000. Here thousands of delegates to conventions will meet. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 12,000 persons, it is 85 per cent finished and from it along Van Ness avenue runs the new double tracked "Exposition Street Car" line, built by Mayor Rolph and City Engineer O'Shaughnessy in double quick time. The other buildings to be finished are Festival Hall, on the grounds, also a meeting place for conventions, and the giant Palace of Fine Arts.

And the Exposition will open on schedule time—don't forget the opening day, Feb. 20, 1915—perfected and perfect in every detail.

PRZEMYSL.

Evidently the pronunciation of "Przemysl" has puzzled many beside the editor of The Press, for we continue to receive suggestions in every mail, as to the proper solution. One correspondent this morning informs us that it is pronounced as though spelled "pchemish," merging the sound "p" with the "ch" soft, accent on first syllable. Another friend has been so puzzled that it has driven him to verse. Signing himself "Wze," he contributes the following:

This war to me will be a fizzle
Unless I learn to say Przemysl.
I hope the Russ will gain reprisals
And capture many more Przemysls,
For Rennenkampf, slick as a weasle,
Has slipped his army past Przemysl
If you can pucker up and whistle
I'll teach you have to say Przemysl.
And yet, a sort of doubt I feel
About the way you say Przemysl.

P. S.—
The problem's solved—you have your wish,
For "CONSTANT READER," says Przemysl,
Forgetting "y," like e in leash,
Would make a sound more like Przemysl!

WZE.

SCHOOL HYGIENE.

School hygiene is a complex problem. Our knowledge of its principles is greatly in excess of their practical application. The position of school medical officer presupposes, in addition to thorough training in physiology and psychology, a practical working knowledge of the physics of heat, light and ventilation, and an ability to recognize and co-ordinate the physical condition and educational needs of the developing child.

The need of skilled services and the expense incident thereto have been instrumental in restricting the practice of school hygiene largely to urban communities. This is unfortunate, because the great bulk of the school population of this country is as yet scattered over the rural districts.

The disproportionate prevalence of preventable diseases among urban and rural populations is not great; the necessity, therefore, of educating rural communities to the exercise of sanitary precautions necessary for the preservation of health is apparent. The importance of school hygiene in this respect is paramount, because the sanitary redemption of the majority of rural communities must largely be brought about through the practical education of the young in orderliness, cleanliness and the observance of sanitary precautions. Furthermore, the medical inspection of school children is in more or less intimate relation with the homes, which in turn are component parts of communities. The educational effect of school hygiene extends through these channels for the betterment of the community health.

The object of school hygiene, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, is to place the impressionable child in the most favorable environment for physical and mental development and to detect and correct defects which may impede intellectual training. The medical supervision of schools may, however, be further utilized by the state in the determination of the prevalence of communicable diseases, especially in rural communities. The ultimate control of malaria, trachoma, tuberculosis and typhoid fever in these communities must be largely through educational methods. For these reasons the combination of the duties of the health officer with that of the medical supervisor of schools appears eminently practicable.

Intensive studies of the mental capacity of American school children, at varying ages, should be undertaken in widely separated communities with a view to the establishment of the normal mental standard, thereby rendering possible the study of the impress of immigration, and the effect of a changed social environment on the mental processes of the immigrant child, as revealed by similar examinations at the ports of entry.

There'll soon be an event that will crowd at least two columns of the war news off the front page of every paper in the country. The battles in the American and National baseball leagues are decided, and the world's series will begin next Friday. The Boston Nationals and the Philadelphia Athletics will lineup for the supreme test in the baseball world, and it will be a battle royal without the shedding of blood. No matter how great may be the excitement in other parts of the world there is nothing that can overshadow this struggle with the American sport loving public.

A local Jewish resident, Henry Rosenbaum, has written the contributed editorial for tomorrow. Mr. Rosenbaum will discuss one phase of the work of his own race that will be of more than passing interest, his subject being "The War From a Jewish Point of View." We will also print tomorrow night an article by Dr. Bernard Levinson, also of this city, in which he gives some very interesting views on the peace question. This will be particularly timely because of the observance of "Peace Sunday" in response to President Wilson's plea.

The Paterson Call rises to remark that although an aeroplane speed of 118 miles an hour has been reported there are still plenty of people who would prefer to travel on an Erie train which takes forty minutes to run to New York, a distance of seventeen miles.

An exchange says that the Russian crops are reported to have exceeded all previous yields. It is quite the fashion in Europe these days to have extraordinary crops, apparently, with grim death's crop leading them all.

Over in New Brunswick the citizens have been warned that water is so scarce that it is advisable to not even take a bath. But what difference does that make in New Brunswick?

Courses in geography are mighty popular just now, even with people who have been away from school for many a year.

WANTS $3,562.50 DAMAGES FROM A LOCAL CONTRACTOR

Claiming that he was permanently injured while in the employ of Ira N. West, a local contractor, Edward A. Dorward, also of this city, appeared as plaintiff in the Union county court this morning, in an effort to secure reimbursement under the Employers' Liability Act. Dorward contends that he is entitled to one-half of his weekly salary for a period covering 300 weeks and named his weekly income figures at $23.75. His demand is therefore made for $3,562.50.

Mr. West opposed the claim of his former employe and contended that he was drawing but $22 a week. The local contractor furthermore contends that Dorward was not permanently injured and his demands are unjustified. Further hearing in the matter was postponed until October 16.

IS BARKIS WILLIN'?

North Plainfield indicates a willingness to be annexed to Plainfield, although a large and estimable minority opposes the scheme. Now we shall see what Plainfield says about it. Our expectation is that it will say "Barkis is willin'." On the whole, consolidation will be a good thing, though there will be some awkward complications arising from the fact that part of the city will be in Union county and part in Somerset. Better transfer North Plainfield to Union county; or else carry out that new county scheme.—Passaic Valley News.

Reasons Set Forth by a Competitor in Trade in Plainfield Contest Held by the Daily Press

Hackettstown, N. J.
Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

As to buying in Plainfield I am sure anyone could do as good trading there as in larger places as I have found out. I have bought a number of yards of lace at one cent a yard and I have to pay from five to eight cents here, for lace that is not half as nice. Also cotton, having bought a box of one dozen at 29 cents and would have to pay 60 cents anywhere else for the same kind. These things I bought at Force's, and I think that by the advertising in the Press, which I can praise very highly, any one has the chance of getting very good bargains. I found out I can do better by buying there than anywhere else, and not only do I get the value, but my friends do also, for when I see a special sale I tell them and they get the benefit also.

I have bought dresses at Tepper's at $4.98 and saved at least $2.00 and also at Woodhull & Martin's, where I save the profit sharing coupons, and a number of other stores.

I can safely say "Trade in Plainfield."

COUPLE ON HORSEBACK ENROUTE TO THE WEST

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Hamilton Pass Through This City on Long Jaunt.

Enroute to Silver City, New Mexico, on horseback, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Hamilton, of Grand Springs, Neb., passed through this city this morning. The journey from the Nebraska town to New York was completed early in the week and the return is now being made.

Mr. Hamilton is correspondent for the London-New York Press Association and while engaged in his reportorial work "covered" many of the incidents of the Mexican war up to last Christmas. The trip East was taken with the object of bettering Mrs. Hamilton's health. The couple have made as much as sixty miles a day on horses, but owing to the fact that a "green" pack horse is now being broken in the territory covered is limited to twenty-five miles. The remainder of the trip will take in Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, and from Charlestown, S. C., through the various Southern States.

MANY DELEGATES EXPECTED.

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 2.—Everything is in readiness for the meeting of the International Irrigation Congress, which is to hold a five days' session in this city next week. Those in charge of the local arrangements estimated that there will be more than 1,500 delegates and visitors present when the gathering is called to order. Among the States from which large representation is promised are Oregon, Washington, Montana, Colorado, Idaho, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska. Representatives of the United States Department of Agricultural and the similar bureaus of the Dominion of Canada and a number of the States and Provinces will be among the speakers. The congress has slated for discussion a wide variety of topics of general public interest.

LOCAL PEOPLE SAW THRILLER AT FAIR

Young Balloonist Failed to Cut His Parachute Loose From Air-bag.

Many Plainfielders who visited the Trenton Fair yesterday, witnessed the most thrilling event of the week at the grounds when seventeen-year-old Henry Miller, of Weehawken, nearly lost his life in making a balloon ascension. The local people who were eye witnesses of the incident give a vivid description of the youth's failure to cut loose his parachute and his drop upon the overhead wires of the Trenton and New Brunswick Trolley Company.

The young man was slightly shocked and injured about the arms. He was taken to the McKinley Hospital tent in an ambulance and was later able to go to his quarters on the grounds. Young Miller is employed by A. Blondin, of Weehawken.

He has not had much experience in making balloon ascensions, but has plenty of nerve. About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon he arose to a height of about 2,000 feet to the east of the grounds. No revolver shots were fired as signals and Miller waited for several minutes and then decided to come down.

He found that he could not release the parachute and had to wait until he could release some gas from the big balloon. When he dropped he landed against the trolley wires and received a shock. He fell to the ground, with the big gas bag alongside him. A man with a team of horses and wagon always follows the route of the balloon.

The driver found Miller in a semi-conscious condition. The McKinley Hospital ambulance was summoned, and he was taken to the tent for treatment. Barney Blondin, Jr., and Frank Willis, young balloonists, made successful drops from parachutes. The latter used four parachutes.

According to the official records of the fair 66,257 persons attended the exhibition yesterday. It was the largest Thursday in the history of the fair. Last year 61,218 persons were present. It rained that day and this caused a dropping off in attendance. In 1912 the attendance was 65,414 on Thursday.

WILLIAM F. WYCKOFF DIES IN 62ND YPAR

William F. Wyckoff, aged 62 years, of the borough, for many years a resident of North Plainfield, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his son-in-law, David Flemmer, of 313 Somerset street. Mr. Wyckoff was a widower. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. David Flemmer, of the borough; Mrs. George Mobus and Mrs. Anna Williams, of Watchung; Mrs. Arthur Casenore, of Newark, and one daughter living at Cranford. Two sons, David Wyckoff, of Cranford, and William Wyckoff, of the borough, also survive. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CAPTAIN FLYNN TO RETURN.

Following a two weeks' vacation spent at various points of interest, Captain John J. Flynn, of the police department, will report for duty tomorrow night. Sergeant Maurice Higgins is the only member of the local department who has not had his vacation and he will probably leave the first part of the week.

CURTAIN SOON TO BE LIFTED

Washington, Oct. 2—Inexorably the Russian advance on Berlin is continuing, advices received at the Russian embassy today declare. The Germans are reported to be in retreat. A sortie by the Germans from Andrejew was said to have been turned into a rout, in which the Germans fled back to the town leaving much of their equipment. The despatch adds that the Germans in East Prussia are depending almost entirely on the railroads for transportation of troops and supplies. The despatch follows:

"The retreat of the German army from the provinces of Ruwalki and Lonja continues under the pressure of the fighting which took place west of Sinno. At Augustow the battle was won by our turning column, which crossed the Augustow Canal near the Borki Lock and attacked Augustow from the west, which was in the rear.

"German troops, which had been bombarding Ossowjetz are hurriedly retreating to the north. In Ossowjetz the bombardment destroyed most of the houses of the non combatants, and the telegraph lines. The garrison and the vital parts of the fortress, thanks to the number of hidden concrete casements, have suffered very little.

"In the western district of the provinces of Probokow and Kielce are concentrated large German forces composed chiefly of army corps brought over from France. Our cavalry and advance troops are actively reconnoitering and have occupied the attention of the enemy by spirited local attacks."

"A brilliant success was achieved by the attack of one of our cavalry divisions on the German advance guard, as the latter was coming out of Andrejew and beginning its march to Kielce. The enemy's infantry was caught unawares and fled back to the town, leaving its equipment. Our cavalry swept on the panic stricken crowd of German infantrymen."

Rome Oct. 2 (Central News Cable)—Four Bavarian and Saxon army corps are assisting the remains of the Austrian army in a great battle which has begun before Cracow says a despatch from Petrograd to the Giornale D Italia.

Advices from Berlin say that Emperor William is going from one front to another. He travels in a special train of ten Pullman cars, the telegram says.

The Idea Nazionale, the new organ of the Nationalist party which was published for the first time today, says that the rumor of the resignation of the Marchese Di San Giuliano, minister of foreign affairs, is confirmed, and that it will lead perhaps to a larger change in the cabinet.

Shanghai, Oct. 2 (Central News Cable).—The Japanese have landed a large force of marines at Lao Shan and captured eight German guns.

London, Oct. 2—A despatch from Nish, Servia, says that General Jankovitch, the Servian commander in chief, has ordered that the attempt to capture Sarajevo be abandoned temporarily, as it was found that the Austrians defending the city occupy positions that could only be taken by great sacrifice.

A despatch from Venice to the Daily Mail reports that the Allied fleet has begun operations against Pola, the chief naval station of Austria-Hungary.

A news agency despatch from Rheims says that the bombardment of the city, which has been under way for sixteen days, continues.

A despatch from Copenhagen to the Times says that extensive preparations are being made in Cologne for the defense of the city against possible attack.

A news agency despatch from Vienna by way of Rome, says that General Von Hindenburg, the German commander, who has been active against the Russians on the East Prussian frontier, has been appointed to take command of the defense of Cracow.

A despatch from Amsterdam says that word has been received there from Germany that Count Zeppelin has passed through Essen on his way to the front to supervise the management of the Zeppelin dirigibles.

A message from Athens says that Premier Venizelos announced in the Chamber that Greece was striving to avert war in the Balkans. The Premier said that Greece was willing to make concessions to Turkey even going to the extent of restoring the Aegean Islands. The Premier said, however, that such a concession would be made only provided the Greek administration of the islands was maintained.

Amsterdam, Oct. 2. (Central News Cable).—Advices from Brussels declare there is every reason to expect an early withdrawal of the Germans from that city. The wounded are being sent back to Germany from the Brussels hospitals and the official papers are being packed.

A. A. U. CHAMPIONSHIPS.

New York, Oct. 2.—A record number of entries have been received for the metropolitan track and field championships of the A. A. U., which will be held at Celtic Park tomorrow. Probably the most interesting events will be the 100 and 200 yard dashes, with C. D. Reidpath, the New York A. C. Olympic champion and intercollegiate quarter-mile record holder, competing against Alvah T. Meyer, the present metropolitan champion. Another event of particular interest will be the half-mile run with Homer Baker the New York A. C. national and English champion, and A. R. Kiviat, the national and metropolitan one-mile champion, among the entrants.

NEW AMBASSADOR ARRIVES FROM ITALY

Washington, Oct. 3—The circle of foreign diplomats in Washington has just received a new and interesting addition in the person of Count Macchi di Cellere, who has arrived here to take up his duties as Italian ambassador to the United States.

The new ambassador comes from a very old Roman family, which has given many cardinals to the church. He is a great favorite at court, where Countess Cellere is among the ladies seen at all functions.

COAL SHIPPED TO SO. AMERICA.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 2—A new industry—that of shipping coal to the South American market—has been officially inaugurated in Mobile with the sailing of the ship Dominges Joaquin de Silva with 2,964 tons of Alabama coal for Buenos Ayres. The shipment was made by Mobile capitalists as an experiment, the plan resulting from a recent report that South American countries were hard pushed for coal, the fuel selling for $24 a ton in Buenos Ayres. As the British Government has forbidden the shipment of coal from Great Britain, a new field for Alabama coal is now opened up.

Theatrical Superstitions.

Paris, a city of theaters, is full of theatrical superstitions. Nearly every one associated with the theater has some sort of mascot. Thus, M. Fernand Samuel, manager of the Varietes, always wears an old and battered straw hat as a luck bringer at every first night. Mme. Ristori used to walk in a cemetery on the day when she had to appear in a new part, and Mlle. Breval collects old horseshoes.

Mlle. Mary Garden always consults a clairvoyant before undertaking a new character, and Cora Laparcerie and Mme. Berthe Bady never dream of going on the stage without touching wood.

M. Henri Bernstein believes that there is some curious fetish in the name Zambo. He puts it in all his plays with different orthography. There is always a character called Zambeau, Zambault, Zambeaux, Zambau.—London Express.

Sound Deflection.

Sound does not always travel through the air in a straight line. It often happens that two zones of sound are separated by a zone of silence. In 1908 an explosion of dynamite on the railroad then building up the Jungfrau was heard in two different zones. The first extended through a radius of forty kilometers around the explosion. The other began at a distance of 140 kilometers, the sound being unheard in the intervening 100 kilometers. Similar phenomena had been observed elsewhere, and physicists tried to explain them by the reflexion of the sound waves from certain atmospheric strata. Professor Fujiwhara, who has studied such matters during volcanic eruptions in Japan, asserts now that these phenomena depend upon the direction of the wind in the middle strata of the atmosphere.

He Would Find Out.

Henry Irving in his early days once played a part which in the first act called for a dark stage. In this darkness he fought with an old earl, threw him heavily, and when he did not rise after the loud thud of his fall Irving would cry out:

"Great heavens, what have I done?"

One night he played the part in a small English town. A stage hand was very much impressed with the play, and to him the scenes quickly became real, so that when Irving reached the climax, felled the old earl to the ground and spoke the line "Great heavens what have I done?" he was startled to hear the stage hand say in a loud voice:

"Strike a match and we'll have a look."—New York Globe.

Chamberlain and His Monocles.

While the late Joseph Chamberlain was crossing Palace yard one day some years ago he was accosted by an American girl with the cool request, "Mr. Chamberlain, please do give me your eyeglass for my cabinet at home."

It was at once handed to her, guard and all, so promptly that the curio hunter apparently felt some remorse and stammered, "Most likely I'm inconveniencing you." "Not at all," replied Mr. Chamberlain as he produced from his pocket a morocco case and took from it a spare monocle, which he screwed in position, and then went on his way, smiling.—London Express.

A Spade and an Acre.

I believe in a spade and an acre of ground. Whoso cuts a straight path to his own living by the help of God, in the sun and rain and sprouting grain, seems to me to be a universal workingman. He solves the problem of life, not for one, but for all men of sound body.—Emerson.

Pocket Mirrors.

From the twelfth to the fifteenth century small mirrors, carried in the pocket or attached to the girdle, were regarded as indispensable adjuncts to ladies' toilets. The pocket mirror was a circular plaque of polished metal fixed in a shallow box and covered with a lid.

BEST STORIES OF THE BIG WAR; INCIDENTS OUT OF THE ORDINARY

Picturesque and Dramatic Scenes on Europe's Battlefields.

Humorous Side Lights on Great Struggle Found In the News.

MANY a paragraph in the war news from abroad is a story in itself, telling of dauntless courage in battle, and many a humorous incident relieves the grim picture of the awful conflict.

"The most romantic, dramatic and piquant episode that modern war can show," says a naval lieutenant in describing an episode in the Helgoland fight. His letter reads as follows:

"The Defender, having sunk an enemy, lowered a whaler to pick up her swimming survivors. Before the whaler got back an enemy's cruiser came up and chased the Defender, and thus she abandoned her whaler.

"Imagine their feelings—alone in an open boat without food, twenty-five miles from the nearest land and that land the enemy's fortress, with nothing but fog and foes around them!

"Suddenly a swirl alongside and up, if you please, pops his Britannic majesty's submarine E-4, opens his conning tower, takes them all on board, shuts up again, dives and brings them home 250 miles!"

Small Boy Saves Family.

Theodore Taperzer, nine years old, of Philadelphia arrived at the offices of the American relief committee in London in charge of a Hungarian widow and her six children, whom he had brought all the way from Budapest. From the Hungarian capital this boy had acted as guide and interpreter of the fatherless family.

Taperzer, who had been visiting relatives in Hungary, started to come out alone. At the railroad station in Budapest he met a family whose father, now dead, had been a naturalized American citizen. He took the Hungarian mother and her children under his care. On his arrival in London the boy drew a draft on his father in Philadelphia, which was promptly honored by the relief committee. He then acted as interpreter for the widow while she told her story and secured aid from the committee, after which he attended to the securing of steamship passage for his charges.

Feat of Lone Swordsman.

George Andre, France's foremost all around athlete, has been decorated with the military medal and promoted to be a sergeant, according to the Official Gazette, for a great feat of gallantry.

Andre, who holds the hundred meters world's record, while fighting in Lorraine with a company was surrounded by a large German detachment. The athlete, sweeping his heavy sword around his head like a flail, slew many Germans who were gathered around the standard.

He captured the standard and regained the French lines at his sprinter's gait under a hail of bullets.

Twenty Against 200.

La Liberte of Paris relates an incident on the battlefield at Compiegne in which a French lieutenant and nineteen cuirassiers attacked 200 dragoons of the German imperial guard and dashed right through them. They continued the fight in the streets of Remy and finally reached Paris after a series of hairbreath escapes. Three of the nineteen were killed, and five were made prisoners. The others passed through the German lines in disguise.

The party had dismounted at a farm outside Remy at 10 o'clock at night when they were cut off by a squadron of the imperial guard. The lieutenant consulted his men, and all agreed to try to break through the enemy. The guard gave way before their impetuous cries, and the fight was continued in the streets of Remy, where thirty of the enemy were slain.

Escaped In Disguise.

Unfortunately the little band got separated. One entered a house and concealed himself behind a pile of wood. Another, after dismounting and killing three of the opponents, jumped over a garden wall and hid. The others got into other houses.

In all cases the fugitives put on civilian clothes and remained hidden for two days while the Germans kept searching for them. The lieutenant was found in a marsh with two ribs broken and his shoulder out of joint. He was taken into a factory and was dressed as an overseer, and eventually, with the help of safe conduct, the whole eleven passed through the enemy's line and got to Paris.

In a trench outside the village of Nanteuil-le-Haudouin four dead German soldiers were found sitting with playing cards in their hands.

A shell burst over them and killed all during a game of pinochle.

"Snowstorm of Shells."

"It was a snowstorm of shells," one soldier said of a recent engagement. "We went forward, however. A shell fell a few paces from me and threw up a great column of earth, which covered me, getting into my eyes and mouth. Then we came under the machine gun fire. This was really terrible. We seemed to be in a furnace. The bullets screamed by and made fearful ravages. The dead and wounded lay all about, and mixed with them were wounded horses which struggled and screamed in agony. But in spite of all we held on. I do not think we were afraid at all."

Bravery Under Fire.

In the orders of the day made public at Bordeaux numerous cases of bravery are cited.

Private Philips of the Second battalion of riflemen during the battle ran out under fire to his captain, who was mortally wounded, and brought him in. Private Philips went eight times to the firing line under violent shelling to give water to the wounded, and he also assisted his commandant to rally riflemen dispersed by the enemy's fire.

Of all the wounded patients the best, say the doctors in the military hospitals in Paris, are the Turkos. There is no limit to the pain they can endure.

Spartan Women.

Among the victims of the battle of Gumbinnen were the two grandsons of the famous Russian journalist, Katkoff.

It is related that when Mme. Katkoff was told her sons had fallen her first words were:

"Have we won the battle?"

Told yes, she said:

"Then I don't regret my sons' death, since they were useful to their country."

Ignaz Reising and his wife, Sophie Reising, peasants residing in Geiselbach, Bavaria, sent their six sons and three sons-in-law into the war. When the soldiers went out somebody asked their mother why she did not cry like the other women present. "I wait till I have real cause for that," she answered.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Washes Dishes.

A caller at the American Red Cross hospital in Paris found Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt washing dishes in the scullery. No work is too trivial for the society leader, Paris reports, and her name is blessed in the Red Cross world.

A wounded Prussian officer was taken to a Petrograd hospital, where a nurse carefully dressed his wounds. The following day he ascertained that the nurse was none other than the grand duchess Olga Alexandrovan, the czar's sister.

It is reported from Kiev that Princess Helena Georgievna, duchess of Meuchtenburg, and Princess Marina Petrovna have entered the hospitals at Pokrovsky convent at Kiev and started work among the wounded.

Tried to Eat Boots.

Scores of wounded Germans are arriving at Dieppe from Senlis. Many of them were a week in the field without food. One poor fellow said they had eaten grass and even attempted to eat their straps and boots. They had no emergency rations and were nearly mad with thirst.

Oddities In the War News.

The Austrians report that Russians have done great execution with machine guns mounted in trees, which is a novelty in the style of mounting guns.

Two Americans arrived at Ostend battered and haggard, but wherever they met Germans the waving of the big American passport secured them politeness, they declared.

At Sottegehem they came upon some German officers in a wayside tavern. A lieutenant called for a song in English. One of the Americans obliged with "You Made Me Love You. I Didn't Want to Do It."

The lieutenant then said, "If you come from Brussels you must be hungry."

The officer disappeared and returned with arms laden with ten pounds of butter and a hundred eggs.

The United States diplomatic service, now a sort of handy man for all nations in Europe, has been asked by a circus agency to find "Teddy Bobs," a Briton, in Germany. If the fact he is eight feet tall and lame in the left leg does not aid in finding him, it is expected his appetite will, for he is one of the most prodigious eaters in Europe, and if not found will aid his country by reducing Germany's food supply.

Germans Sob; French Stoics.

There is one marked difference, wholly psychological, between the German and the French wounded, who are constantly arriving at Bordeaux, writes a correspondent.

Physically there is little difference between the German wounded soldier being carried by and his wounded French antagonist in a nearby cot—the bullet or shrapnel has torn the German's flesh no more cruelly than it has torn the Frenchman.

But almost all the German prisoners are suffering extremely from nervous exhaustion. Therefore the popular opinion of the outlander of the characteristics of the two is wholly reversed.

The French wounded, instead of showing signs of nervous excitement, are comparatively calm, whereas the wounded among the Germans, despite their reputed stoicism, spend the greater part of their waking hours sobbing piteously.

Fascinated by its Fineness Men and Women Express Wonderment at the Moderate Prices of the

Aimone Furniture

Naturally. New York has never known an occasion quite like this selling of AIMONE stocks of fine period furniture and rare objets d'art.

Nor has New York been permitted to view—and choose from—so large and varied an assemblage of the most correctly-built period furniture the world is now producing. Nor has it previously enjoyed the privilege of buying such furniture at the prices prevailing in this sale.

People Returning from Europe

were noted among the visitors yesterday—comparing the furniture with what they wanted to—but could not—buy abroad because of the war. "These Italian mirrors, those English tables and chairs," one was heard to say, "counting the expense of getting them over I could not buy them so cheaply abroad. The prices are very moderate."

Yes, the Prices are Very Moderate because they are one-third below Aimone prices, will be seen by noting the following examples of Louis XV., Louis XVI., the Brothers Adam, Sheraton, Chippendale, Elizabethan, Hepplewhite, Jacobean, Queen Anne, and Italian Renaissance pieces, at prices ranging from a mahogany smoker's stand at $12 to a fine Jacobean oak refectory at $330.

MELANCHOLY DAYS.

The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year,
When arms and legs are on the bum
And coaches full of fear.

The fullback has a fractured neck,
One half back has the pip,
Another is a broken wreck,
With bunions on his hip.

The guard is but a pile of junk
And cannot play at all—
It is the same old line of bunk
They hand us every fall.

Plainfield High School warriors are busting limbs on Parker Field this afternoon. Holy Cross pigskin chasers will get their initial bumps of the season on Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon. All aboard for the football season, everybody's glad it's here.

"Baseball or football," was the big question that confronted Jack Wilson today. The sandy topped athlete selected the gridiron in preference to the diamond and will change his Saurer regalia for moleskins tomorrow afternoon. If Jack hits the line as well as he has been battering the horsehide pellet this season he will make a valuable performer in the Holy Cross backfield.

Wonder if the usual monthly scholarship reports will have any effect on the Plainfield High School lineup this afternoon? With the return of the schoolboy athletic season comes the re-entry of the scholarship worry.

Report has it that several basketball phenoms are lurking in the confines of the North Plainfield High School classrooms this season. Well, if they are Captain Abrams is breaking his old established rule and keeping mighty mum about the shining lights.

There's going to be a change in baseball hereabouts next year, avers Ernest Dorflinger. That's what we're hoping for Ernie, old man, let her come.

Now that Manager "Doc" Doyle has corralled Maximus to preform on the Holy Cross gridiron this season we might suggest that he also tie a string on "Ruby Robert" Fitzsimmons. Then the Publicity Club would have a quorum in the red and white fold.

The big Cornishman is always in condition; but we never happened to sight him in the immediate vicinity of a football field.

What a sad plight some of these would-be white hopes would be in if they were deserted by their nurses in the middle of a football gridiron. Although some hit up the footwork stuff pretty hard inside the roped arena rumor has it that they would break all records in an attempt to make themselves scarce on a football field.

Ironies of the day—Manager Ernest Dorflinger and his Pets will meet the Saurer crew on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon with the expectancy of gathering eleven runs to the good over the rival ballists. That will mean a silver stein. Maybe.

Ralph Runyon will appear at Celtic Park tomorrow afternoon in the senior championships. Ralph has been polishing up in the pole vaulting event lately and some great things are expected of him on the Irish-American club's park.

Jack Fritts will mingle with the Newark coppers in their annual games at the New Jersey metropolis tomorrow. Show 'em what kind of stuff the Plainfield bluecoats are made of, Jackie, old boy.

Although Frank Bruggy has been tooted sky-high by certain baseball writers we aver that his .300 New England batting habit will be smashed to smithereens if he is signed by Stallings' Boston Braves, as reported. Bruggy may be all right in the New England League, but he falls far short of being big league calibre.

Hank O'Day evidently harbors some ancient grudge against the Boston Braves. He predicts a clean sweep for the Athletics. It would have been far more charitable for Hank to concede the Hub crew at least one of the flag tilts.

Bound Brook is represented by two racquet weilders in the Rutgers College tennis tourney. Oh, well, it never rains but it pours. Should the Bound Brook competitors land the bacon at the college meet they will be given a reception similar to that accorded Olympic heroes upon their return home for the Thanksgiving vacation this year.

As a rule bands are accepted as ill omens to athletic teams on their home grounds. Manager "Doc" Doyle, of the Holy Cross football team, has taken this fact into consideration and hired a fife and drum corps to play at the opening gridiron battle tomorrow afternoon.

This variety of music is far more soothing to the player with his eyes poked in or his ear torn off, according to Doyle.

Someone has a grudge against "June" Dunning. Those North Plainfield tennis players have requested him to referee the final match of the tournament this year.

According to reports from our war correspondent who is pastiming at the front, the Saurers and Royal Giants have signed articles for a nine round go on Parker Field. But why celebrate this event on Columbus Day?

Manager Dorflinger predicts lots of swinging in tomorrow's ball game. That fellow Mathews, from Bound Brook, is said to be a finished "S. O." phenom with the Bound Brook umpires. Wonder how Mathews and Degnan will team up?

Reports from Newark this morning say that Jimmy Alverson, one of the greatest punters and line bucklers Rutgers College ever turned out, will be in the Franklins' lineup against Holy Cross tomorrow. The information received also predicts a walkover for the Newarkers. However, the real test is yet to come.

News item—"Motorcycling is the best sport ever," says Miss Ollie Carew, of Chicago, who is playing the title role in the musical comedy, "September Morn."

Query—How early on September morns does she go motorcycling? There are others who enoy the same sport.

"Big Six" Mathewson is evidently out to equal all the records that have ever been established in baseball. He has nothing on Rube Marquard as a loser. The veteran has now lost eleven of his last thirteen starts.

Correct dope on the world's series among local wiseacres is about as plentiful as spinach growing on the front porches of Plainfield homes. Have you heard any two of the "know-alls" agree on any one forecast?

JIM ALVERSON VS. HOLY CROSS

Former Collegiate Star Punter Expected to Play a Big Part in Opener.

FRANKLINS ARE STRONG

Local Gridiron Warriors Will Have Their Work Cut Out for Them When the Football Season's Lid is Lifted Tomorrow.

The Holy Cross football team will face one of the best outfits that has ever represented the city of Newark tomorrow afternoon, when the borough warriors face the strong Franklins on the Cricket Field. Several new players have been added to the Newark eleven and all of them are stars who have made good showings on college teams. Last year these two teams played three good contests and even after that no favorite could be picked as they both won a battle and tied the third one, which was to decide the series.

Jim Alverson, the former Rutgers star, will be in the lineup and he alone will be a great help to the Newark team as he has wonderful ability as a punter. He will probably do the kicking for the opposition tomorrow and those who witness the game will see a fine exhibition of booting. Mick Schwinn, who played for several years on the Brown University eleven, will also be on hand and be placed in the lineup. Another great and also heavy addition to the Franklin fold is Fred Jansen, who has played with the University of Chicago team and who weighs 209 pounds.

The other positions will be filled by men who appeared here last year and are coming again to get revenge. The team will bring a large crowd of supporters with it and expects to take the game home.

The Holy Cross men are all primed up for the contest and Coach Martin will have a large squad of good material to pick from for the first engagement. If the game goes with the local team Martin will probably try out many of the second string men to see what they can do. Two good linemen will not be in the game this year and they are Harrigan and Ruttledge, the former a heavy guard. "Bill" was one of the best tackles last season. Several new players have appeared to try for places in Lee Manning, Howard, of Westfield, and Tillotson, who will be at quarter. Caulfield has been shifted from the backfield to end and has proven a swift man on his feet, and with "Turk" Webster at the other end of the line, they will make trouble for the opponents. It is also possible that Maximus will be on hand tomorrow and get a try at the game.

Kenneth Phillips, who did the officiating last season to the satisfaction of all, will again be on the job and will sound the first whistle for play. George Howe has been reappointed timekeeper and head linesman. Manager Doyle announced today that he had appointed Norman Ammerman, Edward Mundy, Joseph Greene and Louis Harding as his assistants. A captain will be elected before the game starts tomorrow. The entire team will meet at Marshall Field tomorrow at the appointed time and there will be a big parade in honor of the opening of the boroughites season. The parade will be headed by the T. A. B. Fife and Drum Corps, which will also furnish music during the battle.

The field will be well policed to preserve order during the games and Doyle has offered all teams an extra guarantee if they are on the field ready to play at 3:15. No doubt the visitors will take advantage of this offer and this will result in games starting on time and finishing before dark.

Doyle says he is doing everything possible this year to give his followers a brand of football better than ever presented in this city and at the same time is taking every precaution to avoid complaints from the sidelines and visiting teams. It is admitted by all teams who play here that the treatment accorded them is better than they received at any other place on their circuits.

The two teams will be picked from the following squads: Holy Cross: Ends, Caulfield, Webster, Cummings, Lee, Manning; tackles, Bremble, Moore, Mair, Lee; guards, Glover, Smith, Maximus, Howarth; center, Carty; quarterbacks, Coyle, Tillotson; halfbacks, Ricketts, J. Manning, Weining, Fritts, Johnson; fullbacks, Wilson, Stiglitz. Franklins: Ends, Wuensch, Baldwin, Struble; tackles, M. Judge, Flood, Yule; guards, Coburn, Malone, Hardegen, Leslie; center, Banks; quarterbacks, Kiefer, J. Judge; right halfbacks, Stager and Schwinn; left halfbacks, Fredericks, Birch, Manning; fullbacks, Captain Gillen, Alverson, Jansen.

FAREWELL TO CUP SERIES TOMORROW

Final Battle of Season Between These Two Clubs to Be Played Tomorrow.

The Plainfield Pets and the Saurer baseball team will meet on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. This exhibition will be the only one of its kind in the city, as most of the baseball teams have finished their schedules and have not bothered with post-season games. The game tomorrow, which is the third for the silver loving cup, should be a good one and a large crowd is expected to wander out Randolph road.

As was reported last night, Manager Dorflinger will have a new pitcher in action and he looks like one who will be able to make the Mackmen really play ball, if given the right kind of support. That notable person is Gene Mathews, the Bound Brook star, who has made a fine record this season and is anxious to land with a fast team and prove what he can do. Dorflinger has taken him on and will not be disappointed as the boy from up the line has everything that a pitcher needs. However, the team will have to play better ball than it did last week or it will do no good if the local manager signed a leaguer to do the twirling. Seven errors is enough to make any man lose a game of ball and that was the support that Norman Harney received last week when he was credited with an 8 to 2 defeat.

Wilson will be playing football instead of baseball and Dixon will be put back in his old right field position and Alberts will be shifted to left. Wilson's hitting may be missed but the little left-handed utility player can also hit the ball as he slammed out a two-bagger when pinch hitting last week.

The teams will lineup as follows:

DUFFY LEADS MEN ON K. OF C. ALLEYS

He Has Won Fourteen Out of Eighteen Games With an Average of 187-14.

The standings of the players in the Knights of Columbus Individual Bowling Tournament after the first two rounds of play which have been in progress for the past three weeks, show that Duffy is the best pinner and leads fifteen other competitors by a wide margin. This is accounted for in one way, however, as he has played his third round and no other player has. Of the eighteen games played, Duffy has won fourteen and lost four, giving him an average of 187.14. The nearest to him is Blatz, who has won 9 and lost 3 for an average of 199.9. All members have played their second round except Sullivan, who has only finished one.

The players have been making fine scores all along and the games have been very interesting and close. Many of them have been decided by one point while others proved to be walkaways. The standings of the players are as follows:

	W.	L.	Ave.
Duffy	14	4	187.14
Blatz	9	3	199.9

BIG THREE AGREEMENT.

Princeton, Oct. 2.—Harvard, Yale and Princeton will play three games with each other in baseball next spring, according to a new agreement which has just been reached by the authorities of the three universities and made public here last night. Heretofore Princeton and Yale and Harvard and Yale have played a best two out of three games series, while the Harvard-Princeton supremacy has been decided by a single game. The championship of the three universities will be decided on a percentage basis under the new agreement.

NEAR TITLE ROUND IN N. P. H. S. TENNIS

All of the Favorites Survive Their Second Matches With Good Games Today.

The second round of the N. P. H. S. tennis tournament for the singles championship was completed yesterday with the exception of one match which was held up on account of darkness, and today the semi-finals will be played off.

Three of the four matches played went to four sets and all of the players displayed good form. In the match between Dunning and Tomkinson, Dunning started out with a good pace, taking the first set, but Tomkinson being the steadier man won out by taking the next two sets, 7-5 and 6-1.

French easily defeated Hutchinson winning the first two sets, 6-0, 6-1. French has been playing good tennis this year, defeating VanMater in the first round and winning easily over Hutchinson in the second, and he is running a fine race for the title.

It was a surprise to the side lines when A. McDonough defeated Van Deventer 7-5, 0-6, 6-3. In the match between Townley and Ball, Ball won the first set and was well on to winning the second, when Townley started things going at a lively pace and not only took the set, but the third one also.

The scores in the second round:

Tomkinson defeated Dunning, 7-5, 5-7, 6-1; French defeated Hutchinson, 6-0, 6-1; A. McDonough defeated VanDeventer, 7-6, 0-6, 6-3; Townley defeated Ball, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Those playing today are Townley and Tomkinson, and French, and the winner of the match between Chandler and A. McDonough, which was postponed from yesterday.

HOW BIG LEAGUERS SIZE UP WORLD'S SERIES CONTENDERS.

Now is the time for all good baseball men to come to the board with their world's selections. Here are a few:

Hank O'Day—The Athletics will win four straight.

Miller Huggins—The Athletics are the better team, but Boston has played in great luck and may make the series interesting.

Frank Chance—The Athletics still look good to me.

Connie Mack—The Athletics do not expect to make a clean sweep. That is asking too much.

President James Gaffney—I have great confidence in Stallings, and we have a better chance than most outsiders appear to think we have.

George Stallings—It all depends on out pitchers. If they hold up our chances for beating the Athletics are extremely bright.

Christy Mathewson—Yes, I think the Braves have a chance against the Athletics and will put up a game fight.

Jack Barry—The Braves are game and willing.

COLONIALS READY FOR ACTION.

The Colonial basketball team, of Elizabeth, which played all the fast teams of the section last year, will open its season one week from tomorrow night at Miller's Auditorium. All of the old players are again ready for the opening game and it is possible that the Elizabeth manager will sign up some Plainfield teams this year.

JENNINGS GETS "R."

Harry Jennings, the Rutgers College star pitcher, who has pitched several games for the Pets this season in the city series, received his "R" at Rutgers yesterday, for his performances last year. There were eight other men who received their insignia.

GEORGE STALLINGS, "THE MIRACLE MAN"

Resume of Manager's Life Since He First Entered the Baseball World.

For some years Tyrus Cobb and Napoleon Rucker have monopolized the spotlight among native Georgians in the world of baseball. Any reference to Georgia was not complete unless Tyrus and Napoleon were mentioned as products of that State. These two birds were the last word in diamond affairs from Catoosa county to Trader's Hill, and they certainly deserved all the praise heaped upon them by their fellow citizens.

But this year the Georgia popularity trust has expanded. Ty and Nap have been compelled to move over and share the limelight stuff with another "Cracker," known far and wide as "Big Chief" George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves.

Today Stallings is as well known and equally as popular among the fans as either Cobb or Rucker. But unlike these two he has not gained his place among baseball celebrities as a player (old-timers declare that Stallings was only a mediocre player at his best). His reputation is based wholly on his successful work as a manager. In making over the tail-end Braves into a pennant possibility he proved his capability in this direction. In addition, he piloted many minor league champions between the years 1891 and 1909.

Stallings will reach his forty-fifth birthday next Thursday. Augusta, Ga., was the place of his birth. He graduated from the Virginia Military Institute and later took a course in a Baltimore medical college. It was as a member of the medical school baseball team that he first donned the spangles. He was an outfielder and catcher. His work attracted the attention of the Philadelphia Nationals and he was signed by that club in 1887. After mid-season the Phillies loaned him to Toronto, which club won the International League pennant that year. So Stallings finished his first season in professional baseball with a winning outfit.

The next year he was with the Stockton, Cal., club, and in 1889 he played with the champion Oakland club. He put in the season of 1890 with the Brooklyn Nationals, another pennant winner, and in 1891 he returned to California as manager of the San Jose club. This was Stallings' first season as a manager and his team walked away with the championship. He remained in San Jose the next season and again his team proved a pennant winner. In 1893 he took charge of the Augusta, Ga., club and copped the Southern League flag.

In 1894 and 1895 Stallings piloted the Nashville team, landing in second place the first year and winning the championship the second season. In 1896 he signed as manager of the Detroit club in the old Western League. In 1897-8 he piloted the Philadelphia Nationals, the team with which he first broke into fast company.

He returned to Detroit in 1899 and the following year the Detroit club with Stallings as manager became a member of the new American League. In 1901 Stallings had a falling out with President Johnson and in consequence was barred from the American League for a time.

In 1902 he entered upon a five-year contract as manager of the Buffalo team, of the Eastern League. During his five years in the Bison city he won two pennants, finished twice in second place and once in fourth place.

During the season of 1907 Stallings was forced to remain idle on account of sickness. This is the only season he has remained inactive during the twenty-seven years that he has been in the game. In the fall of 1907 Stallings applied for a position as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, but was turned down by the officials of that club. He spent the season with Newark and the next year signed as pilot of the New York Yankees. He ran fifth in his first season in New York and developed a team which landed in second place the next year.

In 1911-12 Stallings was back in Buffalo. At the close of the 1912 season, prompted by an ambition to win a pennant in the big league before he retired, he formed an alliance with James Gaffney for the purchase of the Boston Braves, and last spring he took that club under his management. The "Big Chief" has made good in Boston and is now in a fair way to annex the National League pennant and perhaps a world's championship.

LANNIN SIGNS CARRIGAN AGAIN.

Boston, Oct. 2—President Lannin, of the Boston American League Club, announced yesterday that he has signed Manager Carrigan and Outfielder Hooper for the next two seasons, and Pitcher Joe Wood for 1915. Hoblitzel is now the only regular who has not signed a contract for next year.

IN ATHLETIC MEETS.

Ralph Runyon and John Fritts, of this city, will take part in athletic meets tomorrow. The former will appear in the "Met" championships at Celtic Park and Fritts will appear in the cops' games at Newark. Both men are entered in several events and will undoubtedly make good showings.

MUCH TRADING DONE IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Record Made in Swapping of Players on the Three Big Circuits.

New York, Oct. 2—The baseball season of 1914, already noted as a period of unusual occurrences in the national sport, promises to establish a record for the purchase and exchange of players in the big leagues. Omitting entirely any reference to the sensational trades and purchases which preceded the opening of the pennant races the present season has been an exceptional one in this respect. With the exception of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics every club in both the American and National Leagues has made unusual efforts toward strengthening one or more departments by means of exchange or cash transactions. Not alone have the minor associations been invaded for big league clubs have dealt with each other to an extent greater than has been the case in other years.

In the American League, Boston secured Egan, Shore and Ruth from the Baltimore club of the International; Hoblitzel from Cincinnati, Vean Gregg from Cleveland in exchange for Coumbe, R. Johnson and Egan as well as several minor leagues and college players. The Chicago White Sox have signed or released to date an even dozen players not including Hal Chase, who jumped to the Buffalo Federals. The dealing, however, has been confined to the minor and college class, although Comiskey holds the present season record in his purchase of Fielder Felch from Milwaukee, of the American Association, at $12,000 cash and two players.

The New York Americans have purchased, exchanged or releaesd sixteen players since April 14. Some of the big lague material secured includes Catcher Nunamaker from the Boston Americans, Pitcher Carroll Brown from the Athletics, in addition to Birdie Cree from the Baltimore Internationals. Cleveland is another club which has dipped deeply into the players' mart. Close to twenty players have been bought, sold, exchanged or lost by desertion this season. A majority of these transactions involved minor league, the principal major league deal being with the Boston Americans, whereby Pitcher Vean Gregg went to the Red Sox in exchange for Pitcher Coumbe and Johnson and Catcher Ben Egan.

Aside from the purchase of two minor league players and the release of Catcher Gibson the Detroit club has stood pat to date and the same may be said of Clarke Griffith's Washington combination. The Capitol club purchased Outfielder Mike Mitchell from the Pittsburgh Nationals, released Pitchers Collier and Cashion and secured J. E. Blair from the Martinsburg, W. V., club. The St. Louis Browns released two players and purchased one for future delivery.

Far more activity in this direction has been shown in the National League. The Cincinnati club record shows that close to thirty players have figured in one way or another in club deals or jumped to the Federal League. Claude Derrick was bought from Baltimore and then traded to Chicago for First Baseman Mallowitz. Hoblitzel went to the Boston Americans and Tex Erwin from Brooklyn to Cincinnati and back again. Bert Daniels, former Yankee and part of Jack Dunn's $60,000 Baltimore International League assets, found his way to the Cincinnati club, to say nothing of a number of minor league and college players.

Pittsburgh scouts, too, have been busy and the Pirates have thirteen deals of one kind or another to their credit. Aside from the deal with the Washington club, whereby Mike Mitchell was sold the transaction involved the purchase or release of players from or to minor leagues. The Philadelphia Nationals have ten transactions on record, the principal one being the trade of Josh Devore to Boston for Third Baseman John Martin. Boston records show some thirteen deals. The major transfers including the sale of George Beck to the Cleveland Americans, the trading of Hub Perdue to St. Louis for players Whitted and Gather, and Josh Devore's acquisition for John Martin.

The Chicago Cubs have eleven transactions in the record. Eliminating the minor league purchases and releases, the schedule shows that Pitcher Kottner was sold to Cincinnati and First Baseman Mallowitz traded to the same club for Claude Derrick. The St. Louis Cardinals have held fairly steady to the early season enrollment. Hageman was sold to the Chicago Nationals and Whitted and Cather traded to Boston for Pitcher Perdue. The other deals involve minor league players.

The New York Giants have a list of thirteen players signed or released this season, but not a single case does another major league club figure in the dealing. Brooklyn's principal efforts in this direction include the sale of Kraft to Boston, Riggert to St. Louis, Erwin to Cincinnati and Smith to Boston.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR ELKS' TEAMS

Large Number of Junior Pinners Appeared Last Night and Had Practice.

Twenty-five junior and seven senior pinners practiced at the Elks' club, last night, and have started to get into shape for the State leagues in which the local lodge will be represented. Nash and Stout, captains of the seniors and juniors respectively, were present and looked over the material from which they will choose their teams.

There was lots of fine material present and the pinning was close. Several seven-men matches were played so as to give all the candidates a chance to show themselves. The alleys are also in fine condition and at present indications are that the local "Bills" will have two fine teams on the circuit this season that will make a strong bid for honors in their respective leagues.

Those who bowled last night are John H. Cose, G. H. Hall, C. W. Swaim, William Firstbrook, Edward Hardingham, Walter Long, William Banks, Marcus Hoyt, William Demler, Fred Harold, Charles Woolston, George Bird, Jack Todd, Harvey High, Lawrence VanBuren, Edward Iremonger, Wallace Hill, Herbert Hetfield, Warren Townley, Armstrong Mulford, Frank Blatz, Chief Kiely, Edward Laing, Walter Vail, Jacob Waldorf, V. W. Nash, Jr., John J. Campbell.

PARK CLUB WILL NOT ENTER COUNTY LEAGUE

Contrary to expectations, the Park Club, of this city, did not make application for admittance into the Union County Bowling League, at a meeting held to organize that circuit, last night. There were many rumors to that effect, but the local club must have thought better of such a plan. The Westfield Golf Club did not ask for a place in the league as was expected.

The county league will consist of the same teams this year as it did last and play will begin the first week in November. W. F. Martin, of the Ideran Club, was chosen president of the league, and Herbert Kuies, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, vice-president. H. F. Southern, of Cranford, was elected secretary and treasurer. The executive committee will be composed of the captains of the teams. First and second team prizes, first and second team average prizes and high individual score prizes will be awarded. A schedule committee was appointed to arrange the games.

FOUR HITS FOR JACK.

Back at his old position in the Phillies batting order after a week's layoff due to an accident, Jack Martin, the local ball player, hit the ball for four safeties out of five trips to the plate in the game agains. Brooklyn, yesterday. The first time up Jack flied out, but the next four times up he singled. He is now batting second which is the position he was in when he first went with this team. Jack also was responsible for two runs and made one putout and one assist.

5 TO 4 ON ATHLETICS.

Now that the primaries are over, Wall street has begun to turn its attention to the world's series. Fred Schumm yesterday offered to bet 5 to 4 that the Athletics will win the series, but the supporters of the Boston Braves are asking 2 to 1 on their favorites. Schumm has $700 against $1,000 that the Braves win and some money at odds of 10 to 8 that the Giants win over the Yankees.

ALL STARS CLEAN UP ON RIVAL FIVE

Picked Team Bowls Rings Around Opponents and Ties up the Series.

In the second match of a series of three on the Presbyterian alleys, Dunellen, last night, the Dunellen All-Stars gave the supposedly crack Baraca aggregation, under Captain Allen Fredericks, a sound and unmerciful drubbing, defeating them in three straight games and tieing up the series.

The All-Stars had it all over their opponents and showed that they intended putting up a strong fight for the series. The third and deciding match will be played next Monday night. Voehl was easily the star of the alleys making very good scores in the first and second games. The first was high score of the night, being 213, and in the second game he fell one point short of this mark. He fell down considerably in the third game, making a 166. Starker also pinned well in the third game, striking for a 194, while Brown was the most consistent of the Baracas. The scores:

The cod fishing season has started in early this year. Last week a six-pounder was taken by an angler aboard the Taurus, and Saturday another angler, while fishing at the Seventeen Fathoms Banks, caught one that weighed nine and one-half pounds, while another angler had one that scaled more than six pounds. Blackfish are the principal catch on the outside grounds these days, although a few sea bass are being picked up right along.

Good reports have come from Corson's Inlet and anglers catch channel bass and striped bass.

One man fished Longwood Pond, Monday, and landed eight large pickerel.

Fishermen along the Jersey coast are predicting an early spell of cold weather. The ducks are going South. Flocks of anywhere from 100 to 200 or 300 ducks are encountered every day. Barnegat Bay and Great Egg Harbor Bay points should be productive of some excellent duck shooting. The birds are very plentiful there now, as many of them nested on the marshes this summer instead of being driven northward by the spring shooting, as was the case last year.

Another large channel bass was landed at Corson's Inlet, Monday night, by one man while fishing from the beach. It weighed thirty-five pounds. The adverse winds of the past several days have put the fishing back somewhat, although one or two channel bass and an occasional big striper are taken almost every day.

Out of the great number of channel bass taken at Corson's Inlet by surf fishermen from Wittkamp's Hotel the smallest weighed twenty-eight pounds. As many as twelve were taken in one night the forepart of the week, which is a record.

The fish must know the vacation season is about over, as they are taking liberties and roaming over grounds where fish have not been seen this summer. Just below Keyport is a pound net, where kingfish used to feed, but in their place the weakfish and croakers are thick. The fish are also close to the shore during the evening and there is no trouble experienced in catching fifty in a few hours.

HOPPE FORGES AHEAD.

At the conclusion of the second 500-point match of 18-2 balkline billiards, last night, at the Hotel Astor, in Manhattan, Willie Hoppe had obtained a lead of 671 points over the Englishman, Melbourne Inman, in their mixed-style billiard match. Their respective totals were: Hoppe, 2,925; Inman, 2,254. Hoppe won the 500-point match last night by a score of 500 to 195. He averaged 20 and Inman 4. The rivals will meet in two more 600-point English billiard matches today, one being held in the afternoon and one tonight. Inman has so far outplayed Hoppe about two to one at English billiards, but Hoppe has been winning at about five to one over Inman at the 18-2 balkline game.

WILL OPEN WITH LOCALS.

The manager of the Elizabeth Y. M. H. A. basketball team has issued a call for the first practice of the season for next Sunday morning on the Charity Hall court. This aggregation played the local Y. M. H. A. team last season and was also in the league with the locals. The locals will play the opening game with the Elizabethans, although the date has not yet been fixed.

PRESS SCHEDULES DISTRIBUTED

The Plainfield High School football schedules, which were issued by the Plainfield Daily Press, were distributed at the High School, this morning, by Manager Updike, and now all supporters will know when and where the games are to be played. WILL NOT EVACUATE VERA CRUZ BEFORE OCTOBER 11

Washington, Oct. 2—The evacuation of Vera Cruz by the American forces has been definitely postponed until October 11, at the least, it was announced at the War Department today. It is understood that the troops will remain for a time after that on account of disturbed conditions. The postponement followed a conference between Counselor Lansing of the State Department and Major General Witherspoon, acting Secretary of War. It was admitted that October 11 was merely a tentative date for the removal of the American forces.

On representations by Representative Hull, of Tennessee, the State Department today asked Concular Agent Carothers to investigate the alleged seizure by Villa of a large number of horses and crops belonging to Americans at Asencion, Mexico.

RECREATION NOTES

The Dunbar Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Washington School. There will be a prize waltz with first and second prizes. This proved so popular when it was given a short time ago that it has been decided to repeat it. A literary club for the men will be started tonight. The kindergarten room will be at their disposal. No doubt this club will prove very popular with those who are not so interested in dancing.

The Club, under the direction of E. S. Rowland, will meet tonight at 8:15 in the Stillman School auditorium.

The weekly municipal dance will be held Saturday night in the Washington School auditorium at 8:15. This dance continues to be the most popular activity conducted by the Public Recreation Committee.

DISCUSS ADVERTISING.

The Chamber of Commerce met last evening, at the Babcock building and transacted much business of a routine nature which had accumulated during the summer. Winfield S. Angleman presided at the gathering in the absence of President Newton B. Smalley. After the close of the session, a lengthy discussion was held on methods of advertising.

BAY STATE G. O. P. CONVENTION.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 2—The advance guard of delegates arrived here today for the State Republican convention which will meet tomorrow. The convention will adopt a platform for the fall campaign and ratify the State ticket, which will be headed by former Congressman Samuel McCall as candidate for Governor.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Margaret Walker, colored, appeared as defendant in the city court this morning, to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct preferred against her by a boarder, Ella Cowell. Judge DeMeza suspended sentence on the woman who was represented in court by John P. Owens, as counsel.

RESCUE MISSION NOTES.

The gospel service at the Rescue Mission this evening will be in charge of John Blower, of the borough. Hughes Fawcett will conduct the Sunday evening service, at which time Ellsworth Glover will sing.

LODGE NOTES.

TEMPERATURE REPORT.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 62 degrees; 11 a. m., 71 degrees; 1 p. m., 74 degrees.

The board of trustees of the Heavenly Rest Church will meet next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

The first fall meeting of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held in the parish house next Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

WITNESSES EXONERATE AUTO CHAUFFEUR FROM ALL BLAME

Sonne Cross, of this city, who is employed as a chauffeur by Godfrey J. Weinman, of 16 Westervelt avenue, was held in $1,500 bail to await the outcome of injuries to William Noke, fourteen years old, of Cutler street, Newark, when arraigned in the First Precinct police station in Newark yesterday. The Noke boy is at present confined in St. Michael's Hospital as the result of injuries he sustained when he ran into Weinman's car on Bloomfield avenue, Wednesday night.

The boy was playing in the road at the time the accident occurred and ran heedlessly into the approaching machine. According to eye-witnesses Mr. Weinman's chauffeur was in no way to blame for the affair and the arraignment of the man was a mere formality. Reports received from St. Michael's Hospital this morning indicate that the boy is now well on the road to recovery. He is suffering from a fractured skull.

BOROUGH TAX SALE.

The borough tax sale of properties on which the 1913 taxes remained unpaid was postponed from Tuesday of this week until Tuesday, October 20. A number of the tax bills have been paid since the properties were first advertised by Collector George Brown, and it is expected that several other bills will be settled before the sale is held.

Y. M. H. A. PLANS.

The local Y. M. H. A. have already many plans for an active season of work, the first gathering to be in the nature of an open meeting on October 14, to be held at the Temple Sholem on Grove street. Falk Younker, field secretary of the council of the Y. M. H. A. and kindred organizations of New York, is to be the speaker of the occasion. Mr. Younkers is well known in this city, having spoken here upon previous occasions.

THE HOUSE OF WEINTROB

208 East Fifth Street

High Bridge-Califon.

Mrs. Grace Cox, of Newark, is caring for Miss Elma Beatty, who is ill from typhoid fever at her home on Parsonage Heights, Califon.

Mrs. Harry P. King, of Califon, is visiting Mrs. Nettie Condict, of Jersey City.

Sherwood Young, of Millburn, spent part of the week with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Youngs, of Califon.

Beginning yesterday, the Lebanon township pupils who attend the High School at High Bridge from Califon, Lower Valley, Little Brook and Bunvale, will be carried by stage instead of by railroad. Under the new system the pupils will arrive home about 3 o'clock instead of 7 o'clock.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cowell, of Woodglen, is ill.

After spending a fortnight with Mrs. Jesse Williams, of Mill street, Califon, Miss Bertha Hagner returned Monday to her home in New York.

P. K. McCatherine is making improvements to his property in Main street, High Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Dufford began housekeeping yesterday at East High Bridge.

Edward Mack, of High Bridge, purchased an automobile this week.

Miss Edna J. Bailey, of Hampton, was a recent guest of Mrs. Ida Youngs, of High Bridge.

"THE WARDS OF SOCIETY."

"The Wards of Society," a film of unusual interest and possessing the highest educational value, will be shown at the Y. M. C. A. motion picture entertainments tomorrow afternoon and evening. This picture, which has been strongly commended by the National Board of Censorship and by the foremost reviewers and critics, shows the causes of much of juvenile defectiveness and delinquency and pictures the use of those methods which prevent those evils. The other selections for Saturday's program are "The House of Seven Gables," based on Hawthorne's great story, and two comedy films.

LITERARY CLUB.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich have invited a large number to the parsonage of the Congregational church this evening, at which time efforts will be made to re-organize a literary club of the church. All members of the parish who would be interested in such an organization are invited to attend.

WILL INVESTIGATE JUSTICE OF CLAIMS

Salaries of Appointees of Ousted Board Members Held Up.

Elizabeth, Oct. 2—Demands for salaries which they claimed to be due them as appointees of the ousted small Board of Freeholders, were submitted yesterday at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders by several of the former officials. Under a resolution offered by Freeholder Dennis F. Hennessy action on the requests was postponed for one month for the purpose of permitting an investigation as to the justice of the claims.

Mr. Hennessy's resolution was an amendment to a motion offered by Freeholder Charles A. Smith, of Westfield, putting the Board on record as opposed to granting the demands.

Mr. Smith said he would accept the amendment in his motion. He classed the requests as "psychological," claiming that because the Board had paid three of the small Board appointees, the others, who had performed no service, expected pay.

Abe J. David, who was county collector of the small Board, sent a communication, stating that he had performed the services of his office and that he was entitled to compensation to the extent of $550. Those previously paid were William Bourdon, clerk of the small Board; Dr. Thomas E. Dolan, county physician, and John P. Owens, a Plainfield lawyer, who was partly paid for services as county attorney. The new claims were submitted by Henry Kreh, Jr., as county engineer; Henry Coughlin, sealer of weights and measures; Michael Connell, courthouse custodian; George Yorke, a constable; John B. McNamara, law librarian, and estate of Robert D. Gibby, deceased. Mr. Gibby was county auditor.

The Old Age Insurance and Pensions Commission wrote the Board asking for information regarding the way the Widows' Pension plan worked and the request was referred to the committee on legal questions. Bonds to the extent of $35,000, at four and one-half per cent. and maturing in 1934, were ordered issued for the purpose of defraying the cost of the erection of two bridges over the Rahway River at Rahway.

TABULATIONS OF VOTE CAST IN UNION COUNTY COMPLETED

Elizabeth, Oct. 2—County Clerk Calvert's office yesterday, completed the official canvass of the vote cast at last Tuesday's primary election for Democrats, Republican, Progressive and Socialist candidates for county offices.

In the county there were 6,277 Democratic votes cast, with 322 ballots rejected; the total vote cast by the Republicans was 7,259, with 286 rejected ballots; the Progressives cast only 622 votes, with 31 ballots rejected.

LOCAL ZIONISTS PLAN TO AID WAR FUND

Arrangements have been completed by the committee in charge for the concert and ball to be given Wednesday evening, October 7, in Columbus Auditorium, under the auspices of the local Camp of Zionists. The committee has secured high class talent for its program, which will include Harry Cohn, a popular Jewish actor of New York, who will give impersonations of great American and Jewish actors, such as David Warfield, in "The Music Master;" John Drew, in Jacob Adler in "King Lear;" David Kessler in "The God of Revenge," and Boris Thomasshesk in "Romeo and Juliet."

Miss Juliet Brancati will render several vocal selections in Italian and English and there will be violin selections by Prof. Gottschalk. Half of the profits from the affair will be donated to the European war fund being raised in this city for the Jewish people suffering in Europe.

"THE EUROPEAN WAR."

Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, will preach a special sermon on 'The European War,' at the evening service on Sunday, in which he will answer some of the pro-German statements made by some of the ministers from local pulpits. All interested are invited to attend the service.

TO OPEN UNION CAMPAIGN.

Elizabeth, Oct. 2.—Democratic nominees will get together for the first time in the election campaign next Tuesday night at a ratification meeting of the Elizabeth Democratic Club. The meeting will open the campaign, and it is probable that the keynote of the battle will be sounded.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Not many women are to suffer the fate of Helen Steele. Just because she jilted an admirer she was whisked away to a secluded hut in the mountains, tied to a fire-place by a dog chain and "studied as an individual." Her abductor then proceeded to subjugate her, meanwhile keeping scientific notes on her behavior. Further particulars of this thrilling adventure will be found in "The Misleading Lady," the comedy success due at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday night. Helen not only becomes tamed, but she falls in love with her Petruchio and then strives to spare him from her outraged fiance who has trailed them with homicidal intent. A lunatic whose hallucination is that he is Napoleon Bonaparte provides a great deal of fun. This part is capitally played by Frank Sylvester. Lewis S. Stone is the abductor and Doris Olsson assumes the role of Helen.

There are several scenes in "The Legend of Leonora," in which Maude Adams is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night, October 8, that have a delightful humor that is all their own. One of these comes in the opening act at a dinner given to a naval officer who is a social lion. The man is told that he is to meet seven women and their personalities are tersely described to him. While he is alone there is a swish of skirts and Leonora comes into the room. The man tries to discover which of the seven women Leonoro really is and finds that she is all of the seven rolled into one. She is the only woman he meets. Later Leonora is on trial at the Old Bailey, one of London's most famous criminal courts. You see a brute of a man endangered the health of Leonora's little daughter, Milly, while in a second class railway carriage by refusing to shut the window. So Leonora pushed him off the car and he fell to his death. The whole proceedings are a travesty on the English legal code and the humor sparkles. Leonora is not a bit afraid. Why should she be? Wasn't she within her rights? She makes friends of judge, jury and prosecutors. She interrupts the proceedings to chat with a juryman about his family and the nature of soils. What could one do with such a woman? She unconsciously throws herself on the chivalry of the court and the chivalrous men of the jury declare that the brute of a man received his just deserts. Leonora is in truth a legend and the play is destined to win as much success during Miss Adams' tour as it did in New York where it and its principal player were received with enthusiasm.

STORY OF TRIP TO GERMANY

in consequence fruit and food rotting on tree and in field. Million or dollars' loss to their countries. The farewell was a most pathetic scene to us of U. S. A., as we see the giving up of the dear ones, they of course sacrifice for their country and home, and so are brave at the presence of the departing soldiers.

"At last I ventured from Weinheim back to Buhl with many impressions, some pathetic and others humorous. I left Weinheim, Saturday, 9 a. m., and arrived by great effort at Heidelberg at noon, without a penny more than the necessary pittance for fare and a couple cups of tea for the trip. But Providence guided me. The proprietor of the Hotel Lang heard the ticket agent tell me no trains 'til night and kindly offered his parlor to rest in, saying, 'I see you are an American.' I went and on leaving took a cup of tea and with thanks struck out again. I reached Karlsruhe at night, late, then came the strain anew. Thousands of soldiers, German and Balewn, with brand new uniforms and drilled at Manheim Caserne were on their way to Muhlhausen, to keep the French the other side of the border.

"After I stood four hours I at last found a conductor having time enough to listen to me. My flag and papers assured him I was an American, and so I was seated in a first class compartment with the officers and let out at Buhl, my destination Sunday, 2 a. m., a day and night ride for a trip which takes an hour or so in peaceful times, at last located where my friends and trunk was. But as yet no cash exchange. Several other citizens were in Buhl. When we met we spoke the German language to avoid troubles. By now the battle was at full force, wounded soldiers were brought back from Mehlhausen. I also saw the first captured French as well. They were served with coffee and sandwiches as well as their own soldiers. August 7 Luttich was captured. 7,000 men.

"At every victory flags were raised, church bells rang, the only time a smile was seen on their faces, for already business was shut down and the head of the home was missed. Horses, cattle, hay all transported to war. Zeppelins, aeroplanes, double decked air ships was no novelty to me. Those brought back from Muhlhausen were 10 French officers, 15 cannons, many guns and many soldiers. Aeroplane fell in street of Buhl; man was cared for and machine removed at once. They call the Red Cross men by cornet signal when a train load of wounded arrive and they form in line promptly and march in body to station. Turner Hall is fitted up for the wounded, the inhabitants contributing all the needed. Also Geraldine Insanbart turned Kohlerghof Castle, of which she is proprietress, into a Lazarette for the wounded. I visited both places, and they were able to cope with my case. I attended the funeral of a wounded soldier who died in the hospital. Though friendless the city had band and everybody dressed in mourning went along. I as an American placed a bouquet on the grave. All churches had communion services at night for officers and men to participate with their families, a very pathetic sight. All churches have daily service right along for those remaining to find comfort, that prayer alone can give them in such a time.

"On August 18, we housed people here that fled from Alsace, and horses and soldiers that came from Hangman; some tale of woe. August 19th, 3,000 Russians captured. England forbade Zurrich in Switzerland selling coal, as they have the firing coal, such the report. The Baiern are certainly trying their best to help the Germans and the enthusiasm of both is a wonderful sight, as well as their endurance power. This date the Pope died too. Japan starting now is the report. Germans won at Perve and Schlettstadt. August 21st, a man and his wife came here today, just closed up business and left all in Belfast, France, to save themselves. The crown prince of Baiern won at Metz, and Vosgessen and 10,000 French captured, also many cannons. Turkey will not allow passing through Dardanella. I hope the Americans stay neutral for the Germans respect us highly and are very courteous to us along the way. August 23, an extra out telling of capturing 8,000 Russians at Gumbumin. August 25, more men drafted. They passed singing national songs, wearing black bows with long streamers on left shoulder, and one peacock feather in hat. Saloons at all stations are closed, on account of the soldiers passing through.

"August 27th, Namur and Longery, in three days' battle by Krasnick, won by the Germans. Two aeroplanes shot at but got back safe, so extra report says. The Magdeburg, in funnish marbusen, through fog struck ground, but blew herself up rather than let the enemy have her, 27 dead, 21 wounded, 85 missed. The saved taken to German port. August 28, the English army that joined the three French divisions was captured at St. Quentin, 1,000 men and guns. Southeast of Nicurs, Germans passed over the Maas, and in nine days drove the French over the mountains into Epinol.

"August 29, two English flotilas fought in North Sea. German ship Ariande sunk and English ships suffered loss. Extra says 30,000 Russians captured high officers.

"August 31, a memorable day. I left Buhl, it was clear and I had hopes after receiving letters from American ambassador at Berlin and consul at Kehl Baden that ships were sailing from Holland and after three weeks banks cashed checks so using check and pluck, I too, marched, but toward U. S. A. I changed cars at Frankfort, went left side of Rhine passing Mainz, Wiesbaden, Wiesbaden Esterville on to Ehrenbridsteim opposite Collany, where there is a terrible high fort in the rocks of the mountains, 30,000 German soldiers stationed there.

"Arrived at Coln Dentz 7:15 p. m. At last a chance for a cup of coffee and sandwich, is all I could get, while waiting for train 9:51 I met some of my old shipmates of the George Washington. We watched the transferring of wounded and captured French and a dark race to ambulance. They were carried gently through a double row of soldiers on guard and refreshed with coffee and sandwiches, in fact, tourists suffered more from hunger than the captured soldiers. At last, after many changes we arrived in Eumerch, last German town. Another wait. So had cup of coffee and sandwiches, all we could get. I passed the time looking at the Rhine and store windows on the way.

"We got to Elton where passports and trunks were examined, on again to Utrecht in Holland. A glass of famous Holland milk for a change and a sandwich. At Anheim the bridge is a sight to see. It certainly is guarded against the enemy. At Ede, Holland, Saserbe hundreds of soldiers in their style of uniform. I arrived at Rotterdam 4 p. m., two days and a night, no hot meal or sleep. At last, at Hotel Klein, at Rotterdam, I ate a good hot meal and sleep refreshed me for another kind of experience. September 22, started for Holland-American ship line office with view of city park, museum and the wonderful waterways and windmills. At the ship office I passed the time up to Friday. The disappointment and nervous strain and care of baggage cannot be explained on paper. We were certainly an excited lot that night, officers as well as patrons and certainly a testing time. The ship filled up and there still four of us women left at quarter to twelve, midnight, with ferry ceasing to run back to city hotel rooms. Given up to their advice and ship filled up what was there left to do? Finally the upper steward was called in and he relieved the situation by putting the four of us together on the ship.

"Can you imagine our joy, do you wonder we were nerve sick and then sea sick? But the third-class tickets proved after all, steerage for eight hundred of us, gentlemen with first-class tickets on Imperator or Vaterland. All slept in number in cargo hold and our table didn't groan with weight of silverware nor food, still the white caps of Potsdam did their best I suppose, to serve us under the conditions. All things must match in war time. We passed England under search lights and got through channel safely; met iceberg, whales, and passed over the latitude that the Titanic went down, cutting off many hundred miles of the trip by keeping North. It was rainy and cold days, then folowed moonlight, rosy sunset to cheer our loneliness, but we were on our way home, what mattered all the rest of the days of hard train or boat travel with loss of sleep or hunger now.

"The Black Forest or Forts, Holland, Heidelberg, Germany's mountains and castles, the Rhine, or Rotterdam's waterways and windmills, Karlsruhe, though all lovely couldn't compare to New York harbor in such a crisis as we were in, yet even at that there were humorous incidents I noted down, such as getting in line of different kinds on Holland line at 6 a. m., wash up line, New York bread line 7 a. m., with white caps serving up then folowed other in line to give up ship tickets; vaccination line, the buying of boiled eggs or fruit in line; not forgetting the bar line, then doctors line for inspection, while anchored at Sandy Hook, it seemed as though we were lining up all the time, but the best line was the B line (after landing) for some hotel after a square meal, then home. Still we will remember for years, many we met on our way and write some we exchanged addresses with and so keep up a friendship in time of peace made in time of war."

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

SCARED BY A FISH

Or Maybe It Was a New Species of Inland Sea Monster.

A VISION IN RED EAGLE LAKE.

It Couldn't Have Been a Dream, the Angler Admits That, Nor a Bear, Nor a Shark, Though It Did Look Like a Dog, but Anyhow and Luckily It Got Away.

In camp on Red Eagle lake in the Glacier National park, devoured by mosquitoes as big as cultures, as fierce as tigers and as numerous as drops of water in the Pacific ocean!

This is a bad beginning for a fish story. The language seems to suggest that the narrator has already become unreliable. As a matter of fact, phrases which are strictly accurate may be palpably misleading.

The language of hyperbole is needed to present an adequate picture. Perhaps the mosquitoes are not quite so big or fierce or numerous as stated, but they seem to be.

But to the fish story. And the language of vivid metaphor shall be laid aside. What follows is fact—unadorned, unexaggerated fact. I could not have dreamed it. I cannot even now that I have begun to put pen to paper hope to tell it in such a way as to bring the scene with realizing earnestness before the eye of my brother anglers.

It was evening. I was on the lake alone in my little canvas boat. The fishing had been good. I was returning to camp satisfied. The sack of fish, my fishing kit, discarded tackle, the net, etc., lying at the bottom of the boat, it seemed safer to leave the rod to poke out over the stern, the flies trailing the water—out of mischief, as I thought, where they could not get tangled with any of the truck.

So I rowed along gently, happy in the slaughter I had accomplished and wishing my friends had been with me to do their share. And the rod shot over the stern of the boat before my very eyes!

I had the presence of mind not to make a forward dart and grab for it as it disappeared. Such a violent movement would undoubtedly have collapsed my collapsible boat. I sat in speechless amazement, too startled for thought.

And then close by a mighty splashing and plunging. I turned and saw on the top of the water something swimming, a red brown head and shoulders. I was frightened. It was so huge.

I thought of a bear, of a shark, and stories of sea monsters flashed through my mind. The thing was swimming slowly. What I could see of it looked for all the world like the head of a magnificent St. Bernard dog I used to own.

Then I came to myself. I realized that this was a fish of a species not known to me and of an incredible, unheard of size. He had taken my fly, had hooked himself on to the rod which he had dragged overboard and was swimming slowly because he was drawing it along the bottom of the lake.

I chased him. He dived, came up again with a splashing like that of an elephant in a pond and smashed down again. Almost I could keep up with him, so slowly did he swim and so much time did he waste in his frantic efforts to get free.

If I had been able to row properly, facing in a direction opposite to the one in which I was moving, I believe I could have overtaken him. But I needed to keep my eye on him, and so had to backwater with the oars, losing power at every stroke. I was thinking slowly. I was still too stunned to think normally. I was puzzled by the fact that such a monster did not break my frail tackle in a moment. There was no resistance so long as the forty yards of line continued to unwind or the rod to move easily through the water.

As often as he swung over and dropped down on the six foot leader it simply yielded beneath him. Five times he rose, and the fifth time I was quite near him. He seemed to be anything from four feet to six feet long. I have at home a muskellunge which I caught five years ago in the St. Lawrence river. He weighed thirty-two pounds and measures forty-seven inches. This fellow was much bigger and more terrifying. And I have no other means of guessing at his size and weight.

Then with the sixth leap and dive something gave, and the monster was seen no more. I rowed slowly back to camp actually unnerved by the adventure. Literally—and he who will may laugh at me—I felt afraid to be alone in the failing evening light, alone on a piece of water inhabited by such creatures as the one who had pursued me and whom I had pursued.

I was glad to hear the friendly hail of my guide from the landing place of logs which we had constructed, to see the glare of the campfire and to sniff the smell of supper. Then I reckoned up my loss—a rod, $35; a reel, $17.50, and a four dollar line—nearly $60 worth of property at the bottom of Red Eagle lake!—Rev C. F. Aked, D. D., LL. D., in New York American.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Last Days of Karenin.

PRESENTLY, in accordance with his wish, people came to talk to him, and he could forget himself again. Rachel Borken sat for a long time with him and talked chiefly of women in the world, and with her was a girl named Edith Haydon, who was already very well known as a cytologist, and several of the younger men who were working in the place and a patient named Kahn, a poet, and Edwards, a designer of plays and shows, spent some time with him. The talk wandered from point to point and came back upon itself and became now earnest and now trivial, as the chance suggestions determined. But soon afterward Gardener wrote down notes of things he remembered, and it is possible to put together again the outlook of Karenin upon the world and how he thought and felt about many of the principal things in life.

"Our age," he said, "has been so far an age of scene shifting. We have been preparing a stage, clearing away the setting of a drama that was played out and growing tiresome. If I could but sit out the first few scenes of the new spectacle!

"How encumbered the world had become! It was ailing as I am ailing with a growth of unmeaning things. It was entangled, feverish, confused. It was in sore need of release, and I suppose that nothing less than the violence of those bombs could have released it and made it a healthy world again. I suppose they were necessary. Just as everything turns to evil in a fevered body, so everything seemed turning to evil in those last years of the old time. Everywhere there were obsolete organizations seizing upon all the new fine things that science was giving to the world, nationalities, all sorts of political bodies, the churches and sects, proprietorship, seizing upon those great powers and limitless possibilities and turning them to evil uses. And they would not suffer open speech; they would not permit of education; they would let no one be educated to the needs of the new time. You who are younger cannot imagine the mixture of desperate hope and protesting despair in which we who could believe in the possibilities of science lived in those years before atomic energy came.

"It was not only that the mass of people would not attend, would not understand, but that those who did understand lacked the power of real belief. They said the things, they saw the things and the things meant nothing to them.

"I have been reading some old papers lately. It is wonderful how our fathers bore themselves toward science. They hated it. They feared it. They permitted a few scientific men to exist and work—a pitiful handful. 'Don't find out anything about us,' they said to them; 'don't inflict vision upon us; spare our little ways of life from the fearful shaft of understanding. But do tricks for us, little limited tricks. Give us cheap lighting. And cure us of certain disagreeable things—cure us of cancer, cure us of consumption, cure our colds and relieve us after repletion.' We have changed all that, Gardener. Science is no longer our servant. We know it for something greater than our little individual selves. It is the awakening mind of the race and in a little while—in a little while— I wish, indeed, I could watch for that little while now that the curtain has risen.

"While I lie here they are clearing up what is left of the bombs in London," he said. "Then they are going to repair the ruins and make it all as like as possible to its former condition before the bombs fell. Perhaps they will dig out the old house in St. John's wood to which my father went after his expulsion from Russia. That London of my memories seems to me like a place in another world. For you younger people it must seem like a place that could never have existed."

"Is there much left standing?" asked Edith Haydon.

"Square miles that are scarcely shaken in the south and northwest, they say, and most of the bridges and large areas of dock. Westminster, which held most of the government offices, suffered badly from the small bomb that destroyed the parliament; there are very few traces of the old thoroughfare of Whitehall or the government region thereabout, but there are plentiful drawings to scale of its buildings, and the great hole in the east of London scarcely matters. That was a poor district and very like the north and the south. It will be possible to reconstruct most of it. It is wanted. Already it becomes difficult to recall the old time—even for us who saw it."

"It seems very distant to me," said the girl.

"It was an unwholesome world," reflected Karenin. "I seem to remember everybody about my childhood as if they were ill. They were ill. They were sick with confusion. Everybody was anxious about money, and everybody was doing uncongenial things. They ate a queer mixture of foods, either too much or too little, and at odd hours. One sees how ill they were by their advertisements. All this new region of London they are opening up now is plastered with advertisements of pills. Everybody must have been taking pills. In one of the hotel rooms in the Strand they have found the luggage of a lady covered up by falling rubble and unburnt, and she was equipped with nine different sorts of pill and tabloid. The pill carrying age followed the weapon carrying age. They are equally strange to us. People's skins must have been in a vile state. Very few people were properly washed; they carried the filth of months on their clothes. All the clothes they wore were old clothes. Our way of pulping our clothes again after a week or so of wear would have seemed fantastic to them. Their clothing hardly bears thinking about. And the congestion of them! Everybody was jostling against everybody in those awful towns—in an uproar. People were run over and crushed by the hundred. Every year in London the cars and omnibuses alone killed or disabled 20,000 people. In Paris it was worse. People used to fall dead for want of air in the crowded ways. The irritation of London, internal and external, must have been maddening. It was a maddened world. It is like thinking of a sick child. One has the same effect of feverish urgencies and acute irrational disappointments.

"All history," he said, "is a record of a childhood.

"And yet not exactly a childhood. There is something clean and keen about even a sick child—and something touching. But so much of the old time makes one angry. So much they did seems grossly stupid, obstinately, outrageously stupid, which is the very opposite to being fresh and young.

"I was reading only the other day about Bismarck, that hero of nineteenth century politics, that sequel to Napoleon, that god of blood and iron. I looked at his portraits, a heavy, almost froggish face, with projecting eyes and a thick mustache to hide a poor mouth. He aimed at nothing but Germany—Germany emphasized, indurated, enlarged; Germany and his class in Germany. Beyond that he had no ideas. He was inaccessible to ideas. His mind never rose for a recorded instant above a bumpkin's elaborate cunning. And he was the most influential man in the world—in the whole world. No man ever left so deep a mark on it, because everywhere there were gross men to resonate to the heavy notes he emitted. He trampled on 10,000 lovely things, and a kind of malice in these louts made it pleasant to them to see him trample. No, he was no child. The dull national aggressiveness he stood for, no childishness. Childhood is promise. He was survival.

"All Europe offered its children to him. It sacrificed education, art, happiness and all its hopes of future welfare to follow the clatter of his saber. The monstrous worship of that old man's 'blood and iron' passed all round the earth, until the atomic bombs burnt our way to freedom again."

"One thinks of im now as one thinks of the megatherium," said one of the young men.

"From first to last mankind made 3,000,000 big guns and 100,000 complicated great ships for no other purpose but war."

"Were there no sane men in those days?" asked the young man, "to stand against that idolatry?"

"In a state of despair," said Edith Haydon.

"He is so far off—and there are men alive still who were alive when Bismarck died," said the young man.

"And yet it may be I am unjust to Bismarck," said Karenin, following his own thoughts. "You see, men belong to their own age. We stand upon a common stock of thought, and we fancy we stand upon the ground. I met a pleasant man the other day, a Maori, whose great-grandfather was a cannibal. It chanced he had a daguerreotype of the old sinner, and the two were marvelously alike. One felt that a little juggling with time and either might have been the other. People are cruel and stupid in a stupid age who might be gentle and splendid in a gracious one. The world also has its moods. Think of the mental food of Bismarck's childhood—the humiliations of Napoleon's victories, the crowded, crowning victory of the Battle of the Nations. Everybody in those days, wise or foolish, believed that the division of the world under a multitude of governments was inevitable and that it was going on for thousands of years more. It was inevitable until it was impossible. Any one who had denied the inevitability publicly would have been counted—oh, a silly fellow! Old Bismarck was only just a little forcible on the lines of the accepted ideas. That is all. He thought that since there had to be national governments he would make one that was strong at home and invincible abroad. Because he had fed with a kind of rough appetite upon what we can see now were very stupid ideas, that does not make him a stupid man. We've had advantages; we've had unity and collectivism blasted into our brains. Where should we be now but for the grace of science? I should have been an embittered, spiteful, downtrodden member of the Russian Intelligenza, a conspirator, a prisoner or an assassin. You, my dear, would have been breaking dingy windows as a suffragette."

"Never!" said Edith stoutly.

For a time the talk broke into humorous personalities, and the young people gibed at each other across the smiling old administrator, and then presently one of the young scientific men gave things a new turn. He spoke like one who was full to the brim.

"You know, sir, I've a fancy—it is hard to prove such things—that civilization was very near disaster when the atomic bombs came banging into it; that if there had been no Holsten and no induced radio activity the world would have—smashed—much as it did. Only instead of its being a smash that opened a way to better things it might have been a smash without a recovery. It is part of my business to understand economics, and from that point of view the century before Holsten was just a hundred years' crescendo of waste. Only the extreme individualism of that period, only its utter want of any collective understanding or purpose, can explain that waste. Mankind used up material—insanely. They had got through three-quarters of all the coal in the planet; they had used up most of the oil; they had swept away their forests, and they were running short of tin and copper. Their wheat areas were getting weary and populous, and many of the big towns had so lowered the water level of their available hills that they suffered a drought every summer. The whole system was rushing toward bankruptcy. And they were spending every year vaster and vaster amounts of power and energy upon military preparations and continually expanding the debt of industry to capital. The system was already staggering when Holsten began his researches. So far as the world in general went, there was no sense of danger and no desire for inquiry. They had no belief that science could save them nor any idea that there was a need to be saved. They could not, they would not, see the gulf beneath their feet. It was pure good luck for mankind at large that any research at all was in progress. And as I say, sir, if that line of escape hadn't opened, before now there might have been a crash, revolution, panic, social disintegration, famine, and—it is conceivable—complete disorder. The rails might have rusted on the disused railways by now, the telephone poles have rotted and fallen, the big liners dropped into sheet iron in the ports; the burnt, deserted cities become the ruinous hiding places of gangs of robbers. We might have been brigands in a shattered and attenuated world. Ah, you may smile, but that had happened before in human history. The world is still studded with the ruins of broken down civilizations. Barbaric bands made their fastness upon the Acropolis, and the tomb of Hadrian became a fortress that warred across the ruins of Rome against the Colosseum. Had all that possibility of reaction ended so certainly in 1940? Is it all so very far away even now?"

"It seems far enough away now," said Edith Haydon.

"But forty years ago?"

"No," said Karenin, with his eyes upon the mountains. "I think you underrate the available intelligence in those early decades of the twentieth century. Officially, I know, politically that intelligence didn't tell, but it was there. And I question your hypothesis. I doubt if that discovery could have been delayed. There is a kind of inevitable logic now in the progress of research. For a hundred years and more thought and science have been going their own way regardless of the common events of life. You see—they have got loose. If there had been no Holsten there would have been some similar man. If atomic energy had not come in one year it would have come in another. In decadent Rome the march of science had scarcely begun Nineveh, Babylon, Athens, Syracuse, Alexandria, these were the first rough experiments in association that made a security, a breathing space in which inquiry was born. Man had to experiment before he found out the way to begin. But already 200 years ago he had fairly begun. The politics and dignities and wars of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries were only the last phoenix blaze of the former civilization flaring up about the beginnings of the new, which we serve.

"Man lives in the dawn forever," said Karenin. "Life is beginning and nothing else but beginning. It begins everlastingly. Each step seems vaster than the last and does but gather us together for the next. This modern state of ours, which would have been a utopian marvel 100 years ago is already the commonplace of life. But as I sit here and dream of the possibilities in the mind of man that now gather to a head beneath the shelter of its peace, these great mountains here seem but little things."

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHEN PLANNING LUNCHEON.

LUNCHEON MENU
Rolls.
Jellied Bouillon
Celery Piquant
Jellied Meat Salad
Rice Cream With Peaches
Tea

A LIGHT and dainty luncheon is the following. It may be conveniently prepared, since most of the ingredients are available at all times in the average household. Other fruit may be substituted for the peaches in the desserts.

Jellied Bouillon.—Take one pound of soup meat, cut into pieces and add just enough water to cover. Let stand for one hour, then cook it slowly until all the nourishment is extracted from the meat. Add salt to taste and a tablespoonful of savory soup herbs. Skim often. Strain and set in a cool place. The more quickly the liquid is cooled the finer the jelly will be. When chilled remove all the fat from the surface, break into small pieces, heap into bouillon cups and serve.

Celery Piquant.—Take six stalks of well washed celery. Make a stock with chicken bones and five pounds of veal bones, seasoning in the usual manner with carrots, onions, bay leaves, parsley, salt and pepper. Place celery in vessel, strain broth over same, boil until soft and then allow to become cool in the broth. When cold press the broth out of the celery and place on plate. Season with salt, fresh ground black pepper, chervil and one-quarter tarragon vinegar to three-quarters of olive oil.

Jellied Meat Salad.—Make a scant pint of unsweetened lemon jelly, with powdered gelatin as a basis. When the jelly is cool enough to begin to thicken add a pint or more of highly seasoned cold boiled roast lamb, free of fat and cut into dice. Decorate a wet mold with tiny new boiled carrots, cut according to fancy, turn in the meat mixture and place in the ice chest to harden. Serve as a salad with small, crisp lettuce leaves and an oilless dressing.

Rice Cream With Peaches.—Take a cupful of rice, soak overnight in water and drain in the morning. Cook it in a quart of milk, seasoned with half a teaspoonful of salt, in a double boiler until it is tender. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in cold water and heat it over hot water until it is clear. Strain into the hot rice. Add a teacupful of sugar. Allow the mixture to cool and add a teacupful of cream, whipped stiff. Pour the whole into a mold. When ready to serve turn out of the mold and encircle the creamed rice with peaches sliced and sugared, or stew the peaches with just enough water to make a rich sirup and serve these ice cold around the creamed rice.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Different Ways In Which Animals Sleep.

Bats Sleep Head Downward.

JACK in pink pajamas and Evelyn in little white "nightie" ran a race for the sofa, where daddy was sitting before the sparkling log fire.

Evelyn won and cuddled up close to daddy and giggled as Jack climbed up on the other side.

"Think you're awful smart, don't you?" growled Jack.

"There, there, kiddies, don't be at war with one another. There is enough of that in Europe," said daddy pacifically. "Be good and I'll tell you about a sleepy subject—how some animals sleep. Haven't you often wondered?"

"Don't they all go to bed, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Huh!" said Jack by way of comment, still feeling warlike.

"No, they do not; at least not our way, for elephants sleep standing up. When in a herd a certain number act as sentinels, while the other members of the herd sleep. These big beasties are very timid at night for all their great size, and this timidity makes them cautious.

"Bats sleep head downward. They hang by their hind claws. You'd think they'd have rush of blood to the head, wouldn't you?

"And the owls, the funny things, draw a screen sideways across their eyes close to their eyelids and go fast asleep in the daytime.

"Birds, with very few exceptions, sleep with their heads turned tailward over their backs and with their beaks thrust underneath their wings.

"Storks, gulls, flamingoes and other long legged birds sleep standing on one leg.

"Ducks sleep on open water. To avoid drifting ashore they keep paddling with one foot all the time they sleep, and that makes them move around in a circle."

"I should think they'd get dizzy," said Jack, popping up his head.

"Ho, ho!" jeered Evelyn.

"Stop warring," said daddy, putting an arm about each warlike kiddie. "Let me tell you about some other animals.

"Foxes and wolves sleep cuddled all up, their noses and the soles of their feet close together. The only blanket they have is their bushy tail."

"Do they change that around once in awhile to cover another spot, daddy?" innocently inquired Evelyn.

Daddy ignored her, while Jack laughed.

"Lions, tigers and cat animals stretch themselves out flat upon their sides," continued daddy, quite as if he had not been interrupted. "Their muscles twitch and throb all the time they sleep, ready at any time to spring up and fight. Now, my kidlets must go to beddie."

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

This plain circular tunic is apt to be effective over a skirt of contrasting material, and the greater number of girls unquestionably will like that treatment, but there never was a fashion more practical or more adaptable than the tunic skirt.

Since the foundation is just a plain two piece skirt over which the tunic is arranged, it is easy to see that it is adapted to remodeling as well as to the new frock, and the autumn has brought forth so many new and interesting materials that it is a simple matter to find something to harmonize with almost any costume.

For the sixteen year size the skirt will require two and one-quarter yards of material twenty-seven inches wide, the tunic two and three-quarter yards, twenty-seven inches wide.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for misses of sixteen and eighteen years. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number 8363, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Why Not Durability as Well as Fashion?

Style is something you can see at a glance in this Fall's show of

"VAN ARSDALE'S" MEN'S $4.00 AND $5.00 SHOES.

But the Quality, which is far more important, lies under the surface. Why not take the word of hundreds of men who wear these shoes regularly and declare them to be IMMENSELY SUPERIOR in those features that stand the test of time—Comfort, Shape, Retention and Durability.

Let us induce you to try a pair this Fall.

ELECTION BOARD FILES RETURNS

North Plainfield Council Receives Official Vote on Consolidation.

BOND INTEREST RAISED

Borough Body Authorizes Increase From 4½ to 6 Per Cent.—Shade Tree Work Progressing—New Sidewalk for Wilson Avenue.

An application was received from the State Trust Company by the North Plainfield Council at its October meeting, last night, to have the rate of interest on bonds changed from 4½ to 6 percent. This action has been necessitated by the present condition of the money market and Councilman Edmund Rushmore introduced a resolution authorizing the change, which will take effect from October 1. A petition from Mrs. Frederick Sandford, of 112 Sycamore avenue, for the erection of a street light on the right side of Sycamore avenue, between Willow and Mercer avenues, was received and will be investigated by the committee in charge of street lighting. The official returns for the special consolidation election held in North Plainfield September 24, were made to the Council, last night, and the borough clerk has authorized to pay the members of the election board for their work on that date.

During the month fifteen arrests have been recorded in Chief Marshal Weiss' department and $30 have been collected in fines. The street department expended $541.86 during the month. In presenting his report Councilman Milne took occasion to refer to the Public Service Corporation's action on a resolution introduced by him while he was a member of the lighting committee. The company has just finished regulating the heighth of street lights, each one of the globes having been placed at a uniform heighth of fourteen feet above the street level and the light is erected in a way that throws the reflection in the direction of the centre of the street.

Several councilmen took advantage of the opportunity to comment on the methods being employed by the Shade Tree Commission in trimming trees in the borough. This work is now in progress and the Council will recommend to the commissioners that the trees be trimmed in a way that will keep them from shutting off the illumination coming from the street lights.

The borough authorized the laying of a permanent sidewalk on the southwesterly side of Wilson avenue from Greenbrook road to Walnut street, the work to be completed prior to June 15, 1915. Albert S. Knight was awarded the contract for the construction of the new culvert on Greenbrook road, work on which will be commenced at once. During the month $667.55 have been expended for the police department, $120 of this amount having been paid out for the semi-annual purchase of uniforms for the men. Another item was charged to the Labor Day parade account. The fire department expenses for September amounted to $284.17. Councilman Rushmore introduced a resolution authorizing the borough to pay $270.61, its share of twenty-five per cent. in the joint sewerage commission's expenses. The sewer bonds came due on October 1 and $675 was set aside for this purpose and $3,500 will be drawn for current debts.

REV. HENRY MESIER TO PREACH AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Rev. Henry Mesier, of Newburg, N. Y., who will preach at St. Stephen's church tomorrow, has consented to serve the parish as a supply for the next four months. It is possible that Mr. Mesier may become the permanent rector of the church. He has been living at Newburg for some time.

During his stay in Planifield Mr. Mesier will stop at Mrs. Lena Helstrom's boarding house on East Seventh street, where he will be pleased to confer with any of the members of St. Stephen's parish.

COMPLAINT DISMISSED.

Because he undertook to stop some juvenile annoyers in one half of the house which he rents in the west end, Richard Gray, colored, was hailed before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct preferred against him by one of the boys' mothers, Mrs. Hannah Smith. The court decided that one party was as much to blame as the other and sentence was suspended in the case against the aged colored man.

WOMEN TO APPEAL TO ALL LOCAL VOTERS

Suffragettes Plan a Systematic Canvas of the City's Wards.

The new "Votes for Women" headquarters, which the Equal-Suffrage League of the Plainfields moved into on Wednesday, buzzed with activity yesterday afternoon. The occasion was the formation of an active political campaign committee, and the apportionment of the initial work among a score or more of women.

Mrs. Arthur B. Jones presided and introduced the speaker, Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, of New York, who outlined the plans that had been agreed upon for headquarters and political work. The members of the league congratulated themselves on the fact that they had been able to secure the aid and counsel of Mrs. Greeley, for her large experience has made her an able consulting suffrage official.

At Mrs. Greeley's suggestion the women of Plainfield will this winter make a direct appeal to the individual voter and have formulated a plan for systematically reaching every registered voter in Plainfield. During the next two weeks an extensive campaign will be made in one of the districts of the Second ward.

While this work proceeds, the large show window at 128 East Front street is attracting much attention. The suffrage map, mute evidence of the enormous progress of the suffrage movement in this country, compels realization that Woman Suffrage is a vital political issue and many a voter steps thoughtfully up to the "Take One" table for literature after he scans that map.

The women in charge report such sales of suffrage literature and novelties as will greatly help to furnish sinews of war. The headquarters maintains a full supply of suffrage literature, charts, maps and posters. A tea room is shortly to be opened in the rear of the shop. One of the features will be the display of the voiceless speech each noon. The headquarters will be open daily from 9 to 5 and on certain evenings from 8 to 10.

On Tuesday at 3 o'clock, Mrs. Greeley will give a reading of a famous suffrage story, "Sally Ann's Experiences."

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The committee which has in preparation the program of the Union County Sunday-school convention to be held in the Greystone Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, Thursday, October 15, held a meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Elizabeth, on Monday evening, and reported an excellent program for this year's convention.

Among the speakers will be Olaf Gates, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Elizabeth, who will speak upon the subject of "Individual Work for Individuals," and Rev. G. Franklin Ream, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Westfield, whose subject will be "The Truth About Kansas."

FAILED TO SUPPORT HIS WIFE AND SIX CHILDREN

Failure to fulfill the court's order, made several months ago, to provide $3 a week for the support of his wife and six children and to keep away from the booze, resulted in the banishment of James Turner from the city, when the colored man was arraigned in court before Judge DeMeza this morning. Turner was arrested last night at the request of the Charity Organization, following his visit to the family home for the alleged purpose of "breaking up housekeeping."

The man has given the police considerable trouble on several previous occasions and was brought back to this city from Trenton about a year ago when it was thought that he was getting ready to commit bigamy. A sentence of $50 fine and ninety days in the county jail was suspended over his head with the proviso that he quit town immediately and stop annoying his relatives here.

RETURN FROM EUROPE.

Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna and daughter, Miss Katherine Ginna, of Watchung avenue, were among the Americans who returned yesterday from Liverpool on the White Star line steamship Cedric. The ship had an uneventful voyage across the Atlantic. None of the New Jersey folk had particularly exciting experiences while abroad.

Mrs. G. E. Volk, of Watchung avenue, is detained at her home with a sprained ankle and tonsilitis.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Porter have removed from Somerset street to Arlington avenue.

LYDIA CHAPTER'S SUCCESSFUL SALE

Pleasing Affair is Held at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Causebrook.

One of the most successful affairs under the auspices of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star, of this city, was the cake and apron sale held yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Causbrook, 60 Netherwood avenue. There was a large attendance from this city, Dunellen, Bound Brook and Somerville. The chairman of the affair was Mrs. William Dunham, who was ably assisted by several members of the chapter.

The home was attractively decorated with ferns and wild flowers. The library, which was trimmed with golden rod and ferns, was used as a tea room and tea was served all afternoon. This room was in charge of Matron Mrs. Elvina Weaver, who was assisted by Mrs. William Dunham, Mrs. George Passmore and Mrs. George Wescott. The cake and apron booth were in charge of four past matrons, Mrs. C. H. Rugg, Mrs. Frank Wynkoop, Mrs. Clayton Nagle and Mrs. G. Bayer. The dining-room and living-room were decorated in pink and ferns, which made a very pretty effect.

The guests were received by Mrs. Edward Krinic, who is associate matron. The company enjoyed several vocal solos during the afternoon by Miss Susan M. Roberts, of Orange. Miss Roberts also presided at the piano. During the day there were many selections played on the victrola and games were played at night. Late in the evening a large cake covered with white icing which bore the emblem of the lodge, was cut and served with light refreshments. The cake was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Guy D. Peck, of the borough.

All of the cakes and aprons were sold during the day and a large amount was realized.

MISS CAULFIELD TO WED J. P. BARRETT IN TRENTON

Miss Mary Caulfield, of this city, and Joseph P. Barrett, of Bradley Beach, will be married Monday morning, in St. Francis' R. C. church, Trenton. The ceremony will be performed by Father Rathner, rector of the church.

Miss Marion Barrett, a sister of the bridegroom-elect, will be the bridesmaid, and Charles Barrett, a brother, will be the best man. Mr. Barrett holds a responsible position with the State Road Department at Trenton.

Miss Caulfield is a graduate of Mt. St. Mary College and the Newark City Hospital, she having completed her course as a trained nurse during the past few months. Mr Barrett is the son of Mrs. Mary A Barrett, of Bradley Beach. The couple will reside in Trenton.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATOR DEALT WITH LENIENTLY

In view of the fact that he was an employe of Moris Latzko, the wholesale liquor dealer found guilty of three infractions of the city's excise ordinances in the city court the fore part of the week, and was working under instructions from Latzko, Charles Smith, the driver jointly accused in the three allegations, was dealt with leniently by Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning. A sentence of $20 fine or forty days in the county jail was suspended over his head for enactment at any future appearance on a similar charge.

In the opinion of Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, who handled the city's side of the case, and City Judge DeMeza, the employer was more at fault than the employe in this particular instance, and this fact was taken into consideration when sentence was passed. Smith was warned against a re-occurrence of the act, however, and similar leniency will probably not be forthcoming for future offenders.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' SERVICE.

In accordance with a request received by Mrs. Lamar VanSyckel, corresponding secretary, from Mrs. Emma A. Snyder, State president of the International Order of The King's Daughters and Sons, a special "Peace Sunday" service will be held at Grace church tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of the church, will speak, and all members of the King's Daughters are urged to attend.

GUESTS AT WEDDING.

Mrs. A. Irwin Laing and Miss Avis Laing, of the borough, left yesterday for Trenton, where they will be guests at the wedding of Miss Mildred Clarke, this evening. Miss Laing will play the wedding march.

PRESIDENT ASKS NATION TO PRAY ON OCT. 4 FOR PEACE.

President Wilson has signed a proclamation appointing Oct. 4 a national day of prayer for peace in Europe. The proclamation follows:

Whereas, Great nations of the world have taken up arms against one another and war now draws millions of men into battle whom the counsel of statesmen have not been able to save from the terrible sacrifice; and

Whereas, In this as in all things it is our privilege and duty to seek counsel and succor of Almighty God, humbling ourselves before him, confessing our weakness and our lack of any wisdom equal to these things; and

Whereas, It is the especial wish and longing of the people of the United States, in prayer and counsel and all friendliness, to serve the cause of peace;

Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do designate Sunday, the 4th day of October next, a day of prayer and supplication, and do request all God fearing persons to repair on that day to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God, that overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in his mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, he vouchsafe his children to heal again and restore once more that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world; praying also to this end that he forgive us our sins, our ignorance of his holy will, our willfulness and many errors, and lead us in the paths of obedience to places of vision and to thoughts and counsels that purge and make wise.

N. P. H. S. STUDENTS ENJOYED "DOG" ROAST

Thirty Boroughites Walked to Mountains and Cooked "Hot Dogs."

About thirty students of North Plainfield High School and their friends, chaperoned by Miss Mary Robley and Miss Edna French, enjoyed a marshmallow and "hotdog" roast on the Watchung Mountains, last evening.

The place where the "roast" was held had previously been prepared for the occasion, and when the party arrived all they had to do was to light the fire wood that was waiting for them. Every one present was provided with a long, pointed stick and on the end of these the marshmallows and "doggies" were roasted.

After everybody had eaten all they wished, someone started throwing marshmallows and soon the air was thick with them, for all present joined in the "fight." The party returned shortly before midnight and all declared the affair a great success.

Those present were the Misses Helen French, Lucy Douglas, Lillian Spencer, Julia Rowley, Adelaide Ricketts, Gladys Sullivan, Amelia Brizzie, Marjorie Burtis, Edith Dally, Margaret Ewart, and Ronald Conroy, Roscoe VanCamp, Ralph Smalley, Duclos VanMater, Leroy Hermann, Hoyt Tomkinson, Charles Beekman, Lester Chandler, Frank Dunning, Roy Love and Russell Lee.

MISSION STUDY CLASS WILL BE ORGANIZED IN CHURCH

The Epworth League of the Methodist church held a business meeting in the church parlors last night, and voted to organize a mission study class. The plan met with the approval of all present and the class will be taught by Dr. James R. Joy, who is superintendent of the Sunday-school. The reports of the various committees were read and showed progress in every respect.

It was intended that the election of officers for the coming year should take place at last night's meeting, but the nominating committee was not ready to report and the election was postponed. The meeting was adjourned till next Wednesday night at the close of the prayer service and officers will be chosen at that time.

FIRST FALL MEETING.

The Young Women's Mission band of the Trinity Reformed church held its first fall meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Dean on Summit avenue. Miss Winifred Rapelje led the devotional services and following these the Foreign and Domestic Committee took charge. The members engaged in sewing work during the remainder of the afternoon.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE WILL MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's League of St. Joseph's church will be held in Debele's Hall, Monday night. There has been a program arranged and a spelling contest will also be held.

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE BUT NO ONE IS HURT

Lucky Escape of Drivers in Right Angle Smash on W. Front Street.

Robert Lowry, of 70 Jefferson avenue, had a lucky escape from serious injury in an automobile accident at Grant avenue and West Front street, this morning, when a car which he was driving collided at right angles with one owned and driven by Frederick Harrington, of Central avenue. Mr. Harrington turned in West Front street, going west from Grant avenue, cutting off the path of the Lowry machine.

The latter vehicle was struck squarely in the middle on the side in which Mr. Lowry was sitting and the force of the impact damaged both cars to a considerable extent. Mr. Lowry was cut about the arm but this was his only injury.

Mr. Harrington assumed the blame for the crash and made a satisfactory adjustment with the owner of the other car.

ARLINGTON TROLLEYS ON A NEW SCHEDULE

Running Time of Newark Cars Has Also Been Shortened.

Changes in the Arlington Avenue trolley schedule were announced this morning by Superintendent George Luhr, of the Public Service Railway Corporation and to go into effect tomorrow. Heretofore it has been customary for cars to leave the foot of the mountain on the hour, halves and quarters, and it will now be shifted to start seven minutes after the hour. This new regulation will make the cars leave the mountain terminal at seven minutes after the hour, twenty-two minutes after the hour, thirty-seven minutes after the hour and fiftytwo minutes after the hour.

Trolleys leaving the Arlington avenue terminal at the cemetery will start on the fourteenth minute instead of the fifteenth minute hereafter. This makes the schedule of cars leaving the cemetery read as follows: Fourteen minutes after the hour, twenty-nine minutes after the hour, forty-four minutes after the hour and fifty-nine minutes after the hour.

It is also understood that the running time between here and Newark will now be one hour and thirty-seven minutes, a cut of several minutes over the previous schedule. By shortening the time in this manner the corporation intends to cut down on the number of trolleys in use.

MORE MONEY FOR RELIEF OF BELGIAN WOMEN & CHILDREN

Three dollars has been added to the fund being collected through the Daily Press for the aid of the suffering women and children in Belgium. This will be placed with the money being raised by the local Belgian Relief Committee, and forwarded to the general committee in New York, who will attend to its distribution abroad. The money received this morning came from Brownie Hallock and a Friend.

As has been told several times, the local relief organization was formed following a meeting held last week Thursday at the home of Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace, on Hillside avenue. At that time about forty prominent Plainfielders pledged themselves to assist in the work of raising money, and as a result of their efforts there has already been subscribed a sum which will run into the thousands. Not one cent of the money will be used for the soldiers, all going to alleviate the suffering of the aged, the women and the children, who have been made homeless, and in many cases deprived of the heads of their families because of the war. Contributions may be sent to the Daily Press office, and will be promptly acknowledged in these columns.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE.

The services tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church will be one of interest to Sunday-school workers and young people's societies. An inspiring address will be given by an expert leader along these lines, Rev. Dr. E. M. Stephenson, who is widely known for his ability as a speaker and his enthusiasm in young people's work. His engagements call him for the most part only to the largest churches, but by good fortune he has been secured to speak at the First Baptist church and anyone who can possibly attend is urged not to miss the opportunity of hearing him.

RUSSIANS ARE AGAIN ON GERMAN TERRITORY, HAVING EXPELLED THE ENEMY FROM VICINITY OF CRACOW

OFFICIAL FRENCH ANNOUNCEMENT THAT VIOLENT ATTACKS OF GERMANS HAVE BEEN REPULSED BY ALLIED ARMIES.

ANTWERP PEOPLE THRILLED BY AIR BATTLE

Austrian Court Preparing to Move From Vienna Says Rome Dispatch—Another Japanese Mine Sweeper Blow Up—Roumanian Cabinet to Meet Soon to Determine Question of That Nation's Neutrality.

Petrograd, Oct. 3, (Central News Cable)—Once again the Russians are on German territory. They are crossing the frontier from Russian Poland into East Prussia at Shuchina and Grajewo, villages on the frontier a few miles southwest of Augustow. The enemy was expelled from Augustow by bombardment, which ended yesterday afternoon. The Russians are clearing the neighborhood of the enemy. The German positions at Krasnoe, west of Simo, have been captured by the Russians in a night attack, after severe fighting. A German night attack on Rachka cost them dearly in killed and wounded. The result of the battle near Maimpol remains undecided.

The energetic action on the part of the Russians against Neupon and Suwlki resulted in the enemy's retreat, which at times under the shock of the Russian cavalry pursuit became a disorderly rout. Obstinate fighting is still going on in the Suwalki district, as German reinforcements are hastily rushed forward by rail from Margrabowa to support the retreating troops. The Russians assumed the offensive on the line between the cities of Augustow and Suwalki and captured part of a train of provisions and a number of autos. The Russians repulsed a purely demonstration attack by the Germans upon Mlawa.

Paris, Oct. 3.—It was officially announced today that violent attacks by the Germany army have been repulsed.

Violent attacks by the Germans at Roye have been repulsed by the Allied forces, according to the official bulletin issued this afternoon by the war office. The text of the statement follows:

"First, on our left wing the violent engagement raging since yesterday continues, particularly near Roye, where we have repulsed all attacks, although on part of the front the enemy has been reinforced by new troops on the centre of the line.

"Second, at the centre there is nothing to report from Rheims to the Argonne. In the Argonne the Sixteenth German corps, the army of the Crown Prince, who had tried to slip by the forest of Grurie, has been repulsed at the north of the road of Varennes La Harazee Vienne Le Ville. In the Woevre region and on the heights of the Meuse our advance is always slight, but steady.

"Third, in Belgium the Germans are bombarding the southeast front of the fortress of Antwerp, without having yet succeeded in making any considerable effect on the works. They have made several infantry attacks which have been repulsed. The spirit of our troops at the front is unimaginable. They go under fire in a way that moves one to tears."

Antwerp, Oct. 3, (Central News Cable)—The people of Antwerp were thrilled with the sight of an aerial combat yesterday between a German aircraft of the Taube type and a Belgian aeroplane over the centre of the city. The Taube chased the Belgian biplane to this point. The Taube was armed with a mitrailleuse and the Belgian aviator had only a pistol. As soon as he attained a position over Antwerp the Belgian began to descend. The Taube daringly followed until it was ringed with the smoke of bursting shrapnel Then it rose again and flew to the southeast. Falling shrapnel bullets wounded slightly a little girl. The entire population of the city crowded the streets to watch the conflict.

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a Taube aeroplane dropped in Antwerp thousands of circuars demanding that the Belgians no longer fight in the interests of Russia and England. The circulars added that if Antwerp will surrender it would be happy. The public laughed at the circulars.

Fierce fighting continued today south of this city. Fighting occurred between Germans and Belgians yesterday at Deynze, ten miles southwest of Ghent. The German attacks upon Termonde have been repulsed. The Belgians blew up the bridge and repulsed a German advance near Koningshoyct.

Quiet prevails again. A violent attack by the Germans upon Fort Liezel, during which shrapnel fell at the rate of thirty a minute, was repulsed. The Germans were also repulsed with losses this morning from the fortifications of Lierre. The village of Lede, 25 miles southwest of Antwerp, has been recaptured from the Germans. At Ostend the Belgians fought bravely for two and a half hours. At Rumpst, a village about 11 miles directly south of Antwerp, the Germans are retiring in disorder leaving many dead.

Rome, Oct. 3, (Central News Cable)—Official notification has been posted in Vienna that the Austian capital is to be fortified, says a despatch from the correspondent of the Corriere Della Sera, in Vienna. The treasurer and archives of the Austrian government have been removed and the court is preparing to leave. Where the temporary capital will be established is not stated.

Tokio, Oct. 3—An official announcement states that another Japanese mine sweeping boat at Kiau Chau, the Kalormoru, has been sunk, after striking a mine in Lao Shan Bay. The casualties are given as four killed and nine wounded. The German forts and ships are constantly shelling the Japanese

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

George Jennings, of Front street, spent Wednesday at Westfield as a guest of his sister, Mrs. Joel DeGroff.

The monthly meeting of the Mayor and Common Council will be held in the borough hall Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowler, of New York city, have moved into the Dunellen Home and Investment Company house on Washington avenue near Walnut street.

The Board of Education will meet in the Whittier School on Tuesday evening.

Jesse L. Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Rogers, of First street, is spending a week at Blairstown as the guest of Gilbert Knox, a former resident of this place.

Miss Blanche Teeling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Teeling, of Dunellen avenue, returned home today from Roselle, where she has been spending the week as a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Nathaniel Noulton.

Miss Florence Gray, of First street, left today for a three weeks' visit with her brother, Daniel Gray, at Irvington.

Borough Engineer Churchill gave line and grade yesterday afternoon, for a concrete sidewalk to be laid by Contractor Walter G. Clawson, on Lincoln avenue in front of the properties of Postmaster Henry S. Garretson and Bernard Siriski.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kohlweis, of Whittier avenue, are the parents of a baby girl that arrived Thursday evening. Both mother and child are reported as doing nicely.

Mrs. Harold Chapman and baby daughter, who have been spending several weeks in the borough as the guests of Mrs. Chapman's sister, Mrs. Albert Biernbrauer, of Lincoln avenue, have returned to their home at Kensington, Conn.

RALLY DAY SERVICES.

Services incident to Rally Day will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow. There will be special music and discourses for the occasion. In the morning the pastor will speak on the subject, "Baskets of Summer Fruit." In the afternoon the Sunday-school will hold its rally with a prominent speaker from out of town. The Epworth League will have a special program at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. At the 7:30 preaching service the pastor will preach on the subject, "Purpose and Object."

INVESTIGATING ACCIDENTS.

The claim agent of the New Jersey Central was in the borough on Thursday in connection with recent fatalities on the railroad, and among those interviewed by him were Mrs. Lawrence O'Leary and Nelson Giles, both of Whittier avenue. Mrs. O'Leary, who was among the number who saw Joseph C. Apgar killed by a freight train at the Washington avenue crossing at 4 oclock on Tuesday afternoon, was asked a number of questions relative to the accident. She was asked whether she had heard the engineer of the freight blow his whistle or ring his bell. Mrs. O'Leary replied in the negative to both of these questions. Nelson Giles was seen in connection with the accident in which the late Andrew S. Hazlin was killed at Lincoln on Saturday morning, August 29, as he was crossing the railroad in his delivery wagon. Mr. Giles, who had seen Mr. Hazlin on the morning that he was killed, was asked whether he was under the influence of liquor when he saw him. Mr. Giles' reply was, "he was not."

Augustus F. Samson, of New Market road, enjoyed an automobile trip to Somerville yesterday.

Harry S. Titsworth, the North avenue grocer, is among the boroughites who are suffering with severe colds.

Walter Law, the coffee merchant, was among those from this place who attended the Trenton Fair this week.

C. Lou Wahl, of Washington avenue, has returned from a three days' visit with friends at Scranton, Pa.

Miss Jacinthia Presmoim, of New Market road, is spending a couple of days with Mrs. Ernest Anderson, of Westfield.

Mrs. Frank Mohan, of North avenue, had tonsils and adenoids removed by a New York specialist assisted by Dr. Roger L. Cooley, at her home yesterday. Mrs. Mohan came out of the anaesthetic all right and at the present time she is doing nicely.

Alexander Kane, of New Brunswick, was a visitor in the borough last evening.

CHANGES RESIDENCE.

James Doughcrty, who fires the 8:34, Smith Watson's "run," out of this place in the morning, has transferred his residence from Jersey City to this borough. He is boarding at the home of Edward Haynes, on Dunellen avenue.

Miss Dora Carberry, of Greenpoint, L. I., who has been spending a week in the borough as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lawrence O'Leary, of Whittier avenue, has returned home.

The plasterers are at work in the new Clarence T. Voorhees house on Lincoln avenue.

MUCH IMPROVED.

Miss Anna Rinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rinehart, of North avenue, who was operated upon the fore part of the week at the St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, for appendicitis, is reported as getting along very satisfactorily.

Local Democratic Committeemen Willard N. Apgar and Thomas Reynolds said last evening that they expect that Edward Houghton, the Democratic candidate for sheriff, will be in town on Monday evening to meet his Democratic and other friends.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Tessie Hannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hannon, was tendered a surprise party in honor of her sixteenth birthday at her home on Front street, last evening. The party was arranged by Miss Frances Sullivan, of Dunellen avenue. The surprise was a complete one. The evening was most enjoyably passed dancing and games being the entertaining features. Refreshments were served during the evening. There were twenty-four friends present from Bound Brook, Plainfield and this place.

WHEEL AND RIG COLLIDE.

While pedaling along North avenue at 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon on his bicycle, James Gaff, a lad residing on Front street, who had his vision obstructed by reason of the fact that a chum, Frank Hannon, was perched on the handlebars of his wheel, ran into a horse being driven West along that thoroughfare by an out-of-town party. The collision occurred opposite the fountain. Both of the youths were thrown to the macadam. As good fortune would have it, the horse was a nerveless animal and instead of becoming scared, it stopped short and stood still. As the animal was only proceeding at a walk when the collision occured and Gaff only pedaling at a slow rate, the spill was not a bad one and the two were able to arise unhurt and in a jocular manner proceed as before.

RALLY DAY PROGRAM.

Rally Day will be observed at the Presbyterian church by the Sunday-school at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Services appropriate to the occasion will be held. The children's departments will take a prominent part.

Alfred Osmun, of New Market road, has returned from a business trip through New York State.

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Real Estate Agent John Fedderman was in the city yesterday and completed a deal in which A. H. Burdick an son, Frank Burdick, of Center street, purchased two acres of land from Frederick Berg, Jr., of Orange. The tract which will ultimately be split up into building lots is bounded on the north by Walnut street and on the west by Washington avenue.

BOWLING TOURNEY.

Mrs. H. B. Arnold, of Dunellen avenue, who for the past month or so has been endeavoring to arrange another ladies two-team bowling tournament on the Presbyterian alleys, has practically succeeded in her endeavors, having secured twenty entries out of the desired twenty-two. Their names are: Miss Pearl Dodwell, Miss Ruth Voorhees, Miss Mabel Bennett, Miss Mabel Noyes, Miss Florence Smalley, Mrs. Fred Vail, Mrs. Albert Russell, Mrs. Emmett Dice, Mrs. William Johnson, Miss Luella Stryker, Mrs. Robert Craig, Miss Helen Shiveley, Miss Edythe Strickland, Miss Grace Parker, Miss Josephine Dealaman, Mrs. H. A. Wickham and Mrs. H. B. Arnold. A meeting will be held the fore part of the coming week to discuss rules and form the teams, etc. The tournament will probably start on Thursday night. Each team will roll 20 games and the tournament will probably last about two months.

ATTENDED FUNERAL.

One hundred members of the local orders of Juniors and Foresters assembled in the W. G. Holton Hall, last evening, and marched to the late home of their deceased member, Joseph C. Apgar, where a join service was held at 8:15 o'clock. The Juniors brought a floral wreath of galax leaves with Easter lilies and roses with the inscription Jr. O. U. A. M. The floral contribution of the Foresters was a wreath of smilax with Easter lilies and pink roses inscribed I. O. F., 1123. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung by the members of the two lodges.

STYLISH RELIABLE

THE ROTHBERG STORE

Is building its success primarily on the rights of the customer. We propose to look upon it as an institution, not merely for private benefit, but rather for the benefit of every person, every clothes buyer to whom we can extend its services.

We propose to make the Rothberg store—in merchandise, in equipment, in methods—stand first and last for service; a place where you may be sure of finding four-square goods sold by four-square methods.

There is no better example of the way we are fulfilling these principles than in the showing of new Fall Suits—priced $10 to $30.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Tomorrow will be observed as Rally Day in the Scotch Plains Methodist Episcopal church in church, Sunday-school and Epworth League. There will be special music at all the services and recitations in the Sunday-school with an address by Mr. Vincent. The morning service will be in response to the President's proclamation, and the pastor, Dr. H. K. Carroll, will preach a sermon on "The Divine Attitude Toward War." The evening service will begin at 7:45 instead of 8 o'clock, and there will be an address or sermon by the district superintendent, Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Hubach.

There will be a peace service at the Baptist church tomorow afternoon a 4:15 to which all of the residents of Scotch Plains and Fanwood who are in favor of peace in the great European war are urged to attend. The ministers of the three local churches will be present and make short addresses. For the convenience of the borough people the Baptist church stage will leave the Fanwood station at about 4 o'clock and will make a return trip immediately following the service.

Tomorrow being the first Sunday in the month holy communion will be observed at the morning service at All Saints' Episcopal church at 11 o'clock. Sunday-school will meet at 10 o'clock as usual. The pastor, Rev. George H. Houghton Butler, will be in charge.

Dr. H. K. Carroll will conduct the usual services in the Methodist church tomorrow: Morning service at 10:45, Sunday-school at 3:00, Epworth League at 7:15 and evening service at 8:00.

The regular services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. Madison Hare, and will be at the following hours: Bible School at 9:30, morning service at 10:45 and B.Y. P. U. meeting at 7:30.

Nearly every member of the Epworth League of the Methodist church attended the league rally at Bound Brook last night, when an enjoyable evening was spent listening to interesting addresses and talking over plans for the coming winter.

A meeting of the Past Councilors' Association of Union county will be held in Scotch Plains, probably in Excelsior Hall, on the evening of the fifteenth of October, at 8 o'clock. Charles Elliott is one of the officers of the association and was one of the charter members when it was formed about a year ago.

The usual services will be held at the Willow Grove chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with Superintendent Sisserson in charge.

S. Dana Townsend, supervising principal of local schools, has consented to become a member of the Boy Scout council. Mr. Townsend is well fitted to become a member of the council as in his capacity as principal he knows nearly all of the scouts personally and can better work for their advantage.

Mrs. E. A. Cutler, who has been spending several weeks with Mrs. George Carter, of North avenue, has returned to her home in Newton Centre, Mass.

Mrs. F. E. Howe has returned to her home in Troy, N. Y., after visiting her son, Edwin Howe, of Martine avenue.

Mrs. Beth Crolius, of New York, has returned home after spending several months in the borough as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Rainer, of North avenue.

Eugene Martin, of the township, is on a business trip to the Middle West for several weeks.

R. Atkinson, of Atlanta, Ga., at 10:30; special peace service for The Kings Daughters at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

There will be a special program of music at the 10:30 and 4:30 services, by the choir under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, musical director, assisted by Udo Gossweiler, 'cellist.

THE FORUM

Answering the communication of the Woodbrook Farms regarding the advance in the price of milk, Rev. Edwin Shaw writes as follows, a copy of his letter being sent to The Daily Press:

"Woodbrook Farms,
"Plainfield, New Jersey.

"Continuing the discussion concerning the advance in the price of milk from ten to twelve cents a quart, a matter of considerable interest to your patrons, a matter of seven dollars and thirty cents extra on each quart in a year, I started this afternoon on my bicycle to accept your invitation to visit your establishment, but had time to go no further than the office and stables at Belleview avenue. Some day I shall visit the dairy if all things go well. Just how so expensively equipped an office can give richness and cleanliness to your milk I do not quite understand. But I am not a business man. It made me think of the office equipment at Postumville, Michigan, on a small scale of course, where the profits on Postum and Grape-Nuts have been so lavishly expended.

But I have no disposition to discuss the management of your concern. I have never found fault with your milk. It is good milk, though my wife says it is not so much better than some nine cent milk that we use. My proposition is that an advance of twenty per cent. is disconcerting to one's annual budget, and I hold that the price of milk is at least a semi-public matter and is quite a proper topic for discussion in the public press since that seems to be the only way in which your patrons are able to discuss it.

"I know that cleanliness in milk requires care and expense. I was reared on a farm and have often milked ten cows night and morning. A cousin of mine has in the city of Indianapolis a milk depot with an equipment second to but a few in this country, if second to any. But I kindly submit that a twenty per cent. advance is all too much.

"And so I make the following proposition: Make a price at eleven cents a quart beginning November 1, 1914. Give us a bona fide promise of a return to ten cents the first of May, 1915. If you are not willing to do this, then let your patrons show how they feel about it by whatever course seems best to them.

"This is an open letter again. It is written in no spirit of antagonism. But an advance of twenty per cent. is too much. I shall expect some sort of an answer, and I trust it will be such as to continue and strengthen the good feeling between you and your patrons.

NO LOOKING BACK IN PLAINFIELD.

New Evidence Constantly Being Published.

Since the long succession of Plainfield reports were first published in the local press there has been no looking back. Plainfield evidence continues to pour in, and—better still—those whose reports were first published many years ago, verify all they said in a most hearty and unmistakable way. Read the experience of Mrs. E. Dorflinger, of 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J. She says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's Drug Store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Dorflinger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney troubles, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

army, which is slowly preparing for the big assault on Tsing Tau, the German stronghold.

Copenhagen, Oct. 3, (Central News Cable)—The Roumanian Cabinet will meet soon at Sinai to detremine whether Roumania shall abandon its neutrality, says the Roelnische Zeitung.

Berlin, via Amsterdam, Oct. 3.—(Central News Cable)—Victory in the assaults on the Antwerp fortifications and success in repulsing French efforts against the German right wing in France are claimed in the latest official statement by the war office, issued last night. The statement says:

"Near Antwerp the fortresses of Wavre and St. Catherine and the redout at Dorpwildt, with the intermediate fortifications, were stormed Thursday. The fortresses of Waelhem has been invested and Termonde captured.

In France fresh efforts of the French on the west to encircle the German line have been prevented. The French have been repulsed south of Roye. The situation is unchanged in the centre.

"The German advance in the Argonne is gaining. The French made an energetic advance from Toul and were repulsed.

"The advance of the Russians across the river Niemen against the German positions at Suwalki is expected."

THREE MEN KILLED IN JERSEY CITY EXPLOSION

Jersey City, Oct. 3.—Three men were blown to pieces, several were severely injured, and thirty persons suffered minor injuries, when the magazine adjoining the plant of the Detwiller & Street Fireworks Manufacuring Co., at West Third avenue and the Morris Canal, this city, exploded a few minutes before 11 o'clock today. Windows within an area of ten blocks and buildings five miles away were rocked by the force of the explosion.

The dead are Christian Pfeiffer and Max Zimmerman, of Jersey City, and Arthur Kim, address unkown. A man whose name has not been learned is also supposed to have been in the magazine when it exploded, but no trace of him has been found as yet. The plant was completely destroyed and the walls of the Robert Griffin Novelty Manufacuring Co., 150 yards away, were blown in two feet. Hardly a window was left unshattered in factories and dwellings ten blocks off, so great was the impact. Ambulances from many hospitals and scores of physicians were rushed to the scene of the accident, parts of the victims' bodies were picked up hundreds of feet apart; John Andreas, general manager of the plant, was arrested on a technical charge, pending an investigation of the explosion.

RALLY DAY AT HOPE.

Rally Day is to be observed at Hope chapel tomorrow, at which time the winter schedule of services will be resumed. The Sunday-school is to meet at 3 o'clock, at which time a number of stereopticon slides illustrating the work of the Presbyterian Board of Sunday-school Work will be shown. The rally service of the Christian Endeavor Society is to be held at 7 o'clock in the evening with special addresses and music. The pastor, Rev. Frederic L. Greene, will preach at the morning service on the subject, "Lessons Ffor the Great War." The morning services will be held at 10:45 during the winter, instead of 10:30.

MAKE "LITHIA SELTERS."

Attention is called to the advertisement of the Carl H. Schultz mineral water concern in another part of The Daily Press. For the present the artificial Apolanaris is not being manufactured, but in its place "Lithia Selters" is being put on the market. J. Hartley Mellick, of this city, is the representative of the concern in New Jersey.

—It pays to use the advertising columns of The Press.

MRS. CLAYPOOLE'S FUNERAL.

Many relatives and friends attended the funeral services of Mrs. Charles W. Claypoole, of 68 Grandview avenue, the borough, at her home last evening. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Claypoole was an active member, officiated. Mrs. Robert Giddes sang two selections, "Abide With Me" and "Nearer, My God to Thee." The interment was made this morning at Jacobstown.

WARREN CHAPEL SERVICES.

In connection with the celebration of the Lord's Supper at Warren chapel tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, there will be an observance of "Peace Sunday," and the offering will be for the Red Cross relief fund. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, the pastor, will have charge of the service. In the evening, there will be a young people's service at 7:45 o'clock, at which time W. D. Murray wil made the address.

TO PREACH AT PLYMOUTH.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, will preach in the First Congregational church, Plymouth, Conn., tomorrow morning, in connection with the 175th anniversary services of that church. It was in this church that Dr. Zelie served his first pastorate twenty-five years ago and for that reason the congregation is especially anxious that he should take part in the services tomorrow.

AUTO THIEVES ABOUT.

An attempt was made some time during last night to enter the garage in the rear of the residence of Morris Abrams, on Grove street, the borough, where three automobiles are stored. The attempt was unsuccessful. What time of the night the intruders entered the premises is not known, nor was any clue left as to who they were. An effort was made to twist the lock from the door.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED.

James A. Cullinan, of Prescott place, who has been confined to Muhlenberg Hospital for the past week suffering from an injury to his eye, has returned home with the condition of the optic slightly improved. It is believed that the sight will be permanently injured. Mr. Cullinan was attended by Dr. Ard.

The Daily Press will be glad to have its attention called to any misleading or untrue statement, if such should appear at any time in an advertisement in its columns.

Readers are requested to assist in protecting themselves and legitimate advertisers.

TWO MOTORCYCLISTS IN ACCIDENT WITH AUTO

Just after starting from this city for the Trenton Inter-State Fair last Thursday morning, Herbert Alberts and Miss Higgins, of this city, met with an accident above Grant avenue on West Front street. Miss Higgins was in a side car that was attached to the motorcycle which Alberts was driving.

As they neared a side street going at a moderate speed, the auto delivery wagon of a local baker turned into Front street without the slightest warning and the motorcycle ran into it. The motorcycle glanced off the machine and both of the occupants were shaken up, it being necessary to assist Miss Higgins to her home, where she is still detained. The front wheel and side car of the motorcycle were damaged.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rally Day is to be observed at Grace M. E. church, of the borough, tomorrow, at which time the winter schedule of services will be resumed. The morning service will be in the nature of a "Peace Day" gatnering. Rev. Frederick Hubach, district superintendent of the Methodist Church, will address the Sunday-school session.

The First Presbyterian church Sunday-school will observe Rally Day tomorrow morning at the usual hour of gathering.

Peace Day will be observed at the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The evening services at this church at 7:30 will be resumed tomorrow for the fall and winter.

The board of trustees of the First Methodist church will meet tomorrow at the close of the morning service.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, will preach tomorrow evening on the subject, "Prayer, and the Great European War." Holy Communion will be observed at this church at the hour of morning service tomorrow.

Rev. Dr. H. N. Pfeiffer, who has been preaching at the Unitarian church for the past three weeks, will occupy the pulpit again tomorrow.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, has announced his sermon subject for tomorrow morning as "Some Trust In Chariots, and Some in Horses, but——." The service will be in keeping with "Peace Day."

Hughes Fawcett, of the borough, will be in charge of the service at the Rescue Mission tomorrow evening. Ellsworth Glover will sing.

Holy communion will be celebrated tomorrow at the hour of the morning services at Trinity Reformed church, Warren chapel and the First Baptist church.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of the Methodist church, will preach tomorrow morning at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. District Superintendent Frederick J. Hubach, former pastor of the church, will also assist in the service. The pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, will preach at the evening service on the subject, "A Life of Power Without Miracles."

Rev. St. John Fitch, of this city, will preach tomorrow at the Belmar Baptist church.

Rev. Karl A. Martin will preach tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Swedish Lutheran church on East Seventh street.

The Plant Flower and Fruit Guild has planned to continue its work throughout the winter season. Contributions of fruits and delicacies, flowers and fresh vegetables will be received at the usual hours Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning at the W. C. T. U. rooms in the Babcock building.

Communion services will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The subject of the sermon in the evening by Rev. Edward Ralston will be "The Final War and the Peace of God."

Those in charge of church notices are requested that, as far as is possible, the notices for publication on Saturdays, reach ths office Friday afternoons.

P. B. A. BALL.

Plans have been practically completed for the sixth annual entertainment of the Plainfield Patrolmens Benevolent Association to be held November 11, at Saengerbund Hall, the borough. The previous occasions under the auspices of this organization have been successful in every respect, and a large number is expected to attend this event.

DR. WHITE TO PREACH.

"Peace Sunday' will be observed at the Crescent Avenue church, tomorrow morning, when Rev. Dr. Stanley White, of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, will preach. The effering will be for the Red Cross relief work in Europe. The afternoon service will be held at 5 o'clock, when the quartet choir will sing Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave."

Mr. and Mrs. Herman P. Klinsman, of 60 Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, have started on an extended trip from New York to Niagara Falls, taking in Albany and Buffalo. They will return by the way of Pittsburgh, Washington and Philadelphia.

INCORRIGIBLE GIRL SENT BACK TO FATHER'S HOME

On the condition that she go to live at the home of her father in Kennebunkport, Me., Miss Emma Backer, a Plainfield girl, was released from the custody of the Union county authorities yesterday, following her arraignment before Judge James C. Connolly in the Court of Common Pleas. Charges of incorrigibility were preferred against the seventeen-year-old girl following her apprehension by Patrolman John Neylon. Instead of obeying the court's orders to appear, the Backer girl accompanied Mamie Burnett to Summit, where she was again arrested and brought back to Plainfield.

She was then held for the Court of Common Pleas and a request was made that she be committed to some institution until she was of age. At least a dozen Plainfield people interested themselves in her behalf following her commitment. Miss Mabelle Phillips, agent for the local Charity Organization, and Chief of Police Kiely were among those who conferred with the court regarding the young woman's conduct.

PROGRAM COMPLETE FOR TUBERCULOSIS EXHIBIT

Plans are complete for the tuberculosis and public health exhibit to be held at the Plainfield High School for two weeks, beginning October 12, under the auspices of the local Board of Health, Anti-Tuberculosis League and the State Tuberculosis Department. The exhibit will be open every afternoon from 2 to 5 and in the evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock, except Saturday. There will be motion pictures every afternoon at 3 o'clock for children and at 8 o'clock in the evening for the general public. Children will not be admitted at night unless accompanied by an adult.

Dr. Millard Knowlton, State tuberculosis inspector, will speak every afternoon and evening, his talk to be illustrated with motion pictures. The other evening speakers will be as follows:

October 12, Mayor Percy H. Stewart and William S. Tyler; October 13, Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges; October 14, Dr. T. S. Davis and William S. Tyler; October 15, Rev. Vinvent Sciolla, special program for Italians; October 16, A. E. Kenney, of the borough Board of Health, and Dr. C. F. Bolduan, of New York; October 19, Dr. J. F. Runnels; October 20, S. Adolphus Knopf; October 21, Dr. W. H. Murray and Dr. E. S. Krans; October 22, Rev. F. D. Tildon and Dr. J. C. Anderson, special program for colored people; October 23, Dr. F. J. Hughes.

TOLD OF CONFERENCE.

Several delegates from this city to the Friends' Conference held at Saratoga, N. Y., last month, presented interesting reports at the monthly meeting of the Young Friends' Society held at the meeting-house on Watchung avenue, last night. There was an interesting description of a trip to the prison at Comstock, N. Y., on invitation of the warden. Other interesting features of the conference were related. Following a brief business session there was a social hour in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Williams.

P. B. F. RANDOLPH'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services of Peter B. Pitz Randolph, who died Wednesday, were held this afternoon, at the home of his brother, Samuel Fitz Randolph, of 1364 Randolph road, a large number of friends and relatives being in attendance. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mr. Randolph was a member, officiated. The interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

MEN'S SERVICE.

Under theauspices of the Federation of Men's Church Clubs, Federation of Men's Bible Classes and the Y. M. C. A., a "prayer for peace" service will be held at the Y. M. C.A. at 4:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. William D. Murray, president of the association, will preside. This service will be for men only and a cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

VESPER SERVICE.

The first fall vesper service of the Y. W. C. A. will be held tomorrow afternoon in the association building at 4 o'clock. John Leal, of this city, will be the speaker and he will take for his subject, "What Is True Religion?" There will be a special musical program and Arthur Cole will be the soloist and he will be accompanied by Clifford Braider.

BOROUGH COURT NOTE.

Dan Van Orden, white, and aged seventy years, and Kate Stevens, colored, aged fifty-one, the latter keeping house for the former, were placed under arrest yesterday, for being drunk and disorderly on the streets. The couple were ordered to leave the borough under a suspended sentence of sixty days or $20. They left the borough.

W. F. WYCKOFF'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services of William F. Wyckoff, who died at his home, Thursday afternoon, will be held at his late residence, 313 Somerset street, Monday afternoon at 2:30. The interment will be made at the Presbyterian cemetery, North Plainfield.

THE WAR FROM A JEWISH POINT OF VIEW.

"Whoever wins, we lose anyway." In this painful phrase repeated over and over again by the Jewish Press, is expressed the whole calamity that confronts the Jewish people living among the nations which are now engaged in the deathly struggle for supremacy. Millions of the Jewish people are living in the regions where the war is spreading ruin and destruction from day to day and while the gains and advantages of victory will be shared by others, their losses will be entirely their own. All the horrors of fire and sword, ruin and destruction are now added to the tragedy of Jewish homelessness and persecution. Again are Jewish citizens giving their last and best proof of devotion to their adopted countries by laying down their lives in the field of battle, by killing their own Jewish brethren of other countries.

But the grim irony of the situation is beyond expression when it is remembered that the Jewish combatants of the opposite sides are fighting for countries that deny them their human rights. Proof of Jewish devotion to duty has never been lacking, but now when we behold it again on the field of battle, we have before us a new indictment of the moral standards of the European governments. All the losses of the war, all the remorse and misfortune will fall entirely on the shoulders of the Jews, who receive very little consideration from their government either in times of war or of peace. The extent in which Jews are participating in this war has already been indicated in the press, which shows that over 350,000 Jewish soldiers are fighting in different armies at war. The story of the danger which now confronts the Jews and the misery which they will be subjected to, can best be illustrated by a number of figures telling of the Jewish population in the different countries in Europe.

Austria Hungary, 2,268,262; Belgium, 12,169; France, 100,000; Germany, 615,021; Luxemburg, 1,200; Russian Empire, 6,250,805; Servia, 17,000; Switzerland, 19,000; Great Britain, 245,000; making a total of over 9,000,000 people.

One way or another they will feel the effect of the present conflict. It will be the duty of the American Jews to help the thousands whose business has been ruined and who have been thrown out of employment; to give for the aged, whose sons fell victims of war, and help the widows and orphans. The appeal for aid will especially be directed to American Jews, who thanks to providence have been relieved from the crimes of the European rulers, in the safety and freedom of this blessed country. Indeed the cry of distress has already been heard from across the seas for countless Jewish places of business have been ruined and homes have been laid waste.

The vision of homeless wanderers, so graphically and pathetically given in the picture called "Golus Exile," by the late artist Hurshenberg, looms again before our eyes. The whole of the Jewish people will be affected by this suffering from the war. That is why Israel, the traditional upholder of peace, feels especially grieved by the present catastrophe; that is why the leading Jewish press and prominent communal workers in this country are urging the adoption of a constrictive policy in the emergency which the circumstances are creating.

It will be necessary not only to render relief to those in distress but also to protect the interests of our people abroad at the end of this struggle. Because the war is happening the majority of the Jews in Europe can not even lift their finger toward providing a Jewish policy, which shall be presentable when the powers come together to make peace and reparcel their possessions. The burden therefore falls on the only large group of Jews living in a neutral country at this time—the American Jewish citizens. From the American Jewish view the framing of such a policy is most desirable. During this war the Jews in this country are being plainly used as far as they permit themselves to manufacture sympathy for nations, which in normal time reward them with the "Order of the Boot." After the war the Jews of the United States will be asked to bear the burden that will weigh like lead on the Jewish people every where. Hence it is the part of wisdom, Jewish brotherhood, as well as human fellowship, to urge co-operation between all our large representative Jewish organizations in the trying work which this gruesome war has prepared for us.

The Zionest organization, which expresses the strivings and is therefore in close touch with the thinking masses of our people all over the world, has done well to take the initiative in bringing about united action on the part of Jewry, and following a number of important conferences a general tour through the country has been undertaken enlisting the aid of leading men throughout the country. Louis D. Brandies, of Boston, the great leader of social justice, has been elected as the chairman to arouse our people to the duty of the hour, to help our brethren in this great distress, and also to maintain the Zionist organization with branches all over the world. This is the time for all sons and daughters of Israel to come to the rescue of their brethren who are in distress.

RECREATION NOTES

The Dunbar Club met last night at the Washington School and enjoyed one of its social evenings. There were about 85 members present. The main feature of the evening was a prize waltz. The first prize was won by Preston Cruse and Miss Edith Grobes, and the second prize by Leon Jones and Miss Pearl Jones. Mr. Van Blake also gave a very pleasing vocal solo. Plans are now under way for the organization of literary and dramatic clubs.

The weekly municipal dance will be held tonight at 8:15 in the Washington School auditorium. This dance continues to be one of the most popular activities conducted by the Public Recreation Committee.

The Italian Social and Educational Club will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Lincoln School. Dancing and music will be the features of the evening.

Advantages of Buying in Plainfield

Reasons Set Forth by a Competitor in Trade in Plainfield Contest Held by the Daily Press

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Shopping in Plainfield is a privilege which the people enjoy without undergoing that nervous strain and over-exertion as in larger cities. In view of this privilege every one ought to buy their requisites from the merchants here. The same goods and same facilities can be had here without having to spend extra time and money in going to other places to shop. Besides, there is more than the "personal enjoyment of a mere privilege" embodied in trading in Plainfield. We boost the city. We boost ourselves. We boost others. Thus we uphold the standard of our town.

There is virtually no difference between the man of little means who breaks the city ordinance, yet keeps his cents within the city limits, and the man of wealth who, though he obeys the laws carries his dollars to other cities instead of giving them to his own. Both add to the city's retrogression. But if the wealthy would add their dollars to the poor man's cents, and spend here in Plainfield we would naturally have a flourishing city. Yet how unfair and unjust to ourselves, to our city, and to our merchants, when as we walk along the streets of Plainfield we see the delivery wagons, not of our local business house, but of Wanamaker, Lord & Taylor or some other New York firm. And worst of all these stop at the houses of the rich—those who think they are doing enough for the city's uplift and welfare; yet they let such an important duty as shopping in Plainfield go undone. Patronizing the city stores is one of the duties of its citizens and should be performed.

The store in the country can surpass our local stores in the accommodations and courtesies tendered the members of our community, whether high or low, rich or poor. A short time ago, I noticed in the news columns of the Daily Press that "Sam" Rothberg was about to hold his anniversary the next day, and that he would be giving away carnations. Then I looked in the advertisement column where I was attracted by the S-R of the "ad." The next day I went down to the store only to get a carnation not to buy anything. When I got to the door I hesitated thinking whether or not I would be given a flower without purchasing something. Just then one of the salesmen invited me in and presented me with a carnation. I was glad, but I did not know how to leave the store without buying something to show my appreciation. Then I began to inspect the different articles displayed. The same salesman who gave me the carnation came to me once more, and asked if I needed waiting on. I told him I did not. Yet he insisted on showing me some of the things which he thought might interest me, and telling the price of each one. I tried to leave, but I could not. He insisted on my staying and seeing the things. At last I decided to get rid of him by some way or the other. I could think of no means of getting away. At last I decided to buy a shirt. This I did, although I did not need it. However, it was my only means of escape. The stores do not belong to the men who nominally own them. They belong to the citizens who should patronize them always. "Charity begins at home." Trade begins at home. Home is the place to start and start right. East or West, home trade is the best.

VERNAL J. WILLIAMS.

Efficacy of Prayer

By Dr. Bernard Levinson

The President's designation of a day of prayer for creeds of all denominations, as a probable means of terminating the brutal maelstrom now devastating civilized Europe merits comment and criticism. It is indeed a sad commentary on civilization versus faith.

While the setting aside of a particular day of prayer may be inspired by a kindly motive and love for humanity, the eventual outcome of such prayer, I daresay, will be the same as heretofore. War, whether fought for liberty or aggrandizement has always brought about equal results. Millions of lives have been sacrificed on its altar. History records battles galore wherein valor and loyalty were exhibited even beyond human endurance towards liberation of mind and body. Centuries elapsed towards its attainment. It seems plausible to assume, war possesed some virtue, if no other attribute; through what other channel could man's emancipation of barbaric feudalism or religious subjugation have been attained?

Step by step, through long periods of evolution man has contrived and devised ingenious implements, thus fully serving his aims. The infliction of torture was its byproduct and concommittant, being the equivalent of subservience.

Evolution operates in strict accordance with nature's primordial law, from which there is no deviation, thus proving conclusively, with Nietzsche, Darwin, Huexley, Harckel and Spencer, that might makes right, which the church tacitly accepts. To quote Mr. Di Donardo in a former editorial, to wit: "The present European conflagration involving the lives of millions of human beings, reveals in all its hideousness the sham and pretenses of Christian civilization. Two thousand years of Christian preaching is culminating in the greatest Christian carnage the world has ever seen. The frightful crescendo of this beastly tragic symphony is partly traceable to the church whose priests, hiding under the mask of Christ, outdarwin Darwin, in the secret defense of the Gospel of the Survival of the Fittest. It is they who by defending an iniquitous system of society based on fraud and trickery as good as proclaim, that the race is to the cunningest and swiftest—that 'Might is Right.'" Have not our ancient philosophers proven this fact likewise? Can this fact be disputed? This irrevocable and inexorable law enjoyed full sway since the world's creation and is beyond human domain of control.

It is his very destiny. It forms the bulwark and foundation of all governments, past, present and future.

The expansion of all governments be it autocracy or republic, is virtually built upon its pillars. Territories or tenements were acquired and subdued through its operation millions of people were placed in servitude. What we see now is the extortion of tribute flowing incessantly into the coffers of the ruling forces, sanctioned by both State and church. Since man has known himself has anything been acquired without blood? The array of armaments, dreadnoughts and submarines, glittering in splendor, trained in the art of carnage and destruction is the final word of law and order.

Might respects neither race, creed, law or faith. Ages of praying have never checked invading armies. Scourge and pestilence are concommittant factors. This hellish monster has ruled throughout the centuries—and we all know history repeats itself. Each and every combatant beseech the Almighty vehemently invoking victory to its respective army, oblivious to the dictum of the brotherhood of mankind and whose God is their God! This mockery is a subterfuge behind which lie hidden hypocrisy and crime.

Every epoch in human progress is marked by an equivalent rise of ingenuity regarding the production and manufacture of implements of destruction. The ministering of the church has not remained quiescent during these critical times. Has it, however, accomplished its purpose?

Modern warfare, despite its curtailing by faith, is by far more destructive than any pre-existing era. The destructive power of the newly evolved Krupp gun or howitzer has never been dreamed of by our forefathers. While we suffer fewer wars the casualities are by far superior numerically and more rapid. The formation of Dreibunds and Ententes are but gentle equivalents of the maintenance of hideous carnage and destruction—evolving the philosophy of Might is Right. What are they but to hold in submission weaker nations, although worshiping the same God? What are they but the instillation of awe and terror in the hearts of the conquered, proving conclusively the futility of revolt and the perpetual strength in the philosophy of Might is Right.

The expansion of England was attained by iron and blood. The blast of the clarion call of her cannon announced conquest and annexation. Through the philosophy of Might she has proclaimed herself—throughout civilization—"Mistress of the Sea." This law is likewise applicable to France, Germany, Russia and Italy and all those countries commonly known as powers. Through conquest and annexation, to thwart any rebellion of colonies or uprisings on the part of recalcitrant countries forever looked upon as foes, the army and navy has developed into a modern institution, here to stay. No amount of coersion displayed by peace societies can alter its dictations one iota.

The dedication of peace palaces accomplishes naught and sinks into oblivion when confronting the inexorable law. The map of the world is constantly changing through its silent operation. The effacing of empires require but a short time when conflicting with Might. The map of Europe is sure to change as the night follows the day. Three-fourths of the world is dominated by her. The termination of the present conflict will herald forth a victor who will follow the prestige so long enjoyed by England by announcing herself "Master of the Land." Implicit faith and ardent prayer never has and never can deter the tide of the present conflict now rampant.

There Are 92,000 Articles in a Drug Store

And each article furnishes a reason for trading in Plainfield.

Talking with one of the biggest drug men in the country, last Friday, I was told that a recent inventory of a drug store showed over 92,000 separate and distinct articles—none of them a duplicate.

Think of it! That druggist had not only to keep in stock 92,000 different articles, but he had to be able to put his hand on every one at a moment's notice, and he had to sell each one at a fair price or lose a sale.

Think of the advantage to you of having near you a man who stands ready—day or night—to supply you with any one of these thousands of articles which you may need for convenience, or in a moment of dire distress; which may be needed to save your life, or a life that you love more than your own.

Do you want to call on that man only when you are in distress, or do you want to encourage him to keep his store at the top notch of efficiency by giving him all your trade?

Do you think it is fair to ring his night bell when you please, and in fair weather buy your Cuticura Soap in New York, because you can save a cent by doing so?

Your Golden Rule must be badly bent if that is your idea of being a Plainfield citizen.

Many Plainfield people seem to think that local merchants are good enough to attend to "odd jobs," but, when something worth while is needed they forget the man whom they do not forget in an emergency.

Do you use your friends only for convenience? Of course not, for you very soon would have none.

Remember that the local merchant has the stove to sell as well as the grate which you allow him to replace.

Remember that the local stores which are vital to your comfort in emergencies sell the thousands of nationally advertised goods at prices which show only a fair profit. Give these local stores a chance to grow bigger and better by giving them the support which you would expect, if you were serving them as they are serving you.

Do not imagine for a moment that the drug clerk, who has to know the location of 92,000 articles in his store, doesn't know where your heart is located if you buy only postage stamps of him.

RED DEATH OF WAR

Tragic Fate of Maximilian at the Hands of the Mexicans.

HIS PENALTY FOR FAILURE.

The Atonement of Blood—How It Was Consummated and How the Vengeance of the Victors Was Satisfied—Coolness of the Unfortunate Prince.

No more tragic incident is recorded in history than the execution of Maximilian. Half a century ago a younger brother of the Emperor Francis Joseph was sent to rule Mexico. Together with his wife, he sat upon the frail throne, even then tottering. How he failed is another story, but when he was taken prisoner he prepared himself for death—the red death of war.

In a volume written some years ago Major John N. Edwards pictures graphically the closing hours of the tall, handsome prince who would be king as follows:

The morning broke fair and white in the sky, and at 6:30 o'clock three carriages drew up in front of the main gate of the convent of Capuchins. The bells rung in all the steeples, there were soldiers everywhere, and long lines of glittering steel that rose and fell in yet the soft, sweet hush of the morning.

In the first carriage got Maximilian and Father Soria, a priest. In the second carriage there came Miramon and his priest, in the third Mejia and his. Then the solemn cortege started. * * * All the people were in the street. On the faces of the multitude there were evidences of genuine and unaffected sorrow. Some among the crowd lifted their hats as the victims passed along, some turned away their heads and wept, and some, even among the soldiers and amid the hostile ranks of the Liberals, fell upon their knees and wept.

The place of surrender was to be the place of execution. Northwest of the city a mile or more the Hill of the Bells (El Cerro de las Campanas) upreared itself. It was inclosed on three sides by 6,000 soldiers of all arms, leaving the rear or uncovered side resting upon a wall.

It was 7:30 o'clock when the carriages halted at the place of execution. Maximilian was the first to alight. He stepped proudly down, took a handkerchief from his pocket and his hat from his head and beckoned for one of his Mexican servants to approach. The man came.

"Take these," the emperor said. "They are all I have to give."

The faithful Indian took them, kissed them, cried over them, fell upon his knees a few moments in prayer to the good God for the good master and arose a hero.

In front of the dead wall three crosses had been firmly embedded in the ground. On each side was a placard bearing the name of the victim to be immolated there. That upon the right was where the emperor was to be shot, that in the center was Miramon, that upon the left for the grim old stoic and fighter Mejia.

Maximilian walked firmly to his place. The three men embraced each other three times. To Mejia he said:

"We will meet in heaven."

Mejia bowed, smiled and laid his hand upon his heart.

To Miramon he said:

"Brave men are respected by sovereigns. Permit me to give you the place of honor."

As he said this he took Miramon gently by the arm and led him to the center cross, embracing him for the last time.

Escobedo was not on the ground. An aide-de-camp, however, brought permission for each of the victims to deliver a farewell address. The emperor spoke briefly. Miramon drew from his pocket a small piece of paper and read.

When Miramon had ceased reading Maximilian placed his hand on his breast, threw up his head and cried in a singularly calm and penetrating voice, "Fire!"

Eighteen muskets were discharged as one musket. Mejia and Miramon died instantly. Four bullets struck the emperor, three in the left and one in the right breast. Three of these bullets passed entirely through his body, coming out high up on the left shoulder; the other remained embedded in the right lung. The emperor fell a little sideways and upon his right side, exclaiming almost gently and sadly:

"Oh, hombre, hombre! Oh, man! Oh, man!"

He was not yet dead. A soldier went up close to him and fired into his stomach. The emperor moved slightly as if still sensible to pain. Another came out of the firing party and, putting the muzzle of his musket up close to his breast, shot him fairly through the heart.

The tragedy was ended. Mexican vengeance was satisfied; the soul of the unfortunate prince was with its God, and until the judgment day the blood of one who was too young and too gentle to die will cry out from the ground even as the blood of Abel.

Sugar as Food.

With the temperature 62 below zero Shackleton and his men, in their antarctic exploration, in marching took two or three lumps of sugar each every two hours. Within ten minutes of eating these they could feel the heat going through their bodies.

Life is not jest and amusement; life is not even enjoyment. Life is hard labor. Turgenev.

MODES FROM WAR ZONE SEEN AT GIMBELS

Gowns Were Designed in the Trenches, Is Report.

Wide skirts and the long over-chemise hanging loose from the shoulders are striking features of the latest Paris fashions just received by Gimbel Bros. and being shown now in their annual fall promenade des toilettes. But voluminous as those new skirts are the narrow ones have obstinately insisted on tagging along with them and appear beneath the popular long tunics.

Cheruit, Callot, Martial et Armand, Premet, Drecoll and others have contributed to the collection. They say that Premet created some of the modes while at the front—and cretain styles have a decidedly military air.

Velvet predominates in evening and afternoon gowns and also for street wear. Even for little girls there were a number of pretty velvet models, some trimmed with taffeta just like the gowns of the grown-ups.

There seems to be a curious combination of heavy and delicate materials this season. One gown of green velvet has a long full tunic of black net and lace edged with very long haired monkey fur. The gown is a high necked afternoon affair with transparent sleeves of the lace, and there is, of course, the ubiquitous rose at the belt. Some of the velvet evening gowns are quite sleeveless, which seemed rather queer for such heavy materials.

The crinoline effect appears in several white evening gowns, the flowing lace tunics being wired to stand out hoop-skirtwise. One is edged with white feather trimming, another with narrow bands of coral velvet to match the broad girdle.

Beads—jet, crystal and colored—to match the gown rank first in favored trimming, lace, metallic and otherwise, comes next with fur and flowers as close comrades.

One of the prettiest things shown is a street costume of white velvet with underskirt of white silk. The coat, a Russian blouse high necked effect, is edged all about with Kolinsky fur. A monk's girdle of white silk with balled ends ties loosely in front as a waist finish. A little fur trimmed toque belongs with it and makes up the most fascinating costume imaginable.

Then there's a Directoire model, a dainty white shepherdess evening gown, much beruffled and flower embroidered; a peasant model of green chiffon ruffles with bodice of crushed black velvet; ermine and broadtail evening wraps and a whole host of lovely things.

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

MAC SAYS

In Clarence L. Woodman the Plainfield High School athletes have an addition to their teaching staff of whom they might well be proud. Mr. Woodman made his first public appearance in this city yesterday afternoon at Parker Field and acting in the capacity of field general at the school's opening football contest he made one wide-sweeping hit. During the entire four quarters the P. H. S. instructor held a masterful hand over the proceedings and his judgment and control of each situation as it arose were the subject of much favorable comment on the sidelines. His announcements were conclusive and decisive and not in a single instance did the players question his judgment, an unusual thing for a contest between Plainfield and Somerville combatants. With Mr. Woodman on deck the Plainfield High School warriors have an official that has long been needed in scholastic circles and it is to be hoped that he is as good a basketball referee as he is a football controller.

The result of yesterday's contest at Parker Field demonstrated that the red and blue has a stellar herd of pigskin chasers this year and present indications point to a season that will long be remembered in the annals of the school. Seldom has Somerville fallen such easy prey to the locals and the Somerset county youths came here tooted sky high this year.

Rumor has it that the Holy Cross football team will be carried in a hearse from the Watchung avenue practise field to the playing rendezvous on Cricket Field as a part of the parade that will precede the opening contest. Why employ the hearse before the contest?

Jimmy Alverson's appearance on Cricket Field this afternoon is a drawing card in itself. Jimmy used to cavort about the collegiate football lot with the Rutgers boys and gained pasging prominence when he joined the All-American squad at the inducement of one Walter Camp. Jimmy's booting is expected to play a big part in today's encounter and the Holy Cross backs will have their work cut out for them in holding on to the long spirals from the boot of this famous performer.

Should the material gathered together by "Doc" Doyle as a football team prove itself of inferior calibre this afternoon it might be well for the Holy Cross manager to make a canvas of the Chauffeurs' Club in this city. We have yet to find an automobile pilot with a streak of yellow up his back if the daily dodging of these vehicles on our main thoroughfares is to be taken as a criterion. Nerve is one of the essentials of the gridiron sport, according to our friend, Sideline Rufus.

A number of cops were noted adorning the sidelines at Parker Field yesterday afternoon. Can it be that these city employes are contemplating a debut in such a rough and tumble sport as football? It would never do Roland, keep away from the stuff.

Were you one of the sports who watched a group of baseballists freeze to death this afternoon or did you take particular pleasure in witnessing twenty-two gridiron huskies wilt from the heat? Funny what a different affect the weather will have on certain groups of athletes, isn't it?

Will some kind reader tell us the respective averages of the teams that finished the Sunday School League race this year? The closing date is also a mystery.

Whether or not the organization has wound up its schedule the Hope Chapel boys are preparing to receive that trophy and that's all that is necessary in these days of everyone for himself.

Manager "Doc" Doyle has ordered a diet of raw meat sandwiches for his football charges. Various kinds of "meat" are allowable under the order, however.

Special extra—Turn on your electric lights and steer the reflector in the direction of the scoreboard. "Dorflinger's Pets beat the Saurer clan." 'Tis only a dream to which the Plainfield manager fell victim last night, however, so don't get excited, gentle reader.

A news item from Elizabeth announces that Pingry and Battin High Schools have renewed athletic relations. The break that came two years ago was a regrettable one and we're glad to see that the two Elizabeth schools have condescended to mediate. Why not a little handshaking between Battin and Plainfield High Schools now?

The array of talent that turned out for the Elks' teams the other night indicates that the veterans will have to do some close figuring to retain their jobs on the senior quintet. The juniors are also coming to the fore and it looks as though the youngsters were going to be pretty nearly on a par with the big fellows this year.

Fifty candidates reported for a feminine basketball team at Battin High School yesterday. This comes pretty near to being a record turnout for the suffragette class.

Competent critics generally agree that the Athletics figure to beat the Braves decisively in the approaching world's series. Not so with the ball players. As baseball runs in streaks, there are any number of athletes who firmly believe the Braves will keep up their present speed right through the blue ribbon bouts, as the White Sox did in 1906.

It will be remembered that the Sox came from behind that year just as the Braves have. After winning by an eyelash they went in against the Cubs, who had broken all records by winning 116 games—which is still the record. The betting was 8 to 5 against the White Sox, and still they cleaned up the series in a jiffy.

A lot of ball players believe the Braves will do the same thing. On form they see no way of beating the Athletics, but just the same they are willing to bet a little something on the Braves on a "hunch."

"Walter Maranville is the greatest player to enter baseball since Ty Cobb arrived," says George Stallings. "I have seen 'em all, since 1891, in every league around the south, north, east and west, but Maranville is the peer of all of them. He came into the league under a handicap—his build. He was too small to be a big leaguer in the opinion of critics. I took hold of him; told him just what I wanted; a small fellow for short; all he had to do was to run to his left or right, or come in, and size never handicapped speed in going after a ball. Maranville agreed with me; he settled down, with the one idea that he was going to remain in the big league. He improved his fielding, and today I claim he is the greatest shortstop in baseball."

PLAN FOR CITY BOWLING LEAGUE IN SOMERVILLE

Plans are under way for the organization of a city bowling league in Somerville. At a meeting held last night there were six teams represented and the league will be composed of these. A schedule will be drawn up by a committee appointed last night, and the rolling will probably begin about the middle of next month.

When the Plainfield city league is organized there will probably be many games played between the teams of these two cities and the winners of the two leagues might arrange an interesting series. The clubs that will be represented in the Somerville circuit are Somerville Athletic Club, Concord Singing Society, Somerset A. C., Lincoln Hose Company, Raritan A. C. and Company M.

RUSHING THE SEASON.

Girls of the local and borough High Schools have already begun to think about starting the basketball going on the courts, but have made no definite plans along these lines as yet. The Paterson High School girls' team has been practicing ever since the first day of school and was scheduled to play a regular game Tuesday afternoon with the Clifton girls. The game was postponed indefinitely by one of the managers, but the Paterson five will play a game soon. Playing basketball in September is unusual.

LOCAL EAGLES LOSE ONE TO SOMERVILLE

But There Are Two More to Be Played and There is Still a Fine Chance.

Plainfield Eagle bowlers lost the first match of the second series with Somerville, Thursday night, on the latter's alleys, the home five taking two games out of three. All of the games were exciting although the scores were not very close and two accidents in the last game put the locals out of the running for the deciding game. In the last Morrison was pinning good, got his finger stuck in the ball and it went along the side. Mahoney made a foul by overstepping the mark and his fine strike did not count.

The Somervillians took the first game by a large margin while the local birds took the second. Miller made high score in this game, hitting the pins for a score of 232. Roller hit the pins hard in the first and third games, getting a 203 and a 205. The locals took two of the three games in the first series and still have a chance to win the present series. The next game will be rolled on the local alleys in about a week. The scores:

LOCAL MASONS WILL BOWL AGAINST SOMERVILLE FIVE

The Plainfield and Somerville masons bowling teams will meet each other in the first match of a five-match series on the Somerville alleys next Friday night. The locals have five good pinners and are going to take the first game from their opponents so as to get a good start.

The other four games will be arranged at a later date. The Queen City team will be composed of Albert Sutterline, captain; Jack Caulfield, William Sheehan, John Creoger and John Caulfield. They wil be opposed by a quintet composed of Edward Riley, captain; Koehler, J. Conklin, A. Jones, H. Novick.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER TO WED AFTER WORLD'S SERIES

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—Besides having the proud honor of serving on a pennant-winning team, Rube Oldring a former Plainfielder, the left fielder of the Athletics, has won a bride.

She is Miss Hanna Thomas, the fascinating daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Thomas, who dwell near Bridgeton, N. J. The wedding will take place immediately at the conclusion of the world's series.

The list of bachelors on the Athletic team is rapidly being thinned Among those not yet wooed by Cupid are Amos Strunk, Eddie Murphy and Eddie Plank.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR GIRLS' TEAM AT BATTIN

Prospects of having a basketball sextet at Battin that will even rival the championship team of last year, gave a big jump when about fifty candidates answered Captain Elsie Heilich's call yesterday afternoon. Although the team may suffer the loss of such stars as the Misses Josephine Greene, Ella Nelson and Eleanore Jacobs, with half a hundred candidates ready to do their best for the open positions on the team, no trouble should be found to turn out a championship sextet this year.

Captain Heilich will doubtless be in her old position at guard, while the others of last year's team returning are the Misses Edith Otto, side centre, and Margaret Ogden, at forward.

EQUALS RECORD.

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 3.—Outsprinting Howard P. Drew, of the University of Southern California, yesterday, in the 220-yard dash at the California championship track meet, G. Parker, of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, covered the distance in 21 1-5 seconds. This equals the world's record, held jointly by Howard P. Drew and Dan Kelly, of Spokane.

EXCITING MATCHES PLAYED LAST NIGHT

Many Close Games Were Staged in Tourney on Club Alleys.

Several two hundred scores were rolled in last night's play of the Knights of Columbus individual bowling tournament. George Taylor, E. Taylor, Moynihan and Wilson were the players and the last named rolled high score with a 231 in the first game of his match against George Taylor. This game was one of the best of the night, the winner being pushed to the limit at all times by his opponent, who finished with a score of 214. In the second game Taylor won easily as Wilson fell down to a 134 while his opponent hit for 213. Although the scores were low in the deciding match between these two players, the game was the most exciting of the night, there being only three points difference between the two scores. The scores were 170 and 167.

The first match of the night between G. Taylor and E. Taylor was also close throughout, the former taking the last two games after dropping the first. E. Taylor took the first with a 201 and had thirteen points to spare, but his opponent had ten to the good at the end of the second. The last game was hotly contested and at the end of the last frame the scores stood 174 to 171 in favor of George. Wilson won two from Moynihan in the second match, taking the first two and dropping the third when Moynihan rolled a 212 against Wilson's 186.

When E. Taylor lined up against Moynihan he took two out of the three games and three two hundred scores were rolled in this match. Taylor started off fine with a 202, while Moynihan made a very poor start and scored only 120. He came back in the second game, however, and nosed out his rival by three points when he rolled a 203. Both tallies were low in the third game, which G. Taylor won with a six-point lead. The scores:

G. Taylor	188	182	174
E. Taylor	201	172	171
Wilson	182	158	186
Moynihan	172	137	212
E. Taylor	202	200	189
Moynihan	120	203	183
G. Taylor	214	213	170
Wilson	231	134	167

ONLY FINALS LEFT IN BORO TOURNEY

Tomkinson and Sherman Chandler Will Battle for First Honors Monday.

The semi-finals round of the North Plainfield High School tennis tournament for the singles championship was completed yesterday, along with the match that was postponed from Thursday, and the finals will be played Monday.

Tomkinson won easily over Townley in two sets, 6-2, 6-3.

The match between Chandler and A. McDonough which was postponed from Thursday, was played off yesterday and Chandler defeated McDonough, 6-2, 6-3. This placed Chandler in the semi-finals with French as his opponent, and in this match Chandler defeated his opponent after a hard fight, for although he won the first set 6-2, French took a love set and was within two points of winning the third set, when Chandler made a final spurt and won the match 7-5.

The scores: Tomkinson defeated Townley, 6-2, 6-3; Chandler defeated A. McDonough, 6-2, 6-3; Chandler defeated French, 6-2, 0-6, 7-5.

In the finals between Chandler and Tomkinson to be played Monday, Tomkinson is the popular choice for the title as he was runner up last year, while this is Chandler's first year as a star

P. H. S. PLAYS WESTFIELD HERE ON COLUMBUS DAY

By mutual agreement of the two managers, the football games between the Plainfield and Westfield High School teams have been switched around so that the first game will be played on Parker Field on Columbus Day instead of at Westfield, as was originally arranged The manager from down the line found that he could not obtain the use of Recreation Park on that day and asked Manager Updike to shift the games.

The local aggregation will play a return game at Westfield on Election Day. In the schedule of the Westfield team published last week the manager of that team had the locals scheduled for November 21, but that has since been rectified and the locals will go there for the holiday game. The match Columbus Day will start at 10 o'clock.

RED AND BLUE TEAM BATTERS SOMERVILLE

Plainfield Eleven Runs Wild on Parker Field in First Game of Season.

The Plainfield High School football team ushered in the season, yesterday afternoon, on Parker Field, when it defeated Somerville High School by the score of 31 to 0. The local boys outclassed their opponents in every way, rushing down the field almost at will and scoring once in each of the first three quarters and twice in the fourth. Plainfield was also as strong on the defense as it was on the offense. Robeson, the big fullback of Somerville, being the only man who could gain ground.

In the second quarter, Coach Patch began putting in the scrub team, but Somerville was as powerless against the second string men as it was against the first.

The next scheduled game is with Westfield High School, on Parker Field, Columbus Day morning. Last year Plainfield was defeated twice by Westfield, but this year the local boys are confident of the fact that they will turn the tables on their opponents.

DEXTERS MAKING PLANS FOR COMING SEASON

The first practice of the season for the Dexter football team, will be held at the Amusement Park grounds, Perth Amboy, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and the first game of the season will be played a week from Sunday. An open invitation is extended to any football player in the city or county to join the Dexter club at its practice. It is expected that there will be at least twenty candidates out for the team.

At the meeting, last night, Coach Hanson was in charge and plans for the season were thoroughly discussed. A number of trick plays were talked over and some new formations were planned. In addition to tomorrow morning's practice, there will be two evening sessions next week and it is hoped to get the team in the best of shape for the opening game.

The members of the Dexter club look for a successful financial season at the Amusement Park grounds. A gridiron in full view of the bleachers and grandstand will be arranged and it is expected that football will become as popular in Perth Amboy as it is in the cities which support college elevens.

DOWN TO FINALS IN CLUB TOURNEY

Results of Other Events Held at Plainfield Country Club This Year.

The semi-final round of the women's doubles tennis tourney at the Plainfield Country Club were completed yesterday, Mrs. Story Rowland and Mrs. C. B. Tyler defeating Mrs. W. B. Tyler and Mrs. George Hodges, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. Mrs. Rowland and Mrs. Tyler will play Mrs. Harold Brown and Miss Barbara Fleming in the finals some time next week.

This is the last tournament for the women at the Country Club for this season. The results of the season's leading tournaments were as follows: Club championship, won by Miss Edna Wildey; runner up, Miss Marion Brown; mixed doubles, won by Albert Beers and Miss Edith Beers; handicap singles, won by Miss Edith Beers; runner-up, Miss Dorothy Burke.

RAHWAY HIGH HAS STRONG BACKS BUT WEAK LINE

Rahway, Oct. 3.—With a strong backfield, but an inexperienced, light line, the Rahway High School football team will invade Newark this afternoon, to tackle Barringer in its initial game of the season. The Rahway backfield is the same terror as of old, even though the two famous Armstrong brothers will be out. Captain "Pie" Rossell, Eddie Durand, Johnny Brooks and George Schweitzer will be the four veterans behind the line. Len Mantlo and Bob Davis will be the only "vets" on the line, losses by graduation forcing Coach Short to develop new men. The line for today's game, composed of Garthwaite and Mantlo, ends; Meinzer and Bartlett, tackles; P. Lukens and Davis, guards, and Morss, centre, is much lighter than last year's and not as effective. Meinzer, Bartlett, Mantlo, Garthwaite and Morss are small. Arthur Armstrong is out of the game with a pulled tendon in his left arm, while his brother Elmer strained a tendon in his right ankle two weeks ago and will be out for a couple more.

The enrollment of the Rahway school is so small that it does not afford two elevens, so up to the present week the varsity was handicapped to a great extent by having a weak scrub team to oppose in practice. Tuesday, however, eleven local fellows formed a team called the Newtons and volunteered their services to Coach Short. Mr. Short gladly accepted their services and put his charges through a stiff scrimmage with the volunteers every afternoon. The Newton players are all big, husky fellows and they gave the varsity crew stiff opposition in every play.

ENGLISHMAN LEADS.

At the end of the fifth day of competition in the mixed style billiard match between Willie Hoppe, the American, and Melbourne Inman, the English champion, the foreigner was leading by a total of 3,455 to 3,285. As the New York portion of the match closes today, however, with two 500-point matches at 18-2 balkline, at which Hoppe has been beating the Englishman by about 10 to 1, it appears certain that the American will have a good lead when the competition closes tonight. Inman won last night by a score of 600 to 212. In the afternoon Inman won by a score of 601 to 148.

WILL DO BETTER.

Upon his promises to abstain from spirituous liquors in the future, Joseph Stevens, who tried to take a "fall" out of Patrolman Muir while in an intoxicated condition on North avenue Thursday night, was let go with a suspended sentence by Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

HOW CANNON ARE USED IN BATTLE

Making Guns of a Battery Ready For Action.

DIRECTING FIRE ON ENEMY.

This Is Done by Means of an Instrument Set at a Given Deflection Calculated by Battery Commander Stationed on High Ground and Sometimes In Treetop.

How cannon are used in an actual battle is a most interesting subject dealt with in the Scientific American.

In actual battle the guns of a battery are lined up, and one loaded caisson is placed next to each gun. The entire battery is behind cover and generally cannot see the targets. The fire is directed by each gunner aiming on a designated aiming point, with an instrument set at a given deflection, so that the gun will actually point at the target. This deflection is calculated by a triangulation method by the battery commander, who is some distance away from the battery either on elevated ground, on a ladder or in a tree.

The German system of obtaining the deflection is to measure the angles by means of instruments, thereby attempting to make the first shots effective, while the tendency of the French system is to estimate the first deflection, fire quickly and by observing the shot make necessary corrections for succeeding shots. The ranges are obtained by base range finders, which are accurate within 200 yards for 5,000 or 6,000 yard ranges.

What Howitzers Are For.

The object of howitzers is mainly to fire a heavier projectile with a lower velocity at a much higher elevation and longer range. Assume, for instance, the enemy's infantry intrenched behind embankments. With a high velocity the trajectory of the projectile for a given range is very flat, so that the troops would be able to sit behind the cover and have all projectiles either strike the embankment or pass over their heads. For this emergency a battery of howitzers is called into action. By reducing the charge the projectile may be started at a higher elevation, which causes the projectile to fall to the ground in a much more nearly vertical path and enables it to be dropped back of the embankment.

The object of field artillery is to support the infantry in its advances or its retreats. It aims to hit the part of the enemy which is most dangerous to the friendly infantry and which would hinder its success. Since the enemy's artillery would do the same thing, it is evident that a modern battle will generally begin with an artillery duel and that whichever side is able to silence the other's artillery will have a tremendous advantage.

As the infantry advances the field artillery must be in readiness to fire over the advancing lines and attack parts of the enemy's troops or must be able to move with lightning rapidity to any other position where its fire is needed or is more effective. A battery of field artillery is a tactical unit composed of from four to eight guns and ammunition wagons loaded with shell and shrapnel.

Infantry Tactics.

While it is probable the success of a battle will depend to a large extent on the support of the field artillery, it is certain, says the writer, that the principal and most important arm is the infantry, which in practically every case must decide the final issue. The cavalry may be the first to be drawn into a battle, and the artillery may destroy the enemy's artillery, but a battle is never won until the infantry has driven back the enemy's lines.

The usual mode of advancing for the infantry is to deploy them in a line with a long interval between each soldier. This naturally is for the purpose of offering a smaller target for the enemy. It makes it more difficult, however, for the leaders to keep as good control over the men, and for that reason one of the objects of field artillery is to make the enemy's troops deploy early.

The infantry soldier is armed in all the countries with a rifle and bayonet. The rifle is the weapon upon which reliance is placed, the bayonet being used only as a last means, when in a hand to hand encounter with the enemy.

"KALE GONE, WIRE 30 BEANS"

Professor's American Slang Causes Germans to Hold Friend a Prisoner.

A story of how a telegram for financial assistance couched in American slang landed a Brooklyn (N. Y.) Manual Training high school instructor in a German prison under suspicion of being a conspirator against the government was told upon the arrival at New York of the Italian liner Ancona from Naples.

Dr. Alexander Becker, an American, was the victim, and his fellow teacher at Manual, Professor Edouard San Giovanni, was the one who sent the wire that caused the trouble.

This was the message: "Kale all gone; wire 30 beans." Professor San Giovanni was left without funds when the bank where he had his money closed as soon as war broke out.

News of Interest in Building World

BUILDING SEASON HAS BEEN ACTIVE

September Recognized as the Best Month in the Year.

SECOND WARD LEADS

New Evergreen Avenue School and Hospital Improvements Aggregate $100,000 in Contracts—Outlook is Promising for 1915.

The past week was not a promising one for the building trades for the city, as no permits were issued by Inspector T. O. Doane, although several of minor importance are still pending at headquarters. They will probably be issued during the course of the coming week. The passing of the month of September brings to a close what is generally recognized as the most active season of the year so far as construction is concerned, and for that reason two tables are given, showing what has been accomplished in the first nine months of the year, in comparison with the same period of last year.

Up to this point in the current year, the Second ward appears to be the most prosperous ward of the city, although it should be borne in mind that of the amounts, $80,000 is for the new Evergreen Avenue School, which work has not as yet been started, and $20,000 for improvements at Muhlenberg Hospital. The First ward enjoyed a well balanced season, with a number of dwellings marking the steady progress and development of the East End of the city. This even movement is the result of a growing popularity of that section of town during the past five years. The Fourth ward is about even with the First ward in regard to amounts expended for buildings, there being only $4,526 difference between the totals of the two wards. The Third ward is the lowest in point of the amount expended for buildings.

The tightness of the money market has been the greatest drawback in the local building world, and Plainfield, at the close of what may be termed a dull season, is able to present a very creditable showing in construction lines, when the conditions in the local shops and manufacturing plants are taken into consideration. Plainfield feels the first breaks in the industrial lines, and the dull season which is being experienced by the entire nation is felt here in full force. In spite of this fact, the permits issued by Inspector Doane call for the adding of $460,779 worth of new buildings and improvements to the values of the city. Those who had money to invest realized that no better opportunity would be afforded than to place their money in dwellings of a modern type in the city of Plainfield. This city is able to show as good a comparative building report as the majority of cities in this section of the country.

Plainfield has not been without her large contracts, and the vast majority of the local building craftsmen have been kept fairly busy during the past season. Among the larger jobs which engaged the attention of the local men are the improvements to the residence of Mayor Percy H. Stewart, on West Eighth street, the addition and improvements to the High School on West Ninth street, and many alterations and improvements to Muhlenberg Hospital, at a cost of $20,000.

The building outlook along the construction lines in this city is exceptionally bright, although the best portion of the building season is over. An early awarding of the contracts for the work on the proposed Evergreen Avenue School is to be desired on all sides, as it would tend to give employment to many of the local craftsmen who will otherwise be out of work during the winter months. Under any circumstances, at least fifty per cent. of men to be employed on that structure will be local mechanics. The improvements at Muhlenberg Hospital will care for a number of men for some time into the fall. The extensive alterations and improvements at the Astor Theatre are giving employment to a small army of men of the various crafts. The work on this building is expected to be completed by November 1, or shortly after.

From present indications, the spring of 1915 will bring with it a resumption of normal construction conditions in this city. Bids for the proposed new postoffice on Watchung avenue are expected to be advertised for shortly after the first of the year. This building alone, it is believed, will be the means of giving many local men employment. The number of new stores in the immediate vicinity of the postoffice site on Watchung avenue cannot be estimated at this time, although there is no doubt in the minds of those who are in a position to judge, that a large number of new buildings will be erected in that neighborhood as soon as work on the government building is set in motion. This condition will be due to the fact that a greater or less amount of business follows a public building of this nature, and business buildings will be necessary in the eastern end of the business section of the city.

As noted in another column, the action of the Bosch Magneto Company in buying an additional 190 front feet of property on South avenue, apparently for building purposes, operations in the Second ward will be greater in the near future than it has been for some time in the immediate past. Together with these things, it should be kept in mind that a business revival means the erection of a new Y. M. C. A. building at East Fifth street and Watchung avenue, extensive improvements at Hope chapel, a new edifice for the Netherwood Reformed church, and many dwellings to care for the additional force of men which it is expected the Bosch concern will add to its pay roll within a comparatively short time. An open fall and winter would undoubtedly help several of these movements to an early realization. Aside from the Evergreen Avenue School, another building which will interest local mechanics is the proposed sewerage disposal plant to be erected at the Darling farm, for which bids are to be opened at the session of the Joint Sewer Commission to be held Wednesday evening.

Undoubtedly, there are a number of dwellings and business buildings of various types which have not materialized during the past season, because of the money market, which would be a part of the building program of another season should the expected business revival arrive, as, no doubt, will be the case.

The tables below indicate the amounts of money expended for buildings and improvements for which permits have been granted during the first nine months of the present year, and the figures for the same period of time in 1913.

JUST NOTES

During the week ending last Saturday, four plans for new buildings were approved by the State Board of Tenement House Supervisors, the plans calling for the expenditure of $53,000. During the same week, three plans for alterations of buildings were approved, calling for the expenditure of $3,600.

Absence of banking connections between South America and New York continues to be the retarding factor in the establishment of basic building material trade between the two continents. Despite reports to the contrary, ships suitable for carrying building materials like lime and cement into South America are not yet available. In the meantime, however, sales managers are pushing into South America and some material is actually going down there, especially cement.

In view of the consideration and investigation of appraisal systems by the Real Estate Board a few months ago, the statement made by M. K. Clark, in a recent issue of the New York Tribune, will be interesting to local brokers. In New York, they have adopted the Somers or unit system, which is now in effect in more than thirty cities. Concerning this subject, Mr. Clark has the following to say:

"The time has passed when the appraiser can expect to submit an expression of his opinion of property value based merely upon the record of a few sales and depth rules entirely at variance with existing facts and conditions. What is required of the appraiser today is an expression of judgment based upon methods which more closely measure up to present day requirements. In an attempt to follow the demand of buyers and lenders in this regard some experts have called into use antiquated rules, on the theory that any system is better than no system at all.

"Some appraisers believe that they have a system when they possess a fine set of maps and a complicated card index in their offices. These handy and useful tools are mistakenly looked upon as valuation systems. Other appraisers think that when they have arrived at a plan of adding twenty-five per cent. to the value of inside lots to obtain the value of a corner lot in the same block they have a system. Others believe that when they have worked out a 'curve of value' for inside lots they have done all that is necessary to systematize the land valuation affected. Some take the 4-3-2-1 rule and work it to death as their system."

Among the contracts for new buildings filed this week with County Clerk Calvert was that between the Elizabeth Board of Education and Edward M. Waldron, Inc., for building the new Lincoln School at Grove and Murray streets. The work is to be completed in ten months. The contract price for the school is $72,412.

ANOTHER TRACT OF LAND PURCHASED

Bosch-Magneto Company Add 190 Feet to Its Present Site.

The most important real estate deal in this city since spring was made public this week, when it was announced that the Bosch Magneto Company, which bought the Rushmore Dynamo Company plant a short time ago, had purchased 190 feet of property on the southeast side of South avenue, just west of Berckman street, from William S. Nelson, et al. The purchase price has not been made known. The deed covering the transfer has been recorded at Elizabeth.

This is the second large piece of property the manufacturing concern has purchased since locating in this city, having bought a tract from Daniel F. Dugan, which had a frontage on South avenue of 563 feet, and a frontage of 200 feet on East Sixth street. They also purchased the property on Berckman street, on which was located the foundry of the Manufacturers' Brass Company. When the Bosch Company first came to this city, it was stated by those in a position to speak with authority, that the concern expected to increase the force at the plant to such an extent that close to 1,000 men would be on the pay rolls.

To accommodate that number of men, it would be necessary to have constructed a number of new buildings, among which would be another wing on the present shop on the northwestern side of South avenue, as well as buildings on the properties to be acquired. With the 753 front feet of property secured on South avenue, it is believed that new buildings will be forthcoming in the near future or the early spring.

With the erection of the new shops for the Bosch Company, and the employment of a large addition force of men in the machine shops of that concern, the erection of a number of dwellings in the East End appears to be necessary. While a number of houses about the city are vacant at the present time, the majority of these are unsuitable to meet the requirements of the average working man.

With the construction of the new shops, the East End of the city should experience both a real estate and building boom which would be far beyond the expectations of even the most optimistic a few months ago. While the East End has had an unprecedented growth during the course of the past five years, this addition to that section of the city will undoubtedly mean the improvement of many of the vacant lots in that vicinity at the present time.

MANY FIRES DUE TO DEFECTIVE FLUES

It is a sad commentary on American methods of building, American laws concerning building and the American habit of carelessness that defective flues should be responsible for twice as many fires as any other known cause. It is estimated that 13 per cent. of the total number of fires annually can be attributed to defective flues, with an average property loss of about $12,000,000.

The destruction of a cotton compress in Mississippi, with a loss of over $300,000, was due to a little brick unedged flue through the cracks of which sparks spread to the property. The money lost in this fire would have paid for the removal and rebuilding of every bad flue in the State of Mississippi. Carlessness in the construction of flues has become so general in the South that the insurance companies have been forced to penalize dwellings with improperly constructed flues. In most of the States the charge is 35 cents for each defective flue in the dwelling. It is hoped that this increase will call the attention of property owners to the hazard and lead to its correction, and in the meantime the companies are reimbursed for the risks they run by an increased rate.

REALTY TRANSFERS.

The following realty transfers from this end of the county have been recorded with the county register at Elizabeth: Samuel F. Randolph et ux. to Thomas J. Maher, northerly side South End avenue, corner Florence avenue, Plainfield, $1; William S. Nelson et ux. to Bosch Magneto Co., southeasterly side South avenue, 190 feet southwesterly of Berckman street, Plainfield, $1; Bertha M. Haas to Irma L. Jones, Springfield avenue, 250 feet of Muir estate, New Providence, $1; Louise Hann to Martha L. Griffins, northeasterly side line of Harrison avenue, 650 feet northwesterly of Broad street, Westfield, $1; Mountain View Heights Realty Company to Asa F. Randolph, lots 5-39, block 5, Mountain View map, Plainfield, $1; George B. Webb to Louise Hann, northwesterly line of Dudley avenue, easterly corner of lands of Charles G. Endicott, Westfield, $1; Anna M. Waldron to Charles F. Hopewell, southeasterly side line of La Grande avenue, 200 feet northeasterly of Richmond street, Plainfield, $1; Edward S. F. Randolph to Walter S. Morson, northeatserly side of Lenox avenue, 121.06 feet southwesterly from Chestnut street, Westfield, $1.

SEPTEMBER BEST MONTH OF YEAR

Building of New School Means Employment to Many Plainfield Mechanics.

September proved to be a fitting climax to what appears to have been a fairly successful season in the local building world. While the conditions in this city have been far from normal, they have been somewhat better in many respects than several other municipalities.

A number of permits were issued during the month just closed by Inspector T. O. Doane, among which were those covering the alteration to the Astor Theatre on West Front street at a cost of $16,000, and the proposed new school building on Evergreen avenue at an approximate cost of $80,000. The contracts on the latter building have not, as yet, been awarded, but bids for the work have been received by the Board of Education, and contracts are expected to be let shortly. These permits, coming as they do, at this time, means a great deal to local craftsmen, as many of the local men will be kept busy some time after the dull season for building sets in.

It will be noticed in the table below that no permits were issued for either new buildings or alterations in the First ward, during the month, while the Second ward leads to the estimated aggregate value of new buildings and improvements. The following table compares the local building operations of September with the same month of last year:

1914.	New Bldgs.	Alterations.	Tls.
1st Wd.	.....	.....	.....
2d Wd.	$ 84,450	$ 315	$ 84,765
3d Wd.	15,025	.....	15,025
4th W.	9,100	17,600	26,700
Totals	$108,575	$ 17,915	$126,490

1913.	New Bldgs.	Alterations.	Tls.
1st W.	$ 12,025	.....	$ 12,025
2d W.	11,075	1,610	12,685
3d W.	5,500	.....	5,500
4th Wd.	11,455	.....	11,455
Totals	$ 40,055	$ 1,610	$ 41,665

The record for the past month is the best thus far for the current year.

MANY CONTRACTS FILED AT ELIZABETH

They Call for a Total Expenditure of More Than $128,077.

Thirty-seven building contracts calling for the expenditure of $127,077 were filed at the offices of County Clerk James C. Calvert during the two weeks ending September 26, and contractors are thereby greatly encouraged at the outlook for continued work for some time into the cold months when building operations, as a general rule, are at a standstill. The contracts cover all descriptions of work in various parts of the county, and indicate that operations in building lines will not slow down for some little time. Of these permits, several cover work yet to be accomplished at the new Westfield schools, $37,230 being named as the total of the amounts to be expended.

New schoolhouses which are continually being erected, in various parts of the county have been the means of keeping a number of the craftsmen busy during the past year while a number of others, not as yet started, are now in view. Among these are the Evergreen Avenue School in this city, one at Rosele Park, one at Summit, one at Grove and Murray streets, Elizabeth, at a cost of $72,412, and one on Ripley place, same city, to cost $45,928. Further school facilities in Elizabeth are needed, and futher buildings in that city are anticipated in the near future.

Building contracts from this end of the county which have been filed with the county clerk at Elizabeth are as follows:

Michael F. Watson with Charles E. Drake, entire work new building, West Second street, Plainfield, $4,850; J. Anderson Phan with Robert Byrne, entire work new building, Westfield, $4,900; Maud A. Huntzman with William H. Pope, electric work new building, Plainfield, $372; Board of Education with Detroit Steel Co., sash work new building, Elm street, Westfield, $1,700; same with John L. Miller, plumbing work, $4,131.95; same with Lithie Construction Co., mason work, $15,752; same with Walter H. Storm Co., roofing work, $400; same with H. Russell Co., painting work, $972; same with J. F. Hughes Co., electric work, $3,343; Arthur E. Taylor with Goltra & Cox, entire work new building, St. Paul street, Westfield, $3,500; Board of Education with J. Friedman, blackboard and frame work new building, Walnut street, Westfield, $1,091; same with Frederick Fass, heating work, $9,740; H. G. Haan with J. Moffett & Son, entire work new building, North avenue, Fanwood, $4,975.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Dawn of Love.

ABOUT 11 Karenin had his midday meal, and afterward he slept among his artificial furs and pillows for two hours. Then he awoke, and some tea was brought to him, and he attended to a small difficulty in connection with the Moravian schools in the Labrador country and in Greenland that Gardener knew would interest him. He remained alone for a little while after that, and then the two women came to him again. Afterward Edwards and Kahn joined the group, and the talk fell upon love and the place of women in the renascent world. The cloud banks of India lay under a quivering haze, and the blaze of the sun fell full upon the eastward precipices. Ever and again as they talked some vast splinter of rock would crack and come away from these or a wild rush of snow and ice and stone pour down in thunder, hang like a wet thread into the gulfs below and cease.

For a time Karenin said very little, and Kahn, the popular poet, talked of passionate love. He said that passionate personal love had been the abiding desire of humanity since ever humanity had begun, and now only was it becoming a possible experience. It had been a dream that generation after generation had pursued, that always men had lost on the verge of attainment. To most of those who had sought it obstinately it had brought tragedy. Now, lifted above sordid distresses, men and women might hope for realized and triumphant love. This age was the dawn of love.

Karenin remained downcast and thoughtful while Kahn said these things. Against that continued silence Kahn's voice presently seemed to beat and fall. He had begun by addressing Karenin, but presently he was including Edith Haydon and Rachel Borken in his appeal. Rachel listened silently; Edith watched Karenin and very deliberately avoided Kahn's eyes.

"I know," said Karenin at last, "that many people are saying this sort of thing. I know that there is a vast release of lovemaking in the world. This great wave of decoration and elaboration that has gone about the world, this efflorescence, has, of course, laid hold of that. I know that when you say that the world is set free you interpret that to mean that the world is set free for lovemaking. Down there under the clouds the lovers foregather. I know your songs, Kahn, your half mystical songs in which you represent this old, hard world dissolving into a luminous haze of love. Furthermore, I don't think you are right or true in that. You are a young, imaginative man, and you see life—ardently—with the eyes of youth. But the power that has brought man into these high places under this blue veiled blackness of the sky and which beckons us on toward the immense and awful future of our race, is riper and deeper and greater than any such emotions.

"All through my life—it has been a necessary part of my work—I have had to think of this great release of love and the riddles that perfect freedom and almost limitless power will put to the soul of our race. I can see now all over the world a beautiful ecstasy of waste, 'Let us sing and rejoice and be lovely and wonderful!' The orgy is only beginning, Kahn. It was inevitable. But it is not the end of mankind.

"Think what we are. It is but a yesterday in the endlessness of time that life was a dreaming thing, dreaming so deeply that it forgot itself as it dreamed, its lives, its individual instincts, its moments were born and wondered and played and hungered and grew weary and died. Incalculable successions of visions, visions of sunlit jungle, river wilderness, wild forests, eager desire, beating hearts, soaring wings and creeping terror flamed hotly, and then were as though they had never been. Life was an uneasiness across which lights played and vanished. And then we came, man came, and opened eyes that were a question and hands that were a demand and began a mind and memory that dies not when men die, but lives and increases forever, an overmind, a dominating will, a question and an aspiration that reaches to the stars. Hunger and fear and this that you make so much of, this sex, are but the elementals of life out of which we have arisen. All these elementals, I grant you, have to be provided for, dealt with, satisfied, but all these things have to be left behind."

"But love," said Kahn.

Karenin shook his head. "You cannot stay at the roots and climb the tree," he said.

"No," he said after a pause, "this love story is just a part of growing up, and we grow out of it. So far literature and art and sentiment and all our emotional forms have been almost altogether adolescent; plays and stories, delights and hopes, they have all turned on that marvelous discovery of the love interest, but life lengthens out now, and the mind of adult humanity detaches itself. Poets, who used to die at thirty, live now to eighty-five. You, too, Kahn! There are endless years yet for you—and all full of learning. We carry an excessive burthen of sex tradition at present, and we have to free ourselves from it. We do free ourselves from it. We have learnt in a thousand different ways to hold back death, and this sex, which in the old barbaric days was just sufficient to balance our dying, is now like a hammer that has lost its anvil—it plunges through human life. You poets, you young people, want to turn it to delight. Turn it to delight. That may be one way out. In a little while, if you have any brains worth thinking about, you will be satisfied, and then you will come up here to the greater things. The old religions and their new offsets want still, I see, to suppress all these things. Let them suppress, if they can suppress, in their own people. Either road will bring you here at last to the eternal search for knowledge and the great adventure of power."

"But incidentally," said Rachel Borken, "incidentally you have half of humanity, you have womankind, very much specialized for—for this love and reproduction that is so much less needed than it was."

"Both sexes are specialized for love and reproduction," said Karenin.

"And surely," said Kahn, "when you speak of love as a phase isn't it a necessary phase? Without that stir, without that impulse to go out from ourselves, to be reckless of ourselves and wonderful, would our lives be anything more than the contentment of the stalled ox?"

"The key that opens the door," said Karenin, "is not the goal of the journey."

"But women!" cried Rachel. "Here we are! What is our future—as women? Is it only that we have unlocked the doors of the imagination for you men? Let us speak of this question now. It is a thing constantly in my thoughts, Karenin. What do you think of us? You who must have thought so much of these perplexities."

Karenin seemed to weigh his words. He spoke very deliberately. "I do not care a rap about your future—as women. I do not care a rap about the future of men—as males. I want to destroy these peculiar futures. I care for your future as intelligences, as parts of and contributions to the universal mind of the race. Humanity is not only naturally overspecialized in these matters, but all its institutions, its customs, everything, exaggerate, intensify this difference. I want to unspecialize women. No new idea. Plato wanted exactly that. I do not want to go on as we go now, emphasizing this natural difference. I do not deny it, but I want to reduce it and overcome it."

"And we remain women," said Rachel Borken.

"Need you remain thinking of yourselves as women?"

"It is forced upon us," said Edith Haydon.

"I do not think a woman becomes less of a woman, because she dresses and works like a man," said Edwards. "You women here—I mean you scientific women—wear white clothing like the men, twist up your hair in the simplest fashion, go about your work as though there was only one sex in the world. You are just as much women, even if you are not so feminine as the fine ladies down below there in the plains, who dress for excitement and display, whose only thoughts are of lovers, who exaggerate every difference. Indeed, we love you more."

"But we go about our work," said Edith Haydon.

"So does it matter?" asked Rachel.

"If you go about your work and if the men go about their work, then for heaven's sake be as much woman as you wish," said Karenin. "When I ask you to unspecialize I am thinking not of the abolition of sex, but the abolition of the irksome, restricting, obstructive obsession with sex. It may be true that sex made society, that the first society was the sex cemented family, the first state a confederacy of blood relations, the first laws sexual taboos. Up to within a few years of us the chief interest and motive of an ordinary man was to keep and rule a woman and her children, and the chief concern of a woman was to get a man to do that. That was the drama, that was life. And the jealousy of these demands was the master motive in the world. All that may have been necessary, but it is necessary no longer. All that has changed and changes still very swiftly. Your future, Rachel, as women, is a diminishing future."

"Karenin," asked Rachel, "do you mean that women are to become men?"

"Men and women have to become human beings."

"You would abolish women? But, Karenin, listen! There is more than sex in this. Apart from sex we are different from you. We take up life differently. Forget we are—females, Karenin, and still we are a different sort of human being with a different use. In some things we are amazingly secondary. Here am I in this place because of my trick of management, and Edith is here because of her patient, subtle hands. That does not alter the fact that nearly the whole body of science is man made; that does not alter the fact that men do so predominatingly make history, that you could nearly write a complete history of the world without mentioning a woman's name. And, on the other hand, we have a gift of devotion, of inspiration, a distinctive power for truly loving beautiful things, a care for life and a peculiar, keen, close eye for behavior. You know men are blind beside us in these last matters. You know they are restless—and diffuse. We have a steadfastness. We may never draw the broad outlines nor discover the new paths, but in the future isn't there a confirming and sustaining and supplying role for us? As important, perhaps, as yours? Equally important. We hold the world up, Karenin, though you may have raised it."

"You know very well, Rachel, that I believe as you believe. I am not thinking of the abolition of woman. But I do went to abolish the woman whose support is jealousy and whose gift possession. I want to abolish the woman who can be won as a prize or locked up as a delicious treasure. And away down there the heroine flares like a divinity."

"In America," said Edwards, "men are fighting duels over the praises of women and holding tournaments before queens of beauty."

"I saw a beautiful girl in Lahore," said Kahn. "She sat under a golden canopy like a goddess, and three fine men, armed and dressed like the ancient paintings, sat on steps below her to show their devotion, and they wanted only her permission to fight for her."

"That is the men's doings," said Edith Haydon.

"There is no evil between men and women that is not a common evil," said Karenin. "It is you poets, Kahn, with your love songs which turn the sweet fellowship of comrades into this woman centered excitement. But there is something in women, in many women, which responds to these provocations. They succumb to a peculiarly self cultivating egotism. They become the subjects of their own artistry. They develop and elaborate themselves as scarcely any man would ever do. They look for golden canopies. And even when they seem to react against that they may do it still. I have been reading in the old papers of the movements to emancipate women that were going on before the discovery of atomic force. These things, which began with a desire to escape from the limitations and servitude of sex, ended in an inflamed assertion of sex, and women more heroines than ever. Helen of Holloway was at last as big a nuisance in her way as Helen of Troy, and so long as you think of yourselves as women"—he held out a finger at Rachel and smiled gently—"instead of thinking of yourselves as intelligent beings, you will be in danger of—Heleuism. To think of yourselves as women is to think of yourselves in relation to men. You can't escape that consequence. You have to learn to think of yourselves—for our sakes and your own sakes—in relation to the sun and stars. You have to cease to be our adventure, Rachel, and come with us upon our adventures."

He waved his hand toward the dark sky above the mountain crests.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHAT TO HAVE FOR BREAKFAST.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Fruit.
Muffins.
Fried Tomatoes.
Hashed Brown Potatoes.
Baked Eggs.
Coffee

WHEN vegetables are plentiful the wise housewife will find them not only a useful but a wholesome addition to the breakfast bill of fare. They are featured in this menu.

Breakfast Muffins.—Take half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, dissolve it in a tablespoonful of warm water and add it to a half pint of thick sour milk. Separate two eggs; beat the yolks, add the sour milk and stir in quickly one and a half cupfuls of flour and a half teaspoonful of salt; beat and fold in the well beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a quick oven.

Fried Tomatoes.—Take four large tomatoes, wash and wipe and cut each one into three slices. Season with one even teaspoonful of salt, one-half even teaspoonful of pepper, dust over with flour, dip each slice separately into beaten egg and cover with grated breadcrumbs. Place a large frying pan with one heaping tablespoonful of lard, or dripping over the fire; when hot put in as many of the tomato slices as will go in; fry a light brown on both sides.

Hashed Brown Potatoes.—Take two cupfuls of cold potatoes, chop and season with onion juice, salt and pepper and turn into a well greased frying pan. Add one-quarter cupful of milk and cook without stirring for ten minutes. Fold and roll like an omelet on a hot platter when ready to serve.

Baked Eggs.—Make a cupful of white sauce, and when it is thick and smooth add to it four tablespoonfuls of grated cheese. Stir until this is melted, and then pour a quarter of it into a buttered baking cup and thus fill four cups. Into each one of these break an egg, sprinkle with salt and pepper and put into the oven until the eggs are set. Sprinkle a little minced parsley over the top and serve at once.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Jimsy, the Champion Rat Catcher.

Jimsy Got on His Hind Feet and Pranced About.

"I HEARD about a dog today that is champion rat catcher in the state, best rat catcher ever," said daddy, with a twinkle in his eyes.

The children snuggled down beside their father on the settee.

"How many did he catch, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"I'll tell you about it. Jimsy is a rat terrier owned by Mr. Brown, and he was bragging today about Jimsy's prowess.

"Mr. Brown and I were sitting in the hotel lobby talking about war and politics and a thousand and one things. Jimsy was with us.

"He is a cunning little dog, with the brightest eyes peering out from under his shaggy mane. Every time his owner would say anything complimentary he would cock his head on one side.

"Mr. Brown was telling about what Jimsy's former owner had told him about Jimsy's rat catching. Jimsy lay very quietly, his nose between his paws. 'Why,' said Mr. Brown, 'they say that a rat can't come within ten feet of Jimsy!'

"Just then a big gray rat ran across the hotel rotunda floor, skipped between the feet of a bellboy and ran straight toward us. Of course we expected to see a lively chase of the rat by Jimsy and a final capture.

"Jimsy didn't move. The gray rat ran right across his nose and scuttled away out of the side door. Jimsy leisurely arose, stretched himself, lazily licked his little chops and turned around and around and snuggled down to take a nap.

"'Jimsy is some rat catcher,' I said. And Mr. Brown looked at the little doggie and grinned. 'Well,' he said, 'if he can't catch rats he can sit up and beg and walk on his hind feet.'

"'Let's see him do it,' I said.

"Mr. Brown reached down and shook up Jimsy and then stood him on his feet. 'Now, Jimsy, sit up and beg,' said Mr. Brown.

"Did you ever see a dog laugh? Jimsy laughed. He just sat there and ran out his little pink tongue and rolled his funny eyes and wouldn't budge.

"Mr. Brown coaxed, then he threatened, then he lightly boxed that little dog's ears. But no matter what he did Jimsy refused to show any of his tricks. 'Well,' said Mr. Brown at last, 'we like Jimsy just because he is a cute, bright little doggie.' And then, would you believe it, Jimsy got up on his hind feet and pranced about as cunning as you please, then sat down before us and begged.

"All the men in the hotel lobby gathered about to watch Jimsy, and one of the bellboys brought him some lumps of sugar."

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

This coat in cape effect is not alone one of the smartest possible; it is also a real boon to the home dressmaker.

The raglan sleeves mean that absolutely no fitting is required, and the short little cape covers the seams.

The model will be found a good one for all seasonable suitings, but in this case it is made from one of the new crape moire bengalines with trimming of velvet.

Broadcloth, gabardine and the like can be used quite as well as the fancy silks.

For the medium size the coat will require four and five-eighths yards of material twenty-seven inches wide, with three-eighths yard twenty-seven inches wide for the collar and nineteen yards of banding.

This May Manton pattern is cut in three sizes—small 34 or 36, medium 38 or 40, large 42 or 44 inches waist measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 8962, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Miss Jane Addams declares there are no anti-suffragists in Illinois! There are, however, 467,000 women of voting age in Chicago alone who refuse to go to the polls in spite of all the urging the Suffragists can do. These 467,000 are however, all counted as Suffragists!

The Chicago papers before and after the recent primaries make very entertaining reading. The day before they say: "Suffragists estimate between 100,000 and 125,000 women will vote tomorrow, double the number in the February primaries." Miss Margaret Dobyne, of the Illinois Equal Suffrage League Association, declared 125,0000 a safe estimate. "We have concluded that it is the duty of the women of Chicago to help the men select the best candidates," she said. Last February 47,527 voted at the primaries. The Democratic woman vote in the spring was 33,581. Mrs. Joanna E. Downes, president of the Illionis Women's Democratic League, estimates it will be almost double that tomorrow.

"We are better organized," she said.

The Republican women voters numbered 10,000 last spring. Double that vote is predicted tomorrow.

The Progressive showing last spring was 3,297 women. Miss Harriet Vittum expects an increase. Mrs. Martha Abt declared the Progressive women would vote in full force tomorrow.

The Woman's City Club has urged its members to vote at the primaries.

But alas for the prophets! There is a slight discrepancy of more than 75,000 between their hopes and the real figures. Of the 517,000 women of voting age in Chicago less than 50,000 voted. Newspaper comment is as follows:

Political observers, men and women, were stunned yesterday by the surprisingly small vote cast by women.

The vote of women played almost no part in yesterday's election. The small vote cast by them surprised men and women political observers alike.

In many precincts only one woman voted. In numerous others an extremely few women were out.

Reports up to noon from every precincit in Chicago was of a surprisingly small vote by the women. During the afternoon the women came forth in small numbers. Machines went into even the "pockets" of the wards and brought forth straggling lines of women.

The vote throughout the State was light. Less than 100 women went to the polls in the sixteenth district, according to word from Peoria.

Hundreds of women had been given special commissions to visit the various wards of the city, and every suffrage leader was traveling from one ward to another all day long, among them Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association; Miss Margaret Dobyne, Miss Harriet E. Vittum, Mrs. Harriet Taylor Treadwell and Mrs. Joanna E. Downes.

We are now hearing from the Suffragists many plausibly concocted reasons as to why 467,000 women, or more than 9 out of 10, failed to vote. But isn't it barely possible that the antis are right when they assert that the great majority of women do not want to vote?

The American Red Cross, has received from Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, a check for $3,200 for use in war relief work, which was collected by the Anti-Suffrage Association. Mrs. Dodge writes: "I hope to have many thousands to send you in the near future."

The New York Times quotes a "prominent Suffragist" as saying. "Now that we have this war trouble it is a splendid thing that we have the melting pot started. All the women who won't be able to get any money for suffrage from their husbands can do their part by giving their personal treasures, and we must have the $50,000, no matter how many European countries are at war."

Is it going to cost $50,000 to convince the people of the Western campaign States that they want woman suffrage, according to the computations of the Suffragists? It will cost $20,000, they estimate, to defeat the Congressmen on their "black list."

Apropos of the Suffragists' avowed intention to prevent Senator Root's re-election, the Sioux Falls Leader says:

It is declared that in Colorado practically every man of ability and real leadership has been driven out of public life and their places have been taken with a lot of cheap politicians who flatter the women and endorse and support without question whatever the women ask for without regard to its likelihood of really bettering conditions. Is the same sort of thing to be now undertaken in the larger field of national politics. Are men to be chosen for public place, not with regard to their qualities of leadership, but solely with respect to their views on suffrage? If a man cannot believe that the adoption of suffrage would be a good thing for the country is he to be driven out of public life to be displaced by a man of smaller calibre who is willing to profess to believe a lot of things in order to get the votes? And is it really expected to uplift politics in this way?

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, head of the National American Red Cross Society, visited the headquarters of the Public Interests League of the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association at 685 Boylan street, which is also headquarters for the Red Cross relief work, on Tuesday of last week.

To the 40 or more volunteer workers present she outlined the great work undertaken by the American Red Cross people and expressed appreciation of the part Massachusetts is taking in raising funds and making garments.

Offers of aid are pouring into headquarters and the office force is kept busy sending out patterns and directions to the many inquirers. Already 100 towns have written for material and directions for organization, and the garments as soon as completed will be forwarded to the league for transmission to Red Cross headquarters.

CHURCHES OFFER PEACE PRAYERS

Special Sermons and Large Attendances Feature Observances.

PASTORS DISCUSS WAR

All Creeds Unite in Endorsing President's Proclamation—Prayers for the Restoration of Peace in Nations at War.

President Wilson's proclamation setting aside yesterday as "Peace day" in the nation's churches met a unanimous response in the local ecclesiastical institutions, the special services and sermons being largely attended in each case. People of all denominations united in offering prayer for the restoration of peace in the warring nations and in several instances special offerings were made for the promotion of the Red Cross work in the stricken districts. Sermons portraying the distressing conditions in the afflicted countries typified the observance.

By a coincident "Peace Day" fell on the date set by several local churches for special events, the Roman Catholic faith celebrating one of its greatest feasts, known as the Feast of the Holy Rosary. Rally Day services were also conducted in three instances.

In one of the most able addresses ever heard in a local pulpit, Rev. Stanley White, of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, made Peace Sunday one that will long be remembered by those who heard him in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday morning. Stating that the circumstances under which the service was held were both solemn and inspiring, Dr. White reviewed briefly the effect of the war upon all of the nations of the world, and especially upon the United States, saying that "God by the heat of strife and the sledge-hammer blows of adversity was welding the world into solidarity." The speaker read President Wilson's proclamation calling for the observance of the day of prayer.

His first suggestion for carrying out the President's wishes was that we "maintain that attitude of mind and heart which shall rescue our prayers from formalism and the mere repetition of phases. There will be many people who will question the effectiveness of this however. They will find a real difficulty in appreciating how men kneeling at prayers in America can affect men kneeling in trenches in France and Germany. How, they say, can our petition bend the iron wills of kings and emperors and turn their determination to fight to the death into thoughts of peace? It is important then, that at the very outset we fortify our faith for the great strain we are to put upon it. We will do this by reminding ourselves of the centre upon which our prayers are to be focussed. We are not pleading with the leaders of strife to yield their wills to our petitions, but with God to work his will among the nations.

"It goes without saying that God wants the nations to stop fighting far more than we do. It is even more true that His desire for peace is based on a much more worthy motive than ours is apt to be. We would stop the terrible waste of men and money; we would restore commercial tranquility; we would see the avenues of trade re-opened, industry revived and the pursuit of pleasure and peace made possible. For these things it is right that we should pray. We know that God is in sympathy with such petitions but we must not forget that while man looked upon the outward appearance, God looketh upon the heart and that while we deal with the surface, He deals with the depths of the world's need.

"God knows the poisoned factors that have entered into the problem and resulted in this war. He knows where the principles of righteousness have been violated in laying national foundations. He knows the defective theories of government that are now manifesting their fruitage. He is cognizant of the presence of pride and power and selfishness, and He will not be content to patch up a peace that deals only with surface wounds.

"Our primary duty therefor is to turn our thoughts Godward, to pray for vision and a knowledge of His desire, and for that humility and submission which shall make our prayers for peace contingent upon its being accomplished consistently with His will. It is more important how we pray than what we say. Let us try then to so rest our confidence in God that with Faith unwavering we shall pray for peace in His own time and in accord with His holy will."

Another way in which such observance as that of yesterday can be made effective in behalf of the nations of the earth, according to Dr. White, is by bringing ourselves to a realization that true prayer must always prolong itself in conduct. He

BIKE THIEF CAUGHT WITH STOLEN WHEEL

Plainfielder's Bicycle Recovered by Westfield Authorities Saturday.

David Carbona, an Italian, who says he lives in Jamaica, L. I., was arrested by the police of Westfield, Saturday afternoon, while attempting to dispose of a bicycle to a dealer in that place for $6. His actions aroused the suspicions of the proprietor of the store where he made application and he was turned over to the police. He told conflicting tales, which led the authorities of that place to communicate with Sergeant Higgins, of this city.

Previous to the Westfield communication, Higgins had received a report from Harry Christianson, who is employed by Paul R. Collier, the local sporting goods merchant, stating that his bicycle had been stolen from in front of the store on East Front street. The description of the stolen wheel tallied with the one in the possession of the Westfield police and Christianson went to that place and identified it as his.

Carbona was brought to Plainfield, and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, charged with larceny, he was held in $300 bail for the Grand Jury. It is the supposition of the local authorities that Carbona has previously been under arrest in other places for criminal acts. He said he came here on a freight train from Scranton, Pa., Saturday, and among the places he has visited lately are Somerville, Elizabeth and various point in Staten Island.

BUSY KNITTING SOCKS FOR BRITISH SOLDIERS

A number of women of British birth in this city are busy at present knitting pairs of socks for the use of the soldiers of their native land engaged in war. Subscriptions for the socks are being cared for by a committee composed of Mrs. Donald McInnes, Mrs. Thomas Hendry and Mrs. William Ross. The knitted socks will undoubtedly be sent through the Red Cross Society. Considerable interest is being shown in this movement by the women. A previous notice appearing in the Daily Press found its way into the hands of an elderly woman in one of the Newark hospitals, and the local committee received a contribution of $1 as a result.

WILL MEET TO TALK OVER CAMPAIGN PLANS

LeRoy J. Ellis, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, has issued notices for an adjourned meeting to be held at the rooms of the Plainfield Democratic Club, tomorrow night, for the purpose of completing the organization of the committee and perfecting plans for the active campaign. The notice also adds:

"And it is hoped that pre-primary prejudices and preferences will be forgotten and that we may work as a unit earnestly and harmoniously for the election of every nominee of the party, as loyal soldiers in a good cause. This is plainly our duty as Democrats. Let us make it our pleasure."

RUMMAGE SALE.

The Band of Workers of Trinity Reformed Bible School are planning to hold a rummage sale in the Depew building, Park and North avenues, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 14, 15, 16 and 17. Those desiring to make contributions may notify any of the members of the class, and the goods will be called for either October 12 or 13. The proceeds will be used for the church debt.

BOARD OF TRADE TO MEET.

The local Board of Trade will hold its first meeting of the fall tomorrow evening, in Exempt Firemen's Hall on Park avenue. As this is the first regular session of the organization since last spring, it is expected that many important question will be presented to the gathering for consideration.

RALLY AND RECEPTION.

The annual rally and reception for the fall opening of the Y. W. C. A., will be held in the association parlors on Thursday. At that time the registration of members will take place and there has also been a social program arranged for the occasion.

LINEN "SHOWER."

Miss Edith J. Ayers was given a linen "shower" at the home of her sister, Mrs. Z. Ballantyne Hamilton, of East Second street, Saturday afternoon.

SMALL BOYS ENGAGE IN STABBING AFFAIR

Game of Marbles Nearly Results Seriously for Alleged "Bully."

Boyish rivalry resulting from a game of marbles, came near resulting disastrously for sixteen-year-old Harry Barton, Saturday afternoon, when his opponent in the game, Arthur Mathews, attempted to stab him, but succeeded only in inflicting a flesh wound. The youths had been playing the game for some time when an argument arose and Mathews drew a penknife from his trouser pocket.

A scuffle ensued and the weapon dropped to the ground, Barton picking it up. In the contest that ensued Mathews succeeded in wresting the knife from his companion and lunged the open blade at him. A lucky turn on the part of Barton saved him from fatal injury and as it was he received a cut on the arm near the shoulder.

Arraigned in the city court, this morning, Mathews laid the blame for the affair on his victim. Barton, although the same age as Mathews, is much larger and is generally conceded to be a "bully" among the youths of the West End. In disposing of the case, Judge DeMeza severely admonished the youths for the escapade and charged Barton with the responsibility for the encounter. Both have been in the police toils before and Mathews' father was in court, this morning, requesting Judge DeMeza to do something with his son. The youth was penitent in court and promised to do better if given another opportunity. Barton was placed in the custody of the probation officer.

WANT CLOTHING AND OLD FURNITURE FOR SALE

Members of Silver Cross Circle, King's Daughters, will hold a rummage sale for the benefit of the Day Nursery, on Friday and Saturday of this week. The sale will be held in the store formerly occupied by Miss Denton's flower shop, on Park avenue, next to the Public Service office. Up to the present time the young women in charge of the arrangements have not received as many articles as they hoped for, and anyone wishing to contribute to the sale can advise Mrs. L. D. Albin, 821 Second place, who will send a wagon on Wednesday to gather up the goods. Old clothing and furniture are especially wanted.

MORE GIFTS RECEIVED FOR BELGIAN RELIEF FUND

More interest is being manifested each day in the fund for the relief of the Belgian women and children, who have been the worst sufferers in the great war raging abroad. Two more contributions of $1 each were received for the cause by the Daily Press since Saturday, and it is hoped that many more will come in daily. As has been told, all of the money received by the local relief committee, or sent to the Daily Press, is to be used to alleviate the sufferings of the women and children who have been made homeless, and in many cases deprived of their breadwinner, since the war broke out.

The two contributions received today were from a Friend and Ada G. Marsh. All money received by the Press is to be sent to the Belgian Relief Committee in New York.

SERIES OF ADDRESSES.

Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, has in preparation a series of addresses on the general subject of "Working Men and the Church," the first of which is to be delivered Sunday evening, October 18. The addresses will discuss, in a popular way, questions that are in the minds of all thinking men, both within and without the church. The sub-topics as announced are as follows: October 18, "The Unrest of Men;" October 25, "Men and the Church;" November 8, "Men and Human Brotherhood;" November 15, "Men and Personal Contact."

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

During "Peace Week," beginning October 4, designated as such by President Wilson, Charles M. Suhr and his orchestra at The Plainfield Theatre will feature Ernest R. Ball's latest success, "Let Us Have Peace." This song will be song by Madame Schuman-Heink, Sunday evening, at the "peace concert" in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

BUSINESS MEN'S MEETING.

The Plainfield Business Men's Association will hold a regular meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Babcock building, at 8 o'clock.

MRS. NEIGHBOUR DIES IN 88TH YEAR

Well Known Resident Passes Away at Her Home in This City.

Mrs. Mary Neighbour, aged 88 years, widow of Calvin Neighbour, one of Plainfield's oldest residents, died yesterday at her home on West Front street, from complications. She had been in failing health for sometime, and her death was not wholly unexpected.

Mrs. Neighbour was born in Hunterdon county and came to Plainfield in 1876, where she lived to the time of her death. For many years she conducted a boarding-house on East Front street, near Watchung avenue, being very successful. She continued in this business until her health would not permit. Mrs. Neighbour was a member of the First M. E. church, and attended there for many years.

Throughout her long residence here she made many friends. She was very charitable and on many occasions she was able to help unfortunate people. She will be greatly missed. Her husband died five years ago.

There survives two sisters, Mrs. Retta Howell, who lives in the West; Mrs. Jane Cramer, of Franklin place, this city; also the following children: Mrs. W. V. Garrison, of Jersey City; Mrs. E. M. Young, of Newark; David Neighbour, of Union Hill, and Forman Y. Neighbour, of Dunellen. There also survives sixteen grandchildren, eleven great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Neighbour came from a long-lived family. Her mother died at the age of 97 years and her father was 85 years old when he passed away. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. L. West, of Stapleton, S. I., a relative, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

PLAINFIELD C. E. TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Annual State Session to Be Held at Jersey City October 7-9.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Bergen Reformed church, Jersey City, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The key thought of the convention will be "Efficiency," and there will be conferences of State workers, presidents, secretaries and chairmen of committees of all societies, conducted by Miss Nellie K. Foote, State secretary, assisted by D. A. Poling, associate to President Clark, of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

Each morning there will be a service prayer meeting conducted by State President John T. Sproull. Among the speakers at the morning, afternoon and evening sessions will be Karl Lehman, the united society field secretary; Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, S. T. D., of Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. C. R. Erdman, of Princeton Theological Seminary; John R. Clements, president of the New York State C. E. Union, and Rev. Dr. S. Parker Cadman, of Brooklyn.

A large number of Plainfield Endeavorers are planning to attend the Friday evening service, when Dr. Clark will deliver the address. There will be a roll call of counties and 200 seats have been reserved in the convention church for Union county. Local Endeavorers will take the train leaving the North Avenue station at 6:25 p. m., arriving at Jackson Avenue station, Jersey City, at 7:04 p. m.

26TH ANNIVERSARY.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will observe its twenty-sixth anniversary tomorrow evening. An entertainment has been planned, which will be in the nature of a musical. The yearly reports of the society are to be read, and an address on Christian Endeavor work is to be delivered. The gathering is to be preceded by the monthly business session of the organization.

WILL SERVE DINNER.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Temple Baptist church, will hold its monthly business meeting tomorrow afternoon. Preceding the meeting the women will serve dinner in the Baraca Class room for the members and any of their friends. It will be served from 12 to 1 o'clock at a nominal price.

PARENTS OF A GIRL.

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelly, of Webster place, yesterday. Little "Miss" Kelly is an aunt to the "Miss" Firstbrook, born to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Firstbrook, of East Front street, Friday evening.

MISS WILKES WEDS JOHN C. M'MULLEN

Miss Edna M. Wilkes, formerly a teacher in the North Plainfield High School, and John C. McMullen, of New York, were married Saturday night at the apartments of the bride. St. Nicholas Terrace, New York. Rev. Thomas W. Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, New York, officiated.

The bride, who was gowned in white charmeuse and carried a shower bouquet of white roses, was unattended. Dr. John Vere, of New York, was the best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Charles Wilkes, of New York.

The wedding march was played by Miss Jubilee Rowley, of the borough, a close friend of the bride. Miss Rowley was gowned in yellow crepe de chine. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served to about forty guests. Later the couple left on a two weeks' honeymoon to Washington. They will reside in a newly furnished apartment on 139th street, New York. Prior to the wedding ceremony and afterward Miss Rowley played several classical selections. She received a solid gold crescent breastpin set with pearls from the bride. The latter also received a large collection of gifts.

The bride was science instructor in the borough High School for two years and while here made many friends. She went to Philadelphia from the borough, and later to New York, teaching in both cities.

W. DE LAR. ANDERSON TO GIVE A DINNER

Will Entertain Defeated Candidates in Trenton on Saturday.

William de La R. Anderson, one of the eighteen defeated candidates in the Fourth Congressional district at the recent primaries, will give a dinner Saturday evening, October 10, at 7 o'clock, at the Trenton House, Trenton, to the other defeated candidates. Mr. Anderson has sent the following to the unsuccessful candidates:

"In order that the value of the individual effort of the various candidates, who at the recent primary offered their services to the people of our party but whose selection of service was deferred, may not be lost to the Republicanism of Mercer, Somerset and Hunterdon counties, and, in order that the time and effort in the building up of the efficient personal organizations of each candidate may become an irresistable force for Republican success it is agreed by those candidates with whom I have spoken that we should meet together while we still hold the strings and adopt plans to co-ordinate our unity into one mighty and forceful hold. Directed by ourselves, as executives, of combined strength, accumulated in a strenuous primary campaign, will make Republican victory certain this year and, by maintainance of our unity, for years to come.

"In order that we may ratify this proposition in an agreeable manner and to return in a small way the many kindnesses shown me during my very enjoyable campaign I would ask the pleasure of your company at dinner on Saturday evening, October 10, at 7 o'clock at the Trenton House. Let me know that you can come."

INVENTS A BED ATTACHMENT.

Francis L. Hooper, aged 16 years, colored, of 325 Plainfield avenue, has just been granted a patent for a bed attachment which obviates the removal of a patient during illness. The contrivance is simple, but very useful and lightens the care of a patient. The patantee is planning to manufacture the attachment just as soon as he can complete his arrangements. The invention was a thought of his while he was ill at one time.

HELD VESPER SERVICE.

The first fall vesper service under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., was held in the association parlors yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. There was special music and Arthur B. Cole rendered a solo accompanied by Clifford A. Braider at the piano. John Leal, of this city, made an interesting address on "What Is True Religion?"

Y. W. C. A. RALLY.

The annual rally and reception of the Y. W. C. A. will be held in the association parlors next Thursday night. All those who are planning to enter the classes this fall are cordially invited to attend and all members should be present to register. A social program has also been arranged.

DEFEAT OF GERMANS COMPLETE SAYS DESPATCHES AT EMBASSY —ARE RETREATING IN DISORDER

PARIS WAR OFFICE REPORTS THAT THE BATTLE CONTINUES VERY VIOLENTLY WITH RESULT IN DOUBT.

MOBILIZATION IN RUSSIA IS ACCOMPLISHED

Third Army is Now Marching Into Poland From Petrograd—Germans Said to Have Lost Heavily in Attempting to Reach Skerniewitz at Warsaw—Russians Have Captured the Heights Four Miles From Przemysl.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Despatches were received at the Russian embassy here today from the foreign office in Petrograd confirming reports of Russian victories over the German armies in eastern Prussia. The latter are said to be in disorderly retreat before the Czar's millions. The statement says:

"The battle of Augustow ended yesterday, October 3, by our victory. The defeat of the Germans is complete and they are now retreating in disorder to eastern Prussia. Our troops are energetically pursuing the enemy, who is abandoning on his way guns, wagons and wounded.

The battle of Augustow began on September 25 by a bombardment by the German heavy artillery of the country around Sopockin. On September 21 they also began an attack on the fortress of Ossowicz. They were repulsed everywhere and forced to retire. On September 27 we took the offensive, which the Germans were unable to stop. At the present time the enemy is hurriedly evacuating our territory. in places the retreat assumes the character of a disorderly flight. The pursuit is vigorously pushed on.

Paris, Oct. 5.—The following official statement was given out by the war office today: "On our left wing north of the Oise the battle continues very violently. Its result rests in doubt. We have been compelled at certain points to give ground. On the rest of the front there has been no change. In Russia after a battle lasting six days the Germans operating on the East Prussian frontier and the Niemen river have retired, abandoning a quantity of supplies. They have evacuated completely the territory of Suwalki and Lonza."

Rome, Oct. 5.—Central News Cable)—The Tribuna's Petrograd correspondent reports that the Czar has established headquarters at Brest Litovski in Grodna, Russia. Mobilization in Russia now has been definitely completed and the third army is now marching into Poland from Petrograd. The Germans remaining on a small part of the frontier zone at Suwalki are being thrust back into eastern Prussia by a semi-circle of Russians whose flanks now threaten the enemy's rear. German troops from Petrokeff, who attempted to reach Skerniewitz at Warsaw, were seriously repulsed and lost heavily. The Germans attempted to get their heavy artillery across the river Bort over a bridge that had been repaired, but it broke in the middle and three guns were sunk, together with many of the mounted escort. A Duma deputy who has returned from Galicia says that the Russians have captured the heights four miles from Przemysl. In the fighting the Austrians several times vainly attempted to retake this place.

Italy will not abandon her neutral policy before November if she does abandon it at all. The army of 800,000 men which she now has mobilized is not ready. Her soldiers, it is said, are not well supplied with boots and the arsenals are still depleted after the Libyan campaign, which is not entirely over yet. The attitude of Italy has been the subject of renewed discussion in the last week. The Austrian defeats by the Russians and Servians have excited public opinion.

The Servians and Montenegrins who have been operating in Bosnia have been completely expelled from Austrian territory, according to an official communique given out this morning by the Austrian Ambassador in Rome.

London, Oct. 5.—A message from Petrograd to the Daily Telegraph says that Archduke Frederick has been replaced as commander-ni-chief of the Austrian army, by the heir apparent to the Austrian throne, Prince Charles Francis.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Offensive tactics have been resumed by the Allies on the German left wing, according to a statement made public today at the French embassy. Trenches of the enemy have been captured by the Allies near Soissons and the Germans have been forced back in the Argonne. The statement was confirmatory of earlier London and Paris despatches. The Prince Royal of Bavaria, the statement adds, has taken command of the German army of the north. The French foreign office did not intimate how this change in commanders would affect the German Crown Prince, who was supposed to have been in command of this position of the German forces.

London, Oct. 5.—Advices from Antwerp indicate that the Belgians have destroyed all bridges over the Nethe and the attempts to rebuild them have proved unsuccessful. The enemy repulsed at Duffel, in the province of Antwerp, asked an armistice of two hours, but was refused. The first intimation that English forces have gone to Antwerp and are co-operating with the Belgians in the defence, is made in a despatch to the Morning Post from Antwerp. The artillery duel continues. The general situation is unchanged.

Berlin, Oct. 5 (Via Amsterdam, Central News.—The German armies are meeting with continued success on their right wing and on their left in the vicinity of the forest of Argonne, declares an official statement by the War Office this morning. The statement continues, "The operations about Antwerp and those in the eastern theatre of war are progressing regularly without any battle being fought."

Paris, Oct. 5.—The Figaro says that France has protested to Holland that German merchants are using their flag to carry contraband and that Holland after investigating announced that the complaints were justified. It is believed, says the Figaro, that a state of siege will be proclaimed in Rotterdam to end the trade in contraband.

London, Oct. 5.—A news agency despatch from Rome says that a telegram received there from Bucharest announces that the president of the Council of the Crown and Conservative and Democratic leaders have decided to ask King Charles not to hold the Council meeting fixed for this week, stating that there is no need for Roumania to change her policy of neutrality.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Presbyterian church, will meet at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Cole, on Washington avenue, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Ethel Tinsman, whose engagement to William W. Giddes was recently announced, has resigned her position with Tepper's at Plainfield.

Captain and Mrs. B. A. Cole spent Saturday in Newark as guests of their daughters, Mrs. George H. Fristbrook and Mrs. Charles Painter.

MUCH IMPROVED.

Fred Cheshire, Jr., of Oyster Bay, who has been visiting his uncle, John Huff, of North avenue, for a week, returned home in his automobile yesterday morning, accompanied by his uncle, who will make an indefinite visit at his home. Mr. Huff is making the visit in the hope of further benefitting his health. He returned about two weeks ago from a month's visit there, eight pounds heavier in weight. His many friends hope that this visit will do him as much good as the former.

BOWLING TOURNEY.

Tomorrow evening the local "All Star" bowling aggregation will bowl the Baracas the deciding match of a series of three on the Presbyterian alleys. This match should be a corker, and the prospects are that a record breaking crowd will turn out to witness it.

ALL-DAY MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Society, of the Presbyterian church, will hold an all-day meeting in the chapel on Tuesday, October 13. Sewing and a business meeting will take up the morning hours. Each member is requested to bring a box lunch for luncheon at noon. A speaker is expected to be present in the afternoon. It is requested that new and second hand clothing be brought for the barrel. Thank offering barrels are requested to be brought or sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyers, of Raritan, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, of Prospect avenue, on Saturday.

Stanley Chmelewski has rented the upper floor of his home on New Market road to James Farrel and family, of Port Richmond, S. I., who moved in on Saturday.

RAYMOND HUFF A BENEDICT.

Raymond Huff, a former resident of this place, was a visitor in the borough on Saturday. Mr. Huff was married on Saturday afternoon, September 5, to a second cousin, Miss Emma L. Hoff, of Centreville. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. Huff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Huff, of Raritan, by the Rev. J. J. Jamison, pastor of the Methodist church, of Somerville. Mr. Huff resides in Branchburg township. He owns a large place at Neshanic, and is engaged in the wholesale slaughtering business.

Mrs. Paul Carpenter, of Prospect avenue, left on Saturday morning for Philadelphia, where she will remain until Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Krout.

FORMER PASTOR HERE.

Rev. A. L. Martine, a former pastor of the local Presbyterian church, spent a few days in the borough last week, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Rarick, of New Market road. Mr. Martine has a charge at Pine Bush, Ulster county, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Vietor, of Mountainview terrace, have been blessed by the arrival of a little baby girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Ryno, of Centre street, are entertaining Mrs. Ryno's sister, Mrs. Janet Selover, of New Brunswick.

JOHN HOLMES HUBBARD.

John Holmes Hubbard, aged 69, an old resident of this place, died at 5:45 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Allan, on Grove street. The deceased had been ailing for the past five weeks, the latter week of which was spent in bed midst great suffering. His complaint was abscess of the liver. Mr. Hubbard came to the borough thirty-seven years ago from Plainfield, to which place he had moved three years previous from Whitehouse, and he had lived here ever since. During his short residence in Plainfield, Mr. Hubbard married Miss Alice Abbott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Abbott, of Hopewell. Mrs. Hubbard died six years ago. The deceased is survived by four daughters and one son, Mrs. James Allan and Mrs. LeRoy Jennings, of this place; Mrs. Mary E. Dutcher and Miss Susan Hubbard, of Plainfield, and Theodore Hubbard, of the borough. The funeral services will be held at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. James Allan, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

PAID THE FINE.

Daniel Grantz, of Madison avenue, drank too freely of the fluid that inebriates on Saturday and as a result he was arrested around 10 o'clock by Marshal McCauley for conducting himself in a disorderly manner in Taylor's Hotel. This was the second time that Grantz had been arrested inside of a month on the charge of disorderly conduct and when arraigned in the borough hall before Recorder David S. Campbell, yesterday morning, after having passed a night in the "cooler," he was severely reprimanded and then given the alternative of paying a fine of $5 or being sent "over the road" for ten days. He decided to pay the fine.

W. S. Frederick, of Philadelphia, was a week-end visitor in the borough.

BUYING UP FRUIT.

The Misses Margaret and Gertrude Dean, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Dean, of Prospect avenue, spent the week-end at Flemington with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Whitney. Mrs. Edwin H. Dean was a visitor there on Saturday. Mr. Whitney is in the produce commission business and he has been at Flemington for the past couple of months or so buying peaches, apples, etc., in quantity from the farmers of the vicinity. He is at present buying Keiffer pears.

RETURN FROM VISIT.

Mrs. Lloyd Williams and sister, Mrs. Wesley Bush, of Dunellen avenue, have returned from a week's visit at Basking Ridge and Bernardsville. At Basking Ridge they visited their cousin, Mrs. George Dobbs, and at Bernardsville, former Principal of the local Schools and Mrs. Lester Meseroll had the pleasure of entertaining them.

Miss Bessie Morris, of Dunellen avenue, is mastering the requisites of a private secretary at a school on Forty-second street, New York city. She commenced the course one week ago and it will take her a school term to complete it.

Doctor and Mrs. Edward Pennock quietly celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Common Council will be held in the upper room of the borough hall, this evening.

Miss Blanchette Stern, of New York city, has been spending a few days in the borough as the guest of Miss Meta Pennock, of Mountainview terrace.

OFFICE ROBBED.

The office of the National Pure Foods Company at Lincoln was broken into last week while the watchman, Frank Miller, was making his rounds through the plant, and an Underwood typewriter and some working clothes of the employes stolen. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass in the door of the office and then turning the lock. The deed was performed inside of ten minutes as it never takes Miller, after he has punched the time clock, more than that time to make his rounds. The plant is located along the Central Railroad tracks and it is thought that some heavy train must have been passing at the time and deadened the sound of the falling glass.

J. C. APGAR'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Joseph C. Apgar, held at the late home on Front street at 2:30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, was largely attended, every room in the house being filled and the porch of the home taking care of the overflow. The services were in charge of the Rev. Dr. David C. Ramsey, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which church Mr. Apgar was a member, assisted by Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Robert Giddes and Miss Jessie Haynes, members of the choir of the First Baptist church, of Plainfield, to whose singing Mr. Apgar had often been a fond listener, sang "The Bird With the Broken Peon" and "Lead Kindly Light." Miss Irene Day, of Plainfield, was the accompanist. The floral contribution amounted to fifteen pieces. The pallbearers were Adam Herlich, Firman H. Gise, J. F. G. Kinney, W. B. Salmon, Jacob Fisher and Fowler W. Vail. Interment was at Hillside cemetery.

REAL ESTATE CHANGES.

Local Real Estate Operator John P. Fenner has purchased from Winfield R. Hetfield the nouse at the corner of Walnut street and Whittier avenue, recently vacated by Stanley Krom. A lot owned by Mr. Fenner at the northwest corner of Washington avenue and Fourth street figures in the deal, which was made through the Willard N. Apgar agency.

J. Alfred Wilson, of Washington avenue, was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Mrs. Augustus F. Samson, of New Market road, entertained her sister, Miss Christine Maag, of Plainfield, yesterday.

Miss Florence Gangloff, of Fourth street, has returned from a two weeks' visit with friends in New York.

The Misses Ransom, of New Market road, entertained their brother, Lewis Ransom, of New York city, on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Hardingham and son, of Mountainview terrace, are spending the week with Mrs. Hardingham's mother at New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Trickler, of Fourth street, entertained Mrs. Trickler's brother, Arthur France, of Stanford, Conn., on Sunday.

CUT HIS HAND.

Melvin Fritts, of Dunellen avenue, cut his left hand quite badly on Thursday with a penknife. He was trimming a small tree in the front of his home with the knife and he made a sharp hack at a small branch that had been almost cut through. The hack completely severed the branch. As his left hand, with the dissected branch, was dropping to his side the knife in his more swiftly descending right hand struck it, cutting deeply into the fleshy part of his hand just below the thumb joint. The nearby doctors were out at the time and before Mr. Fritts could have his wound properly attended to he had lost fully a cup of blood.

CANDIDATE'S VISIT.

Announcement was made last night by Local Democratic Committeeman Willard N. Apgar that Edward Houghton, the Democratic candidate for sheriff of this county, who was expected to come to the borough this evening to be introduced to the Democratic voters, will visit the borough on Wednesday evening of this week instead.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wicknam, of Front street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vensell and daughter, Miss Margaret, of New York city, over the week-end.

DRAINAGE PROBLEM.

The problem of drainage for the westerly end of the borough has been called to the attention of the officials who realize that it will be a very serious proposition during the wet seasons of the winter and spring. The development of the Equator Park section has practically closed the old ditch which led into the brook, running through that property. This brook has been filled in and at present there is no outlet for the surface water on Madison avenue and the intersecting streets which drain into Madison avenue. The need of a storm sewer has long been felt not only for that section but for North avenue as well, as far east as Washington avenue. It would be wise to meet the situation in such a way as to ultimately drain the entire section of North avenue, west of Washington avenue, with a storm sewer running down Bound Brook road and emptying into Bonegut brook. Madison avenue could then be drained with a storm sewer from Second street, which is the low point, as also could part of Lincoln avenue and Front street. It would also be possible to carry a sewer through the Equator Park property following the course of the old brook or down Madison avenue to Green brook. Whatever direction is finally decided upon, any effort on the part of the present Mayor and Common Council to coupe with the situation, would meet with the hearty approval of the property owners benefitted by this improvement and greatly increase the value of the property so drained.

'Plains & Fanwood.

In obedience to the President's request that peace services be held in the churches throughout the country on Sunday, October 4, a union service was held in the Baptist church yesterday afternoon at 4:15, when residents of the borough and Scotch Plains filled the edifice to overflowing. Dr. H. K. Carroll, pastor of the Methodist church, presided and made the principal address followed by Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, and Rev. George H. Houghton Butler, of the Episcopal church. Mrs. Ira G. Walker and Miss Marie Boise rendered several musical selections. At the termination of the service an offering was taken for the benefit of the Red Cross Society when a considerable sum was donated, which will be sent to the headquarters of the society.

Rev. J. Madison Hare had charge of the morning service at the Baptist church, yesterday, and took as the topic for his sermon, "The Price of Peace and His Gift of Peace." The Lord's Supper followed the morning service and was also in charge of the pastor. Captain S. B. Saunders led an interesting meeting of the B. Y. P. U. in the evening with "Trust Verses" as his subject.

Yesterday being the first Sunday in the month, Rev. George H. Houghton Butler conducted holy communion at the Episcopal church in connection with the morning service at 11 o'clock.

Rally Day was observed at the Methodist church, yesterday, with special music and addresses by the pastor. The services were held at the usual hours and at the meeting of the Sunday-school in the afternoon the children rendered a program of songs and recitations.

Contractor Linden, who has the contract for the macadamizing of a part of Midway avenue, expects to finish work on the job this week and when completed it will mark one of the largest pieces of road work done in the borough in recent years. The stretch of road will be nearly a thousand feet long and extend from Martine avenue to Russell road, and will average fourteen feet in width. The foundation will vary from four to ten inches.

Mrs. Anna Goodwin, of the township, is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chapel, of Elizabeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dare, of Pittman, have returned home after spending several days in the borough as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Wescott.

Mrs. Eugene Homan, of Greenville, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Augustus Sheelen, of North avenue.

A peace service was held at the Willow Grove chapel, yesterday, in connection with the regular services at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A. D. Beeken, of North avenue, has been spending several days at Lake Hopatcong.

Watchung.

George W. Winans will conduct the service at Wilson chapel tomorrow evening.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold its monthly meeting Friday evening in the school auditorium, after which a reception will be given to the teachers. William D. Murray will make an address. All interested friends and parents are invited to attend.

Rev. Kullman, of Princeton, preached two very interesting sermons in the Mary E. Wilson Memorial Union church yesterday. "Peace Sunday" was very appropriately observed. Rally Day services were held in the afternoon. Rev. Edwin S. Shaw gave a very interesting chalk talk.

Westfield.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bayley have returned from their wedding trip South and will make their home in the Elmwood apartments in Elm street. Mr. Bayley is agent of the American Express Company.

A. A. Cammerer, of Rahway avenue, has presented to the Public Library eighty volumes of fiction.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held Thursday afternoon.

Somerville

Miss Lulu Leibold is spending a week with her brother at Concord, N. H.

Miss Sarah Brokaw, of Harlingen, is a guest of Mrs. Garret Suydam, at Franklin Park.

General Frelinghuysen Chapter, D. A. R., was entertained Friday afternoon by Mrs. Anna Hardwicke and Mrs. Phoebe Swinton, in Raritan.

Miss Mae Drake has returned to her home in Millstone after spending some weeks in Newark.

New Providence.

Mrs. William T. Hickson and daughter, Miss Mabel Hickson, of Springfield avenue, have returned after spending the summer at Northport, L. I.

Henry McPhee and family and William Maden and family, all of Brooklyn, moved to this place Friday.

"The Reign of Universal Peace, was the topic of Rev. W. A. L. Jett, rector of St. Luke's Reformed Episcopal Mission, Murray Hill, yesterday morning.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Presbyterian church yesterday morning, and in the evening the pastor, Rev. N. C. Reeves, preached on "Holiness to the Lord."

There will be a meeting of the Board of Health tonight in the borough hall.

Miss May Krayer, of Fairview avenue, West End, spent the week-end with Miss Marjory Latimer, of Nutley.

ELIZABETH DINNER SPEAKERS.

Elizabeth, Oct. 5—The Republican dinner committee announces the following speakers: Former Congressman Charles N. Fowler, William T. Stuchell, Senator Carlton B. Pierce, Assembly Candidates William N. Runyon, of Plainfield; Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, and Charles L. Morgan, of this city, and Mayor Victor Mravlag. Ruford Franklin, of Summit, was selected as toastmaster.

RUSSELL KINNEY INJURED WHILE WORKING AT LATHE

Russell Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.V. Kinney, of Pearl street, the borough, received a painful injury to his face last Friday morning, while working at a lathe in the manual training department of the borough school. Kinney is a freshman and is in the turning class. He started the machine going and the wood that he was working on was not securely fastened and when the lathe was going at a fast rate it flew off and hit the worker full in the face.

He is now under the care of Dr. Thomas D. Blair and is recovering rapidly. His lip has a bad gash in it and his nose was bruised. The accident will keep him from school for a few days.

CELEBRATES FEAST DAY.

The Feast of the Tabernacle was observed yesterday at Temple Scholem. The sermon last evening was delivered by Rabbi Shoenbraun, who spoke of the historic feast of the Hebrews, and the light it throws upon the present war in Europe. A Sunday-school was organized in the afternoon, with the various classes in charge of Mrs. William Newcorn, Mrs. J. Tepper, Miss Berger and Miss Rose Seigal, the latter being in charge of the advanced class of pupils. Miss Ruth Weinberger was the soloist at the evening service.

NAME CANDIDATES.

Elizabeth, Oct. 5—The Union County Prohibitionists filed today petitions with County Clerk James C. Calvert, naming the following candidates for office: For State Senator, J. Edgar Macaborough, of Rahway; for sheriff, Parker G. Singer, of Summit; for members of the General Assembly, Edward T. Burnett, of Union; Albert S. Dessendorph, of Westfield; and Joseph F. Hummer, of Elizabeth. No candidates for county clerk, registrar or coroner were named.

INFORMAL DANCE.

The first informal dance of the season to be held at the Watchung Improvement Society Hall has been planned for Friday, October 16, at which time dancing will be continued from 8:30 to 2. A special trip of the auto-bus to the hall is to be made from Front and Somerset streets at 8:30. William H. Demler and Edmund A. Texier compose the committee in charge.

WILL DEFER ACTION.

The Plainfield Board of Education will meet this evening at the High School. It is not probable that any action will be taken regarding the bids received for the construction of the new Evergreen Avenue School until a conference between the Board and the Common Council on Thursday night.

G. O. P. WARD MEETING.

The Fourth Ward Republican Club will hold a meeting of importance in the Frost building at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, when plans for the campaign will be discussed.

B. Altman & Co.'s New Twelve-Story Addition Now Complete

The Enlarged Store, Which Occupies An Entire Square Block, Is Ready For the Opening Day.

The new twelve-story addition to B. Altman & Co.'s store was opened to the public this morning. With the erection of this addition, the frontage of which is on Madison Ave., the store becomes one of the largest in the world, occupying an entire square block and having a floor area of nearly one million square feet. On each side of the store is a spacious entrance, those fronting on Madison Ave. and on 35th St. being especially designed for motor and carriage approach, each having a marquise extending over the sidewalk to the curb.

The Altman store is easily one of the handsomest edifices in New York, following in detail throughout the dignified style of architecture distinctive of the Italian Renaissance. Like the original building, the new addition is constructed of French limestone (imported direct from the quarries for the purpose) up to and including the eighth floor, except on the Madison Ave. side. Here the central elevation, above the second floor, is of white glazed brick, the corner pavilions at each side being of French limestone to the eighth floor. The four floors above are built entirely of white brick. The splendid display windows which grace the corners facing Madison Ave. and 34th and 35th Sts. add a new feature of interest to that historic section of the city, so long exclusive to aristocratic residences.

To celebrate the opening of the new addtion in an auspicious manner, immense stocks of new merchandise have been secured, a large proportion consisting of recent importations from the fashion centres of Europe, B. Altman & Co. having been enabled, through their Paris house, to secure the latest creations of many of the most famous couturiers, all of which will be displayed during the opening week.

The president of B. Altman & Co., Mr. Michael Friedsam, desires to impress upon the public the fact that the policies of the house remain unchanged. To contribute in every possible way to the comfort and convenience of its patrons; to assure them of courteous attention, and to offer them reliable merchandise at moderate prices is still, as it has always been, the chief aim of this old-established firm.

Having increased its original floor area by considerably more than fifty per cent., the Altman store is now one of the largest and most commodious, as it is also one of the most perfectly equipped, mercantile houses in the world. The greater amount of floor space at its disposal has rendered possible the extension of every department, with incomparably better facilities for the transaction of business. The department for men's wear, for example, has been so materially enlarged that it now extends nearly the entire length of the first floor on the 34th St side. From the first floor to the fifth, inclusive, each floor is open across its entire length and width, from Fifth Ave. to Madison Ave. and from 34th St. to 35th St. Above, the floors are arranged differently, to accommodate the various workrooms, stock rooms, the mail order department, etc.

A handsome suite of retiring rooms for women patrons is situated on the fifth floor in the Madison Ave. addition. The writing and rest room is sumptuously furnished, the upholsteries being of blue velvet, harmonizing with a carpet of the same rich tone. The panelings and furniture are all of mahogany. Within easy reach of this room are the general offices, the information bureau and the public telephone booths.

The executive offices, consisting of the president's room, the board room and an anteroom, which are also located on the fifth floor, comprise what may well be termed one of the most remarkable office suites in the world, for the walls of these rooms are covered with the same French carved woodwork that adorned the interiors of three of the most beautiful rooms in the late Mr. Altman's residence on Fifth Ave.—the library, the dining room and the famous Renaissance room.

The entire twelfth floor of the new addition has been given over to the use of B. Altman & Co.'s employees. It is finished throughout in white, with tiled walls and flooring. Large, airy luncheon rooms are provided for men and women employees, the two sections being separated by a cafeteria. Adjoining the luncheon rooms is a spacious modern kitchen, where wholesome food is palatably prepared, to be served at minimum prices.

On this floor, too, are the medical offices, a large, specially constructed suite consisting of patients' waiting room, physician's consulting room, surgery, and two hospital wards for men and women, with a total of seven beds. A physician, assisted by two graduate nurses, is in charge of this department, the expense of which is borne wholly by the firm.

The welfare work among the employees of B. Altman & Co. is of the broadest and most humantarian type, following out the plans outlined by the late Benjamin Altman and carried out, on an even larger scale, by the present president of the firm, Michael Friedsam. For the women and girls employed in the building there is a pleasant recreation room on the eleventh floor, costly furnished and liberally supplied with books and magazines. A portion of the roof has also been enclosed in order to provide a quiet rest room for women and a smoking room for men employees, the remainder being subdivided into a solarium and an open-air promenade.

In the sub-basement is the complicated machinery which supplies the Altman building with light, heat, ventilation and motor power, and which controls the immense refrigerating plant. The great engines have an aggregate capacity of 3,600 horse power; the ten boilers a capacity of 3,000 horse power, with a steam pressure of 160 pounds to the square inch. The coal bunkers are capable of containing 2,000 tons.

The electric power plant has a dynamo capacity of 2,400 kilowatts, and generates all the electricity required not only for the lighting of the building, but also for the driving power of elevators, pneumatic tubes, sewing machines, etc., as well as the motors for the immense ventilating equipment. To insure perfect ventilation a system has been installed for filtering, cleansing and humidifying the air supplied by the fresh-air fans, amounting to 200,000 cubic feet per minute. The exhaust fans for withdrawing vitiated air have an equal capacity, rendering impossible the accumulation of impure air in any part of the building.

One important result of the enlargement of the building is the increased efficiency of the elevator service. There are now twenty-two elevators for the use of patrons of the store, in addition to five small private elevators, ten elevators for employees' use, and two truck elevators of immense size and capacity, making a total of thirty-nine, all of modern type.

Among other noticeable improvements contributing to the greater efficiency of service which has always been one of the specific aims of B. Altman & Co. is the extension of the pneumatic tube service and of the delivery conveyor system. In the tube service, for the transmission of the cash carriers, there are no fewer than 16 miles of brass tubing. In the delivery conveyor system there are 2,767 feet of canvas belting, moving at the rate of four miles per hour along the traveling platform or conveyors, which are attached to the basement ceiling and connect with spiral chutes, these having openings on every floor, within easy access of all departments. By means of this marvelous system goods are carried direct from the department to the packing tables in the delivery department, whence they are transmitted when packed and addressed, to other conveyors which carry them immediately to the driver's bins.

The fire-preventing and fire-fighting equipments are among the most complete in existence, including the new automatic sprinkler and signal systems, the latter connecting with the city fire department as well as the firm's own fire department, located in the building; a standpipe system having hose stations so arranged as to reach any part of the establishment; and a supervisory system which acts automatically in the event of difficulty arising in any part of the equipment.

The architects for the Altman building are Messrs. Trowbridge & Livingston. The construction work has been done by Marc Eidlitz & Son.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

Making examples of flagrant violators of the city traffic regulations will go a long way toward stamping out the regrettable practice that has been causing the police department so much trouble recently. Chief Kiely is determined to bring offenders to their senses and stringent measures will be employed to effect a betterment of present conditions.

City Judge DeMeza has announced his intention of co-operating in every way possible with the police and no leniency will be shown the trouble-makers.

Truck drivers have made a general nuisance of themselves in the business section by demanding more room than they need and scorning the efforts of the traffic policemen to enforce the "keep to the right" ordinance. It seems to be the general opinion among this class of drivers that automobilists have no rights on the citys highways and several accidents have been caused by the crowding necessitated through the disregard of the law on the part of incompetent drivers.

The general feeling against automobiles makes chauffeurs liable to considerable criticism whether or not they are to blame for accidents. An investigation that has been conducted by the police head has revealed the fact that drivers of horse drawn vehicles are responsible for a great many of the present traffic violations. Hereafter it will be a case of keeping to the right hand side of the road or going before the city court to explain.

THE FIRE HAZARD.

Negligence on the part of owners of open fields causes the fire department considerable trouble at this time of the year. Grass that has been left uncared for during the summer months is now drying up and several bad fires have been fought recently by the local department. Chief Doane has sent out a plea for individual co-operation in this matter, but his request has attracted little attention. The fire deparment head has cited instances in various sections of the town where grass fires have raged in immediate proximity to dwellings and the loss of property has been seriously threatened in several of the recent fires.

Chief Doane heartily endorses Governor Fielders proclamation setting aside October 9 as "Fire Prevention Day, and suggests that Plainfielders indulge in an individual campaign on that date. It is up to each householder and owner to clean up, remove and destroy all inflammable rubbish and refuse in dwellings, factories, public and private buildings and institutions. Do your share in the work and assist your neighbor as much as possible to protect himself against fire hazards. While Plainfield has an adequately equipped fire department which has been able to keep the loss down to a minimum, there is always a chance of a big conflagration breaking out. An opportunity to promote a campaign among citizens to take proper precautions is not to be scoffed at.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS.

An educational feature that proved very popular in this city last year will be resumed by the Plainfield Board of Education on October 13. Foreign born residents, young and old, will again be given an opportunity to pursue an elementary course of study under the supervision of competent instructors, and it is hoped that every foreigner in the city, who has not been fortunate enough to have educational advantages, will take this opportunity to better himself. The Stillman School has been set aside for night classes, and a course in practical studies has been mapped out by the Board. Last year special attention was given to those who knew nothing of the English language and the results were gratifying. The teachers have been confronted by scores of zealous foreigners craving for an opportunity to get a start, and many of those who completed their courses last spring have already bettered themselves financially. The efforts of the Board to provide this schooling for the poorer class are most commendable and citizens should do their part toward making the school a permanent one.

Interest on the part of the community at large goes a long way toward instilling interest in the foreign born pupil. Last year a number of citizens were active in promoting social events among the students of the night school and these events were prominent factors in inducing many of the pupils to stick to the task of mastering the English educational subjects.

The Summit Herald, edited by John W. Clift, with the issue of last week passed its twenty-fifth milestone, the only recognition of the day being a modest editorial calling attention to the fact. Many a newspaper has commemorated such a time with a big edition, in which achievements have been boasted in black face type, but Mr. Clift does not do things that way. The aim of the Herald has been to present "a real home paper, containing all the news of the community," and in this it has achieved success. Among the newspaper men of the State are few better known or more popular than the guiding spirit of the Summit Herald, and the character of the paper being produced assures him continued success in the field which he has chosen.

With the coming of fall, the work of the Recreation Committee has been renewed with vigor. This organization fills an important place in local life, and has already proven beyond the possibility of contradiction that it is here to stay.

Scoop says that now that the readers of the Press have settled the question of how to pronounce Przemysl, perhaps they will feel like enlightening him on Srebnitz, Jaborina, Igrichta and Vafresnitza.

A thing like a war in Europe will not be permitted to overshadow the world's series baseball games. King Fan will rule for the next couple of weeks.

The one problem that worries us just now is how some restaurants can afford to sell an egg sandwich for a nickle, with eggs at their present price.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey have, in "The Misleading Lady," to be seen here tonight, written a delightful bit of mingled comedy, satire, drama and farce. They have woven an extremely clever plot around a young woman who seeks to flaunt her sex with highly extreme and negligee styles. She comes in contact with a real-live-blooded man who has just returned from Patagonia, where he learned true values and was taught to detest ordinary conventions. Just how this young woman endeavors to entrap him and how he turns the tables on her is the basis of one of the most fascinating, thrilling and ingeniously told love stories that has been produced on the stage in many moons.

There is nothing of the commonplace or the obvious in J. M. Barrie's latest comedy, "The Legend of Leonora," in which Maude Adams is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night. The gifted Scotch author seems to revel in the unexpected. That he is a dreamer seems clear to those familiar with his plays, for his plots are those of a man with an imagination containing all of the colors of the rainbow. One of the most patent things regarding the author is that he reverences womanhood. All of his heroines have been types held up for the admiration of man and none of them has been so idealized that it could not be seen that it was thoroughly human through and through. It is a rosy and cheerful view of life that Barrie takes and his humor is always contagious. In a line of description regarding his new play he says that it is "intended only for those who have had a mother." It is therefore understood that if you have never had a mother the play is not for you. When Charles Frohman saw Barrie's line of description he smiled with satisfaction. "I will now be in a position to know," he said, "by the number of people who do not see Miss Adams in this play just how many there are in the world who have never had a mother." Miss Adams always catches the spirit of Barrie's heroines and as Leonora she has scored what in all likelihood will prove to be her most satisfying success. Leonora is a composite woman full of vagaries and of infinite loveliness. But she is also thoroughly human and underneath all of its playful humor the play points out woman's right to chivalry and the glorious love of a mother for her young. Miss Adams has been delighting her followers in the play and it is destined to win success just as long as she continues to be seen in it.

If there ever was a play that inspires all the best thoughts of mankind, that play is "The Things That Count," which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening. William A. Brady first presented this comedy drama at his Playhouse in New York at a time when the white slave dramas had wide vogue and he was called very un-up-to-date at the time, but it later developed that he had only anticipated the disfavor into which stage sensationalism was to fall and ere many weeks had passed by, people were crowding into his theatre to see a clean play while the theatres offering white slave plays were becoming more and more deserted. The complete triumph that followed for "The Things That Count" proved to be ample vindication for Mr. Brady's contention that the American theatre-goers do not crave morbid themes.

Miss Cora Lyndon, of West Ninth street, who has been seriously ill, is improving slowly.

Women's Shoes

A Splendid Endorsement of Our Shoe Dept.

Children's Shoes

In last Wednesday's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press, under the heading, "Advantages of Trading in Plainfield," there appeared an article written by a lady of this city for the "Trade in Plainfield Contest" which was such a splendid endorsement of our Shoe Department that we herewith take the liberty of reproducing it:

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I write this letter, hoping that practical mothers, who have tall girls to dress, may know where to obtain sensible heeled shoes. Our daughter of fifteen in statue like above mentioned, desired a pair of Colonial pumps of the latest style, but told me in a very unhappy voice, that she and her friend had visited all the shoe shops in town to find a pair with low common sense heels, for which they were both hunting. Upon this information I addressed several of the large stores in New York, always receiving word the pumps they could furnish only with high heels of several styles. A week later reading our evening paper, the Plainfield Daily Press, I saw the sale of shoes for ladies and children at Woodhull & Martin's. As a last trial I visited their store to obtain just the shoe with the heel, for which I had been so anxiously looking.

Advantages of Buying in Plainfield

Reasons Set Forth by a Competitor in Trade in Plainfield Contest Held by the Daily Press

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I was telling a friend I wanted a new blouse, and I had thought of sending a mail order for one to one of the New York houses. She told me that Force & Co. had some beautiful blouses on sale which were advertised in the Daily Press, so I went there and bought a lovely blouse for one dollar and ninety-eight cents ($1.98), reduced from three dollars ($3.00). Not only have I economized by saving one dollar and two cents ($1.02), but I was able to get just what I wanted, because I had the whole lot to pick from before me. Had I sent a mail order for one I would have taken just what was sent to me.

So hereafter I shall always watch the Daily Press advertisements concerning the Plainfield merchants' sales first.

MRS. H. VAN BLAKE.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

If you pay carfare to other places for the privilege of spending your money there, don't be foolish enough to think it will ever come back to Plainfield to increase business facilities here.

be communion with Jesus Christ and a real belief that His teaching they are of little avail.

"We shall read these events amiss, unless we interpret them, as a call of God to His church to recover the aim, the motive and method of Jesus Christ. It is because we have trimmed His teachings to suit our theories, and been content to think His principles impracticable, that we are now witnessing the poverty of our resources, and the weaknesses of our structure. I am confidently expecting this war to result in the purifying and strengthening of the Christian church, and in such a revival of pure religion as we have not seen for many years. It will reveal the real values of life, and call the world away from self, and back to Christ.

"A great missionary statesman has said, 'The world is rapidly coming to a crisis, when individuals and nations and whole civilizations must either accept the Christian solution of their problems, or else perish from the face of the earth.' It is well for us to heed this thought today. And so we wait, in this quiet hour. Let us pray in the will of God; let us follow our prayer with more Christ like living and judgements."

MONROE AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

The edifice of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church was crowded to the doors yesterday morning, when Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of New York preached the sermon, taking for his text St. Matthew, 6-10; "Thy Will Be Done." The pastor, Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, was in charge of the service, and was assisted by District Superintendent Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, a former pastor of the church. The sermon by Bishop Wilson was a strong appeal for the peace movement, which, he said, should, by all means, be started within the individual. "War," he said, "is only possible where men insist upon their own program. The submitting of the question to God, the trend of events takes a turn, and peace is secured. God's work not only applies to the world within the individual life, or in the family circles, but to the larger world of the State, the Nation and the World. God has a program of development and progress for the nations and the World, although the details have not, as yet, been revealed to man. The harbor of the desired haven will be reached at last if we sincerely pray, 'Thy will be done' in me, the Nation, and the World."

CHURCH OF HEAVENLY REST.

The "Peace Day" spirit reigned in the morning and evening services of the Church of the Heavenly Rest yesterday, the Rev. Cortland H. Mallery conducting appropriate and impressive services in each instance. In his sermon Dr. Mallery referred to the proclamation of President Wilson as one of the most remarkable requests ever sent out by the head of the nation and predicted that it would go down in history as the greatest utterance of its kind. He likened the present executive to Abraham Lincoln for his Christian traits and urged his congregation to offer sincere prayers for the restoration of peace in the afflicted districts. He spoke of the many lessons taught by the war and commented on the fact that one nation, an unnamed factor, has seen fit to aid another in distress. He described the awfulness of the situation in Europe and expressed an ardent hope that the prayers of the United States' people may be the means of bringing about a lull in the present conflict. Dr. Mallery's sermon was strong and impressive, sympathy for the people of Europe being a predominant feature. He spoke of the part Christians have taken in the catastrophe and intimated that the introduction of morality into the present conflict may be the means of avoiding similar distresses.

Large attendances featured the morning and evening services and special music was rendered.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

At the morning service of the First Presbyterian church, Dr. Herring preached an interesting sermon. The attendance at the Christian Endeavor meeting before the church service at night was one of the largest of the year and a very interesting program was enjoyed. Miss Georgia Bicker, corresponding secretary of the society, presided, and Miss Ruth D. Sader, soprano soloist of the church, rendered a pleasing selection, assisted by Herbert Harold at the piano. Miss Leah Hammond, Miss Martha Kline, Mrs. C. E. Herring and Jesse Lounsbury all gave very interesting talks on the great question of war. War prayers were offered by several of the members.

Special music and speaking were the features of the evening service and all who attended were rewarded by hearing two fine addresses on the war question. Grove P. Hinman gave an interesting talk and he was followed by H. W. Herrmann, who brought the subject of the war home to all present. There was special singing and several members of the congregation were called upon for prayers. The pastor read President Wilson's proclamation.

Y. M. C. A.

About one hundred men attended the peace meeting which was held in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, yesterday, under the auspices of the Federation of Men's Church Clubs, the Federation of Men's Bible Classes and the Y. M. C. A. About an hour was spent in prayer for the culmination of the war on European soil. The meeting was a great success and showed that there was much interest taken in President Wilson's peace proclamation.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCHES.

Peace Day was observed in both of the Roman Catholic churches, special prayers being offered at the various masses on the order of Bishop McFaul, of the New Jersey Diocese. Rev. Father Hart, the new rector, was in charge of the services at the North Plainfield church. Father Hart comes to the borough to succeed the late Father William H. Miller and was greeted by his congregations of all of the masses.

GRACE P. E. CHURCH.

"Peace Sunday" in the church was celebrated in both the morning and evening services of Grace P. E. church, the church being decorated in the morning the Holy Communion was held, followed by a special service for the intercession of peace in Europe. The Rev. J. R. Atkinson, formerly of Elizabeth, but now dean of the Atlanta Cathedral, preached an impressive sermon on the internal troubles in Europe and the President's proclamation requesting prayers for afflicted. A special musical program, in charge of S. Frederick Smith, was conducted and Kipling's recessional was rendered. Otto Gosswiller assisted in the music with 'cello numbers.

The local union of Kings Daughters held a special observance in the afternoon, which was also addressed by Dr. Atkinson. His sermon was a strong plea to women and prayers for peace followed. Special music was also rendered at this service.

FIRST BAPTIST.

Dr. Phillip B. Strong, at the morning service in the First Baptist church, called attention to the nation-wide prayer for peace and spoke fittingly of the President's plea.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST.

Service at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning, was addressed by the Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce, who spoke touchingly of the plight of the Europeans at the present time and urged the congregation to offer up prayers for the speedy restoration of peace in that country.

THREE CHURCHES HOLD RALLY DAY

Promotions and Special Music Features Events in Each Case.

LARGE ATTENDANCES

Hope Chapel, First Presbyterian and Grace M. E. Have Special Programs to Celebrate Annual Event—Superintendents In Charge.

Rally exercises, featured by the promotion of children in the various Sunday-school classes and short talks by the superintendents, were celebrated by three local Sunday-schools yesterday. The programs in each case were particularly appropriate to the younger generation and large attendances were recorded in all of the edifices.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

An attendance of 250 scholars was present at the Rally Day services at Grace M. E. church. The program consisted of special music, recitations and addresses. The children of the lower classes gave recitations and a tugle exercise was given by several girls and boys, led by Alfred Korff.

Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Hubach, district superintendent, sang two pleasing solos and also made the address of the afternoon. An orchestra was present and rendered special music. Rally Day flags were distributed to all present. Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the church, made a short address.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Rally Day services held at the First Presbyterian church were largely attended and the program was exceedingly interesting. There was special music by the main school. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the church, gave a talk which was very interesting, both to the young and old scholars. Promotions were made in all departments.

Those who went from the Cradle Roll to the Beginners' Department, which is in charge of Mrs. G. A. Ballentyne, are Virginia Herrmann, Mabel Young, Arthur Veghte, Beatrice Guinn, Louise Holmes, Mary Dunning, Helen VanEpps, Francis Lounsbury, Herbert Close, Howard Russell, Allen Beals, Francis Wood and Margaret Wood. Eight little ones were graduated from the Beginners' Department to the Primary room. They were Elizabeth Palmer, Marion Northrup, Evelyn Meeker, Clarence Poland, John Bicknell, Margaret Blair, William Hazel and Carroll Palmer. Eight were also taken into the main school from the Primary grade and put into the first class of the graded school. They are Ida Reid, Mary VanCleef, Margaret Yates, Edward White, Harold Young, Norman Abbott, Frederic Giese and Roland Prudhon. The graded system is being used in the junior department of the main school and promotions were made in all of these classes.

HOPE CHAPEL.

Rally Day was appropriately observed at Hope chapel, when a number of pupils were promoted from one department to another. The major portion of the afternoon was devoted to the showing of stereopticon slides illustrating the work of the Presbyterian Board of Sabbath School Work, while G. Herbert Condict lectured on the work. The attendance was large in all departments of the school.

OFFER PEACE PRAYERS

took issue with former President Roosevelt in his contention that peace can only be maintained by a display of armed force, and he also expressed regret at the remarks of Representative Mann in the House, last week, in which war was predicted with Japan, saying that such statements are unChristian. "Those who make them may not consciously challenge Christianity, but they have small conception of its contents. To say that arms are the final arbiters among nations is only to confess oneself Pagan. Brute force was the weapon of primitive man. Its use means that we go back to the days of national infancy.

"There can be no doubt but that Christian progress must be away from war and toward peace. One might not be willing to give unqualified approval to all the schemes that are being promulgated by the advocates of disarmament, but the followers of Jesus Christ should have a most friendly feeling toward all movements looking toward arbitration, peace tribuna's and peace treaties. To say that peace treaties are no more value than scraps of paper unless backed by armies to enforce them is to confess one's doubt in the methods of Christ.

"The logical consequence of peace treaties is disarmament. Mutual trust in each other's faith is absolutely essential to national brotherhood, and national brotherhood must result from national neighborhood. Undoubtedly the rulers of the nation at war would prefer not to fight. The blaze and explosion in Europe today is the natural result of a theory of government that is essentially Pagan, brutal and savage. We can only hope that as men behold the wreck and debris, as they hear the cries of the wounded and sorrowing, they may learn the lesson, and move forward another step toward the realization of Christ's principles as applied to national life.

"There is a danger that the people of the United States will take undue credit in the crisis because of the fact that it is not actually a war. We should remind ourselves that there are forces and tendencies shaping themselves in our own national life that are no whit different from these that has mislead the nations of Europe. The theory that business is war, and that the power to crush opponents makes it right to do so, is a piece cut from the cloth of militarism,—the boastful spirit that talks of [illegible] and forgets her weaknesses. Ruthless ambitions, policies based on selfishness, unjust discriminations against people of eastern nations, failure to regard the brotherhood among men, class hatred, industrial strife, selfish pleasure, the exaltation of the material and disregard of the spiritual—all these and many other signs should lead us to examine ourselves, lest while we pray for others we overlook our own sins. Let us remember then, that if we would really contribute to the world's welfare, we must for the sake of others humbly ask God to purify our own national life.

"Let us help the world by very definite recognition of the difference between real and structural Christianity. The startling thing about this war is that it is between nations that call themselves Christian, and claim allegiance to the cause of peace. To some this has indicated the failure of Christianity. This is a wrong conclusion. The Gospel has not failed. Christianity has not been at fault. The war has but revealed the flaws in our interpretation of Christ's Gospel, and reminded the church that organization and ritual, ecclesiastical structure and formal worship are but the outward symbols of the Gospel, and that unless there

EVENING SCHOOL CLASSES WILL RESUME TONIGHT

The Board of Education will open its evening school for the winter course at 7:30 o'clock tonight, and all persons wishing to attend are notified to register between 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock, at the High School building where the classes will be held.

In response to the popular demand for advanced evening instruction, the courses this year will include many new subjects which have not hitherto been taught in the evening sessions. Bookkeeping, stenography, mechanical drawing, domestic science, including a practical course in dressmaking, bench work in the manual training department, and reading and estimating from plans and specifications are among the subjects in which classes will be formed.

The school is free to all residents of Plainfield, and those from outside of the district who wish to attend can make reasonable arrangements for instruction in one or more of the subjects. Sessions will be held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

JOHN M'CULLOUGH WEDS MISS MARY CLARK

Miss Mary Clark, daughter of Mrs. Anna Clark, of Darrow avenue, and John McCullough, of Steiner place, the borough, were married at St. Mary's church at 6:30 this morning, the ceremony being performed by Father Bernard M. Bogan, rector of the church. The couple was attended by Miss Lillian Bradley, of Brooklyn, as bridesmaid, and William McCullough, a brother of the groom, acted as best man.

The bride wore a traveling gown of purple while the bridesmaid wore a traveling gown of brown. The bridal couple had a wedding breakfast at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, after which they left for Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return, next Sunday, they will be accorded a reception at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. McCullough will reside in this city.

PROCTOR'S BILL.

Minna Phillips & Company, in a comedy sketch, "When the Cat's Away," supply plenty of laughter in Proctor's opening bill of the week, the act being a particularly humorous one. Charles Gibbs, with novelty imitations; Florence Mayfield, a dainty little feminine comedienne; Billy Boston & Company, in a comedy sketch, "What Happened to Birdie," and Budd & Claire, make up an excellent program. Special music will be a feature tonight.

LAST TAX SALE.

Seven properties, the last of a large number to be sold for unpaid taxes of 1913, were disposed of by Collector William R. Townsend, this afternoon. The number of properties to be taken over by the city this year were exceptionally small, the greater portion of those sold going to the holders of mortgages or other individuals.

HIGGINS ON VACATION.

Sergeant Maurice Higgins, of the local police department, began his annual two weeks' vacation this morning. He is the last of the local coppers to go.

FLYNN'S HOTEL DID NOT SUIT ITALIAN

Italian With Colored Fiancee Accommodated by Obliging Roundsman.

After engaging in an unsuccessful tour of the city's hotels in an effort to secure a night's lodging, Joseph Michael, an Italian, and Ella Brown, colored, of White Plains, N. Y., were arrested by Roundsman Charles Flynn at the Central Railroad depot, last night, as they were preparing to depart for another town. In testifying in court this morning the pair stated that they had come to Plainfield for the express purpose of getting married and were seeking a place to lodge over night in preparation for the nuptials in the morning.

When they were arrested by Flynn the pair protested to be man and wife. Flynn informed them that he knew where they could get a room for the night and led them to a cell in police headquarters. The man appeared greatly indignant in court this morning, over the lodging supplied him by the police officer, asserting that the accommodations were far from being those provided in an up-to-date hostelry.

Both of the defendants were arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct and were subjected to scathing reprimands by Judge DeMeza. The woman was told to make herself scarce in this State within an hour, while the Italian was sent to the county jail for a period of forty days.

THEY'RE NOW TRAMPING ON FOOT TO SHIBE PARK

John Schmidt, aged sixteen, and Henry Wagner, aged twenty, two Philadelphia boys, who left home several weeks ago to secure employment in New York city, were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, on a charge of illegal train riding. They were let go with suspended sentences.

The youths were unsuccessful in their efforts to get work and the lure of the world's series in their home town was too strong for them to resist. They determined to see Connie Mack's ball players "put it over" the Bostons and having no funds, took advantage of the opportunities offered by the side-door Pullman. They're now walking in the direction of Shibe Park.

LAST GAME HAS GONE TO PETS

With Mathews on the Mound, Dorflingers Men Score a Creditable Victory.

SCORE WAS 1 TO 0

Nineteen Year Old Bound Brook Pitcher Twirls Winning Ball Over Martin's Crew of Truck Makers—Nelson Scores Only Run.

Ernest Dorflinger's Plainfield Pets hung one on Brit Martin's Saurer crew, Saturday afternoon, on Parker Field, in the last of the three-game post-season series for the silver loving cup. The Plainfield boys did not cop the trophy, but they gave the few faithful fans that gathered in the grandstand the kind of ball that local people like to see. The final count was 1 to 0. It was by far the best game they have put up this season and only two errors were chalked up against them while their opponents got away with one misplay to their credit. The Pets knew that they could not overcome the large lead the Saurer team had over them, but just wanted the satisfaction of taking the larger end of the score for once. They did this, but it was not until the last half of the eighth frame that the feat was accomplished.

Two of the Saurer players were out Saturday who have played every game this season. Harriman, the crack third baseman, is on the sick list and could not even witness the game, and Jack Wilson was tossing the football around on the Cricket Field, while his teammates were fighting hard for victory. One of his timely hits might have come in well at one time. Tommy Mullin, who can play every position on the field, went to third and played the entire game without an error, while Bergen did the receiving. Henny Alberts was shifted from right to left field to fill Wilson's shoes and Johnny Dixon played his old position behind first base.

Eugene Mathews, the much heralded twirler from Bound Brook, who Dorflinger promised to have here, was on the spot and much credit must be given him for the way in which he held his opponents down in all but a few instances. This pitcher, who has made some fine strike-out records lately, did not fan seventeen men in this game, but it was part his headwork that won the game. The Saurer batters hit him in the first part of the game rather freely and it must be agreed that the Pet pitcher was placey in some pretty difficult holes, but returned to the bench after each inning with the opposing side still scoreless. There were times when Saurer men were on third with none or only one down and the Pets were the ones to get the breaks this time. Mathews was wild and had little control at times, but managed to steady himself in tight places. He gave six free passes and in the third inning issued two in succession that helped fill the sacks.

The Saurer boys touched him for seven hits while the Pets heavy artillery managed to get six safeties off Warry's delivery. The excitement started in the first inning when Jaeger singled after Johnny Dixon had flied out to Emery at second. He was caught trying to steal. Dixon missed Seiftes' low throw of Mullin's fast grounder and Tommy was safe. The stop of Seiftes' was as pretty as they come and it was only because he was off his balance that the throw was low. Martin singled along the third base line, but Alberts' fast play held Mullin on second. McLaughlin grounded up.

Dixon made the first hit for the Pets in the second inning, but was forced at second when Dorman hit to Martin, who touched second base. Dorman arrived at first just in time to escape being doubled up. He died on first while his teammates were being put out. Jim Emery pulled off a double play unassisted in the second that made the gallery jump to their feet. There were two on and Alberts hit a fly to Jim who ran over to first and caught Bergen off.

Lou Dixon started the crowd yelling in the fourth session when he cracked a triple into deep right field. There were two down and Dorman popped to Mullin. Mathews started to pitch real ball about this time and the Saurer men were never dangerous after the fifth. Only one hit was made off Mathews in the eighth and the side was retired without much trouble. In the fatal and also lucky last half of the eighth, Nelson led off with a beautiful single over second and Mathews added to his batting average with a nifty single over Garretson's head, Nelson taking third on the play. "Bill" Seiftes, the little third baseman from Elizabeth, was ready with the needed hit and Nelson scored with the winning run. Garretson led off in the ninth with a fine single, but he died right at the first station as the three following men flied out.

The Saurer team, however, takes the cup with a good lead of ten runs ever their opponent. They netted these in the first two games when they defeated the Pets by scores of 6 to 2 and 8 to 2. This is the last game of the season between these two aggregations, the total number being six.

Summary: Three-base hit, L. Dixon; two-base hit, Seiftes; first base on errors, Saurer 1; Plainfield 1; left on bases, Saurer 10; Plainfield 4; stolen bases, Bergen, McLaughlin, Mullin, Dorman; struck out, by Mathews 4; by McLaughlin 4; bases on balls, off Mathews 6; off McLaughlin 1; double plays, Emery (unassisted), Morganroph to Emery to Dixon; Nelson to Emery. Time of game, 1 hour and 25 minutes. Umpire, Degnan, of High Bridge.

And the score was 1 to 0.

The members of Dorflinger's baseball nine are at last happy. They beat that pesky Saurer bunch and shut them out at that. Mathews was given better support than any other pitcher has been given in the series. The Pets only were credited with two errors and they had an average of six in each of the other two games of the cup series.

Tommy Mullin played another role in the game Saturday. He has been seen this season behind the bat, in short, on second and now he makes a wonderful debut at the difficult corner. And he didn't make an error either. Bergen did the catching in the final game.

Maybe if Jack Wilson had been faithful to his teammates the score might have been different. Jack is a fine hitter and has broken up several games this season with singles and Saturday might have been one of his "luckies." But he couldn't resist the temptation of the football and Saurers lost

It pays to buy good goods. Umpire Degnan, who hails from High Bridge way, proved to be the man of the hour for in all three games of this series not one murmur was heard from the players or spectators as to the fairness of his decisions. That's one of the fine points about the series that has just ended. There may have been a few thoughts in some of the players minds and also a few faces but never one word.

The crowd that witnessed the game Saturday could have been put in any small room with no chance of suffocation. Up to the fifth inning they could be counted in a few minutes, but after that several more came.

One party of three young male "rooters" who have been seen as well as heard at all of these games, seem to like to "kid" Lou Dixon along when he bats. However, the Pets first baseman put the "kibosh" on these fans Saturday when he slammed out a triple and a single out of three trips to the plate.

Walter Nelson made a nice play in the sixth frame which resulted in two outs. Garretson hit a foul fly when Jaeger was on first running for McLaughlin, and "Walt" threw the bluff that he had misjudged the ball. This put Jaeger off his guard and he started to dance around the first base territory. Suddenly he started to run for second, but a perfect throw by Nelson to Emery caught the Saurer captain before he was within ten feet of the bag.

The Pets infield were responsible for three double plays in the game. That was because they forgot to fumble the ball. Emery was mixed up in two of these double outs.

Warry did not strike out his usual amount in the last game. Probably he thought he didn't need to, as for several innings the Pets were hitting into their opponents hands. But the change came in the eighth inning and then Warry could not fan them as they were on the warpath with their clubs. Three hits in a row did the trick.

In the three games of the cup series the Saurer batters collected twenty hits off the deliveries of three pitchers. In the same number of games the Pets collected twenty hits off the delivery of one pitcher. That's pretty near an even break. But the Pets also made fourteen errors while their opponents made five. It's not always hits that wins games, sometimes its errors that lose them.

Lou Dixon is the only one credited with a circuit clout in the post-season series. Some say Warry was fooling—others say it was natural for Lou to do such a thing.

Ninety-five men faced McLaughlin in the three games and of that number fifteen went back to the bench with three healthy swings to their credit. That's on an average of one strike-out in every six batters. Not so bad at that.

Mathews was considered a hero after the game for the simple reason that he was the victorious pitcher over the Mackmen. George Townley did not realize what a twirler he was when the Pets beat Saurer in the eleventh inning with him on the mound.

Saturday's game in a nutshell—one hour and twenty-five minutes of good baseball.

Manager Martin has that cup in his new home already. Better let all the Saurer men take a chance to see who becomes the sole possessor of the coveted piece of silver.

Nothing more for the Saurer boys to do except to beat the Royals next Monday.

The curtain went down after Nelson, Mathews and Seiftes had all singled in quick succession.

D. BLANCHARD WINS HIGH SCHOOL TITLE

His Victory Over Chauncey Stewart in Final Match Earns Championship.

A Plainfield High School racquet wielder was again triumphant in the annual interscholastic singles tennis tournament which is held under the auspices of the Princeton Club, of this city. One match of the semi-finals and the finals were played off at the Country Club, Saturday, and David Blanchard, a red and blue player, defeated Chauncey Stewart, of Leal School, in the final round for the title.

Stewart took part in both matches of the afternoon and was forced to extend himself in the semi-final round before he could qualify to play in the finals. In the next to last round, the little Leal athlete won a hard played match from Roscoe Blanchard, also of the city school and a brother of the new champion. It took three sets to decide who should play in the finals and the wearer of the maroon and gold finally won out. Blanchard took the first set of the match which was the hardest of the day's play. The final score was 7-5, and Stewart made his opponent win every point that he made. Stewart ran away from his rival in the second set, taking it 6-2, but found the same opposition as in the first set when the deciding match was in progress. After the city school representative had tied the score at four all, Stewart took the next two and the match.

After a short rest he took on D. Blanchard in the final fight of the tournament and by the flip of a coin it was decided that the match should be decided by two sets out of three instead of three out of five as is usually the case. Blanchard was winner of both of the first two sets, the scores being 6-2, 6-4. He will receive a silver loving cup for a prize and Stewart will also be rewarded for his fine showing. The city school has taken every tournament of this kind that has been played and it looked up to the last minute as if Leal's would get that honor for once.

FRITTS LANDED PAIR OF WINS

But Plainfielder Lost One Prize on a Technical Infraction of Rules.

MANY STARS COMPETE

Local Bluecoat Beat Jack Eller in Quarter Mile and Crossed the Tape in First Place in the One-Mile Walk.

Five thousand spectators occupying seats in the flag-bedecked Wiedenemayer's Park, at Newark, Saturday afternoon, testified to the two-fold success of the first annual athletic carnival of the Newark police department. About 200 policemen-athletes furnished the material success, while an even larger number of policemen-musicians contributed the artistic embellishment. It was the biggest afternoon the Newark baseball grounds has had this summer, and so well pleased over the outcome are the officials that they declared at a banquet which followed at Turnbull Auditorium that the feature would be repeated next year and for many years to come.

The games were heralded with a street parade by the members of a monster band of 250 pieces, composed of the individual bands of Newark, New York, Philadelphia and Jersey City. At the grounds there was another parade by the musicians, under the leadership of Chief of Police Michael T. Long and a squad of guests. The bands squared off opposite the big flagpole in centre field, where Mayor Haussling hoisted an American flag while the blue-coated musicians struck up "America." Then the games began. There were athletic stunts of all kinds, followed by a "riot drill" by the non-participating officers and a mounted drill by Captain William H. Stuckys squad of equestrians. The program extended well into the dusk—in fact so much so that one event, the running hop, step and jump, remained uncontested.

Jack Fritts, the Plainfield department's only entrant in the festival, covered himself with glory. His main feat was to beat Jack Eller, of New York, to the tape in the quarter mile handicap. Fritts had a ten-yard handicap on the fleet footed Metropolitan sprinter and held the gap throughout the entire distance, turning the quarter in 54 4-5 seconds. John J. Murphy, another New Yorker, was third.

Patrolmen who are wont to stroll leisurely around their beats generated surprising speed in the one-mile walking event in uniform. This was open to all policemen, and it attracted a score of entries from half a dozen cities. Fritts, who had a twenty-second handicap, crossed the line first followed by Arthur P. Hunt, of New York, the scratch man, but both were disqualified for running. Hunt was nettled at the action of the judges. "Hang it all," he declared, "every time I compete over here in Jersey I get disqualified for running." Hunt sought to have the prizes in this event held up pending action in the matter by the A. A. U., but this was overruled by Martin J. Sheridan, who was the referee of the day. First prize ultimately went to George H. Foran, of Newark, who had a sixty-second allowance. Charles H. Whitley, another Newarker, with forty seconds handicap, was second, and Christian J. Teschke, also a Newark man, was third, from the fifty-five second mark. Captain Stucky set out with the limit men, but he erred in wearing sneakers instead of heavy shoes and wound up just outside the placement winners.

CURLY TAYLOR BARRED FROM PLAYING FOOTBALL

Carroll Taylor, North Plainfield High School's representative in the West, has decided that he would rather uphold the basketball and baseball reputation of his Alma Mater than play football. At the opening of the gridiron season Taylor went out for the team, but was told he could not play all three branches of sports. The coach of basketball also stepped in with a word and said he wanted Taylor for the school five and therefore he was barred from football.

Last year was Curly's first at the Colorado School of Mines, which is located at Golden, Col., and he accomplished a feat that first year men seldom do. He won his "M" in basketball and baseball and is sure of a position on both varsity teams this year. The football coach also stated that Taylor was very light for football and he would not have much chance against some of the husky mountaineers who attend that institution.

GEORGE TOWNLEY HURT IN PRACTICE

Hit in Mouth by Pitched Ball and Stitches Were Necessary.

While engaged in light baseball practice with the first string men at the Springfield Training School, last week, George Townley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Townley, of Grandview avenue, the borough, who is in his second year at that institution, received a very painful injury when he was hit in the face by a pitched ball. George was pitching against the second team, but was at the bat when the accident occurred.

The man who batted before the local boy reached first safely, and George was instructed to "dump" one as a sacrifice. The pitcher served up a speedy curve and as it "broke" it hit George in the thumb. The sphere then glanced up and struck him full in the mouth, knocking three front teeth loose. The stitches of the ball hit his lip and made a nasty gash in it that required medical attention. It was found necessary to have one stitch taken to close the wound.

Just how long it will take for it to heal is not known, but he will probably be out of practice for several weeks. The baseball coaches of that place put the old men against the new comers every year to test the raw material as it is a help in the spring for them to know who's who. Townley is sure of a position on the pitching squad next season because of his performances last year and will undoubtedly go on the southern trip the squad takes next spring.

WILL SHOOT FOR CUP.

Whitehouse, Oct. 10—A shoot for the championship of Central New Jersey is slated to take place at Peapack, Saturday, October 17. The marksmen will compete for the Stevens Cup and the shoot is open to the amateur shooters of Somerset, Hunterdon, Morris and Union counties. The trophy is to be shot for every two months until it has been won by some one shooter three times, when it will become the property of the marksman.

P. C. C. PLAYERS MAKE TIE SCORE

D. O. Rogers and T. S. Wheeler Each Return Card of 71.

D. O. Rogers and T. S. Wheeler were tie for first honors in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee Cup at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, each returning a score of 71. B. C. Kenyon finished second and W. M. Alling secured the one remaining point. These scores were posted.

D. O. Rogers, 80, 9-71; T. S. Wheeler, 87, 16-71; B. C. Kenyon, 89, 17-72; W. M. Alling, 89, 16-73; A. M. Collens, 90, 9-81.

These scores were returned in the wekly sweepstakes event:

D. O. Rogers, 80, 9-71; T. S. Wheeler, 87, 16-71; L. B. Alling, 94, 23-71; G. A. Bowmann, 99, 27-72; W. M. Alling, 89, 16-73; S. H. Patterson, 87, 12-75; S. D. Lounsbury, 84, 8-76; W. B. Gresham, 94, 17-77; A. M. Collens, 90, 9-81.

In the evening following the play on the course, there was the weekly dinner-dance, which was largely attended by members of the club. Van-Epps Brothers furnished a popular program of music for the dinner and the dance which folowed and continued until nearly midnight.

DR. H. K. CARROLL WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeats R. T. Phillips, 5 and 4, at the Park Golf Club.

Dr. H. K. Carroll is golf champion of the Park Golf Club, having won the honor on Saturday, when he defeated Royle T. Phillips, winner of the spring championship, in the final, by a score of 5 up and 4 to play. Dr. Carroll has been playing a fine game of golf this year and to many it was not a surprise that he won out, although Mr. Phillips has been putting up a steady and consistent game. The match was close from the start and Dr. Carroll was obliged to play his very best to win out. A week ago he defeated H. L. Moodey, thereby winning the fall championship.

These scores were posted for the President's and Oakmount Cups:

C. J. Hand, 95, 15-80; C. B. Morse, 95, 14-81; J. A. Wilson, 99, 13-86; J. V. Beekman, 103, 17-86; W. E. Lough, 102, 14-88; H. E. Blazier, 95, 6-89; Royle T. Phillips, 97, 7-90; H. B. Sweeney, 105, 15-90; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 96, 5-91.

COLLINS AND EVERS ARE AUTO WINNERS

Lucky Players Announced Who Will Receive 1914 Chalmers Cars.

Chicago, Oct. 5—Eddie Collins, of the Philadelphia club of the American League, and John Evers, of the Boston club of the National League, Saturday, were declared winners of the 1914 trophy presented by a Detroit manufacturer to the players whose services were the most valuable to their respective clubs. Each will receive an automobile as a prize as a result of the competition.

The vote of the trophy commission was canvassed here Saturday, with the result that Collins received 63 out of a possible 64 points, while Evers received 50 out of a possible 64 points.

FRANKLIN NEWELL WINS IN PACIFIC COAST MEET

Reports have been received from the Pacific coast of the performances of a Plainfield athlete who went West about a year ago. That person is Franklin B. Newell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin B. Newell, of Sherman avenue, who took part in an athletic meet held at Belmar Beach, California, under the auspices of the San Diego Merchants' Association recently. The meet was a large one and many good athletes who are noted in the western part of the country took part.

While in this city the local boy made a specialty of high jumping and took many prizes in that event in athletic meets both in this city and New York. He was one of the best high jumpers in this section and in the western meet he copped first place out of a large field. Newell was forced to go pretty high in order to get this place honor, but at last he accomplished the feat and was awarded first honors. In the broad jump he also excelled, but had to be contented with second place in this event. Newell ran on a relay team and aided his teammates to finish second in a close race. The local boy received handsome prizes for all of these performances.

CHIEF KIELY VISITED NEWARK POLICE GAMES

Chief of Police Kiely, of this city, was one of the spectators at the annual athletic meet held under the auspices of the Newark police department in Wiedenemayer's Park, Newark, Saturday afternoon, and had the satisfaction of seeing one of his own men, Jack Fritts, romp home a victor in the quarter mile run and in the mile walk, although he was disqualified on a technicality in the latter event.

The local police head is a hearty advocate of sports in the police department and was much elated over the success of Fritts. He was the guest of the Newark police chief on that occasion.

"HUB" STINE PLAYS ON VARSITY TEAM

Local Athlete Has Made a Guard Position on Springfield Eleven.

Plainfield's representatives at the Springfield Training School are making good along athletic lines as well as in their studies, according to reports that have come from different sources. There are at present four local boys at that place and all are well known in this city and vicinity for their athletic ability. Stine and Townley have had one year's experience at college before this but Jim Nash and Donald Sminck, the latter having graduated from the Plainfield High school last June, are at that institution for their first year and have been holding their own among other athletes who attend that school.

Sminck's ability as a pitcher has already been recognized and he has been used several times on the second team in the fall training. Early in the week the old men lined up against the "rookies" and Sminck was chosen to serve them up for the old men to swat. He walked two men and his team was beaten 10 to 0. Sminck faced Kingman, the Springfield graduate who is now with the Yankees, and the only thing the leaguer could do was to foul. He did that so many times that "Don" became disgusted and walked him to get some one else at the plate. There are five other southpaws at the college who are trying for the team and the local twirler will have to go some to make the team. He is anxious to be one of those chosen for the southern trip next spring and will spend most of his time in the gym with the baseball.

"Hub" Stine has made a position on the football team and played left guard against Worcester "Tech" last week, when his team won 39 to 0. The Springfield team went to Cambridge last Saturday afternoon and played Harvard for the first time in several years. All of the students were compelled to go with the team and the local boys were there with the rest of their schoolmates in the cheering section. Stine played the entire game against the Crimsons which was lost by a score of 44 to 0. At the end of the first half the score stood 10 to 0. Jim Nash has been handicapped because of his weight and although he has tried hard he has not yet made the first or second squads.

ROSELLE PARK BIRD WINS 150 MILE FLIGHT

The 150-mile flight of birds under the auspices of the Plainfield Homing Pigeon Club, took place on Saturday, the birds being liberated at Mt. Royal Station, Maryland, at 12:38 o'clock in the afternoon. The weather was clear with a southwest wind, with the same weather conditions at home. F. Rydziniski, of Roselle Park, won the race, his bird making 1151.59 yards per minute. The birds finished as follows:

F. Rydziniski, Roselle Park, 1151.59 yards per minute; J. Carberry, Westfield, 1140-77; F. C. Brunker, Westfield, 1126.06; R. S. Parsons, Plainfield, 1123.46; W. M. Lambert, Westfield, 1119.28; J. Fischer, Westfield, 1096.45.

RUNYON CAPTURED THIRD PLACE IN POLE VAULT

Ralph Runyon, of this city, returned to town Saturday with another large bronze medal in his possession. This he won at the Senior Metropolitan championships, which were held at Celtic Park, Saturday. Runyon competed for the Pastime A. C. and took part in the pole vault competition which is his specialty.

The local athlete was greatly handicapped because he did not have his own pole and succeeded only in getting third place with a jump of 11 feet. Thinking that he could easily get a long pole at the grounds, Runyon did not bother to express his own over, but when he got there he was forced to use one eleven feet long while his own is a thirteen footer.

BATTLE OF BRAWN WITHOUT RESULT

Holy Cross and Franklin Football Teams Fought to a Scoreless Draw.

GREAT CURTAIN RAISER

Visitors Exhibited Rare Sportsmanmanship and Prove Great Opening Day Opponents—Many Men Used in Both Lineups.

Hard line battering intermingled with forward passes few and far between featured the opening football engagement of the Holy Cross eleven on Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, when the Franklin A. A., of Newark, and the locals battled through four exciting quarters to a scoreless tie. While the result of the issue was the real essence of dissatisfaction to those who lined the extremities of the field with the expectancy of being handed a decision of some kind, there was plenty of good early season football in evidence. Saturday was an ideal day for the spectators but the warriors encountered anything but football weather. The gruelling warfare early had its effect on the combatants and substitutes were rushed to the rescue early in the first quarters. Shifts were frequent and numerous and many players succeeded in getting their initial taste of 1914 football.

A significant feature in the playing of both teams came in the fact that fumbles were among the absent actors. Speed and pugnacious slugging characterized the battling of the respective teams and the rooting sections were given plenty of opportunities to give vent to bursts of exuberance. True it was that Holy Cross came the nearest to scoring but the margin was so narrow that it can hardly be placed on a pedestal as an advantage. In the last few minutes of play the Franklins plowed down the field until they were within easy striking distance of the goal line. Here an error in judgment on the part of the visiting quarter gave the ball to Holy Cross. With but four yards to go on the two remaining downs the quarter took a chance on a forward pass and the oval went out of bounds, the ball being reclaimed by a Holy Cross man. Up to this juncture, Gillen, the visiting fullback, had been plowing up the turf with lion-like effect and had he been given the ball at this crucial stage he would probably have made the distance.

Superhuman defensive work on the part of "Turk" Webster stood out in the fray above all the other features. The little red and white end was responsible for the demise of many of the visitors' plays and when seemingly long runs were ready to be launched he appeared on the scene cutting to rout the interference and ball carrier at the same time. He was ever present and but for his work on the right wing more than one touchdown would have been recorded on the Franklins' side of the ledger.

Second only to Webster stood "Billy" Coyle, Jack Caulfield, Jerry Manning and Jack Wilson. This group, as well as the other ball rushers, did phenomenal work on the offense. Long gains went to the credit of each of these individuals. Caulfield grabbed a forward pass in the opening quarter and sprinted for the longest gain of the encounter. Manning hit the line hard and accounted for some long plunges.

Holy Cross had a line that was being battered by Newark huskies of the best calibre but it held like iron during the greater part of the bombardment. Each of the linemen deserving of a lot of credit for the work he did and it would be difficult to mount one above the other.

Gillen was the whole show in the invaders' rushing department. His bombardment of the Holy Cross line had its most telling effect in the last quarter. The visiting captain ploughed through the left wing for gain after gain and whenever a little ground was needed he was the man selected to grab the territory. Young Struble, playing quarterback, was another shining light, as was also his successor at this position.

Few injuries were suffered by the players during the contest and taken all in all, the opening engagement was one of the most successful staged here in years. The sentiment on the side lines was about evenly divided, there being nearly as many Newark rooters as Plainfield cohorts. The visitors put up a game exhibition and displayed some winning qualities during the game that gained them a place in the hearts of local followers of the sport. The same team appeared here in this city three times last year and sportsmanship was always an outstanding feature. Few arguments were started and these were always immediately hushed.

The line-up:

FRANKLINS	HOLY CROSS
Wuench	Caulfield, L. Manning
left end
Graham	Mair, Moore
left tackle
Flood, Malone, Leslie	Howarth, Glover
left guard
Banks	Carty

Struble	Webster
right end
Kiefer, J. Judge	Coyle
quarterback
Sonn, Coburn	J. Manning
left halfback
Yule	Ricketts
right halfback
Gillen	Wilson
fullback

Referee and umpire, Phillips and Dilley (alternated); head linesman, Hawe; linesmen, Wilson and Green. Time of quarters, 10 minutes.

MAHAFFEY INJURED IN FORDHAM GAME

Former Plainfield High School Star Playing Great Football for College.

One of the conspicuous figures in the football match between Fordham and Gallandet Universities, in New York, Saturday afternoon, was Taylor Mahaffey, a former Plainfield High School star. Mahaffey is one of the leading athletes in the Metropolitan college and besides being a baseball star he is considered a phenom at right end on the gridiron eleven.

Fordham nosed out the visiting team by a score of 7 to 6. In the latter part of the contest Mahaffey suffered a painful injury when he was kicked in the nose. For a time it was thought that the athletes nose was broken, but he responded readily to treatment after being taken from the conflict and will no doubt be back in the game by next Saturday.

Prior to his injury Mahaffey was the brilliant factor in the contest. Those who witnessed the contest say that his work both on the offense and defense was litle short of phenomenal and his loss to the eleven was a keenly felt one.

"HUB" STINE PLAYED FULL GAME FOR TRAINING SCHOOL

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 5—Blocking off an unusually open and diversified attack, Harvard defeated the Sprinfield Training School in the Stadium, Saturday, by a score of 44 to 0. In the last period the visitors stood on the Crimson 4-yard line with a first down, but fumbles robbed them of the honor of scoring.

"Hub" Stine, North Plainfield's representative on the Springfield team, played a full game at left guard and did some good defensive work.

Spreading out the forwards the width of the field, Springfield mystified Harvard during the first period and kept the ball almost entirely in Crimson territory. Fumbles by the visitors, line plunges and some well hurled forward passes by Harvard, with a field goal by Brickley, his first of the season, accounted for the Crimson scoring in the remaining periods.

SOUTH ORANGE NO MATCH FOR FAST WESTFIELD TEAM

Westfield, Oct. 5—The Westfield H. S. eleven opened its football season, Saturday, with an overwhelming defeat over the South Orange H. S. The locals had things all their own way and rolled up 53 points, while South Orange failed to score. Fitzsimmons, the quarterback for the South Orange lads, played a peppery game, but as a team South Orange was outclassed. The line-up:

Westfield H. S.	South Orange H. S.
Elliott	Clark, Badgeley
left end
Davis	Kirker (Capt.)
left tackle
Carberry	Brewer
left guard
Goltra, Cairns	Vanderbildt centre
Carberry	Adams
right guard
Marenghi	Phillips
right tackle
Brauer	Pierson
right end
Randall (Capt.)	Fitzsimmons
quarterback
Cruttenden	Seaman
right halfback
Ewing	Hegan, Folsom
left halfback
Bourne	Casler
fullback

Final score—53 to 0. Touchdowns—Randall 3, Cruttenden 3, Ewing 1, Bourne 1. Goals from touchdown—Ewing 5.

LINDERMAN IN ACTION.

Ernie Linderman, formerly a pitcher on the Plainfield team, was lucky yesterday, when he got away with a tie game against a picked team from the International League. Twirling for the Suburbans, Ernie was touched for ten bingles, while his teammates could collect only four. The final score was 4 to 4 after ten innings of play.

ONE DAY TOURNAMENT.

One of the popular one day meetings for women is on the card for tomorrow at the Plainfield Country Club and a large field is expected to compete. Several prizes will be offered for the winners.

DUTCH ARMS BAND AT RUTGERS' GAME

Randolph Mason, the former Bound Brook High School heavyweight athlete, who is in his freshman year at Rutgers College, played right guard on the varsity team, Saturday, for one half the game, and the first touchdown that the home team made was put through the Bound Brook boys position after he had made a hole.

The Dutch Arms Band, of this city, played at the game and will probably furnish music for all of the home games of the New Brunswick team.

WITH THE BOXERS

Leach Cross and Gilbert Gallant will probably meet at the Atlas A. A., Boston, on October 13.

Clarence Ferns and Bud Logan have been matched to box at St. Joseph, Mo., on October 17.

Young Shugre has signed to box three more bouts in Australia. The Jersey lightweight will get $6,000, or the privilege of 25 per cent of the receipts.

The Johnny Kilbane-Abe Attell bout, which was to take place October 13, has been indefintely postponed because of an injury Kilbane received by being thrown from a horse.

Packey McFarland has retired from the ring for good. He intends to devote his time in future to looking after his wife's interest in an Illinois brewery innerited by her from her father.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Hinkey, of Yale, probably will be field judge at the Harvard-Michigan game October 31.

Tom Enwright, Exeter's star of last year, who has been called the greatest schoolboy football player in America, is now at Yale.

Manager George Murray, of Princeton, says the new stadium field at Nassau will be ready for use on November 14, when the Tigers meet the Yale team.

Clarke, Penn State's punter, is already getting off drives of 60 yards. Penn State can always be relied upon to develop one or more gridiron stars.

Harvard and Yale students will be allowed to make application for four instead of two seats for the Yale-Harvard game. Two seats have been the limit for several years past.

BOSPHORUS CLOSED.

London, Oct. 5—A despatch from Rome says that advices have been received there from Constantinople that Turkey has closed the Bosphorus. Smyrna has been closed to shipment owing to the presence of floating mines.

SEVERELY DAMAGED.

Smyrna, Oct. 5.—The towns on Isbarta, population of about 25,000, and Burdur, population about 12,000, in the province of Konia, were severely damaged by an earthquake Saturday midnight. The loss of life was very heavy. These towns are centres of the carpet industry.

ARREST OF AUTOISTS AROUSES COURT'S IRE

Defendants Arraigned This Morning on Doubtful Charges Let Go.

Alleged to have exceeded the speed limit by a margin of three miles, Edward N. Clark, of Roselle, and H. Ames Blunddleman, of Garwood, were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, following their arrest on West Front street by Patrolman Nicholas Meyers, Saturday afternoon. The two drivers convinced the court that they were driving carefully and the evidence showed that Clark was not going faster than ten miles. Suspended sentences were handed out in each case.

In the opinion of the court the arrests were made without discretion on the part of the officer and in view of the fact that the evidence was not convincing and the frankness of the defendants the court saw fit to let the alleged speeders go unpunished.

COMPLETE SILENCE OVER THE MEXICAN SITUATION

Washington, Oct. 5.—Almost complete silence has settled over the situation in Mexico, President Wilson told callers today and the White House during the past twenty-four hours has been in receipt of only the most meagre information. The administration, however, still effects to be hopeful that conditions will adjust themselves. The President was advised today that U. S. Consul John R. Silliman was on his way to Washington from Torreon. Some mystery attends the coming of the Consul at this time, the administration declaring he had not been ordered to report here. It is believed Mr. Silliman may be the bearer of important communications to this government.

U. S. COURT DECREE IS ORDERED AMENDED

St. Paul, Oct. 5—A decree of the United States court ordering the dissolution of the International Harvester Company under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law has been amended by Judges Sanborn, Hook and Smith. The trial not to apply to the foreign trade of the company. Counsel for the company gave notice of appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The original decree made it compulsory for the company to lay before the court a plan for the separation of business and assets into at least three separate corporations. Under the amendment, the specific number three is eliminated.

MAY SUBSTITUTE COTTON CORD

Washington, Oct. 5—Postmaster General Burleson today ordered a committee of postal officials to begin an inquiry looking to the substitution of cotton cord for the jute twine used in enormous quantities by the postal service. During the fiscal year ended June 30 last more than 1,700,000 pounds of jute twine were bought and used by the postoffice department.

THREE CONVICTS ESCAPED.

Chief Kiely, of the local police force, has been requested to have his men keep on the lookout for three Italian convicts who escaped last night from the convict road camp at Rocky Hill. They were pursued by guards and one is said to have boarded a freigh coming in this direction. The local police kept a careful watch of freight ttrains that went through here last night, but no trace of the culprit was found.

MICHAEL VENEPELLI.

Michael Venepelli, of 340 East Third street, died at his home yesterday in the 29th year of his age. He leaves a wife and one child. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Mary's church and the Italian Nest of Owls, 1733, of which he was a member, will have charge of the services. Interment will be made at St. Mary's cemetery.

HE PAID THE FINE.

For being disorderly about his premises in the West End of town, Samuel Hunt, colored, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, and sentenced to pay a fine of $8 or serve forty days in the county jail. His wife alleged that the man had been intoxicated.

PRESIDENT IS PLEASED.

Washington, Oct. 5—Apparently so pleased is President Wilson with the manner in which a Democratic house responded to his wishes along legislative lines, that he is contemplating the issue of a blanket letter of indorsement for every Democratic member seeking re-election.

DEMURRERS FILED.

Boston, Oct. 5.—Demurrers have been filed in the Superior Court to the suit brought on behalf of stockholders against former and present directors of the New Haven Railroad to recover $102,000,000, which they charged with having wrongfully expended.

CHAPTER XX.

No Limit to Knowledge or Power.

"THESE questions are the next questions to which research will bring us answers," said Karenin. "While we sit here and talk idly and inexactly of what is needed and what may be, there are hundreds of keen witted men and women who are working these things out, dispassionately and certainly, for the love of knowledge. The next science to yield great harvests now will be psychology and neural physiology. These perplexities of the situation between man and woman and the trouble with the obstinacy of egotism—these are temporary troubles, the issue of our own times. Suddenly all these differences that seem so fixed will dissolve, all these incompatibles will run together, and we shall go on to mold our bodies and our bodily feelings and personal reactions as boldly as we begin now to carve mountains and set the seas in their places and change the currents of the winds."

"It is the next wave," said Fowler, who had come out upon the terrace and seated himself silently behind Karenin's chair.

"Of course, in the old days," said Edwards, "men were tied to their city or their country, tied to the homes they owned or the work they did."

"I do not see," said Karenin, "that there is any final limit to man's power of self modification."

"There is none," said Fowler, walking forward and sitting down upon the parapet in front of Karenin so that he could see his face. "There is no absolute limit to either knowledge or power. I hope you do not tire yourself talking."

"I am interested," said Karenin. "I suppose in a little while men will cease to be tired. I suppose in a little time you will give us something that will hurry away the fatigue products and restore our jaded tissues almost at once. This old machine may be made to run without slacking or cessation."

"That is possible, Karenin. But there is much to learn."

"And all the hours we give to digestion and half living. Don't you think there will be some way of saving these?"

Fowler nodded assent.

"And then sleep again. When man with his blazing lights made an end to night in his towns and houses—it is only a hundred years or so ago that was done—then it followed he would presently resent his eight hours of uselessness. Shan't we presently take a tabloid or lie in some field of force that will enable us to do with an hour or so of slumber and then rise refreshed again?"

"Frobisher and Ameer Ali have done work in that direction."

"And then the inconveniences of age and those diseases of the system that come with years; steadily you drive them back and you lengthen and lengthen the years that stretch between the passionate tumults of youth and the contractions of senility. Man, who used to weaken and die as his teeth decayed, now looks forward to a continually lengthening, continually fuller term of years. And all those parts of him that once gathered evil against him, the vestigial structures and odd treacherous corners of his body, you know better and better how to deal with. You carve his body about and leave it remodeled and unscarred. The psychologists are learning how to mold minds, to reduce and remove bad complexes of thought and motive, to relieve pressures and broaden ideas. So that we are becoming more and more capable of transmitting what we have learned and preserving it for the race. The race, the racial wisdom, science, gather power continually to subdue the individual man to its own end. Is that not so?"

Fowler said that it was, and for a time he was telling Karenin of new work that was in progress in India and Russia. "And how is it with heredity?" asked Karenin.

Fowler told them of the mass of inquiry accumulated and arranged by the genius of Tchen, who was beginning to define clearly the laws of inheritance and how the sex of children and the complexions and many of the parental qualities could be determined.

"He can actually do"—

"It is still, so to speak, a mere laboratory triumph," said Fowler, "but tomorrow it will be practicable."

"You see," cried Karenin, turning a laughing face to Rachel and Edith, "while we have been theorizing about men and women, here is science getting the power for us to end that old dispute forever. If woman is too much for us we'll reduce her to a minority, and if we do not like any type of men and women we'll have no more of it. These old bodies, these old animal limitations, all this earthy inheritance of gross inevitabilities, falls from the spirit of man like the shriveled cocoon from an imago. And for my own part, when I hear of these things I feel like that—like a wet, crawling, new moth that still fears to spread its wings, because where do these things take us?"

"Beyond humanity," said Kahn.

"No," said Karenin. "We can still keep our feet upon the earth that made us. But the air no longer imprisons us. This round planet is no longer chained to us like the ball of a galley slave. In a little while men who will know how to bear the strange gravitations, the altered pressures, the attenuated, unfamiliar gases and all the fearful strangenesses of space, will be venturing from this earth. This ball will be no longer enough for us; our spirit will reach out. Cannot you see how that little argosy will go glittering up into the sky, twinkling and glittering smaller and smaller, until the blue swallows it up. They may succeed out there; they may perish, but other men will follow them.

"It is as if a great window opened," said Karenin.

As the evening drew on, Karenin and those who were about him went up upon the roof of the buildings so that they might the better watch the sunset and the flushing of the mountains and the coming of the afterglow. They were joined by two of the surgeons from the laboratories below, and presently by a nurse, who brought Karenin refreshment in a thin glass cup. It was a cloudless, windless evening under the deep blue sky, and far away to the north glittered two biplanes on the way to the observatories on Everest, 200 miles distant over the precipices to the east. The little group of people watched them pass over the mountains and vanish into the blue, and then for a time they talked of the work that the observatory was doing. From that they passed to the whole process of research about the world, and so Karenin's thoughts returned again to the mind of the world and the great future that was opening upon man's imagination. He asked the surgeons many questions upon the detailed possibilities of their science, and he was keenly interested and excited by the things they told him.

And as they talked the sun touched the mountains and became very swiftly a blazing and indented hemisphere of liquid flame and sank.

Karenin looked blinking at the last quivering rim of incandescence and shaded his eyes and became silent.

Presently he gave a little start.

"What?" asked Rachel Borken.

"I had forgotten," he said.

"What had you forgotten?"

"I had forgotten about the operation tomorrow. I have been so interested as man today that I have nearly forgotten Marcus Karenin. Marcus Karenin must go under your knife tomorrow, Fowler, and very probably Marcus Karenin will die." He raised his slightly shriveled hand. "It does not matter, Fowler. It scarcely matters, even to me. For, indeed, is it Karenin who has been sitting here and talking? Is it not rather a common mind, Fowler, that has played about between us? You and I and all of us have added thought to thought, but the thread is neither you nor me. What is true we all have. When the individual has brought himself altogether to the test and winnowing of expression then the individual is done. I feel as though I had already been emptied out of that little vessel, Marcus Karenin, that once in my youth held me so tightly and completely. Your beauty, dear Edith, and your broad brow, dear Rachel, and you, Fowler, with your firm and skillful hands, are now almost as much me as this hand that beats the arm of my chair. And as little me. And the spirit that desires to know, the spirit that resolves to do, that spirit that lives and has talked in us today, lived in Athens, lived in Florence, lives on, I know, forever.

"And you, old sun, you sword of flame, searing these poor old eyes of Marcus for the last time of all, beware of me! You think I die, and, indeed, I am only taking off one more coat to get at you. I have threatened you for 10,000 years, and soon I warn you I shall be coming, when I am altogether stripped and my disguises thrown away. Very soon now, old sun, I shall launch myself at you, and I shall reach you, and I shall put my foot on your spotted face and tug you about by your fiery locks. One step I shall take to the moon, and then I shall leap at you. I've talked to you before, old sun. I've talked to you a million times, and now I am beginning to remember. Yes; long ago, long ago, before I had stripped off a few thousand generations, dust now and forgotten, I was a hairy savage, and I pointed my hand at you, and—clearly I remember it—I saw you in a net. Have you forgotten that, old sun?

"Old sun, I gather myself together out of the pools of the individual that have held me dispersed so long. I gather my billion thoughts into science and my million wills into a common purpose. Well may you slink down behind the mountain from me, well may you cower."

Karenin desired that he might dream alone for a little while before he returned to the cell in which he was to sleep. He was given relief for a pain that began to trouble him and wrapped warmly about with furs, for a great coldness was creeping over all things, and so they left him, and he sat for a long time watching the afterglow give place to the darkness of night.

It seemed to those who had to watch over him unobtrusively, lest he should be in want of any attention, that he mused very deeply.

The white and purple peaks against the golden sky sank down into cold blue remoteness, glowed out again and faded again, and the burning cressets of the Indian stars, that even the moonrise cannot altogether quench, began their vigil. The moon rose behind the towering screen of dark precipices to the east, and long before it emerged above these, its slanting beams had filled the deep gorges below with luminous mist and turned the towers and pinnacles of Lio Porgyul to a magic dream castle of radiance and wonder.

Came a great uprush of ghostly light above the black rim of rocks, and then, like a bubble that is blown and detaches itself, the moon floated off clear into the unfathomable dark sky.

And then Karenin stood up. He walked a few paces along the terrace and remained for a time gazing up at that great silver disk, that silvery shield that must needs be man's first conquest in outer space.

Presently he turned about and stood with his hands folded behind him, looking at the northward stars.

At length he went to his own cell. He lay down there and slept peacefully till the morning. And early in the morning they came to him, and the anaesthetic was given him and the operation performed.

It was altogether successful, but Karenin was weak, and he had to lie very still, and about seven days later a blood clot detached itself from the healing scar and traveled to his heart and he died in an instant in the night.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

This plain, semifitting basque with tunic attached is one of the newest and smartest garments.

It does not fit snugly, taking straight lines under the arms, and consequently it is becoming both to slender women and to those of fuller figures. The long, plain sleeves with flaring cuffs and the flaring collar make important features.

For dressy afternoon occasions a wide sash makes an exceedingly attractive effect.

For the medium size the basque and tunic will require seven and three-

Some Cookery Suggestions

FOR SCHOOL LUNCHEONS.

WITH the opening of school the demand for dainty sandwiches is in order in households where the children take their luncheons with them. For this purpose plain yet nutritious foods are required. Some excellent sandwiches are suggested here.

Novel Fruit Sandwiches.

Toasted Banana Sandwiches.—Take four bananas and thin slices of bread and butter. Skin and scrape the bananas, cut in thin slices the long way, lay on bread evenly, dust with a little salt, press together, put in shallow pan, place in oven until nice and brown. Serve while warm.

Minced Chicken Sandwiches.—This sandwich is a favorite in the south and is often served for luncheon. Cut brown bread into thin slices and spread with this filling. Mix together one cupful of white meat of cold minced chicken, one tablespoonful of minced Spanish onion, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and cayenne pepper, two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream. Garnish with a sprig of parsley or green bay.

Served on Stale Bread.

Sardine Sandwiches.—Scrape the skin lightly from as many canned sardines as will be required. Split them open, cut off the tails and remove any bones there may be. Butter thin slices of bread from a stale loaf and lay the sardines between two of them. Cut away the crust and press the slices with the hand to make them adhere; garnish with parsley. Cut them with a sharp knife into long, narrow sandwiches.

Meat and Potato Sandwiches.—Take slices of cold meat, six parboiled or cold potatoes, a tablespoonful of butter, one egg, a little milk, seasonings to taste, and frying fat. Cut the meat into thin slices, season with chopped parsley, salt and pepper. Peel, boil and mash six potatoes, add the butter, the seasoning and milk. After covering the slices of meat on both sides with the mixture, dip in beaten egg and fry till a light brown in boiling fat. Serve on a hot dish, prettily garnished.

Nutritious and Dainty.

Toasted Cheese Sandwiches.—Cut slices of bread a little more thickly than is usual for sandwiches, spread one slice with butter and the other with a filling made by grating or grinding through a food chopper one-half pound of cheese, to which may be added any desired seasoning, as, for instance, a few drops of onion juice, a little butter if the cheese is dry, a little fresh or canned pepper or a sprinkling of nuts. Spread the filling generously on the bread, press the two slices firmly together and toast the outer surfaces, during which process the cheese will slightly melt. Serve very hot, not preparing the sandwiches until ready to place them on the table.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Brown Bear Babies Caught In The Mountains.

They Climbed Up to the Top of a Sturdy Tree.

"WHAT shall it be tonight, youngsters?" asked daddy as Jack and Evelyn climbed up on his knee for the evening story.

"One of those 'way out west' stories, daddy, that you used to tell us about last winter," said Jack, who liked adventure.

"Fine, fine. I'll tell you about two naughty little bears that ran away from their mother's cave. One was a little boy baby bear and the other was a girl baby bear, and they were two of the most frolicsome babies that you ever saw.

"One morning the mamma bear washed their faces all clean with her big funny tongue, looked over their hands to see if their nails were clean and then told them to stay at home while she went out to hunt for food.

"Mamma Bear made them promise that they would go only a little 'teenty' way, and then she let them go out in the yard to play while she trudged away out in the forest to get a nice dinner. Papa Bear had gone on a long journey, so she couldn't depend upon him to provide for her.

"The little bears tried to play with their shadows, but found them too elusive. Then they climbed the trees and played with the leaves, frolicking and gamboling on the limbs until you would think they would have fallen to the ground and broken their necks. They climbed up to the top of a sturdy tree and looked around.

"The landscape a long way off looked very attractive to them—oh, much more attractive than the place where they were!—so these two naughty babies climbed down that tree and ambled away to find something new.

"They found, as they expected, that the country was beautiful. They wandered on and on, finding something to interest them every minute, until, alas and alack, two men came along, each with a big black bag, into which they popped these two baby bears.

"Their struggles did not help them a bit. Pretty soon they were put into a car and they rode and rode for days across the country. Then one morning they wakened. Everything about them was strange. They were very homesick and cried for their mother and the cave in which they had been so happy.

"For now they were fenced in a pen; there were poles to climb instead of trees; there was a bathing pool, but it wasn't like the dear sparkling stream where they had been wont to bathe. And then two legged animals came and peered through the fence at them.

"After awhile they got used to the life and forgot the cave and their poor mother and grew to like the food and peanuts that were fed them. And after awhile the city zoological gardens seemed like home to them."

PUBLIC INVITED TO JOIN CITY'S CHORAL SOCIETY

The Public Recreation Committee has announced that a Choral Society will be formed in this city. For several years the need of such an organization has been felt and many have been heard to say that they would enjoy singing in a large chorus. S. Frederick Smith has been engaged as the musical director.

This should appeal very strongly to all music lovers, to the various choirs of the city, the teachers from the public schools and all people who have enthusiasm for music and singing.

The first meeting for organization will be held Tuesday evening, October 13, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Franklin School.

BOARD SUSTAINS PRINCIPAL BEST

Local Educational Directors Report Findings at Meeting Held Last Night.

WILL LEASE A CHURCH

Netherwood Reformed Edifice to Be Turned Into Temporary School Quarters—Evening School Will Be Opened October 13.

The Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting in the High School, last night at 8 o'clock, at which an unusual amount of routine business was transacted. Rev. Edward S. Ralston, representing the consistory of the Netherwood Presbyterian church, was present at the meeting, and definite arrangements for the immediate leasing of the church to the school Board for kindergarten purposes this winter were concluded. It is probable that the new school will be opened before the end of the month.

No action was taken on any of the bids for the Evergreen Avenue School as the Board has postponed the acceptance of the bids until a meeting with the Common Council, which is to be held Thursday night. Reports were received as to the records and responsibility of several bidders, and referred to the building committee for action.

Dr. Maxson presented his report as superintendent of schools, showing an increased registration over the past year, and announcing the opening of the evening schools on October 13, and a course of free lectures under the auspices of the school Board, beginning next Thursday evening, with a concert by the Lotus Glee Club.

The teachers' committee, to whom the communication of Mr. Lounsbury, complaining of administrative methods in the High School was referred, presented a written report containing findings of the committee after a full hearing of the matter, which report sustained and approved the action of Principal Best in the case complained of. The report will be published in tomorrow's Daily Press.

While the exact registration for the evening classes opened in the High School, last night, is not yet available, sufficient figures are on hand to make it certain that the evening courses will be more popular than usual this year.

The large registration was particularly noticeable in the commercial and mechanical drawing courses, which are included in the evening courses for the first time this year.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WILL TAKE JUNIOR LIFE SAVING EXAMS

Physical Director Robert L. Mermans, of the local association, will inaugurate a series of junior life saving examinations for the members of the boys' leagues Saturday morning. The examination will be divided into seven classes, being listed as A, B, C, D, E, F, G. The last named will be the first and easiest exam and the members of the "Indian" League will take it Saturday. It will consist of a swim of fifty feet on the breast and twenty-five feet on the back and several dives. After passing this class of exam, the boys will move up until they get to class A.

The exam for class A will naturally be hard as the boys must know how to save a comrade and swim a long distance. When this class is passed the successful boy will be rewarded with a gold life-saving medal. The course is not being given to teach the boys speed, but to teach them to swim for endurance and to be able to save a life.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO MEET FOR YEAR'S ORGANIZATION

The Plainfield High School Commercial Club will meet for the first time this year at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium. Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools, will make an address to the members and the High School orchestra will furnish the music.

A former Plainfield High School pupil will give an exhibition of typewriting for speed and matters of interest to the organization will be discussed.

FAILED TO APPEAR.

Arthur Crouse, of Raritan, who was taken from a blind baggage by the local police Saturday night and released to appear today on a charge of illegal train riding, failed to appear in court. He will be arrested.

OCTOBER TERM OF COURT OPENS

Justice Bergen Charges Grand Jury Relative to Explosion at Union.

Elizabeth, October 6.—The October term of the Oyer and Terminer Court opened this morning with Justice James Bergen presiding. Seated with him on the bench were Judge William H. Spear, of the Circuit Court, and James C. Connolly, the county judge. Justice Bergen charged the Grand Jury, of which John W. Clift, of Summit, is the foreman.

Special reference was made by the Justice to the explosion at the works of the Wright Chemical Company, at Union, on September 18, when three lives were lost and several injured. The coroner's jury found the company guilty of negligence. Should the Grand Jury find evidence that the former verdict was well founded, an indictment against the corporation is expected.

The second part of the charge related especially to possible excise indictments, the Justice pointing out that the jury should lay aside any personal opinions they may have concerning the wisdom of liquor laws, as it was their duty to use the laws as they found them.

MAY NOT AWARD SEWER CONTRACT

Wisdom of Going Ahead With Work at Present is Questioned.

The advisability of the Joint Sewage Commission, representing Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, awarding a contract for the constructions of its proposed joint sewage system at this time has been questioned by several persons who are in touch with the financial situation. According to the plans the Commission is scheduled to meet tomorrow night to receive bids for this work. It does not necessarily have to accept any bid nor award a contract at this time.

The reasons given for holding the matter for the present, at least, are that while the $30,000 issue of bonds was sold at 4½ per cent., if 6 per cent. is charged the extra expense for interest would amount to a large sum in the course of the twenty years the average length of the bonds.

Another matter to be given serious consideration is that the right of way for the trunk line has not yet been secured and this, it is estimated will cost approximately between $10,000 and $15,000. The present condition of the money market makes it exceedingly difficult to sell bonds and while it is argued that perhaps the Commission would not have any great amount of trouble in disposing of the bonds, there are many who do not think it wise to incur the extra expense at this time. It is known that several members of the Common Council are strongly in favor of going slow at this juncture of the sewer proceedings.

WILL ORGANIZE EAST END CIVIC ASSOCIATION

The East End Civic Association will be organized at a meeting to be held this evening in the Netherwood Reformed church, Leland and Midway avenues. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock, at which time the committee on organization, which was appointed at a mass meeting last summer, will present a constitution for adoption.

Officers will be elected and there will be several interesting addresses and good music. All who are interested are invited to attend and have a part in the plan for building up and caring for the welfare of the East End.

OBSERVED "PEACE SUNDAY."

Peace Day was observed at the Marconnier Reformed church, at Oak Tree, Sunday morning, at which time Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale read the proclamation of President Wilson, and offered prayers for universal peace. Communion service was also held at that time, when four were received into church membership, two on confession of faith and two on letters from other churches. The service was marked by a large attendance.

McALL AUXILIARY MEETING.

The McAll Auxiliary will hold a meeting tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. building. The situation as is being faced by the organization in France at the present time because of the war, where several leaders of the movement are at the front, will be discussed at length.

Work on Plainfield's New Post Office to Start in Spring

New Government Building As It Appears in Architect's Drawing.

The plans and specifications for the new postoffice building to be erected on Watchung avenue, are now complete, and according to information received from Washington, bids for the actual work will be received about the first of the year. The Daily Press is able today to publish for the first time a picture of the new building as it will look from the exterior when completed. As will be seen by the picture it will be a classic building of Italian Rendissance design, having a colonnaded front. It will be one story high, about one hundred feet square, with splendid interior accommodations for the postal business in Plainfield. The structure will be of marble, it is said, and will be imposing from every angle.

The fact that the whole appropriation for this building is now available assures its erection in the not very distant future. The exterior facing for the walls will be stone, the roof composition and the building will be of fireproof construction throughout with the exception of the roof.

The public lobby will have a terrazzo floor, marble wainscot, cast metal screen and windows. The room set apart for the postmaster will have the usual office finish and will have every convenience. The workroom will have wood wainscot and plain finish. The toilets will have marble wainscot and terrazzo floors. The remaining interior finishings will be in harmony with the whole general decorative scheme.

Upon the basis of such data as it has been possible to secure through the postmaster and other local representatives of the Government, it is learned that the front of the building will face Watchung avenue and that the only entrance to the postoffice for the public will be on that avenue.

When it is realized that there are a great many other plans for Federal buildings underway it is considered fortunate that such rapid progress has been made on the plans for the local postoffice. The proposition was originally started by former United States Senator John Kean and United States Senator James E. Martine and Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., for their persistent efforts in pushing the thing along and securing an extra appropriation which was necessary to erect a building that would meet the growing needs of Plainfield. The total appropriation for land and buildings amounts to $250,000.

There is now more than thirty-eight million dollars worth of work in the office of the architect and the average output for the last five years has been something less than six million dollars annually. Some of the buildings must wait between six and seven years before construction begins. The Plainfield building was not authorized until June 25, 1910, and it ought to be underway early next year.

OFFER OF CITY BANK ACCEPTED

Local Institution Takes the $13,000 5 Per Cent. Street Improvement Bonds.

WORK WILL PROCEED

Common Council Receives Official Report on Borough Consolidation Election—Petitions for New Lights—Other Routine Matters.

The offer of the City National Bank to take the city's $13,000 street improvement bonds at 5 per cent. received at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, was accepted, in accordance with a resolution by Councilman Leighton Calkins, chairman of the finance committee. These are three year bonds and may be retired at any time within that period. The city had had some little trouble in disposing of the bonds on account of the money market and there was some talk of offering them to individuals here. The City National Bank's offer will now make it possible to go ahead with the proposed street work which was held up several weeks ago.

MISS JEAN SAUNDERS TO BE AN OCTOBER BRIDE

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, has issued invitations to the wedding reception of his daughter, Miss Jean Morton Saunders and Marson Innes Buttfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Buttfield, formerly of the borough, but now of this city. The couple will be married on Saturday, October 24, and the reception will follow at the home of the bride-elect's father, 112 Rockview avenue, from 12:30 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

SYMPATHIZER SENDS $5 FOR BELGIAN RELIEF

That the people of Plainfield are ready and willing to help the suffering women and children of Belgium becomes more evident every day, as the subscriptions sent to the Daily Press indicate. This morning two contributions of $5 each from sympathizers was received, to be turned over to the local relief committee, who will in turn see that the money goes to the relief committee in New York.

If space permitted, the Daily Press would reprint the article from the last issue of the Saturday Evening Post, in which the pitiful condition of the aged, the widows, and the fatherless children of King Albert's country are described. No more telling appeal could be made than to have Plainfielders realize the complete devastation of the little kingdom, in which there are tens of thousands of homeless people, thousands of whom in turn have been forever deprived of their breadwinners. It will be years before normal conditions can be restored, and until that time all the rest of the world will be called upon to contribute toward keeping body and soul together in the stricken land.

Contributions for the worthy cause may be sent to the Press office, and will be promptly forwarded to the proper authorities. No amount is too small, and the larger the better.

JOHN M. SCHORB ASKS TO HAVE NAME REVOKED

John M. Schorb, executor of the estate of Elizabeth Schorb, in a communication to the Common Council, last night, requested that his name be revoked on the liquor license application of Ellsworth C. Wescott, at the end of the present license year. While no explanation accompanied the request of Mr. Schorb, it is said that he is anxious to regain possession of that part of the property owned by the estate and which is used for cafe purposes by Mr. Wescott.

Mr. Wescott has conducted a saloon at his present place of business in East Front street, adjoining the First National Bank, for several years, having succeeded Henry Haurand, who afterward removed to North Plainfield. It is not known whether Mr. Schorb has in mind making any changes or not.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Trachtenberg, of 661 West Fourth street, are parents of a 9½ pound girl, born to them last Friday.

PROTEST AGAINST CLARK'S SALOON

Congregation Ohavei Zedek Complains to the Common Council.

SAY IT'S A NUISANCE

Councilmen Engage in a Breezy Discussion in Which Mr. Graves Gives His Views—License Committee Instructed to Investigate.

The protest from the Hebrew congregation Ohavei Zedek, West Third street, against the Clark saloon at West Third and Liberty streets, which was received by the Common Council at its October meeting, last night, resulted in a breezy discussion among the members of the Council as to what disposition should be made of the communication.

The congregation complained that crowds congregate in and about the saloon, that there is loud and indecent language used and that the meetings of the congregation are disturbed frequently, and it was urged that relief be given from the alleged nuisance. Accompanying the protest was a communication from the W. C. T. U. endorsing the action.

G. O. P. PLAN FOR AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN

The Fourth Ward Republican Club is scheduled to meet this evening at Republican headquarters in the Frost building. A number of important matters are to be presented to the gathering, and a large attendance of the members is desired.

The City Republican Executive Committee will also meet this evening at headquarters, at which time a number of recommendations from the county committee will be discussed at length.

HOSPITAL GOVERNORS RESUME "HARVEST HOME" FESTIVAL

Prior to three years ago it was the custom for Muhlenberg Hospital, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary Board, to hold annually a "harvest home" reception, at which the people of Plainfield and vicinity had the opportunity of donating staple groceries, canned goods, etc., for the use of the institution. The activities of the "whirlwind campaign" and the demands that undertaking made on the people's time and resources made it inexpedient during that time to continue this custom.

The needs of the hospital, however, in respect to these donations were just as urgent during that period as they were before the custom was abandoned. People of Plainfield are urged to remember the needs of Muhlenberg Hospital and any donations in the way of flour, sugar, canned goods, preserves or anything else that will be useful in the operation of the household affairs of the institution will be most welcome and most thankfully received. Such contributions may be sent to the hospital at any time and will be taken care of and duly acknowledged by the superintendent.

FIRST FALL MEETING.

The Brightside Circle of King's Daughters will hold its first fall meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of 16 Mountain avenue, next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. All members are urged to notice the present if possible.

LITTLE CHANGE IN SITUATION AS ALLIES AND GERMANS STRIVE FOR SUPREMACY IN GREAT BATTLE

ALTERNATING ADVANCES AND RECOILS REPORTED, WITH BOTH SIDES CLAIMING SLIGHT GAINS —VON MOLTKE DEPOSED.

KAISER SHIFTS GENERALS IS THE REPORT

New Turning Movement Promised That Will Carry British and French Troops to the German Border is Promised in London Despatch—Japanese Take German Island in South Seas—Germans Have 250,000 Prisoners.

Paris, Oct. 6.—An official statement issued by the war office at 3 p. m. today indicated that the Allies' left wing is extending.

The statement says: "On our left wing the front is becoming more and more extended. Some German cavalry forces of very large size have been reported in the environs of Lille, advancing before forces of the enemy, which are making a movement through the region to the north line of Turcoing, Armemtieres.

"Around Arras and on the right bank of the Somme the situation is unchanged. Between the Somme and the Oise there have been alternative advances and recoils. Near Lassigny the enemy attempted a fierce assault which failed.

"On the right bank of the Aisne at the north of Soissons we have advanced slightly, with the co-operation of the British army. We have likewise made some progress in the region of Berry au Bac. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report.

"In the Belgian theatre of war the Belgian forces which are defending Antwerp have occupied in strength the line from the Rupel to the Nethe against which the German attacks have failed."

Bordeaux, Oct. 6, (Central News Cable)—Important changes in the German organization have been learned here following the removal of Count Von Moltke as chief of staff. General Von Mogen will replace General Von Hindenburg in East Prussia; General Eberhardt will become governor of Strassburg; General Von Gerck will be governor of Ulm and General Ludimghausen will replace General Von Luckwald as governor of Coblentz.

The Germans in the battle of Aisne have adopted a new form of trench. It is in the shape of a squared bay window, with mitrailleuses planted at each corner. When the Allies advance to the attack the Germans fire simultaneously along every trench, and the attacking force is thus met by a deadly cross fire. Line after line of these trenches have to be conquered by the Allies in every advance. It is a battle of fortresses and progress is slow. The indications are that the Germans are trying to hold the Allies back in the hope of defeating the Russian advance on Berlin.

London, Oct. 6, (Central News Cable)—A new turning movement so all encompassing in its scope that it will carry British and French troops to the German border through Belgium and threaten not only the German lines of communication into France but to cut off all the German armies in France is believed to be revealed by the latest accounts of the developments which are allowed by the censor to reach the public. The check of the flanking movement of the Allies in the vicinity of Douai and Arras, where it was admitted yesterday by the war office that the French were forced to cede positions, is overshadowed by the larger movement which has already pushed forward until British artillery is shoulder to shoulder with the Belgians opposite the Germans along the river Nethe.

A despatch from Berlin via The Hague gives today's official German war bulletin as follows: "The offensive of the German troops on both wings of the battle line in France continues and we are pushing forward slowly and in perfect order. We now occupy the former positions of the allies on the west front, but the fighting continues with cessation. Under our overwhelming pressure on both wings we have compelled the enemy to take up less advantageous positions.

"In the eastern theatre of war, we continue our offensive unchecked. The general battle has not materialized, although there is constant skirmishing, much of it in force."

Advices from Vienna say that Przemysl defies all efforts of the Russians to take it, and that the Russian forward movement in Galicia has been checked.

London, Oct. 6 (Special cable from Alfred J. Rorke, Central News correspondent)—The official statement that the German trenches have been carried marks the termination of what is probably one of the fiercest contested trench engagements in history. The honor lies largely with the British troops, particularly two famous Highland regiments. For some days the Allies have been advancing until the distance separating the trenches of the combatants was little more than 200 metres. Over this distance a continuous rifle fire was kept up night and day, punctuated by infantry rushes from either side. During lulls in the firing the German and English troops shouted to each other. It was only a question of time before one side must be hurled back by a terrific bayonet charge.

A Pekin despatch today states that the agreement reached between Japan and China regarding the Shantung Railroad is that Japan shall temporarily assume control of the administration of the line and that after the war the ownership will be decided. It was stated that China does not recognize Japan's claim that the railroad was purely a German line. Japan has seized the line for use in operating against the German fortress of Tsing Tau.

Advices from Vienna say that it has been announced there that the Russians have already installed their own system of local government in Galicia, using every means to gain the confidence of the population by respecting local customs. They have succeeded with little difficulty in ingratiating themselves, even with the Jews.

Speaking of the Russian invasion of Hungary, a despatch from Rome says: "According to Budapest advices the capture of Marmarossziget, capital of the Hungarian country of Marmaros, has necessitated the removal of the government of that department to Huszt 28 miles west northwest of Sziget. A second Russian army now threatens the latter city and rein-

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

Special services were held in the Presbyterian church, on Sunday, and the church was beautifully decorated. The Stars and Stripes were tastefully arranged across the front of the organ, the choir being twined with tinted oak leaves, while in front of the pulpit platform were numerous vases of cut flowers and ferns. In the morning in accordance with the President's proclamation appointing the day as one of "Prayer for Peace," the pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown, preached a strong sermon, taking for his theme, "Peace Among the Warring Nations of Europe," and prayed fervently that the Almighty would cause an early cessation of hostilities.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school observed "Rally Day." Remarks suitable to the occasion were made by the pastor and Mr. Cameron, the superintendent of the school. The singing of the special Rally Day music was a delightful feature of the services.

The following scholars were promoted from the Junior to the Intermediate grade and awarded diplomas by Superintendent Cameron: Natalie Terry, Helen Trewin, Helen Day, Edith Debele, Jessie Sutphen, Margery Enander and Florence James.

Those awarded diplomas of promotion from the Third Primary to First Junior were Edna Day, Myrtle Vossler, Luella Apgar, Doreas Hoffman, Margaret Vail, Evelyn Lackman, Ronald Hamley, Roger Brown, Morris Doty and Edward Wrage.

The pastor awarded pins to the scholars having records of attendance, according to the recently instituted Cross and Crown system, as follows: Elmer Swackhamer, son of former Mayor and Mrs. Harry Swackhamer, received a gold pin with star pendant for having been present at Sunday-school and at one church service on every Sunday during the year. He also received a beautiful illustrated Bible. George Hipp, James Lindsley, Ellsworth Day and Miss Alice Gooch each received a gold pin with red, white and blue enamel face for not having missed a session of Sunday-school during the entire year. They also received Bibles with the exception of Ellsworth Day, who had one, and was given a book.

Mildred Mattis and Margaret Caskey received bronze pins for a clear six months attendance during the year.

The pupils of both the Primary and Junior departments took an active part in the exercises. The pupils of the Primary department recited the twenty-third Psalm, memory verses, a Christian story and sang a missionary hymn, "The Sweet Story of Old." The pupils of the Junior department recited the first and one hundredth Psalm, the books of the Bible, the names of the Apostles, the Apostles Creed and memory verses.

Eight new scholars were admitted into the school. The services closed with the singing of "America" by the school and the members of the congregation.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

Autumnal Rally Day exercises were held in the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with flags and flowers, while on the pulpit platform were displayed fruits and vegetables, with shocks of wheat and corn on either side. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Ramsey, preached a very forceful sermon at the morning service, his theme being, "A Basket of Summer Fruit." There was special music by the choir, the large audience much enjoying the two anthems that were rendered. Preceding the sermon, President Wilson's proclamation was read.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school observed Rally Day with special services. The pastor addressed the children, while the singing and other exercises were of a delightful nature. In the evening the pastor preached a sermon to the young people, emphasizing the fact that we must put ourselves in the place that God intended for us, after discovering our lifework and then labor with that constantly in view.

The services were exceptionally well attended. The fruits and vegetables used in the decorations of the church are to be sent to the Deaconesses Home at Newark for distribution.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

Westfield.

The hackmen at the Westfield station have been warned by the police that they must observe the rules of the road carefully in the future, or they will have their licenses revoked. It has been the hackmen's custom to drive at reckless speed up to the station platform without regard for other users of the road.

The annual meeting of the Knights of Columbus for the election of officers will be held at the lodge room tomorrow evening.

The tuberculosis exhibit of the State Board of Health will be held at the auditorium of the Washington School for a week, beginning October 26.

forcements are being hurried up to check Russian advance. Marmarso is in the northeastern part of Hungary, bordering on Galicia, Bukowina and Transylvania."

Tokio, Oct. 6.—The Navy Department this morning issued the following:

"The Japanese squadron delegated to destroy the German fleet in the South Seas has landed bluejackets on Jaluit Island, the seat of government in the Marchall Archipelago, which was annexed by Germany in 1886. It is believed the German base was destroyed and that the fortifications, arms and ammunition were seized. A British steamship in port was released. There was no resistance to the Japanese."

The Navy Department in explaining the landing of a force of Japanese bluejackets, and taking the German Island of Jaluit, says the move was made for military purposes and not for the permanent occupation of the place.

China has notified Japan that no opposition will be made to Japanese occupation of the Shangtang Railroad. A German cruiser was badly damaged by shells when she left the inner harbor of Tsing Tao today.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Sixty-one vessels with a total tonnage of 230,931, have abandoned foreign registry and are now flying the Star and Stripes, according to figures issued by the Department of Commerce.

At both the British and German embassies no word has been received of the reported retirement of Field Marshal Von Moltke. Neither of the ambassadors would discuss the matter.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The Germans claim to have taken over 240,000 prisoners of war thus far, made up of 7,000 British, 40,000 Belgians and 200,000 Russians.

Rome, Oct. 6 (Central News Cable.—The submarine, which was stolen from a private shipbuilding yard at Spezia, Sunday, has arrived at Bastia on the Island of Corsica, according to information received by the Minister of Marine. A retired naval lieutenant, Angelo Bellini, is said to have been responsible for the taking of the craft, which had no provisions aboard.

The junior class has given its order for rings and pins to a New York concern.

Miss Elsie Schmidt, a graduate of the class of '11, has been elected president of the senior class of the Trenton Normal School.

A meeting of the student council was held this noon in the principal's office, and all the representatives of the various classes were present. The purpose of the meeting was to decide to give the freshmen a reception in Saengerbund Hall on October 30. The matter was left until the next meeting.

PLANNING FOR CAMPAIGN.

The First Ward Republican Club met last evening at Republican headquarters in the Frost building, at which time a large amount of business of a routine nature was transacted. Reports of the canvass of the ward now under way were received. Official canvassers and challengers for the various districts were appointed by the club and the list has been sent to the county committee for confirmation. The next session of the club is to be held next Monday evening at headquarters.

BUSINESS MEN MEET.

A large number of local business men attended the Plainfield Business Men's Association meeting, held last evening, and considerable routine business was transacted. The new constitution and by-laws of the organization have been printed and distributed to the membership. A special committee was appointed to look into a number of civic matters and make reports at the next monthly session of the association.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

The Board of Trade will hold its first meeting of the season this evening, at which time many matters of importance are to be discussed. This is the first session held since spring, and will be held at the Exempt Firemen's Hall on Park avenue. A large attendance is desired.

STATE CHAMBER WILL BOOST JERSEY

Attractive Illustrated Magazine Makes Its First Appearance.

Jersey City, Oct. 6—"A new freedom for New Jersey, with a united community working for the best interests of all the people," is the forecast of New Jersey, the new illustrated magazine, which made its first appearance Saturday.

New Jersey bears the subtitle, "The Medium of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce," and is published by the Investors' League, a department of that organization.

The foreword of the initial issue states that no effort will be made to compete with popular fiction magazines, but that it will confine its attention to matters of State interest, including industry and finance; civic, agricultural and commercial development; women's affairs, philanthrophy and municipal activities. The publication will be in all respects non-partisan and unbiased by individual or sectional influence.

"The first number, which appears in attractive form, contains articles as follows: "The Laborer's Property Interest," by W. L. Saunders, chairman of the board of the Ingersoll-Rand Company; "The Legislator and the Investor," by A. B. Leach, the New York banker, a resident and stanch advocate of New Jersey; "Rachel and Her Parents," a story of the New Jersey State School for Girls at Trenton, by the editor of New Jersey, Douglas C. McMutrie; and "The Business Service of the Newark Public Library," by its eminent librarian, John Cotton Dana.

The regular departments, in addition to the editorial column dealing with the interests of the Investors' League, are as follows: "Women's Work in New Jersey," which will be conducted by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs as the official monthly bulletin of that body; "Commercial, Agricultural and Civic Federation," which will act as a department of publicity for recent happenings of interest and events scheduled for New Jersey organizations, and "State and Local Activities," which will be news of general interest.

PRESENT TREASURER WITH A PURSE OF GOLD

Celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the society, in connection with a "home-coming" social, the members and friends of the Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, gathered in large numbers in the church parlors Saturday evening. Music and speeches were the features of the evening. Among those who gave interesting reminiscences of summer vacations were Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, president of the society; Mrs. Sarah Wardner, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, W. C. Hubbard, Mrs. Ira West and Clarence W. Spicer.

Another interesting feature was the presentation of a purse of gold to Mrs. F. A. Dunham, who has served the society as treasurer for the past twenty-five years. This was a complete surprise. After the program refreshments were served. The society will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

The Republican banquet in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, October 15, will be featured by the presence of an orator of national prominence. He will be secured through the State committee, and his name cannot be announced at this time. John H. Capstick, the Congressional nominee, together with his two primary rivals, Charles N. Fowler and William T. Stuchell, will speak upon the issues of the day also, while all the county and city candidates will be present and several of them will be given an opportunity to talk.

Secretary of State Bryan will surely be in New Jersey in the interests of the Congressional candidates, according to information given the Gloucester County Democratic Committee recently. The First district, with the strongest Democrat there, Sheriff Nowery, of Camden, running for Congress, will see much of Mr. Bryan. The rest of the State will not be neglected either, including the Second district, where the Republicans had an exceedingly bitter primary fight between Emerson B. Richards and Isaac Bacharach, the latter winning. Elizabeth was in Mr. Bryan's itinerary a year ago, but nothing final is known regarding this year's trip through the Northern tier of counties.

MISS MARY CAULFIELD BRIDE OF JOHN BARRETT

Miss Mary Caulfield, of this city, and Joseph P. Barrett, of Trenton, were married yesterday in St. Francis' R. C. church at the latter place. The bride wore a blue traveling gown and was attended by Miss Marion Barrett, a sister of the bridegroom. Charles Barrett, a brother, was best man.

The ceremony was performed by Father Rathner and a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents following the nuptials. The couple left last night for Atlantic City, where they will spend part of their honeymoon and upon their return will reside at 150 Lafayette avenue, Trenton. Mr. Barrett is well-known in Trenton and holds a responsible position with the State Road Department.

The bride is popular in Plainfield, where she has been a lifelong resident and was educated in the local schools. She afterwards entered the Newark City Hospital and was graduated from that institution last year

NOVELTY IMITATIONS LEAD PROCTOR'S OPENING PROGRAM

Charles Gibbs, with his novelty imitations, made a big hit at Proctor's theatre, last night. Gibbs imitates everything from a chicken to a phonograph and his work is some of the most realistic ever heard here. Nearly every kind of a musical instrument is included in his exhibitions, his mouth rendering tunes similar to those which come from stringed instruments and horns. Florence Rayfield, a dainty little comedienne, renders popular song hits in a pleasing manner and was well received last night. Minna Phillips and Company, in their sketch, "When the Cat's Away," keeps the audience spellbound from curtain to curtain. Three characters take roles for which they are particularly well fitted and some laughable situations are revealed every minute.

"What Happened to Billie" is shown in mirth and music by Billy Boston and Company. An insight of a few of the charcters on the "Great White Way" is shown in this act, the feminine entertainer playing her part in a finished manner. Budd and Claire appear in a novel comedy act. The Million Dollar Mystery, in motion pictures, will be shown tomorrow afternoon and evening.

MINNESOTA CLUB WOMEN.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 6.—A large and enthusiastic attendance marked the opening here today of the twentieth annual gathering of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs. All sections of the State were represented among the delegates. Following meetings of the council and executive board this morning the first of the general sessions of the convention was called to order this afternoon by the president, Mrs. Clarence L. Atwood. Following the exchange of greetings the convention listened to the annual reports presented by the several officers and standing committees of the federation. The convention will continue until Friday morning.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The first meeting of the Bryant-Lincoln Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the Bryant School tomorrow afternoon at 3:15. Mrs. H. E. Parker will speak on "School Luncheons." All mothers are urged to attend.

ENTERS COLLEGE.

Miss Virginia Glover, of North avenue, Fanwood, is a student at the National Seminary, National Park, Forest Glenn, Maryland. Miss Glover is a popular Fanwood girl and has a host of friends.

Mrs. Margaret Wilson, of Grove street, has returned after spending several days visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. P. Truitt, who is stopping at the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

The difference between a House and a Home is often only a matter of a judicious planting of Shrubbery, Trees, etc., to soften lines and cover up bare spots and corners. A PUBLIC DEFENDER.

Los Angeles county, California, has created an officer who should be found in every county in every State in the Union. The experiment in the Far West has proven such a success already that there is no possibility of the office ever being abolished, and as the practical effects of the law become better known, New Jersey will be sure to fall in line, for of late years progressive legislation has been the rule with us.

The office is known as that of public defender. His duties are to look after the wants of those who are brought into the criminal courts, and who have no money to pay lawyers to properly present their claims. Many times innocent men have been sent to jail simply because they were unable to have their cases placed before the juries as they should have been. It is true that here in New Jersey the court can appoint a lawyer to defend accused who have no money to pay counsel, and the State pays the bill, but usually such appointees act in a prefunctory manner, and are thinking more about the fee the court will fix, than they are about freeing the accused.

The State has unlimited resources to prosecute defendants, whether they be rich or poor. In addition to public prosecutors, with one or more assistants, there are detectives and other officials, who can be used to work up the cases against those who have no means whatsoever to prepare a defense. The appointment of a public defender, paid out of county funds and given a salary equal to that of the prosecutor, would be a logical plan to assist the worthy person who may have wrongfully been charged with a crime.

In every court the assumption is made that each person brought before the bench is innocent until proven guilty. If that is true, is it unreasonable for the State to use its power to help establish innocence, as well as to try to convict? The appointment of a public defender in California may be an experiment, but there is so much that is just in creating such an office, that we believe that the candidates for the Legislature who pledge themselves to try to establish the office in this State, would gain thousands of votes from the great mass of people. Let's have a public defender.

PLANTING DYNAMITE.

The confession of one A. P. Emerson, in California, that he was an employe of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to "plant" dynamite where it would do the most harm to the cause of labor organizations and then by some "clever detective work" make a "discovery" of the explosive, may, or may not, be true. It probably is. Either way the confession is bound to put the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association on the defensive, says the Pittsburgh Leader.

"Planting" dynamite is not a new manuver in the struggles between employers and employes. It has been done before dozens and dozens of times, and unless the game breaks down often, it will be carried out dozens and dozens of times in the future.

"Planting" dynamite to discredit labor unions was worked in West Virginia against the miners; in Lawrence, Mass., against the textile workers; in Paterson against the workers; in New York against the employes of the knitting trust; in Colorado against the coal miners; all over the country against the structural iron workers. In Pennsylvania and in Pittsburgh the spies were among the most potent agents of the iron and steel manufacturers in plotting violence.

The exploiting class dares not yet risk the consequences of a repeal of the laws legalizing the organization of labor unions, but if it can throw enough discredit upon their membership the weapon of destruction will be more sweeping, more powerful, than a mere repeal of laws.

From the beginning of organized society this always has been the course of the ruling class to sustain its exploitation when cracks were seen to show in the structure. It is not to be expected that the exploiters of our day will act differently from their fellows of past ages.

Maybe a certain investigator employed by a well known rich man, will find something in this case to throw more light into the relations between capital and labor.

How many people realize what a prosperous part of the population is to be found among the farmers in New Jersey? Probably not one per cent. can answer the question. But the last Federal census reports show that the average value of a New Jersey farm is $8,610, and the average farm size 77 acres. Of the 1,808,000 acres of land in the State, 2,573,000 acres are in farms, and 1,803,000 acres are improved farm land. The capital represented by the investment is $254,832,000, and to operate their places, the farmers of the State own $12,109,000 worth of farm machinery, and $24,588,000 is the valuation placed upon their domestic animals, poultry and bees. Surely these are surprising figures, for a State so small in territory, and containing 2,500,000 people, most of whom are in the cities, and probably a million of whom are either directly or indirectly dependent upon New York and Philadelphia. New Jersey certainly can be classed as an agricultural community for a few years more, although the inroads made by turning farms into country estates are becoming greater every year.

THE FORUM

WHAT THE CHILDREN MAY DO.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Some days ago, I saw an article suggesting that a Christmas shop of toys be sent to the children of the suffering foreign nations, and then I saw a letter criticising such a movement and saying that the money had much better be sent to the Red Cross work.

It seems to me that a movement could be made for the children of our country to express a desir, that they who have happy homes and loving fathers, make a self-sacrifice and send the Christmas gifts to the poor little ones, who but a few weeks ago, said good-bye to the fathers, who will never return. The newspapers are full of such pathetic scenes. The children could be inspired to write letters to Santa Claus, requesting that what he was to leave for them should be sent across the ocean, and the older ones could give of their Christmas savings. Such an offering would do great things in the future to impress the rising generation with brotherly love and peace, and the children would be taught to look up to a nation whose children showed such thoughtfulness and sympathy. Think what it would mean of gratitude, in the hearts of the sorrowing mothers. They would wish to teach their children of love and not revenge. A few years ago my own little son, then ten years old, was travelling with me on the continent, and he early learned a lesson of democracy that will always stay with him. Sometimes when lonely he would wander down to the little hall-boys in the hotel. He longed for someone his own age, and although he could not understand a word of their tongue, he soon found a universal language of boyhood. He would give them a piece of candy, and often a little nudge and a punch, and in a few moments these two would be exchanging the most understanding of glances. He thus learned that the boys of all nations were very much alike in the fundamental, they both loved sweets and fun. It is well to early teach our children that it is more blessed to give then to receive, and that they may reap of their blessing in the future by the love and gratitude of their little brothers and sisters, who are so sad and bereft. What a new interest and happiness to our children to contribute to and read of a ship thus loaded. It is an idea, that if taken up by wise heads and loving hearts, could be made of much value to the children of both hemispheres. Out of this terrible darkness will come greater light, and may the Christ-child abide in the hearts of our little ones this Christmas-tide as never before, and the angels of Peace and Good-will hover over our homes.

Women's Shoes

A Splendid Endorsement of Our Shoe Dept.

Children's Shoes

In last Wednesday's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press, under the heading, "Advantages of Trading in Plainfield," there appeared an article written by a lady of this city for the "Trade in Plainfield Contest" which was such a splendid endorsement of our Shoe Department that we herewith take the liberty of reproducing it:

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I write this letter, hoping that practical mothers, who have tall girls to dress, may know where to obtain sensible heeled shoes. Our daughter of fifteen is statue like above mentioned, desired a pair of Colonial pumps of the latest style, but told me in a very unhaappy voice, that she and her friend had visited all the shoe shops in town to find a pair with low common sense heels, for which they were both hunting. Upon this information I addressed several of the large stores in New York, always receiving word the pumps they could furnish only with high heels of several styles. A week later reading our evening paper, the Plainfield Daily Press, I saw the sale of shoes for ladies and children at Woodhull & Martin's. As a last trial I visited their store to obtain just the shoe with the heel, for which I had been so anxiously looking.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The dramatist who took a murderess as the heroine of his play and then placed two of his scenes in a criminal court would surely be accused of turning out rank melodrama. But the particular dramatist who did this particular thing abhors all that is melodramatic just as he abhors the commonplace and the obvious. The natural question then is, how could he evolve a polite comedy out of such groundwork? The answer is given by J. M. Barrie in his new play, "The Legend of Leonora," in which Maude Adams is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday evening. It has been said here and in England that no one save Barrie could have written such a play and it is further said in this country that no one save Maude Adams could make the capricious and lovely heroine so full of fascinating charm. Leonora is elusive and is herself a legend. She pushed a horrid brute of a man out of a railway carriage because he wouldn't shut the window that exposed her little daughter, Milly, to a draft. You understand, Milly had a sniffy little cold and was not a strong child. Leonora felt no concern over her act and expressed none either to judge or jury. Didn't her little girl have a cold? That settled it with Leonora and it settled it with judge, jury and prosecutors who held that the man's life was of less concern than the health of Leonora's daughter. The scenes in the court are very diverting and their humor subtly travesties the procedure in the British courts. The portrait of Leonora shown by Miss Adams is one that will unquestionably please all of the actress' admirers and will add to her reputation as an artiste of high attainments.

"The Things That Count," as told in the story, age children, and there are four of them in the play. Mr. and Mrs. Hennaberry are an aged couple, whose only son married an actress, was driven from his home and presently died, leaving a wife and daughter to the tender mercies of the world. Mrs. Hennaberry is by turns a crabbed woman of business and a tender-hearted old soul, who is willing to forgive everybody but her son's wife. Mr. Hennaberry is a henpecked husband who, assisted by his butler, goes clandestinely to visit his daughter-in-law on Christmas Eve. Mrs. Hennaberry suspects that her husband is leading a double life and follows him to the East Side tenement, where she finds her granddaughter. Not knowing at first who the child is she acts the fairy godmother and buys a Christmas tree and all the accessories and invites in the children of the neighborhood to a big party. The parents of the children also come to the party, which winds up with a quarrel between an Irish and an Italian family among the guests. The excitement of the affair is too much for the little grandchild an dshe collapses just as a young doctor, in love with her mother, predicted she would do. The grandparents make known who they really are and are ordered out of the house by their daughter-in-law. Of course, the young doctor [illegible] time to save the child, and in the final act, while the Christmas chimes are ringing and the snow is [illegible] past the window, there is a [illegible] reconciliation. The play, which was acted about 350 times at William A. Brady's Playhouse, New York, will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening.

SCHOOL ROSTERS UNUSUALLY LARGE

Double Sessions Now Being Held in Several of the Primary Departments.

EVENING SCHOOL PLANS

Practical Courses of Study to Be Added to the Present Schedule—Completion of High School Believes Grammar School Stress.

In a report made to the Plainfield Board of Education, last night, Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson says that the schools have started in with full attendance, registration being, at the present time, 3,857. This is about 150 more than last year. The completed High School is now in full use. With the transfer of the grammar classes from the Stillman School, the building has in it 1,090 pupils, 709 of them High School pupils and 381 grammar school pupils. Every classroom in the building is occupied, and some of them are very full. The auditorium, as now arranged, seats 1,070 pupils, so that when the High School and grammar school use it in joint assembly, every seat is occupied.

The Stillman School, which was vacated by the grammar classes, also has every room occupied, having in it five overflow classes from the Franklin School and four opportunity classes. Every classroom in the city, therefore, is now occupied, while in the Bryant School two rooms have double classes, and in the Irving School two rooms. There is every probability that, when the new Evergreen Avenue School is completed, a year from now, ten of the thirteen classrooms will be at once occupied.

The evening schools will be opened on Tuesday, October 13, holding them this year in the High School building. In order to determine what classes are needed in various advanced subjects, the High School building will be open three evenings this week, to receive registrations. It is expected that the city will need special classes in the various household arts subjects, in mechanical drawing, in the commercial subjects and perhaps English and mathematics.

The course of evening lectures will begin next Thursday evening with a concert by the Lotus Glee Club, and the winter courses will include a list of nine lectures and entertainments.

A Brand-New Section Opened Up In the Lower-Price Subway Store

White Cotton and Cotton-and-Linen Table Cloths, Napkins, Towels and Toweling

Holding firm to our long established standard of "pure linen and all-linen and nothing else in the Linen Store" we open in the Subway Store this section for the sale of cotton and cotton-mixed table cloths, napkins and towels.

(1) Because it is trustworthy merchandise and there is demand for it.

(2) Because in recent years flax has risen to such a figure where it is impossible now to procure a satisfactory grade of pure flax househould linen at the low prices which used to prevail.

We are always guided by the best interests of our customers.

With the mercerizing process, manufacturers have been improving their product of cotton tablecloths and towels until today it reaches a standard that we are willing to put into our stock.

Notice

On the tablcloths, napkins and cottons here advertised, and to be sold in the new section on the Subway Floor, will be found this label:

This Fabric is COTTON
(or cotton-and-linen)
at the price it will give better service than a poor grade of linen.

This is the whole reason in a nutshell for offering for sale now cotton or cotton-and-linen—mixed napery and towels.

The cost of pure linen has increased to a point where all-cotton or a mixture of cotton with linen will give better service than a poor grade of all-linen.

We have tested this merchandise. And have had it laundered. We have tested it for wear. And we are willing to stand back of it and guarantee it for service.

This Merchandise is Plainly Labeled as indicated in the adjoining box—labeled with the word "Cotton" or the words "Cotton and Linen," so that no one can buy it in mistake for linen, although we believe it is often sold as linen in careless stores.

The Prices Are Extremely Moderate

Tablecloths, of mercerized cotton, from 64x63 inches at 85c, to 72x90 inches, at $1.75. Many in-between sizes and prices.

Napkins, of mercerized cotton, 18, 20 and 22 inches, 75c to $1.50 dozen.

Damask, of mercerized cotton, 58-inch, 30c yard; 59-inch, 40c yard; 64-inch, 45c yard; 72-inch, 55c yard.

Doilies, cotton embroidered, scalloped and lace-trimmed, 9-in., 3c each; 11-in., 5c each; 18-in., 12½c.

Shams and Scarfs, of cotton, scalloped, embroiderd, 20c each.

Scarfs, hemstitched, mercerized cotton, damask patterns, 18x54 inches, 25c each.

Towels, of cotton and linen, $2, $2.40 and $3 dozen.

Towels, of cotton, many sizes and styles, from 60c to $1.50 dozen.

Special—200 dozen of manufacturer's sample shams and scarfs; some lace trimmed, scalloped, with imitation filet insertion, 40c each.

Subway floor, Old Building.

Women's Fashions

New things are coming every day. And going out! Wanamaker fashions are individually planned and very carefully selected. Women like them. We try to have something here for everybody—and our effort seems successful judging from the large numbers of women satisfied each day.

"When will there be any

asked some one the other day. A new style will be ready tomorrow. Coats of conventional length, tailoring fine, style genuinely plain, collar of velvet. Made of sharkskin serge at $35.

Military Suits

are of broadcloth with coat edged, collared and cuffed with caracal cloth and with the same furry cloth edging the skirt. $37.50.

Broadcloth Suits

with nearseal (dyed coney) are $55.

A gabardine with a Redingote coat opening over a velvet waistcoat is among several other new models just received at $62.50.

New Coats at $25

Overcoats—loose and mannish and very good style. Made of the warm, soft zibeline in black, navy, brown and cossack green.

Second floor, Old Building.

A Costly Dress Copied for Young Women, at $12.75

The copy is a great success, too

It is made of green, malaga or blue serge with black satin sleeves and under tunic, and black braiding, defining the waistline, which is just a bit long. White bengaline collars and cuffs and a charming touch, and make these very good dresses indeed for so little as $12.75.

Sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years.
Second floor, Old Building.

VICTROLA Differentness

A Victrola is as different in tone quality from mere talking machines as Caruso is different from a star of musical comedy magnitude—both are good, but one is so much better and finer than the other.

Besides, Victrola records offer a wider range of choice than any other record library of the great vocal and instrumental stars.

Come to the Wanamaker Victrola Salons.

We will gladly play your musical favorites on any of the many different models of Victrolas we have in stock—without you being solicited in any way.

For your information we quote prices and terms now—Victrolas from $15 to $200, which may be paid for either in cash or $5 to $10 a month. According to price of instrument.

The Better-Than Planned

Sale of Boys' Clothes

Our search of the market for boys' better overcoats and better suits (with two pair of knickers) than we had ever sold before for $3.95, resulted in this unexpected success.

Some of the merchandise is part cotton mixed with wool, and is so labeled. It is offered now, because at the price it will give better service than an inferior all-wool fabric. The balance is made of all-wool fabrics at this same grade that regularly go into our $5, $6 and $7 suits and overcoats for boys.

Two-Trousers Suits, $3.95

Norfolk model; both knickers fully lined; sizes 7 to 18 years.

Overcoats at $3.95

Russian and polo coats; chinchilla, frieze, kersey and mixtures; sizes 2½ to 9 years.

Long Overcoats, $3.95

Convertible and shawl collars, single and double-breasted; some fully lined; sizes 8 to 18 years.

Boys' Blouses, 35c each

Three for $1. "Seconds" of our 50c, 75c and $1 grades.

ROUTINE AFFAIRS IN BOROUGH BODY

Dunellen Common Council Met Last Night and Much Business Was Transacted.

STREETS ARE ACCEPTED

Mosquito Extermination Topic for Much Discussion—Dunellen May Unite With County in Work—Communications From Citizens.

The meeting of the Mayor and Common Council of Dunellen was held in the borough hall last night, all of the councilmen being present with the exception of Mr. Neighbour. A communication was read from the Middlesex County Mosquito Extermination Commission in which the commission stated that the practicability of their methods in exterminating the salt marsh mosquito in the salt marshes had been fully demonstrated this year as evidenced by the non-appearance of that species in the city. The commission then went on to say that it had demonstrated the practicability of freeing a municipality of all mosquitoes. Metuchen was chosen as a place for the demonstration. It was chosen because of its size, for only a small portion of the appropriation remained after the work on the salt marshes had been completed. As a tangible evidence of the benefit derived from the anti-mosquito work a copy of a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Metuchen Common Council, that body petitioned the Board of Freeholders to appropriate sufficient funds to carry on the work in the county for the year 1915, and the Borough Council was requested to forward such a resolution of petition to the Board of Freeholders.

The consensus of opinion among the councilmen was that it would be well to take up the matter later and it was moved that the petition be received and a vote of thanks extended.

A petition was received from C. Wesley Blaine, R. B. Partain and others requesting that the sidewalk on the south side of North avenue, from the borough hall to Madison avenue, be relaid according to grade. The petition was referred to the sidewalk committee. The matter of accepting the streets of the Equator tract that has been before the Council for several meetings was favorably acted upon last night, a motion which was duly seconded and carried, being made by Councilman Castner to the effect that the law and ordinance committee be empowered to draw up an ordinance covering the acceptance of the streets of the tract. Before the motion was made by Mr. Castner, the Mayor had stated that Councilmen Ryan and Castner, Street Commissioner Smalley and himself had inspected the tract on Saturday, and it was evident that something should be done in regard to drainage and the acceptance of the streets. Continuing, the Mayor said that he didn't see any reason why the streets shouldn't be accepted as quite a number of houses had been erected there, bringing in revenue to the borough in the form of taxes. Another reason advanced by the Mayor for the acceptance of the streets was that the residents of the tracts would have water and gas, if they so desire, which they are at present unable to have on account of the respective water and gas companies refusing to lay their pipes until the streets have been accepted.

The matter of having an ordinance drawn up relative to the laying of 300 feet of some kind of sidewalk on the north side of South avenue, from Chestnut street to Bonegut brook, so that the employes of the Levgar Structural Works, many of whom reside in the borough, would not have to wade through water and mud during stormy weather on their way to and from work, was discussed at length. Some of the councilmen while appreciating the fact that a walk of some kind should be laid there, were afraid that the passing of an ordinance relative to the laying of a concrete or flag walk would be exacting a hardship on the property holders, who are poor. It was suggested by one of the councilmen that a board walk be laid and by another one, Councilman Castner, that the road be raised to grade. Councilmen Castner, Ryan and Neighbour were finally appointed a commitee to look into the matter and devise some plan whereby conditions can be remedied at a minimum of expense.

Among other business transacted was the passing of ordinances relative to the acceptance of Culhane place and the grade thereof on their first reading; approving of monthly bills aggregating $726.31; the empowering of the Mayor and clerk to float a $600 note to meet current bills; the ordering that the party telephone wire in the borough hall be replaced with a direct line and an extension at a cost of $1.50 a month, and the calling of the Council's attention by Councilman Ryan to the low condition of fifty feet of sidewalk on Washington avenue from in front of the Mansion House to Dunellen avenue and also to the condition of the gutter there.

TELLS OF MISSION WORK IN EUROPE

Ernest R. Ackerman Describes Conditions in the Past and Present.

PLEA FOR SACRIFICE

Urges Those at Home Not to Withhold Funds From Those Who Are Bravely Meeting the Enemy of Heathenism.

The following story from the pen of Ernest R. Ackerman, which appears in the current issue of The Messenger, the Crescent Avenue church publication, is interesting:

"Probably it has occurred to many of the readers of The Messenger that the disturbances in Europe were going to seriously affect the activities of the missionaries, but if there ever was a time when sacrifices should be made by those at home in order that the funds should not be withheld from those who are so bravely meeting the enemy of heathenism, such a time is the present.

"Having had the opportunity of traveling a half million miles during the last score of years and having made repeated visits to China and Japan, I am able to contrast the changes that have occurred in those countries. I have known more or less about them by means of personal contact with those who constitute the citizens of those countries and during my last visit just completed, I could see a wonderful increase not only in materialism but in the advance of the methods of civilization. I am wondering what will be the outcome during the next quarter of a century.

"Since the quelling of the disturbances in China in 1901 a marvelous improvement in social and sanitary conditions has sprung up in the pricipal cities of what is now the Chinese Republic. Attention is being paid to sanitation as well as the policing of the municipalities and it is as safe to go around Peking as it is to go around New York city, both from a hygenic as well as a bodily point of view. And from a moral standpoint, unless one should be so base and low as to seek such standards, there is nothing that offends a traveler as he moves about from one city to another.

"The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. as well are in evidence and the substantial character of the buildings, as well as the spaciousness of them, makes an impression that augurs well for the strengthening of the moral and religious standards that are being set forth by the ever-increasing host of trained workers and missionaries. To curtail the activities of these faithful servants at the present time means not only cessation of their ministrations but an opportunity for the agencies that are opposed to this kind of work to recover the ground that they have lost, and the general situation will be retarded in its growth for many years to come. Surely this is a time to consider well before contributions are withheld from these fields, for when we are told by the missionaries that one of the great ecclesiastical heathen institutions, alarmed at the falling off of the attendance at the temples, has started Sunday-school classes to teach the principles of Confucius and is giving out to those who come a card recording the fact of attendance, which token has a monetary value and is exchangeable for goodies or candies, it shows how hard pressed the organization must be in order to go to that length to obtain adherents to their cause.

"By the above statement I do not mean to imply that the teaching thus given by the Buddhists has no moral value, for I am told that it has. However, the elements of Christianity are lacking. When we learn, as I did, of individual instances or great zealousness of the natives for the propagation of the Gospel, as that of a converted soothsayer who had in one year sold 4,000 copies of the Bible or portions thereof, and who was only receiving twenty-five cents per day in gold for his services, and who had, in addition, been the means of converting twenty persons in the same time, it would seem that those of us in this country should stop and think twice before cutting down even in these phenomenally distressing times our contributions for the cause of foreign missions."

INDIAN RIGHTS MEN MEETING.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6.—The annual conference of the Society of American Indians, which met here today for a five days' session, has brought together about one hundred prominent champions of Indian rights and education, representing numerous tribes. The program provides for addresses by Gabe E. Parker, register of the United States treasury, Choctaw; Dr. Carlos Montezuma, Apache; Rev. Henry Roe Cloud, Winnebago; Gen. R. H. Pratt, founder of the Indian school system, Rev. Philip Gordon, Chippewa; Dennison Wheelock, Oneida; Stephen Jones, Indian Y. M. C. A. secretary, and Matthew K. Sniffen, an officer of the Indian Rights Association.

Betting hereabouts seems to be pretty evenly distributed between the Bostons and Athletics. To date the odds stand about 10 to 8 in the Machian outfit's favor, but the wiseacres are holding back and plenty of Hubtown money will probably be in evidence before the curtain rises on the playing arena. Those who know are predicting a surprise this year and it seems as though something is about due to break in the baseball world.

Chief of Police Kiely heartily endorses baseball, says a dispatch. Well, the chief always has displayed a marked interest in anything undertaken by his men and that is the reason the local bluecoats have made good in baseball this summer. "When men become sluggish they are of no use to the city or the department," says the chief. "Athletics keep a man in condition, primed to do the work called for in the police department. A few of my men take an active part in athletics, but I wish that the fever would spread among others. I witnessed the Newark police games Saturday afternoon and they afforded thorough enjoyment to all present. Our one representative did good work and he deserves credit for it."

How about a few more of you bluecoats falling in line and organizing a real athletic association in the copper ranks? Plenty of good material is lying dormant in the department and all-that is needed is a little boosting.

Congratulations, Tomkinson. After playing the role of a runner-up, you come through a victor in the N. P. H. S. tennis tourney this year. The new champ has done some good work on the courts this season and he deserves all the credit that is coming his way.

Y. M. C. A. basketball candidates are requested to report at the Association for practise tomorrow night. Early season indications point to a big squad answering the roll call and Captain Brynairski is due to stack up against the job of his life in picking five of the finest.

We may get a taste of high school swimming in these parts this winter, according to information coming to hand from the Ninth street institution. The installation of a tank in that school has given rise to a movement in favor of the organization of an aquatic team.

It's pretty nearly time those Army-Navy managers get together and settle the football question that has been pending for the last couple of months. This free advertising is beginning to get a little irksome.

As predicted in this column the fore part of last week Maximus failed to appear on Cricket Field in football regalia Saturday afternoon. The president of the Publicity Club played a losing game that time.

The Elizabeth A. A. is due to line up against Holy Cross next Saturday afternoon. The locals are the one best bet on this occasion.

"Hub" Stine played the full game for the Springfield Training School eleven Saturday afternoon. "Hub" is filling the left guard position which C. William Bingeman, the present boys' secretary of the local association, occupied in 1906. Two of a kind from the same town is going some.

Baseball losses in the International League, according to an excellent authority, will pass the quarter-million mark this season. Not only has the Barrow circuit suffered disastrously from a financial standpoint, but a majority of the major league clubs will show a deficit when the time comes for figuring up profits and losses.

Long before "play ball" is called for the first game of the 1915 season the Federal League will be taken in by the forces of organized baseball. This is a prediction rather than a statement of positive fact, but stick a pin in it just the same and then sit tight and await developments. Though they are not yet ready to admit it, tentative plans to bring about a permanent truce between the magnates have been discussed, and a fulfillment of ararngements will be made after the close of the current season.

With the coming of cooler weather and the fast approach of the open season on game, nimrods are commencing to evince enthusiasm on the subject of their hearts' desire. They are brightening their guns inside and out for the hapless rabbits and other game that may be so unfortunate as to come within range.

Snipe season has been in since September first, and has been made memorable by the large number of the long-billed creatures killed. There have been a number of flocks of English snipe inhabiting the banks of the Passaic river and they have been pursued vigorously by the marksmen with gratifying results. Nearly every patch of plowed ground in the State has been feeding countless numbers of the greater and lesser yellow legs.

But the eyes of the hunters are now more keen for the migrating woodcock, which leaves the protection of the law on October 10. It might be remarked that this is also the season for game wardens, who will be especially active to prevent the shooting of any game that is not in season. The proposition, in case of a catch, is alluring, as the fine is $100, to be divided equally between the State and the informer.

From the present outlook there will be good inland shooting for black, gray and Mallard ducks. The shore birds' present visit to these parts dates back two weeks and they are liable to remain for some time to come unless the waters are frozen up tight. The open season for these birds begins November 1.

The open season for deer is from November 1 to 5. They may be taken only with a shotgun and neither at night or with dogs. Only one deer a season is allowed, and it must be a buck with horns showing above the hair.

But the grand old time for the sportsman comes from November 10 to December 15, inclusive, which is the season for popular small game—rabbits, quail, pheasants, squirrel, partridge. The ban on female English or ring-neck pheasant, which was at first scheduled to be lifted this year, has been extended to 1919. In order to protect the propagation of wild turkey, which has been started, there is a closed season on this bird for five years.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:
Query—With the bases full in the ninth a man hits a home run. The man that scored from first base made the run that won the game, but the batter also crossed the plate. Is he credited with a home run?—S. B. N.
Answer—No, a three-base hit.

Sporting Editor:
Query—How many national holidays are there in this country?—A.B.
Answer—None.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Where are the Olympia bowling alleys located?—R. H. U.
Answer—On Second street just East of Park avenue.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Which is the better ball player, Collins or Evers?—N. E. B.
Answer—Matter of personal opinion. Look for comparison in papers.

Sporting Editor:
Query—With none on bases the pitcher balks. Does the batter take first?—A. S. D.
Answer—Not unless he already had three balls to his credit. In the case of the bases being empty, the balk goes as a ball on the batter.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Please inform me of the origin of the word Nabisco.—F. B.
Answer—Take the first two and three letters of the words, National Biscuit Company and put them together in order named and you have your word.

Sporting Editor:
Query—How many bowling alleys are there in this city?—A. C.
Answer—Three in Plainfield and one in the borough.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What is the round trip fare from here to Philadelphia?—D J.
Answer—$3.20.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What do baseball players do in the winter time?—B. A. B.
Answer—Most of them work. That's a change.

Sporting Editor:
Query—A batter hit the ball to the third baseman. The batter is a fast runner and just as he gets to the initial base the first baseman catches the ball but has his foot just off the base and the umpire calls the runner safe. Should the baseman get an error?—H. G.
Answer—If in the judgment of the scorer, the runner would have made the base even if the baseman had touched the base, credit the batter with a hit. It lies with the scorer in such a case.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Why are all the post-season games in New York played on the Polo Grounds?—T. E. N.
Answer—Because both New York clubs use that for their home grounds.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Can anyone try for the Y. M. C. A. basketball team?—D. P. O.
Answer—Anyone belonging to the association has this privilege.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Who is the manager of the Leal basketball team?—R. Y. T.
Answer—Fred T. Dickerson, Jr.

By GEORGE T. STALLINGS.

"Though realizing that the Athletics are a great ball club, I expect the Braves to beat them in the coming World's Series. I have a splendid ball club, and though the averages indicate the Philadelphians have the edge on us in some departments, I do not concede them a single advantage in any position.

"I have the two greatest men in baseball around second base in Evers and Maranville, and they will fully offset Collins and Baker. My three great pitchers—James, Rudolph and Tyler—will stop the Athletic attack, while I think we will hit Bender and Plank as we have hit Mathewson, Vaughn, Cheney, Sallee and other great pitchers in our league.

"I know considerable about the Athletics. They won their first World's Series title in 1910, when they beat my Yankees for the American League pennant. I know something about them. I may pursue different lines against the Mack forces than other managers have employed. I am holding something in reserve, and I expect it to win for us."

By CONNIE MACK.

"When Boston and the Athletics meet in the next World's Series," said Connie Mack, "I suppose we will be expected to win the honor in four games.

"Personally, I hope that we will be able to do this, and if we are going to lose, I trust that we will be the worst beaten team on earth, and that the Braves lick us in four straights.

"Either result would allay any suspicion from the skeptics of there being a frame-up and that the series will be lengthened out to six or seven games on that account.

"Yet it is foolish to presume that either team should carry off the championship in four straight games. In the playing season we are satisfied if we are able to win three games out of four when playing with the tail-end clubs. Still we are asked to trim the best club in a rival league, supposed to be of the same strength as ours, worse than we do the tail-enders in our own league. It doesn't seem reasonable.

"Win or lose, I hope the series does not go more than four or five games."

DECIDING SERIES.

The deciding bowling match between the Baraca class team and the All Stars, of Dunellen, will be rolled tonight on the First Presbyterian alleys. Both teams are ready for the occasion and a royal battle is expected to take place. In the first match of the series the Baracas won, but last week they were unmercifully trounced in three straight games which made the third necessary.

ODDS ARE 10 TO 8.

A Philadelphia hotel man bet $1,000 against $800 in New York, yesterday, through Fred Schumm, on the Athletics to win the world's series. A bet of $100 against $90 was made that the Athletics win the first game of the series. Boston supporters are generally holding out for odds of 10 to 7. The Giants are favorites in the New York series with the Yanks at the odds of 10 to 8.

JOHNSON HAS ANOTHER LAUGH.

Chicago, Oct. 6—The $55,000 bail of Jack Johnson, the negro prizefighter, was forfeited yesterday in the United States District Court, but the poor Government is said to have a poor chance of collecting. The bonds were provided by the late Matthew Baldwin, whose estate is insolvent; and Johnson's mother also is said to be unable to pay.

BASEBALL NOTES

In winning the International League pennant the Providence team topped off a season of fine ball playing with a classy finish.

"Rube" Marquard came very near to turning his record of 19 straight victories upside down by losing that number of games in a row.

According to the Giants' line of talk, any team that beats them is lucky. About time that McGraw and his men put the old alibi in moth balls.

E. M. (Ted) Lewis, who was a member of the Boston National champions of 1897-98, is now dean of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst.

For the past two seasons the Winston-Salem Carolina League champs, a class D outfit, has defeated the Virginia League (Class C) pennant winners in post-season series.

SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT.

FIRST PRACTICE FOR LOCAL FIVE

Y. M. C. A. Captain Has Issued Call for Candidates for Tomorrow.

Many candidates are expected to report at the first practice of the Y. M. C. A. basketball squad that has been called for tomorrow night in the association gym. Many of the best players in this vicinity have signified their intention of reporting and it is expected that the hottest tryouts ever held for the association five will be held this year. Captain Albert Brynairski will be present as will Physical Director Robert Merrmans, and some light work will be done, although the real practicing will not start for a couple of weeks.

With the disbanding of the Scotch Plains Parish House five, several of the players who were on that team last season will try for places on the local five and one of the best teams in the history of the association will represent it this year. Most of last year's material will again be on hand in Captain Brynairski, Glover, Moulton and Gavett. Among the new men who will tryout are Naylor, Jack Ricketts, Burner, Bill Taylor and Dunning.

The manager of the team has several game scheduled and has the annual series with Hope Chapel arranged. The first match between these two local fives will be staged on the Y. M. C. A. court on Christmas Day as has been the custom for the past two years. The team will probably start off the season with the Summit Y. M. C. A. crew the first of next month.

TOMKINSON, '15, WON BORO TENNIS TITLE

Defeated Sherman Chandler, '16, in Three out of Four Sets Yesterday.

By defeating Sherman Chandler, '16, in three sets out of four in the final match of the North Plainfield High School singles tennis tournament, yesterday, on the courts of the Park Golf Club, Hoyt Tomkinson, '15, won the singles title and the handsome trophy that goes with it. The match was the best of the tournament and the junior player did not give up until he had put the last ball in the alley in the last stroke of the match. Supporters from both classes and also underclassmen were present and cheered their respective favorites on to victory.

Being runner up in last year's tournament and having had two years' experience in the court game, Tomkinson was easily the favorite for the title this year, as this is the first year that Chandler has come to light in tennis lines. Last year he entered the tournament, but lost out in the early stages of the game. His advance has been rapid and his showing this year puts him in the best position for next year's title.

Tomkinson started off at a whirlwind clip and played his opponent off his feet in the first few games of the first set. After he had registered three games and had blanked his opponent, Tomkinson eased up a little and Chandler immediately took advantage of this and won his first game. The senior took the next two games, which made the score 5 to 1. In the seventh game Chandler took the first point, but lost the next three which gave his opponent set point on the first. By clever placing Chandler won the next two points, making the score deuce and finally won the game. However, Tomkinson took the next game and won the first set 6-2. Not the least discouraged at losing the first set, Chandler took the first game of the second set while his opponent tied things up by taking the second. The first love game of the afternoon went to Chandler, which put him one up, but Tomkinson took the following two, which put him in the lead which he did not lose during the set. In the fifth game Tomkinson made two aces that gave him a big lead and he took the next three games and the set, 6-2.

The third set was Chandler's throughout as he outplayed his opponent at all times. The scores seesawed back and forth till the junior player had his opponent 4 to 2. Tomkinson took one and Chandler followed with one. This was repeated, which gave the junior his only set, the score being 6-3. Tomkinson took the first four games of the fourth set before his rival was started and Chandler could only take two games of the set, the final score being 6-2. Tomkinson will receive a handsome silver loving cup for his work.

M'INERNEY TAKES FIVE OUT OF SIX

He Hit the Pins for Three 200 Scores and Averaged in One Match 208.

McInerney led the Knights of Columbus bowlers last night, with five victories out of six games played, while Pasch was second to him with an even break. Sullivan and Strappe each fell behind and dropped four games and had the other two to their credit. Several good scores were turned in, the highest of the night's play being made by Strappe in the second game of his second match, when he hit the pins for a 233. McInerney was the only one to make a clean sweep in any series and he took three from Strappe in the second match with two double centuries.

Pasch and Sullivan appeared in the first series, the former taking the first two and dropping the third by a few points. All of the scores in these three games were very close, the first being won by twelve points, the second by three points and the last Sullivan managed to take with a four-point margin. In the second match, McInerney found Strappe troublesome only in the first game, which he won with an 180 against 160. Although there were twenty points between the two scores, Strappe held on for over half the frames and then fell off by poor pinning. In the second the winner of the match made a 213 and it was in the last game that he made his 231.

When Strappe and Pasch started off the former got a poor start and dropped the first game to his opponent, forty points in the rear. In the second he came back and bowled his high score and then took the third and deciding game with a 205. In the last series McInerney lost the first game, but took the next two and the match. His first score was 172 which Sullivan beat with a 217, but McInerney's last two were 196 and 215, which his opponent could not touch. The scores:

Pasch	151	176	168
Sullivan	139	173	172
Strappe	160	180	180
McInerney	180	213	231
Strappe	172	233	205
Pasch	212	145	167
Sullivan	217	168	180
McInerney	172	196	215

The following men will take part tomorrow night:
Cannon vs. Kiely.
Hillman vs. Sullivan.

HOPE TEAM WILL PRACTICE TONIGHT

New Men Expected to Report for the First Workout of the Season.

Preparations for the coming season are being made by Manager George Leighs, of the Hope Chapel basketball team, and he has issued a call for all candidates who expect to try for positions on the team to appear at the Fourth street gym at 8 o'clock tonight for the initial workout. Several new men are expected to report and several of the old "vets" who have played with the team for the last three or four years will not be present this season. The Chapel boys will get an early start in the court game and expect to have a fine schedule which will run for several months.

Jack Martin, who coached the team last year, will not be present tonight, but will take charge of the squad at the next practice. Jack put out a fine team last season and hopes to have one again that can keep up the reputation of the Hope teams in former years. The Heron brothers, who have been on the team for several years, will again be on the job and are sure of getting positions. George Leighs will probably be at guard again unless his managerial duties are too heavy and there is also a chance of Guy Snyder playing. He is at present away from town but will probably be back in time to play.

Among the new men who will appear are Arthur Grisley, one time a member of the Plainfield High School team; Warhop, a second team man last year, and Dick Schott. Frank Clarke and several others will also report. Manager Leighs has already scheduled several games and will probably open the season during the first week of next month.

WHAT CAUSED THE GIANTS TO CRACK?

Variety of Reasons for the Collapse of the McGraw Clan This Year.

The once mighty Giants have faded. The nerve-racking pace of a tight pennant race, in which they hoped to annex their fourth straight National League championship, has had its effect and the old Giant machine has gone to pieces under the strain.

A variety of reasons are advanced for the collapse of the McGraw benchmen. The loss of Herzog and McCormick, who were members of last year's team, the falling down in batting among the regulars, and the failure of Marquard and Demaree to pitch up to their 1913 form, all seem to contribute to the slump of the old champions.

A comparison of the pitching records of 1913 and 1914 shows that Mathewson and Tesreau are the only New York flingers who have been able to duplicate this season their performances of last year. Mathewson has not quite equaled his 1913 mark, but Tesreau has surpassed his record of last year.

In contrast to the good work of "Matty" and "Big Jeff" the pitching of Demaree and Marquard has been a bitter disappointment to Gotham fans this season, since great reliance had been placed on this pair of heavers to add to the list of victories.

Last season Demaree and Marquard pitched wonderful ball, the former winning 23 out of 29 games and the last named 23 out of 32 games pitched. The records of this pair for this season show they have lost double the games they have won.

This reversal of pitching form on the part of the two stars was enough in itself to put the skids under the Giants. But in addition, McGraw has had to contend with weak hitting on the part of his regulars. While the Giants surpass the Braves in team batting, the individual batting marks of the New Yorkers, with the exception of Burns, Grant and Bescher, are below the percentages turned in last season.

"Chief" Meyers, who hit for .312 in 1913, has hit around the .270 mark this year. Fletcher also has hit for about .270, with a last year's average of .297. Snodgrass, with a mork of .291 last season, has been hitting for .264 this year, while McLean has dropped from .286 in 1913 to .259 in 1914. The stick work of Captain Larry Doyle also has suffered a slump. Doyle's batting average of .280 last year has shrunk to .266. Murray and Merkle are two more of the Giant regulars who have failed in effective batting. The former's mark of .267 last season has dropped to .213, and Merkle's average has fallen from .261 to .249.

Of the three Giants who have bettered their batting averages this year the greatest climb has been made by Grant, who has advanced from .211 in 1913 to .307 this year. Burns has boosted his figures from .268 to .302 and Bescher has gone up from .258 to .277.

Another apparent weakness in the Giants' game is in the pinch-hitting department. Harry McCormick, who managed the Chattanooga team this season, was the pinch-hitter for the Giants last year and closed the season with a batting average of .275. This season Mike Doulin, in his day one of the greatest batters in the game, was engaged to fill McCormick's shoes. But Mike has failed to live up to his reputation as a pinch-hitter, his batting average being less than .200.

The foregoing are the facts and figures in regards to the slump of the Giants. But in some quarters other causes are advanced for the downfall of the old champions. Some say that the winning of three pennants caused the team to become "chesty." Believing they had a cinch on the flag this year they took things easy and when the time came for them to show the punch or lose—they lost.

New York fans will not be surprised if several of the present regulars are either benched or released when the 1915 season opens next April. Manager McGraw has a dozen promising recruits awaiting the chance to get into the regular lineup, and it is more than likely that he will give some of them an opportunity to show what they can do. At present the old Giant machine looks to be on the rocks and it evidently is up to McGraw to rebuild the outfit with some of the material now doing bench duty.

A fine chance for "hunch" players is found in the fact that a Boston club has never been defeated in any important post-season series.

The same old stuff. A story is going the rounds to the effect that the Tigers laid down in the games with the Red Sox in order that the Sox might gain on the Athletics.

Cravath, Magee, Luderus and Becker, of the Phillies, compose the greatest quartet of home run hitters in baseball, but they have been unable to wallop their team into a championship.

—You may have an immediate task for a want ad—and yet not act wisely in failing to read them day by day.

FINE SCHEDULE FOR HOPE CHAPEL FIVE

Fifteen Games Have Already Been Arranged and Several Now Pending.

Manager George Leighs, of the Hope Chapel basketball five, has already scheduled fifteen games for his team this season and yet has to hear from several others to complete his schedule. The team will start off the season with the All Newark five, who appeared last year. This aggregation claims to be the traveling champions of the State and the local five had a hard time defeating it on the Fourth street court last year. The second game will be played with the Summit Chapel club here. This team has always been a strong opponent of the local team and always put up a strong game with the locals.

Most of the teams that the Hope team played last year will again appear here and several Perth Amboy clubs have been added to the schedule. The first game with the Y. M. C. A. five will be played on Christmas Day at the association, and the second will probably be played on January 30 on the Hope court.

The schedule up to the last of January is as follows:

Nov. 7—All Newark at Hope.
Nov. 14—Summit Chapel at Hope.
Nov. 21—Goodwill Arrows, of Perth Amboy, at Hope.
Nov. 26—Den A. A., of Perth Amboy, at Hope.
Nov. 28—High Street Cadets, of Newark, at Hope.
Dec. 5—Hope Memorial Five, of Elizabeth, at Hope.
Dec. 12—Methodist church, of Milltown, at Hope.
Dec. 19—American A. C., of Perth Amboy, at Hope.
Christmas Day—Hope at Y. M. C. A.
Dec. 26—Whitehouse five, of Newark, at Hope.
Jan. 1—Laurels, of South River, at Hope.
Jan. 2—Hope at Bloomfield, Methodist five.
Jan. 9—Michelin Tire Co., of Milltown, at Hope.
Jan. 16—Bloomfield Methodist at Hope.
Jan. 23—Progressive five, of Elizabeth, at Hope.
Jan. 30—Y. M. C. A. at Hope (pending).

HIGHLANDERS WIN GAME IN THIRTEENTH FRAME

The Highlanders defeated the Arions, Sunday afternoon, on the Netherwood field in an exciting battle by the score of 3 to 2. The game was close and interesting and was one of the best ever played on the Netherwood field. In the first inning the Highlanders scored a run. Huffmeister singled and scored on a long double by Tommy Mullin. The Arions tied the score in the sixth. Jaeger got a life on an error by the second baseman, took second on an out and scored when Morley's pop-fly was allowed to fall safe in right field.

The Highlanders scored again in the eighth, but the Arions tied the score again in the ninth. In the thirteenth Huffmeister singled, stole second, and scored the winning run when Betzenberger singled to right. The score:

WHADDAYAMEAN BY THE BOWLING PETS?

Plainfield Pinners Form Two Factions for Wood Splitting Encounters.

Since the Pets have been unable to take a baseball series from Brit Martin's Saurer athletes, they will try their luck on the wooden alleys and a bowling match has been arranged between these two clubs for Thursday night on the Eagles' drives on Second street. However, the Pets lineup does not look if Mr. Dorflinger is the manager behind it, because none of the pinners who will play on this team had anything to do with the Plainfield ball club.

The five men who have been picked to hit the wood for Saurer are all members of the baseball team, and Martin will again be in the Saurer lineup, although he will not cover second base. Tommy Mullin entered the football world several weeks ago by trying out for the Holy Cross eleven and now he is going to throw balls at the pins. Henny Alberts and Jack Wilson will also be on the Saurer team while George Miller, the star center fielder, will be the anchor man for the bowling five.

The Pets team will be composed of W. Mullin, Morris, Sheehan, Scott and Mahoney. Miller says that when the Saurer boys hear the name of Pets they say "easy pickings," but they found out different last week. The two teams will line-up as follows:

SAURER	PETS
T. Mullin	W. Mullin
Wilson	Morris
Alberts	Sheehan
Martin	Scott
Miller	Mahoney

DEXTERS WANT TO MEET HOLY CROSS

Will Open Their Season Next Sunday and Are Out for State Championship.

Perth Amboy, Oct. 6—Coached by Tom Hanson, the former Rutgers center, the Dexter football eleven of this city, State champions in 1913, are again in the field and are willing to meet any team in the State. Billy Pfau, of the Perth Amboy Atlantic League baseball club, is managing the Dexters and challenges may be addressed to him at Perth Amboy.

The Dexters held their first practice Sunday morning and will be out three nights this week in preparation for the opening game here on Sunday. Games will be played on the baseball field every Sunday until after Thanksgiving. The Holy Cross eleven of Plainfield, the Michelins of New Brunswick, the Franklins of Newark, the Columbias of Elizabeth, and the Diamonds of Paterson are all welcome to games. A game is also being arranged with the battleship Florida team.

The Dexters have not been beaten in five seasons and last year won the Jersey State championship by defeating the best teams in the State. This year, if the Dexters are again successful, they will make a trip to Stamford, Conn., to play last year's Connecticut State champions.

SIX TEAM LEAGUE TO BE ORGANIZED

Representatives of Local Lodges Met Last Night and Came to Decision.

Six lodges were represented at the preliminary meeting of the organization of a city bowling league, which was held last night. Nothing definite was done at the meeting toward permanent organization. V. W. Nash, Jr., who represented the B. P. O. E., was elected temporary chairman, and James A. Mahoney, the Eagles' representative, was elected temporary secretary. Matters regarding the entrance fees and the alleys to be used were discussed and final plans will be made at a meeting which will be held next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the offices of Mr. Nash, on Park avenue.

The lodges that will be represented are the Loyal Order of Moose, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Independent Order of Foresters, Improved Order of Red Men, Knights of Columbus and the Elks. Prizes will probably be offered to the winner of the league. A schedule will be arranged soon and play commenced.

Those who attended last night's meeting are John Green, James Mahoney, James McCarthy, John Culver, George Taylor and V. W. Nash, Jr.

CHURCH LEAGUE FOR Y. M. C. A. THIS YEAR

Physical Director Meermans Will Try out Plans for Having "Pre" Games.

In order that the basketball season at the local Y. M. C. A. may prove interesting as well as successful, Mr. Meermans, the physical director, is trying to organize a four team church league to play the preliminaries every Saturday night for the first team. Mr. Meermans' idea is to have members of the association who belong to churches organize and play regularly every other Saturday night and to be the attraction when the first team is away.

The First Baptist and First Methodist churches will probably be represented as they have enough men in the gym classes to organize a team. Two other teams are needed to complete the league and Mr. Meermans would like to hear from any other church team who would like to enter.

The prospects for a fine season were never so good as they are this year and the authorities wish to see large crowds out to the games. If this league were formed it would be a big help as a regular schedule would be arranged and there would always be a preliminary game.

N. P. H. S. TOURNAMENT WILL BE INTERESTING

Now that the singles champion has been acknowledged in the Borough High School, much interest is being shown in the doubles tournament which will begin in a few days. There will be no preliminary matches in this tournament as there are only four teams and the play is started in the semi-final round. There is much competition for places on the four class teams and tryouts may be necessary before the teams can be picked to represent the classes.

The seniors were winners of the tournament last year, but they will find a hard proposition in the juniors whose team will probably consist of Warren Townley and Sherman Chandler. The winners of this tournament will each receive a silver loving cup.

FIRST MOVING PICTURE SHOW BY RECREATION COMMITTEE

The Recreation Committee has installed a new moving picture machine in the auditorium of the Washington School and the first entertainment will be given Thursday evening. The program that has been arranged for the opening night is interesting and will include industrial, travel, natural science and comedy films and the public is invited to attend. There will be two performances Thursday, the first starting at 7:30 and the second at 9 o'clock.

The program will include the following pictures: Industrial, "Spinners of Speech;" natural science, "Wild Beasts at Home;" sociology, "When the Circus Came to Town;" travel, "Glacier National Park;" comedy, "Wouldn't That Tire You" and "Trailing the Counterfeiters."

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB RECEPTION

Mrs. W. T. Ropes and Mrs. Lemuel Skidmore Guests at Social Function.

Mrs. William T. Ropes, of Montclair, State president of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Lemuel Skidmore, of Summit, also an officer in the State federation, were honorary guests at the first fall meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, held yesterday afternoon, in the parish house of the Congregational church, the affair being in the nature of a reception to the visiting State officers. There was a large attendance of members for whom the affair was held exclusively.

Mrs. Ropes gave a most interesting informal talk on the work of the State federation showing what was accomplished during the past year and giving a glimpse as to the outlook for the coming year. Her address was an inspiring one. Mrs. Skidmore read her paper on "Household Economics," which she presented at the State federation meeting in Asbury Park in May. This was greatly enjoyed by the members.

In addition Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, Mrs. E. G. Read and Mrs. Orton G. Dale, who were the delegates from the local club to the State federation, presented brief interesting reports of that gathering.

Following the addresses and the presentation of reports there was the reception for Mrs. Ropes and Mrs. Skidmore which proved delightful to the honored guests and the club members. The entertainment committee comprising Mrs. William C. Kinney, Mrs. F. W. Yates, Mrs. Albert Winter and Mrs. C. G. Larsson, were in charge of the social part of yesterday's meeting.

Miss Mary Antin, author of "The Promised Land," will address the club Monday afternoon, October 12, in the parish house of the Congregational church, where all the meetings will be held this year.

AIMS TO ASSIST UNEMPLOYED HERE

Councilman Cose Wants Local Labor Used in Building Public School.

For the purpose of securing employment for many men in this city who are now out of work owing to lack industrial conditions, Councilman John H. Cose at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, requesting the Board of Education in awarding the contract for the new Evergreen avenue school to stipulate that 90 per cent. of the labor be engaged here if it is available.

Mr. Cose explained his resolution by saying that as the result of an investigation he had found that there are now about 250 men in the various trades out of work in this city, and that by December 1, unless conditions change, that this number will be increased 50 per cent. Mr. Cose added that while he realized that the Board of Education cannot be forced to make such a stipulation, he thought that possibly if it knew it was the sense of the Council the Board might be inclined to do what it could to relieve the present situation.

OSCAR MICHAEL AND CO. ANNOUNCE FALL OPENING

A most interesting event to the women is occurring in Newark this week at the fall opening and style exhibition of Oscar Michael & Co., Broad and Cedar streets. They have chosen the event to show fashions and new merchandise that will add even greater prestige to that well-known store which was founded nearly sixty years ago, by the late W. V. Snyder, one of the most noted of Newark's prominent merchants. Since the transfer not long ago to the new owners, the store has undergone a thorough reorganization and rehabilitation making it practically a new store.

FINE PROGRAM FOR ANNUAL RECEPTION OF Y. W. C. A.

A very pleasing program has been ararnged for the annual rally and reception of the Y. W. C. A. which will be held in the association rooms on East Front street next Thursday night at 8 o'clock. It will consist of vocal and instrumental selections and secretarie's reports for the year. All members are invited to attend and all those who are thinking of joining classes this season are also welcome.

Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, will preside and Miss Helen Besler will render vocal selections. Mrs. Alice Johnson will preside at the piano and play several solos.

The regular classes will begin on Monday, October 12, and Thursday will be registration night.

GOVERNOR TO AID UNION CANDIDATES

Will Speak in Elizabeth on Saturday, October 17.

Trenton, Oct. 6—The itinerary of Governor Fielder in the State campaign has been announced by State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup, and in connection with the announcement, Mr. Grosscup called a conference for last Saturday morning at the State headquarters here of the eight holdover Senators, the Democratic nominees for the Senate and the Congressional candidates from the twelve districts. The object of the conference, as stated by Mr. Grosscup, was to organize interested persons in a sympathetic campaign that is to be conducted throughout the State.

The Governor's itinerary is as follows: Saturday, October 17, Union county; Monday, October 19, Warren; Thursday, October 22, Somerset; Friday, October 23, Monmouth; Saturday, October 24, Camden; Thursday, October 29, Gloucester; Friday, October 30, Salem.

The Governor will campaign in the interest of all the Democratic candidates. When Governor Fielder reaches a county he will spend a day traveling through the towns with a group of speakers, and each evening will be devoted to a general county mass meeting.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF POSTMASTERS MEET

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6—The National Association of Postmasters of the Second and Third classes assembled in Washington today and began a three days' convention. Several hundred postmasters and assistant postmasters are in attendance. The business mapped out for the convention consists largely of discussions on improvements of the postal service in the larger cities. The further development of the parcel post system will receive particular attention.

Today's sessions included introductory remarks by Postmaster Prager, of Washington, and the following addresses: "Markets," by John H. Sherman, sealer of weights and measures for the District of Columbia; "Economies of Direct Dealing by Consumer with Producer," by Charles H. Brand, in charge of the office of markets, United States Department of Agriculture; "Farm Products by Parcel Post," Mrs. F. L. Ransom, of the Housekeepers' Alliance of the District of Columbia; "The Interest of the Postoffice Department in the Parcel Post," by John C. Koons, superintendent of the division of salaries and allowances, Postoffice Department; "The Parcel Post as a Means of Lowering the High Cost of Living," by Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, and the "Handling of Farm Products by Parcel Post," by William H. Haycocke, superintendent of delivery of the Washington postoffice.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The pin committee of the junior class met a representative from the Charles D. Reese Co., yesterday afternoon, and were shown some samples of class pins.

The invitations for the freshmen reception, which is given yearly by the Sigma Gamma Kappa were given out this morning. The reception will be held in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. next Friday.

The boys' basketball team will have Saengerbund Hall by the end of the week as negotiations between the manager and president of the Turn Verin are almost completed.

"Hub" Stine and George Townley have sent many of their friends in High School football schedules of the Springfield team.

RECREATION NOTES

The Italian Club enjoyed one of its social evenings, last night. The music furnished by three of the members on the piano, violin and guitar was very good. Two young men gave vocal solos which were very pleasing. Dancing and a general good time were enjoyed by everyone.

The Dramatic Club meets tonight at 8:15 in the Washington School. There will be rehearsals of both plays "My Lord in Livery" and "Sarah's Young Man." Mr. White, the coach, is very anxious for all members of both casts to be present.

The Italian Social and Educational Club will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Lincoln School.

THE DAILY PRESS IN DUNELLEN will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Edward Pennock, druggist and newsdealer, Aaron, newsdealer.

—Jacob Gerner, newsdealer, Somerville, sells the Daily Press or will deliver it to your home each day.

PLAINFIELD NEWS.

There is no better way to keep out-of-town friends informed as to Plainfield news than to mail to them from time to time a copy of The Press after you have finished with it, sometimes marking an article of special interest.

Better yet, you might send some one out-of-town a subscription to receive The Daily Press every day at the rate of 10 cents a week or $5.00 a year.

ACCEPT OFFER OF CITY BANK

Borough Council, sent an official statement to the Council regarding the consolidation election held in the borough, September 24, and this was filed.

A petition for a light at Osborn and Helena avenues, and an application from J. H. Serrell, Jr., of Evona avenue, for appointment in the fire department were referred to the proper committees.

The Public Service Electric Company notified the Council that five new lights had been installed as ordered, making the present total number 1,094. This was filed. The New York Telephone Company, through A. B. Wilson, local manager, communicated with the Council regarding repairs to the Gamewell system wires and the matter was referred to the police committee. The contract between the city and the Consumers' Coal Company for coal was ordered filed.

Andrew Olsen, of East Second street, requested the deduction of $19.90 on a sewer assessment on 33 feet of land, which he said had been transferred. This was referred to the sewer committee.

F. W. Warnke petitioned for a light at Marion and South End avenues, claiming that the point is a dangerous one. This was referred, as was also a petition from the West End Civic Association regarding a walk on West Fourth street, between Monroe and Clinton avenues. Mr. Blatz reported later that the matter would be given proper attention. A statement of joint sewer expenses was received and filed.

Albert Redfern, of Kensington avenue, complained about the condition of that thoroughfare and urged that it be given attention. The matter was referred.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of seven sewer permits and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of sixteen building permits during the past month. Horace Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $181.54, disbursements of $59.84, with a balance of $121.70. Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham reported expenses of $1,384.

Councilman Calkins offered a resolution, which was adopted, transferring $4,500 from the general fund to the fire fund and $1,000 from the general fund to the poor fund.

In accordance with a resolution by Councilman Francis J. Blatz, the Public Service Corporation was directed to remove one of its poles at Randolph road and Park avenue, a few feet, its present location not being desirable. Another resolution by Mr. Blatz provided for the laying of walks on certain streets, the cost to be charged up to the property-owners, and another resolution, which was adopted, provided for the execution of the contract between the city and Burke & Bonham for the macadamizing of certain streets, previously decided upon.

A light was ordered installed on Sandford avenue, in accordance with a resolution by Councilman T. F. Hylan.

Mr. Calkins stated that there is now due about $10,000 on sewer contracts, and a resolution offered by him and adopted, provided for the issuing of $15,000 sewer extension bonds at 5½ per cent.

PROTEST AGAINST SALOON

The suggestion by Councilman C. C. Graves, in reporting back the protest, that the congregation specify any particular grievance and state whether it had reported the matter to the police, led to a lively discussion.

Councilman T. F. Hylan remarked that the protest set forth the reasons for the complaint, and in reply to a question from one of the members seeking information regarding the location of the synagogue, etc., Mr. Graves said that perhaps Councilman John H. Cose could enlighten the Council. This brought forth a smile from the other councilmen, especially when Mr. Cose stated that "to tell the honest truth, I didn't know the synagogue was there."

President George S. Clay favored an investigation of the conditions complained of, not being willing to vote for the resolution offered by Mr. Graves asking the petitioners to be more specific.

Speaking in a more serious vein, Councilman Calkins said that it appeared to him as though there was a certain amount of merit in the protest and that some action should be taken. He agreed with Mr. Graves to some extent in that the protest should be more specific, however, it would seem to indicate that the law was being violated.

Mr. Calkins recalled that two years ago the Mt. Olive Baptist church protested against the same saloon, the complaint being received at the eleventh hour to the effect that the law was being violated, that liquor was being sold to minors and that crowds congregated at the corner, etc., but the Council decided not to recognize such a protest because there had been no police evidence of violations. However, Mr. Calkins thought some reply should be made to the communication from the Hebrew congregation.

These remarks led Mr. Graves to say that these frequent protests were getting rather tiresome. He said that the aim of some people seems to be to get rid of the saloons, adding that within the last two or three years saloons had been gotten rid of by "hook or crook," and if that thing is kept up there wouldn't be any saloons in the city. "But," Mr. Graves continued, "the people will rise up in their wrath and demand saloons, they will elect a Council which will give the city more saloons than it has at the present time."

Mr. Graves had previously offered a resolution requesting the Hebrew congregation to be more specific, but later he decided to withdrew this and the matter was left in the hands of the license committee for further investigation and a report will be made to the Council afterward. The protest from the Hebrew congregation was signed by Louis Kadesh as president. Mr. Graves stated that the place of worship of the congregation is located about a half block from Clark's saloon.

JAMES PENNY'S EUROPEAN TRIP

Lengthy Letter Written by Traveler Tells of His Summer Tour.

VISITED BIRTH PLACE

Enroute to Europe Local Man Met Two of His Former Shipmates—Places of Interest Visited by Local Party.

Reviewing his recent trip to Europe, James Penny, sexton at the Crescent Avenue church, writes as follows in this week's issue of "The Messenger," the official literary organ of that church:

"It is hard to express a true appreciation of our trip to Europe in such a short account, but I would like to take this opportunity to thank you all for making it possible, and to tell you about some of our experiences.

"After an absence of twenty-five years we were prepared for some surprises and they started on board the Celtic the first day out. Here I met two shipmates, one, the boatswain, and the other a member of the crew. Both of these men had been on the same ship with me when I was a boy. The renewal of our friendship made the voyage a very pleasant one, and we were soon at Liverpool, where we were introduced to nephews for the first time who were young men. Our feelings are hard to describe, and it was always the same when we met new relatives and friends.

"We were just in time for England's declaration of war upon Germany, but suffered no inconvenience because of that fact. The banks were closed for several days, and it was interesting to watch the mobilization of troops and the enforced sale of the Manchester horses, which are famous all over England for their size and strength. These horses were tagged by the soldiers at any time or place and sometimes without the owner's consent or knowledge, and in very large numbers.

"We stayed about ten days in Manchester and then went to London, where we visited Kensington Gardens, Hyde Park, Kew Gardens, Buckingham Palace, House of Commons, House of Lords, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's, British Museum, and the Towers of London, a very sad place. Some of the usual places of interest were closed because of the depredations of the suffragettes. At the British Museum I was much amused by being asked if I would be responsible for Mrs. Penny while there.

"From London we went on a trip to Nottingham, where we visited one of the large lace mills and, among other things of interest at that place of industry, we were shown a large room, fitted with seats, which is used every morning from eight to eight-twenty-five as a gathering place for prayer service. This is attended by a great majority of the employes and is in charge of the minister of one of the large churches in Nottingham, for which he receives $60 a year from the firm.

"Our next visit was in Wales and included Bangor, Llandudno, Conway Bay, and Rush-on-the-sea. On the way to Chester, England, we passed a military prison. It had formerly been a workshop, but was now occupied by German suspects. These men were playing cricket and football, and apparently enjoying themselves despite the fact that they were prisoners.

"While in Bangor I went to the cathedral, where I was confirmed when not quite sixteen, and to the old battleship where I had spent many days. I enjoyed this part of my trip very much, and it did me good to see these places again. To get started in life on a ship and in a cathedral may seem strange and unusual, but it was a good start for me.

"After making these side trips we returned to Manchester and spent the remainder of our vacation visiting with our relatives, sailing for home on September second on the Celtic, the same ship which we went over on. The trip home was uneventful except that the vessel was greatly crowded with Americans anxious to get back to their homes."

Some Cookery Suggestions

FROZEN PEACH DESSERTS.

PEACHES with their delicious flavor make splendid frozen desserts.

A fine way of using the sliced fruit is with plain vanilla ice cream.

Peach Ice Cream.—Take two cupfuls each of finely mashed peaches and cream, one cupful each of milk and sugar. To each two quarts of finely chopped ice add a cupful of ice cream salt. Always ice the freezer before you put in the ingredients. Bring the milk to a boil, add the sugar, stir until dissolved. When cool add the cream, pour in freezer, add the fruit last. Turn slowly at first and faster as it becomes hard.

With Canned Peaches.

Frozen Peaches.—Drain the juice from a can of peaches, add two cupfuls of granulated sugar, boil three minutes and cool. Press the peaches through a sieve, add the fruit strup, turn into the freezer, partly packed in salt and ice; add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, continue the packing and freeze in the usual manner.

Peach or Pineapple Pudding Glace.—Soften two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in half a cupful of water, add to the yolks of three eggs beaten very light and half a cupful of sugar. Chop two cupfuls of pineapple and add or if you prefer use two cupfuls of peach pulp when half frozen, add two cupfuls of whipped cream and the whites of the eggs also beaten stiff. When thoroughly incorporated repack in the mold and finish freezing.

Flavored With Almonds.

Peach Mousse.—Take one tablespoonful of granulated gelatin and cover with one-third cupful of cold water. When soft place over boiling water until dissolved, then add one cupful of powdered sugar. Stir the mixture until cold, pour gradually into one pint of cream whipped until very stiff, add one pint of peach pulp and one teaspoonful of almond extract, turn into molds, pack in salt and ice and let stand four or five hours before serving.

Peach Water Ice.—Place a pound of loaf sugar in a clean sugar boiler or an enameled stewpan. Add to it a pint of water and bring gently to the boil, and let it continue to boil for ten minutes. Meanwhile peel four to six ripe peaches, according to the size, and rub them through a fine sieve into a clean basin. Add to them the juice of a large lemon and a large orange, first freed from pips and strained, the rind of an orange rubbed off on to a lump of sugar and half a pint of cold water. Mix well together and then add the boiled sirup. Mix again and strain through a fine strainer into the freezer. When three parts frozen mold and finish as directed in previous recipes.

It's a Funny Sight to See the Baby Colt Nursing His Bottle.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Baby Colt That Was Adopted By a Regiment.

"I MUST tell you some news about the regiment to which I used to belong, kiddies," said daddy as he laid down the evening paper and the children climbed up on his knee to hear their usual evening story.

"Oh, goody!" cried Evelyn and Jack, who always liked to hear stories about daddy's regiment.

"You see, kiddies, my regiment is a cavalry regiment, so it always has from 300 to 400 horses, besides the colts born.

"About two months ago the mother of a wee colt died of heart trouble when her baby was only two days old.

"This four legged daughter of the regiment weighed fifty pounds when born and was very spindle legged and weak.

"So the farrier of the troop determined to bring up that baby colt by hand.

"To make a food that was nourishing old Jim, the farrier, who had constituted himself nursemaid, used baby's food, whites of eggs, milk and olive oil.

"This mixture he poured into a big bottle, and they say it is a funny sight to see the baby colt nursing his bottle.

"She is fed every two hours from 5 in the morning until 12 midnight; then when she bawls Jim sits up with her and pets her.

"I suppose like any other baby she misses her mother sadly, but just think of having a hundred parents, more or less, for the whole troop has adopted Brown Betty, as the colt is called.

"Perhaps when Brown Betty grows up she will be a much brighter member of the horse kingdom than she would have been if she had not been brought up by a whole regiment."

"Daddy, perhaps she will learn to shoot a gun," said Jack.

"I'd like to have her for a saddle horse some time," said Evelyn.

"Perhaps she'll grow up and be obliged to go to war," replied daddy, "like the horses of the regiments of the European armies.

"But let us hope that war never comes to our own fair land again, for war, my dears, is a great, grim, terrible force that when it once gets in motion does more damage than we can well imagine.

"But now you must go to your beds and go to sleep."

"Maybe we will dream about Brown Betty, daddy," said Evelyn.

"Well, that would be one kind of a nightmare," said daddy laughingly.

"Good night, now, and sleep tight."

DEMOCRATS ARE HARMONIOUS

Deny That There is Any Dissention in the Ranks of the Party.

TO SUPPORT STEWART

County Chairman L. T. Russell Makes Enthusiastic Address—Mayoralty Candidate Theo. Martin and David Coleman Also Speak.

An enthusiastic and harmonious meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club was held last night, when there was evidenced a strong sentiment in favor of supporting the entire party ticket at the November election. The rumor that there was dissention among members of the party in this city, that a certain faction did not intend to support Mayor Percy H. Stewart, the candidate for State Senator, was reported to be without foundation.

Lucius T. Russell, of Elizabeth, the new county chairman, was present and addressed the club. His remarks were enthusiastic and inspiring. He told how general is the desire even in the ranks of the Republicans, to support President Wilson in the present emergency and that many of them were going to vote the Democratic ticket on that account.

During his remarks, Mr. Russell referred to a rumor going the rounds of the county that the Democrats of Plainfield were not going to support Mr. Stewart at the November election. This, the speaker warmly resented as a reflection not only on the loyalty of Plainfield Democrats, but on the intelligence of those giving credence to the rumor. This statement was not dissented from by any one present and a canvass failed to reveal any foundation for the charge that there was any organized opposition to the candidate for State Senator or that the disaffection was general.

The discussion plainly showed that it was the sense of the club that the primary differences had been buried and that Mr. Stewart would get a big vote in Plainfield and that party success would be the slogan of Plainfield Democrats.

Councilman Theodore Martin, who is the Democratic candidate for Mayor, addressed the club briefly, his remarks being well received. He spoke with confidence and hope and declared that his campaign would be like his administration, if elected, one of labor, not of talk. Political as well as worldly wisdom seemed apparent in the remarks of Mr. Martin.

David L. Coleman, candidate from the Fourth ward for Council, also spoke hopefully and earnestly and urged that a strong effort should be made to get all Democrats to register and to vote, which being done would, with the help of his Republican friends, make his election sure.

The committee on commission government reported progress, that the petitions would be circulated immediately after election no matter who was elected Mayor, as public sentiment appeared to be growing stronger in favor of commission government for Plainfield.

There were no other candidates present. Mayor Percy H. Stewart is detained at home with a severe cold and Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, another member of the committee, was also detained by illness. Four new members were elected, including Clinton Ivins and Winfield S. Cram. The former was elected a member of the city committee after the club meeting adjourned, to fill a vacancy. The committee will meet on Friday night, it being thought best to await the action of the county committee, which meets tonight, to take up certain matters relating to the work of the campaign.

"GET-TOGETHER" DINNER.

The executive committee of the Men's Club, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, is planning for a "get-together" dinner to be given the latter part of the month. An effort will be made to secure a speaker who has been abroad since the war started and who can bring some new information regarding actual experiences in the coutries involved.

COUNCILMAN CLAYBROOK ILL.

Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, of Grant avenue, who has been suffering considerably of late with stomach trouble, is now under treatment at a New York hospital, where it is hoped he will speedily recover.

RECREATION NOTES.

Motion pictures will be shown at the Washington School tomorrow night at 7:30 and 9 o'clock, under the auspices of the Plainfield Recreation Committee. An admission fee of five cents will be charged.

MAYOR STEWART ILL.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart is detained at his home on West Eighth street with a cold. He hopes to be out again within a short time.

PLAN RALLY MEETING

Visiting Boards Will Attend November Meeting—Elizabeth-Bayonne Bridge Topic Discussed—Councilman's Resolution Endorsed.

Agitation to induce the Plainfield Common Council to authorize the publication of the local tax assessments in pamphlet form was started by the Board of Trade at its first fall meeting, last night, those attending al entering into the spirit of the proposition with enthusiasm. The subject was launched at a suggestion made by President William Jeffery, who presided at the meeting, and several of the active members of the organization expressed their views in the matter. It was the consensus of opinion that local taxpayers should be provided with printed lists of the property holdings of individuals and corporations for the purpose of comparison and proper equalization. Some opposition was raised owing to the expense involved, but the proposition was finally passed and will be presented to the councilmanic body at its next meeting in the form of a resolution coming from the Board of Trade. Comparison of the expense that would be incurred through such an undertaking was made with the annual report of the Board of Health and it was suggested that this pamphlet be substituted for the one now being issued by the health authorities, it being considered more pertinent to the needs of the community.

Owing to the fact that former Mayor William L. Saunders was unable to be present at last night's meeting no official report was received on the consolidation election in the borough and this matter was deferred until next month. Mr. Saunders was chairman of the Board's committee on consolidation and also led the campaign in favor of the proposition at the successful election held September 24.

Plans for a monster rally meeting in November were reviewed and various suggestions were offered to arouse interest in this affair. The Boards of Trade from nearby cities will be invited to attend and questions of interest to the State and communities will be discussed by speakers active in the respective movements. Owing to the fact that the regular date for the November meeting falls on election night, it was postponed until November 17. A

CHIRSTENING AND BIRTHDAY PARTY

Jacob Voehl, Sr., Celebrates and Great-grandchildren Are Baptized.

Jacob Voehl, Sr., a well-known citizen of the borough, celebrated the seventy-seventh anniversary of his birthday at his home, 35 Grove street, Monday evening, at which time four of his great-grandchildren, Charles Carney Austin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Austin, of Monticello, N. Y.; Frances Emerson Gnatz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gnatz; Dorothy Mabel and George Allison, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Voehl, of Dunellen, were christened by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church.

The christening was performed at 6 o'clock and immediately afterward there was a birthday supper for Mr. Voehl. In the centre of the table was a large birthday cake with seventy-seven candles. After the supper music was a feature of the evening. There were about thirty guests present from Monticello, N. Y., Bayonne, New York, Dunellen and Plainfield. The decorations comprised autumnal foliage, including chrysanthemums.

TAX AUTOMOBILES BUT GASOLINE NO

So Says Senator James E. Martine in Speech Before Upper House.

MAKE LIQUORS PAY TOLL

Senator Makes Eloquent and Strong Plea for Exemption of Gasoline, But Says Wealthy Can Afford to Pay If They Own Automobiles.

United States Senator James E. Martine, of this city, took an active part in the debate last Saturday in the Senate, on the question of taxing gasoline and automobiles. He opposed the placing of a tax on the power which drives machines, and also on those machines which are used for business purposes, but saw no reason why pleasure vehicles should be exempt. After quoting a telegram from a Hoboken firm who were opposed to the tax on gasoline, the Senator said:

"I am opposed to tax on gasoline, for the use of gasoline is not confined to automobiles, of which my wealthy friend from Michigan is the fortunate possessor. I have none. Gasoline

NEW REGULATION FOR LICENSE APPLICANTS

Those Rejected for Plumbers' Certificates Will Have to Wait Six Months.

Following action taken by the local Board of Health at its monthly meeting last night, applicants for plumbers' licenses in this city who are rejected by the examining board, will have to wait until a period of six months has elapsed before they may make a second request. Reports presented last night show that fourteen cases of communicable diseases were registered during September and eleven disinfections in ten buildings were completed. Forty-four cultures were examined in the laboratory during the month.

A total of 1,186 inspections were recorded by Health Officer Randolph Chandler, 508 of these being of a general nature. In the Bureau of Vital Statistics the following records were made: Births, 58; marriages, 22; and deaths, 39. Twenty-two marriage certificates were issued and twenty-nine deaths recorded.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO ORGANIZE.

Plans for the proposed Choral Society under the direction of the Public Recreation Committee are rapidly being completed. The date for the first gathering of those interested in the project has been announced as Tuesday, October 13, the meeting being scheduled for the auditorium of Franklin School. The society will be under the personal direction of S. Frederick Smith, the musical director of the committee in charge. It is expected a chorus of fully 200 will be on hand to inaugurate the rehearsals of Handel's "Messiah."

LODGE NOTE.

Uniform Rank, Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight at the lodge rooms to perfect organization and elect officers. All members are urged to be present, as this is an important meeting.

MISS PEACOCK WEDS JAMES R. HARRIS

Quiet Ceremony Performed at the Home of Bride's Parents Last Night.

Miss Kathleen Peacock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Peacock, of 1224 West Seventh street, was married last night, at the home of her parents to James Harris, of Clinton avenue, by the Rev. Beattie Wiley, of New Castle, Delaware. Mr. Wiley is a cousin of the bride. The home was decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Barbara Peacock. The best man was Albert Harris, a brother of the groom.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of white rose buds, and the bridesmaid also wore white crepe de chine and carried a bunch of yellow roses. The wedding was a quiet one, attended only by the members of the two immediate families.

After the ceremony the couple left for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside in Newark. The groom is in the printing business and has his office in New York. The bride is well known both in the city and borough and has a large circle of friends. She is a member of the First Presbyterian church, of this city.

COAL GOING UP.

It cost Stephen Chisameyer $8 for stealing one bushel of coal from a car on the tracks of the Central Railroad near Richmond street, when he was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning. Several times the defendant has been arrested on similar charges and the court's patience was exhausted when he appeared before the bar this morning.

BATTLE CONTINUES VIOLENTLY ON ALLIES' LEFT WHILE RUSSIANS CLAIM GAINS ON 55 MILE LINE

NO ADVANTAGES CLAIMED BY EITHER SIDE TODAY IN THE STRUGGLE GOING ON IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK OFF THE EMS

English Submarine Attacked it, According to Official Report Serbs Annihilate Several Thousand Austrians—Japanese Say That German Cruiser and Two Gunboats Have Been Sunk—Dirigble Said to Have Been Destroyed.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The war office issued the following statement this afternoon: "On our left wing the battle continues with great violence. The opposing fronts have extended even into the region of Len La Passe, prolonged by masses of cavalry which are in contact even in the region of Armentieres. On the front along the Somme as far as the Meuse, there is nothing to report.

"In the Woevre region the enemy has attempted to make a new effort to arrest our progress, but its attacks have been repulsed.

"In Russia the German army defeated in the battle of Augustow which lasted from September 25 to October 3, is attempting to arrest pursuit on the positions along the frontier. From Wiraballem to Lyck the Russians continue to advance and have penetrated at several points into East Prussia. In general the German offensive on the Niemen has been terminated by a complete defeat and very large losses."

Petrograd, Oct. 7.—The Germans again are being pushed back on the line of the Masura Lakes and are doing their best to maintain their fresh fortified positions, extending for 55 miles in an irregular line from Verjbolovo, a station on the Russian frontier, to Lyck. They are supported by fire from heav yartillery, reinforced by a garrison from Koenigsberg. It is supposed that these positions are defended by three or four army corps.

The Russians continue pushing forward. Attacks on the railway stations in East Prussia near the frontier have successfully blocked the military trains. The fighting is especially severe in the neighborhood of Bakalarjevo.

Amsterdam, Oct. 7, (Central News Cable)—A despatch to the Neuws Van Den Tag from the Dutch island of Schiermonnikoog says:

"This morning about 11 o'clock a German torpedo boat was patrolling before the mouth of the Ems, off the coast of East Friesland and close to the border of Holland. The weather was clear. Suddenly an explosion was heard. The torpedo boat capsized and sank three minutes later. Shortly afterward two submarines were seen but their nationality could not be ascertained. Shortly afterward a German cruiser steamed to the scene of the accident and saved a number of the crew. (This is probably the boat that is reported elsewhere as having been destroyed by a British submarine.)

London, Oct. 7, (Central News Cable)—A British submarine sank a German torpedo boat destroyer off the German coast last night, says an official announcement by the admiralty office today.

A despatch from Berlin, via Amsterdam, says that the following official statement was made at the headquarters of the German army last evening: "Continuous French outflanking movements against our right wing have extended the battle front until it is now north of Arras. West of Lille and Lens our advance guards are in touch with the enemy's cavalry. No decision has been reached as yet in our counter attacks along the line between Arras, Albert and Roy."

A despatch from Vienna says the following official statement signed by General Von Hoeffer, deputy chief of the general staff, was given out in that city today:

"The sudden advance of the German and Austrian forces in Russian Poland seems to have completely surprised the Russians. Although they moved strong forces from Galicia to the north they were repulsed and driven back across the Vistula by the Allies while making an effort to cross the river in the direction of Opatow. Our troops captured a bridge field by the Russians near Sandomir. In Galicia we are advancing in accordance with our plans. In the vicinity of Tarnovezeg we routed a division of Russian infantry."

The correspondent of the Daily Express at The Hague says that German newspapers reaching there indicate that Count Zeppelin is now at Wilhelmhaven.

A news agency despatch says that the French brought down a German aeroplane at Romilly Urreine while it was flying over that city yesterday.

Despatches from Berlin say that the Kaiser has summoned the session of the Prussian Diet which has been adjourned since June 15, to meet on October 22.

Rome, Oct. 7, (Centrals News Cable)—A despatch from Nish declares that a detachment of several thousand Austrians was annihilated yesterday by Serbs, as it was crossing the Sava, near Shabatz. An official statement in Vienna, which evidently refers to the same engagement, says that the Serbs surrounded Austrian patrols and massacred them to the last man.

Tokio, Oct. 7.—The belief was expressed at the war office today that the German cruiser Cormoran and two German gunboats were sunk in Kiao Chau bay. The Japanese army has occupied the Shan Tung railroad as far west as Chi Man.

"HUNT THE SPY."

It was pleasing to note the interest which was manifested in the turnout of Crow Patrol, Troop No. 1, of the local organization of Boy Scouts of America, last Saturday afternoon in their game of "Hunt the Spy." The idea of the game is that one of the boys bears a message to a distant point at which he must have this message signed and time placed on same. This spy is given a specific home which he must approach. The remainder of the patrol is posted half way between the starting point of the spy and his destination. These boys are notified that the spy will try to visit one of these three houses, which in this case were the homes of Dr. Hawkins, Mr. Holbrook and Miss M. E. Harris, near the intersection of Greenbrook and Warrenville roads, but they were not definitely posted as to the particular house the spy is to visit, but must cover all three places. These boys are supposed to arrest the spy before he reaches his destination or pay a fine. If he reaches his destination, but is caught on his return from the starting point within the time allowed him to make the round trip bearing the message properly signed and timed, he wins.

In Saturday's game DeWitt Swackhamer was the spy. He was started from Washington Park by Scout Commissioner Edward J. Dusel at 2:30 o'clock, and the patrol was started from Madison avenue and Mountainview Terrace at the same time by Henry D. Williams, the president of the council. The game ended at Washington Park at 4 o'clock, Swackhamer being caught as he neared the park after having made a most excellent run through the woods and fields to the home of Dr. Hawkins. The message was taken away from him and delivered to President Henry D. Williams, which ended the game.

The starting out of the boys was noticed by a few, but the return was very exciting and attracted much attention, leading to inquiries as to what the boys were doing.

THIS TO PROFESSIONAL MEN

You doctors and lawyers depend very much on your appearance for success. You know that it is necessary to wear dignified garments — clothes that give an air of solidity —of importance. Such clothes are sold at Rothberg's.

Not because they are dignified in appearance are they lacking in style. Far from it!

Come in and see the garments; better still, try on some of the suits—you will readily see how thoroly in keeping with your calling in life, and how much less they cost than garments of the same character made by a custom tailor.

SILLIMAN'S PRESENCE SETS GOSSIPS TALKING

Washington, Oct. 7.—Complete mystery attends the presence in Washington of United States Consul John R. Silliman, who hurried here from his port in Mexico City, to confer with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. After a two hours' conference last night at the White House, Mr. Silliman appeared again today at the State Department. In spite of his frequent conferences, it is insisted that his visit has no significance. Unofficially, however, it is declared that the administration views with the greatest nervousness the situation in Mexico.

RUSTEM BEY LEAVES.

New York, Oct. 7.—A. Rustem Bey, the Turkish ambassador, left today aboard the S. S. Stampalia, of the Italian Line, for Naples, from which point he is expected to go to Constantinople. He said that he was on leave of absence and did not know when he would return. The Ambassador said that there was no truth in the report that Turkey was proceeding against the Black Sea fleet of the Russians, but he could not say anything as to the closing of the Dardanelles.

TO ELECT NEW BISHOP.

Trenton, Oct. 7.—A special convention composed of lay and clerical delegates of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey assembled at Trinity church in this city today to decide upon the choice of a new bishop to succed the late Bishop John Scarborough. The election was rendered necessary by the declination of Bishop Charles Henry Brent, of the Philippines, who was elected to the office last May at the general convention of the church.

N. Y. POLICEMAN KILLED.

New York, Oct. 7.—Sergeant John E. Hodgins was killed and Policeman King was mortally injured when a car hit an automobile that was taking them to a fire at 354 West Fourteenth street this morning. Both men were attached to the Charles street station. The accident happened at Bank and Eleventh streets. King was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital. The fire was slight.

PLAN INDOOR CARNIVAL.

The Independent Fife and Drum Corps, for many years a popular musical organization of this city, and which was recently re-organized, have at present, plans well under way for an indoor carnival. The dates arranged for have been announced as November 14 to 22 inclusive, and the events will be held at Company K Armory. A complete list of committees will be announced later.

MORE BORDER FIRING.

Washington, Oct. 7—Spasmodic long range fighting continues at Naco, General Bliss notified the War Department today. The forces of Governor Maytorena have not succeeded in advancing on General Hill's position. Another private of the tenth cavalry has been seriously wounded by a stray bullet from the Mexican trench.

PROSPERITY NOTES.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

RAINFALL FOR THE YEAR TOTALS 31.26 INCHES

The amount of rain thus far this year, according to the official records of Weather Prophet John Neagle, totals 31.26 inches. The normal for the year is 49.32 inches. In order to make up the normal for the year it will require 6.02 inches each month to make the 18.06 inches that will be due at the end of 1914. The wettest year was 1889, when 82.57 inches of water fell and the driest year was 1895, when 39.45 inches were recorded.

WELL KNOWN WEST END RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Leonard G. Dennick, aged 76 years, a well known resident of the West End, of 1644 West Third street, died yesterday afternoon, after a lingering illness. Mr. Dennick had a wide circle of friends in the fraternities of the city, being a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P. He was a painter by trade. Mr. Dennick had lived in this city for the most of his life. Death was due to a general breakdown in health caused by old age.

Mr. Dennick is survived by four sons, Samuel Dennick, of Elizabeth; Jacob L., William H. and George, of this city; also four daughters, Mrs. Joseph Chapot, of Newark; Mrs. Gildersleeve, of Elizabeth; Mrs. C. W. Lines, of New York, and Mrs. Irving DeHart, of this city.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when Perseverance Lodge will be in charge, and Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

AWARD PRIZES IN THE PUMPKIN SEED CONTEST

Owing to the continued warm weather, A. E. Force & Co., shoe department, awarded the "pumpkin seed contest," yesterday, the large pumpkin beginning to show the effects of the weather. It was originally planned to close the contest on October 29. A committee comprising P. Newton Drake, George Finger, Alan Campbell and Archibald Wall counted the seeds and found a total of 686.

The winner of the first prize, one pair of $5 shoes, was Miss Eva Taynor, of 114 Westervelt avenue, whose guess was 699. The second prize, a pair of $4 shoes, will be awarded to the person who guessed 700. William Spaulding, of 207 Stebbins place; Miss Lottie Burnett, of 208 Watchung avenue, and E. A. Duy, of 210 East Ninth street, are tied for this prize, and will draw lots for the same.

The third prize, a pair of $3 shoes, was awarded to George A. Zinz, 713 West Third street, whose guess was 703. The contest was a novel affair. One was the lowest number guessed and the highest was a billion. There were a grand total of 1,440 guesses.

WAR NEWS

Amsterdam, Oct. 7 (Central News Cable).—An official statement by the German headquarters staff regarding the fighting in the East says: "The Russian advance in East Prussia has been arrested. The Germans repulsed the Russians from a fortified position between Opaton and Ostrowiec on October 4, shutting off 3,000 Russians from their main body."

Copenhagen, Oct. 7 (Central News Cable).—The Danish States Railways yesterday received official notification from the German railroad administration that the German ferryboats on the Baltic route between Oedser and Warnemunde, on the north coast of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, have withdrawn from service owing to the fact that submarine mines have been driven ashore along the German coast near Warnemunde.

New York, Oct. 7.—According to the Journal of Commerce, Germany has seized large quantities of raw and partly manufactured wool in France and Belgium and to some extent in Russia.

A wireless message from Berlin says that the general staff in its report today on the situation in the western arena of the war says that the fighting on the German right wing in France has been successful.

Another message from Berlin says that heavy German guns have been advanced to new positions for the bombardment of the inner line of forts at Antwerp.

LIBRARY REGULATIONS.

Supervising Principal D. Fred Aungst, of the North Plainfield schools, has issued the rules and regulations for the use of the school library. They are practically the same as last year, each student must have a written permit from a teacher which is filed with the librarian. Silence must be maintained at all times and the rules about the drawing of books are the same as last year.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Vogel, of Dunellen.

EAST END RESIDENTS FORM A CIVIC BODY

Enthusiastic Session Called for Organization in Netherwood Church.

Residents of the East End section of the city met last night in the Netherwood Reformed church and affected the organization of the East End Civic Association, a body similar to those now in operation in other parts of the city. The attendance at the session was large and considerable enthusiasm was in evidence over the proposed organization.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph presided, and A. R. Humble was secretary of the meeting. The committee on organization, appointed at the citizens' meeting held July 28, presented a simple form of constitution. This was fully discussed, amended in several particulars, and then unanimously adopted. T. C. Vail and Barton Davis, representing the West End Civic Association, were present and addressed the meeting, telling in an interesting way of the experiences and methods of their organization.

Upon the report of the nominating committee the following officers were unanimously elected: President, Edward S. Ralston; vice-presidents, L. V. F. Randolph and William T. Sharpe; secretary, A. R. Humble; treasurer, G. D. Merkel; members of the executive committee, the officers and E. W. Hughes, John W. Dickenson, A. Neumann, Jr., Horace J. Martin and S. O. Rush.

The committee appointed at the July meeting to call on the Board of Education and present the petition for better school facilities for the East End, reported that a school for the kindergarten and first grade will be opened within a short time in the Netherwood Reformed church. The chairman escorted the president to the chair, and after an interchange of stories and a general good time the meeting adjourned. The association starts with the support of the people, and promises to be a power in developing the interests of the East End.

PECULAIR INJURY TO EYE PROVES FATAL

Henry Thomas Roach, aged ten years, of Bound Brook, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, from injuries sustained in a peculiar manner. Several days ago he was playing with a tin horn, and accidentally a sharp end of it came in contact with one of his eyes. Complications developed rapidly and the lad's condition became such that he was brought to the hospital here for treatment. All medical aid proved unavailing and the boy died this morning.

RECEPTION FOR COUNTY AND LOCAL CANDIDATES

The Union County Republican Committee met this morning, Chairman William Newcorn presiding. Plans for the campaign were discussed and it was arranged to have an informal reception at the local headquarters in the Frost building, tomorrow night, at which time all of the county and local candidates will be present. Another similar affair will be held at Westfield on Tuesday.

The committee discussed the plan of holding noonday, as well as night, meetings during the campaign, the dates for which will be announced at the dollar dinner to be held at Elizabeth, Thursday night, October 15.

WILL EMPLOY LOCAL LABOR ON STREET WORK

Councilman Francis J. Blatz, chairman of the street committee, announced today that according to the provisions of the contract between the city and Burke & Bonnam, for street improvements, the firm is to employ local labor as far as possible, and persons desiring employment of this character are asked to make application to the firm at its office in the telephone building on Park avenue.

This policy is in line with the action taken by the Common Council Monday night, when it was voted to request the Board of Education in awarding the contract for the Evergreen Avenue School, to arrange to have local labor employed by the successful contractor.

MRS. MARY NEIGHBOUR'S FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Neighbour was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home, 315 West Front street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friend. Rev. F. L. West, of Stapleton, S. I., a relative, conducted the service, offering prayer and making a short address.

There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends. The burial took place in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were chosen from among relatives.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY CELEBRATES

Twenty-ninth Anniversary of Trinity Church Body is Largely Attended.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of the Trinity Reformed church, celebrated its twenty-ninth anniversary last night, the affair being featured by a program of music and a social hour, which was attended by various similar societies throughout the city.

Preceding the informal portion of the evening a short business session of the society was held during which routine business was transacted and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Marie Hand; first vice president, Arthur Backer; second vice president, Miss Lena Bohan; recording secretary, Miss Dunavan; corresponding secretary, Miss Lucie Coriell.

The musical program was composed of solos by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Young, and instrumental music by Mr. Young and Leslie Leland, both members of the Dutch Arms Band. This portion of the evening was in charge of the music committee of the society under Miss Marie Hann, while the social committee was in charge of Miss Mae Randolph. The yearly reports of the various officers were read and indicated that much had been accomplished in good works. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, spoke to the gathering in the early portion of the evening, his remarks taking the nature of the welcome to the visitors of the occasion. Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, was the speaker of the evening, and spoke concerning the lines of work which were engaging the attention of the young people of the church.

CHANGED HIS MIND WHEN COURT COMPLIMENTED HIM

"You may some day be elected president of the United States," said Judge DeMeza to sixteen-year-old James McNee in the city court, this morning. This acknowledgement on the part of the court led the bright little youngster to change his views about going to a new home found for him by Miss Mabelle Phillips, of the local Charity Organization Society, and he smilingly consented to accompany his good Samaritan to the place.

Interest in the boy was aroused when his mother was arraigned in the city court on a disorderly charge some time ago and it was brought out that the environment of the home was not what it should be. Miss Phillips, at the instigation of the court, took charge of the case with a view to placing the youngster in a home where he would be properly cared for. When she located a kind-hearted farmer in the Watchung Mountains the youth was sent for but refused to leave Plainfield.

This resulted in his arraignment in the city court this morning, when the father was charged with not fulfilling the order of Judge DeMeza. Parental objection is thought to have been the cause of the boy's failure to comply with Miss Phillip's charitable request and when this was removed this morning he went with her with apparent willingness.

WIFE DESERTER SCORED BY CITY JUDGE DEMEZA

"I have no use for a wife deserter and in my estimation a man who will leave his family to starve is the lowest of contemptible bums," said Judge DeMeza in placing George Green under $500 to furnish $9 a week for the support of his wife and four children in the city court, this morning. Unable to furnish the bail he will be committed to the Union county jail this afternoon and the city will take charge of his destitute relatives.

This is the third time Green has been arraigned within the last three months for the same offense and each time promised to provide sustenance for his wife and children. In view of the fact that he has violated the court's confidence on every previous occasion it was deemed advisable to place him some place where he would get a chance to think over his wrongdoing.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR STOUT GIVE A DANCE

Virginia reels and other dance steps which were the popular rage a decade or two ago were once more in vogue last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stout, of Warrenville, entertained forty of their friends from this city and vicinity at a costume barn dance. Dance music was furnished by a phonograph, which was kept busy until an early morning hour.

The barn was appropriately decorated with autumn leaves and foliage, with lanterns adding much to the attractiveness of the interior of the structure. A supper was served by the host and hostess around an old fashioned camp-fire, proving to be a feature of the occasion. Those in attendance from this city made the trip by automobile.

RECEPTION FOR BORO SCHOOL FACULTY

Pleasing Affair Given at Home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ewart.

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of the North Plainfield School, a reception was given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew H. Ewart, on Fairview avenue. The affair was arranged by the executive committee for the purpose of having the members meet D. Fred Aungst, the new supervising principals and the other new members of the faculty. More than two hundred people attended the reception, during which there were several interesting addresses.

The guests were received by a large committee, of which Mrs. Andrew Kenney was the head. The decorations were simple, red and yellow being the prevailing colors. Mrs. Ewart made the address of welcome and introduced the other speakers of the evening. She first explained the objects of the association and the work of the various committees which have been working to make the conditions between the school-room, the teacher and the home better. In speaking of the work of the chaperonage committee, Mrs. Ewart gave the boys and girls of the High School praise for the way in which they took the situation of being watched while in the basketball hall and stated that every courtesy was extended to the mothers on this committee by the students.

Dr. H. M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, told of the organization of the Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association about five years ago. He commented on the work of such a body and also spoke of the fact that sometimes there was great antagonism between the association and the Board of Education of a school. He spoke of the question box that is used by the city association and how it is a great help to all. The Parent-Teacher Association, Dr. Maxson said, was a great help to new teachers as it brings them in touch with the mothers of the students under their instruction. Formerly a bad boy was usually the cause for bringing the teacher and parent together and in the newer way the meeting was generally one of friendship. In conclusion, the speaker said that the first business of the association was to believe in the school in which it is interested.

Supervisor Aungst spoke on the successes of such associations in places where he has been and showed the complete changes in communities through the work of the women of such places. He also described the work of the Mothers' Congress throughout the country. Mrs. E. H. Warner, ex-president of the Roselle Parent-Teacher Association, which has accomplished much the past year, had expected to be present and talk on the Roselle organization, but owing to illness she was detained at home. However, she sent a very interesting paper which was read by Mrs. H. E. Parker.

Mrs. William M. Sandford, who has often been called the "mother of the association," was present and talked very interestingly on the relation between every Parent-Teacher Association and the National Congress that consists not only of women but also many prominent men. Every member of the borough association is also a member of the national body and in their dues help support it. There are now thirty-eight States in the Union represented in this work which has an enrollment of over seven thousand. The body believes in the power of motherly love, and as Mrs. Sandford said, for the instruction of parents.

After the speeches there was a social hour. The committee was assisted by a large delegation of High School students. The chairman of the reception committee was assisted by Mrs. C. F. French, Mrs. F. W. French, Mrs. A. Englehardt, Mrs. J. H. Buchanan, Mrs. W. R. Douglass, Mrs. F. C. Burner, Mrs. J. E. Bailey, Mrs. J. T. Green, Miss Edna French, Miss Mary Robley, Miss A. Margaret Speidel, Miss Nettie Bauersachs, Miss Dittmar, Miss Isabel Williams and Miss Emma U. Tantum. The executive committee, which gave the reception, consists of Mrs. M. H. Ewart, president; Mrs. A. B. Laing, vice-president; Mrs. W. O. Taylor, secretary; Mrs. Judd Stuart, treasurer.

Mrs. Andrew Kenney, chairman of the reception committee; Mrs. E. D. Hutchinson, chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. Warren Townley, chairman of the chaperonage committee; Mrs. L. D. Townley, chairman of the visiting committee; Mrs. H. E. Barker, chairman of the hygience committee, and Mrs. J. H. Buchanan, chairman of the membership committee.

RETURNS TO MEXICO.

Miss Mary Dunning, who has been visiting relatives in this city for the past four months, left today for El Paso, Texas, and from there she will return to her missionary post in Mexico. Miss Dunning was forced to leave that country last July because of the war conditions and come to this city. Now that the trouble is about over in Mexico she has decided to return. She will first stop at El Paso and if the conditions are all right in Mexico she will go to Chihuahua immediately. She is the sister of Sydney Dunning, of Westervelt avenue, and F. O. Dunning, of Mountain avenue, the borough.

CLEAR AS MUD.

The report of the Teachers' Committee of the Board of Education on the Lounsbury matter is about as clear as the water in Green Brook after a spring freshet. It gives about as much chance for the general public to know whether Mr. Lounsbury was justified in making a complaint, similar to others which have been heard about town, as if the committee had presented a dissertation on the advantages of studying the Patagonian language in the public schools. Mr. Lounsbury makes specific charges of favoritism, and the only reply that he succeeds in getting is a beautiful six-page typewritten essay on the fact that sometimes it is all right to change the curriculum, and at other times it is not. As for his specific complaint the committee finds, without answering directly any of Mr. Lounsbury's questions, that the action of the Principal in this case "may be regarded as representing what was best for the particular pupil." The report means little or nothing.

If Mr. Lounsbury's complaint was not a just one, why should not the unfair points in it be brought out, just as he brought out what he considered was unfair in the treatment of his son. The Daily Press has no interest in the matter one way or the other, except that when a citizen makes a complaint to a public body the answer should be made as full and as specific as was the original request for investigation. If Mr. Lounsbury was wrong, let it be shown wherein he made a mistake. Hiding behind generalities and indefinite statements doesn't tell the people what they want to know about the schools, any more than similar action would answer questions regarding a candidate for political office. We suppose that with the giving to the public of this enlightening document the subject will be dropped, unless Mr. Lounsbury asks for a further bill of particulars, but there is certainly something missing in the report on the case.

WAR COULD NOT BE STOPPED.

Charles Edward Russell, whose work as a magazine writer makes him one of the best known men in the country, has just returned from Europe. As a trained newspaper man, Mr. Russell's opinion on the situation abroad is well worth believing. In his talk regarding the situation abroad he says much that is interesting and enlightening. Among other things he is reported to have said were the following:

"This war is terrible, but—we're going to have another in a few years that is likely to be even worse. That is, unless we change things so war will be impossible. That rests with the people of the world.

"One thing is sure—it's all foolishness to talk about disarmament and peace while we have the causes of armament and war. If we want war we must have the tools to kill each other. And so long as we stick to the cause of war we must stick to the armaments."

Mr. Russell was asked why it was that the milions of Socialists in Europe who are opposed to war did nothing to prevent this slaughter. He answered that neither the Socialists nor any other power could have prevented the war. It was bound to come. Besides, the nationalistic spirit is still too strong in the minds of men to be set aside by any doctrine or philosophy that is universal in its character. The Socialists of Europe, he said, are fighting just as fiercely as the others because they believe their country, whichever it happens to be, is battling in a just cause that demands every sacrifice of its sons. Mr. Russell crystallized his view in this way:

"Our economic system is the cause of war. So long as the world wants to stick to that system so long shall we have war. It's nonsense to talk about peace while we fight to maintain the cause of war. Capitalism makes battleships and armies necessary. To get rid of war and armies and navies we must first rid ourselves of capitalism. When we get rid of the cause the disease will disappear."

Mr. Russell said one of the lessons of this war is that compulsory military service will be the rule in all countries, including the United States, when this war is over.

Carelessness on the part of individuals has tempted many bicycle thieves in the city and the borough of late, and each day someone reports a stolen wheel to the police department. A little care taken by owners of wheels will do away with a lot of this trouble. A bicycle left standing at the curb in the business section two and three hours at a time is an inducement to a man out of work and he sees an easy avenue through which he can secure food and possibly facilitate his wanderings. In some instances wheels are left around town in conspicuous places late at night and it is not an uncommon occurrence to have one brought to police headquarters by the patrolmen for want of an owner. Many wheels have been stolen here recently and but few have been located.

Plainfield people will be proud of the new post office building, a picture of which was shown in the Daily Press last night. The illustration alone is enough to satisfy all the people that it was very wise to wait a year or two longer to get this handsome structure. The extra $50,000 secured by Senator James E. Martine and Congressman William E. Tuttle, to add to the $75,000 originally appropriated, has made it possible to take the building out of the ordinary class. Mr. Tuttle is authority for the statement that it is to be as handsome a public building as there is to be found in the State. Credit for the work goes to the two representatives mentioned and to former Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler. Work will be well under way by this time next year.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In last night's Daily Press, I read that a course of free public lectures was about to begin under the auspices of the Board of Education. The lectures which were given last year in the Washington School proved quite popular, and some of them proved too popular in comparison with the size of the school auditorium. It seems to me that it would be a good move to hold these lectures, also the various recreation affairs, in our new High School, which is not only larger, but more centrally located and far better equipped for such occasions.

Women's Shoes

A Splendid Endorsement of Our Shoe Dept.

Children's Shoes

In last Wednesday's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press, under the heading, "Advantages of Trading in Plainfield," there appeared an article written by a lady of this city for the "Trade in Plainfield Contest" which was such a splendid endorsement of our Shoe Department that we herewith take the liberty of reproducing it:

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I write this letter, hoping that practical mothers, who have tall girls to dress, may know where to obtain sensible heeled shoes. Our daughter of fifteen in statue like above mentioned, desired a pair of Colonial pumps of the latest style, but told me in a very unhaappy voice, that she and her friend had visited all the shoe shops in town to find a pair with low common sense heels, for which they were both hunting. Upon this information I addressed several of the large stores in New York, always receiving word the pumps they could furnish only with high heels of several styles. A week later reading our evening paper, the Plainfield Daily Press, I saw the sale of shoes for ladies and children at Woodhull & Martin's. As a last trial I visited their store to obtain just the shoe with the heel, for which I had been so anxiously looking.

WANT CITY RATABLES

committee composed of William L. Saunders, chairman; John A. Gaffney and A. E. Force was appointed to secure speakers for that occasion. Several names were suggested and the list will be made up from these.

A subject of interest to Plainfield, as well as to other communities for a radius of many miles in this State, was suggested by John A. Gaffney, one of the active members of the Board. Mr. Gaffney, in a short impromptu speech, urged the body to take some definite stand in the matter of the erection of a bridge over Newark Bay connecting Elizabeth with the city of Bayonne. The speaker reviewed the plans now under consideration by the government authorities and his remarks were met with favorable response from the civic organization. He outlined the good that would come to Plainfield, as well as to other cities between here and New York, if such an improvement were to be undertaken and declared that united action on the part of civic organizations in other cities besides Bayonne and Elizabeth would bring about an early settlement of the question.

The two municipalities to be connected have already gone extensively into the proposition and a commission is now in existence, formed to take charge of the project. The Central Railroad bridge now in use has been the subject of considerable criticism for years past, owing to the delay of trains between here and New York necessitated by the opening and closing of the drawbridge, and the new improvement would probably do away with this inconvenience as the Central Railroad authorities have expressed themselves as being willing to do their part in constructing a bridge that could be used for vehicular, as well as train, traffic. It would be necessary to span about two miles and a half of water and the expense would involve several millions of dollars. At Mr. Gaffney's suggestion the Board of Trade will have an expert on bridge construction at the November meeting to discuss this proposition.

Samuel Rothberg introduced a resolution endorsing Councilman John Cose's effort to secure employment for local mechanics who are now out of work. At the Monday night meeting of the Common Council Mr. Cose introduction a resolution, which was adopted, requesting the Board of Education, in awarding the contract fo the new Evergreen Avenue School, to stipulate that ninety per cent. of the labor be engaged here if it is available.

NIGHT SCHOOL FOR DUNELLEN

school will be open on two or four nights a week. If the enrollment is sufficient to hire two teachers, which will entitle the Board to an $80 monthly appropriation from the State Board, the school will then be open four nights a week.

The superintendent's report showed an enrollment of 449 pupils, 229 boys and 220 girls, which is an increase of 23 pupils since the September report. There are fifty-two Dunellen pupils in attendance at Plainfield High School, which is an increase of 108 per cent. on four years. Eighty-two per cent. of last year's grammar school graduates are pursuing a higher course, the superintendent's report showed. The percentage of attendance of the pupils of both schools during the past month was 97 3-10 per cent. Miss Edna Burdick's class in the Whittier School had a clear record. A total of 140½ days was lost by the pupils of the schools, the summary of which is as follows: Sickness, 53; religious holiday, 19; at work, 24; unfit clothing, 2; truancy, 1; pleasure, 8, and all other reasons, 33½.

The question of insuring the teachers was discussed at length and it was decided to write the legal department of the State in this connection and find out whether the pupils as well as the teachers are included under the Employers' Liability Act.

Other business included the appointment of Marshal Patrick J. Tarpey as attendance officer, a hearing given to a representative of the Rex Fire Extinguisher Company and the approving of current bills.

FREE PUBLIC CONCERT BY LOTUS GLEE CLUB

Rare Treat for Music Lovers in Store Tomorrow Night.

The first of the free public entertainments given by the Board of Education this winter will take place in the Plainfield High School at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, when the Lotus Glee Club will give an "Evening of Song."

The Lotus Glee Club was organized in 1881-82, and is one of the oldest and most popular of our male quartets. The original membership was C. Frank Hurting and Nat. M. Brigham, tenors; Avon D. Saxon, baritone; John K. Berry, bass. Of the present quartet, Mr. Lewis is the oldest member, having joined the club in 1884. From the first, the Lotus Glee Club has enjoyed an enviable reputation.

The members have traveled and given concerts in every State this side of the Rocky Mountains, with two exceptions, and have had three London seasons, where they sang with great success in concerts with Melba, Eames, Van Zandt, Trebelli, Antoinette Sterling, Patey, Mr. and Mrs. Henschel, Edward Lloyd, Ben Davies, Foli, Sims Reeves, Paderewski, and at two concerts in Royal Albert Hall, with Mme. Adelina Patti. The English critics were unanimous in pronouncing their part-singing the finest they had ever heard or believed possible.

The club enjoys a unique distinction from other quartetes, having the prestige of a distinguished European success in addition to its high rank among leading American organizations. The club has always been noted for its ensemble work and its perfect blending and shading, and the artistic character of its singing is due in no small measure to the admirable method of the conductor, Frank J. Smith, who has been with them from the beginning.

The doors of the High School Auditorium will open at 7:30, and the entertainment will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. If past performances are a criterion, the audience should tax the capacity of Plainfield's largest hall.

TAX GASOLINE--NO!

enters into manufacturing. It enters into the operations of almost every farm. A little gasoline engine, costing from $40 to $60, is pulled up alongside of a stack of wheat and does the threshing; it does the pumping, the churning, the wood sawing and a million other things. So I think gasoline should stand a little better chance before the Senate than automobiles.

"While I am not here to tinker with the present tax on automobiles, yet I think an automobile could stand it very well.

"I think my friend from Michigan wants to be fair, however. He is a very delightful and companionable and genial gentleman. I love his pugnaciousness. I know he must feel better now, since he has gotten this campaign speech off his mind and out of his system. He will feel better over Sunday on account of it. He could not let the opportunity go by. We are to have an election in a few weeks, and he had to get in his campaign speech about the tariff, claiming that we had instituted a tariff which failed to produce the results anticipated. Of course it did. We did not have war in Europe then. He was not fair enough to tell the Sen*ate that the imports were stifled and* shut off through the unfortunate situation that exists abroad. Oh, no; he told you nothing about that, but simply the fact that our tariff had failed to produce revenue. He went on to tell you that when we came into power here the factories were busy; they were humming all over; and yet we had the uncanny and horrible strike in Lawrence, Mass., under your administration, and under your infernal system of tariff taxation. We had strikes all around. The Senator does not say anything about that.

"We are not the authors of this necessity, however. We did not make this war, and God knows we all wish it might be stayed and stopped. We are not the authors of it in any sense whatever; but it is apparent, and every fair-minded Senator on the other side will admit, that there is a need of revenue for no reason of our own making. We must not put it on automobiles, oh, no, for some multimillionaire who rides in a lavish one might have to pay a dollar or two a year. How is that going to affect you people in Michigan? Not a bit. You are an ingenious, thrifty set of manufacturers and business men up there. Every dollar we put on automobiles you will charge up to the consumer, the man who buys the automobile. Of course, the Senator from Michigan, having two, would have to pay a little more than some poor devil who did not have any.

"It is also said that we must not put it on whisky. Now, I am in favor of putting it on luxuries—putting it on whisky, on wine, on beer, on tobacco. But we find rebellion at each of these points. The whisky men write me, on lavish letterheads: 'Now, don't think of imposing any more tax on whisky. God knows we have burdens enough.'

"Two or three brewers come from my State and say: 'Oh, don't think of putting it on beer, for beer is the poor man's drink.' I think it poor at that, but that is their proposition.

"Then we come to the wine producers. The wine producers of Ohio say: 'Oh, unholy the thought of taxing wine, for our Savior, you know, dealt out wine, and let it be as free as water.' My New Jersey friends tell me it will be ruinous to put it on wine. My New York friends, up at Pen Yan and around there, tell me that it will not do to put it on wine there, because they produce those wines.

"I come to my Southern, warm, genial-hearted, liberal friends who raise tobacco, and they say: 'Do not put it on tobacco.' 'Why?' 'Why, it is the poor man's luxury. He smokes tobacco.' Then another man from the South says: 'Do not put it on tobacco, because we export tobacco, and we are already hard hit on the cotton question. In God's name do not put it on cotton and do not put it on tobacco.'

"In all reason, Mr. President, let us be rational and fair over this proposition. If there is any one group of luxuries that it should be put upon, I say it is wine, whisky, beer and tobacco. I think no fair-minded man could rebel against that, and I believe we can secure quite enough revenue from that source to satisfy the needs of our Government. If, however, it should become necessary to exact even more, I should not hesitate to impose a stamp tax on checks, bonds, mortgages, deeds and the like. I believe this would be acquiesced in by the mass of our fellow citizens without any dissatisfaction or any rebellion.

"As to the automobile proposition, I say that a machine used for commercial purposes—a dray or a vehicle of that kind—might well be exempt; but a luxurious, splendid equipment in the way of a carriage, such as an automobile is, might fairly and decently and justly have a fair levy of tax.

"But I think my friend from Michigan is unjust in his attacks. This horrid financial condition and chaos exists the world over, not here alone. We have weathered the storm, and stand par excellent before the world. The world over, almost to every nation, is in chaos, driven to straits unparalleled and unknown before; and, naturally, as each year advances and as our civilization has gone on nations come closer in touch, and it is not unnatural or unreasonable that we should feel the effects of their strife. But, thank Heaven, we shall weather the storm. The hun*dred millions of people that make up* America, prompted by the holy thought of right and justice, guided and directed today by the hand of the President of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, who has but one purpose, and that is justice and fairness to all mankind, will bring up out of this cloud and lift us to a brighter and holier sunshine in the near future that will bless Republican, Democrat, Jew and Gentile alike."

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

and several hearings of those having information in the premises, at one of which it had the benefit of a supplemental statement from Mr. Lounsbury, whose health did not permit his personal attendance. It respectfully reports as follows:

"The problem of determining the best course of instruction for the pupil is, of course, one of the largest problems connected with education. In its relevant aspect, it presents the alternatives of prescribing a fixed course, from which there shall be no departure in any case, or permitting some adjustment to the individual. If any adjustment to the individual is permitted, the questions then arise as to the limits within which the adjustment may be made and who shall make it.

"By reason chiefly of experience and considerations connected with the facts that all individuals are not equipped with identical mental or physical attributes and not all on their way to identical work in the world, it may be regarded as established that some adaptation of instruction to the individual gives better results than an attempt to force all into an inflexible mold. The extent to which that adaptation should be carried still admits of difference of opinion and must be determined by a multiplicity of considerations, many of which are connected with the nature of the particular institution.

"In the High School the problem is dealt with by providing a series of differing curricula carefully formulated with a view to strengthening and developing the latent powers of the individual so that he will be equipped as well as possible for his subsequent work. These curricula are adapted respectively to prepare pupils for commercial work, work in the industrial arts, college, engineering or scientific schools, and so on. In each curriculum certain subjects are required and among other subjects some adaptation to the individual—as, for example, the choice of physics or chemistry, French or German, etc.—is permitted. During recent years an increasing effort has been made to confine each pupil as far as practicable to the selected curriculum. But even this division into differing curricula is sometimes found too general to meet the needs of particular pupils and a further measure of adaptation to the individual is necessary. Accordingly, in particular cases, where good reason exists, pupils are permitted to substitute in their schedules one or more subjects from some other curriculum.

"The system in the High School thus represents an effort to secure for the pupil the benefits of both what may be referred to as the prescribed and elective systems and at the same time avoid the harm resulting from carrying either system too far. It has been formulated with the utmost care and endorsed under the law by the State Board of Education. No consideration warranting a change at present to either an inflexible prescribed course or a larger measure of adaptation to the individual has come to the attention of your committee.

"Since the system involves some measure of adaptation to the individual, it is apparent that the duty of dealing with individual cases within the prescribed limits must be lodged somewhere. The balance of pertinent considerations seems to point unmistakably to the principal as the person upon whom the duty should be imposed. It is desirable to have the matter dealt with by an individual rather than by a board, because that facilitates the co-operation of parents in the matter and because the schools cannot employ a number of persons to do what can be done as well or better by one. There is, of course, the same theoretical objection which inevitably exists where a duty involving the exercise of discretion or judgment is imposed upon an individual, that being human, one may err or be influenced by prejudice or passion, but this is rendered inconsiderable by the fact that the principal is further removed from the possibility of any such influences than the class-room teacher, by the ability and duty of the parent to co-operate in the matter and by the ease with which it can be taken to the superintendent and the Board. Whether or not the imposition of the duty on the principal is an ideal arrangement from every point of view, it seems plainly to be open to less serious objections than apply to any other arrangement which has been suggested. It has been almost the universal practice in public and private schools, and with rare exceptions it has worked well through a long period of years.

"Your committee, accordingly, recommends no present change in the general system by which such matters are dealt with in the High School. It is wise to have the measure of adaptation to the individual which the system permits. It is not wise to allow the pupil to exercise choice even within the prescribed limits without advice or restriction. The duty to advise and restrict is best lodged in the principal.

"Whether that duty has been properly or improperly exercised in the particular case brought to the attention of the Board presents a different question. In considering the matter it is to be borne in mind that the duty imposed upon the principal is the duty to consider, within the limits indicated, each individual case as it comes before him, on its own peculiar merits. It is specifically the duty to say to some that they may take a particular subject or substitute one subject for another, and to others that they may not. In other words, the duty of the principal is to examine the circumstances presented in each case and pass on it accordingly—to discriminate between the case of a pupil preparing for a position as stenographer in the New York office of a French company and the case of one knowing so much French that High School French would be without educational value between a case wherein for some exceptional reason the best effort of the pupil in the time at her disposal cannot accomplish her prescribed schedule and a case wherein the pupil simply shirks or desires unreasonable time for play. In brief, between cases wherein the pupil's request is calculated to help and those wherein it is calculated to harm, approving one request and denying another, according to the merits of each. That being the duty imposed, it is plain that the mere fact that it has been exercised—that one has been allowed to substitute a subject and another not allowed to make a different change, does not suggest injustice or anything but performance of duty. To ascertain whether injustice has been done, it is necessary to examine and consider all the facts in each particular case presented. This your committee has done.

"The relevant facts relate largely to the records, attributes and proclivities of individual pupils. Because it would touch individuals, a recital of all the facts would be justified only by necessity. That no such recital is necessary seems plain enough when the exact question the facts present is noted. The question is not what the Board would have done if in the course of its duties a particular case had come before it for action in the first instance. The duty of dealing with such cases in the first instance is imposed upon the principal. The question before the Board is whether that duty has been discharged honestly, competently and according to the rules of reason and justice—whether it has been discharged within the limit to which an honest man competent to the discharge of his office ought to confine himself. The High School records of the pupils whose cases have been investigated (which are in the possession of the Board) afford a sufficient answer to that question without a further recital of facts.

"Your committee finds that the principal's action concerning which complaint is made, judged in the light of all the facts as they existed at the time the action was taken, may fairly be regarded as representing what was best for the particular pupil. It finds that the principal's action represented an intelligent, careful and thoughtful effort to do what was best for the particular pupil and was not influenced in the remotest degree by any other consideration. And it finds that the same two conclusions are entirely plain in each of the cases it has investigated.

"Your committee has considered the practicability of improving the practice in the High School in matters of this kind. It finds that the thing most needed is greater interest on the part of parents. The free expression of opinion by parents concerning all matters affecting their children's schooling is encouraged and most sincerely welcomed. In connection with this particular matter of determining the pupil's schedule the active co-operation of the parents with the principal would do much to perfect the working of the system. If there is any additional expedient whereby the Board can induce a more active co-operation on the part of parents, it seems desirable to adopt it. Aside from that you committee recommends that no further action be taken in the premises.

CHAT AND DOPE BASE BALL

By MAC

At any rate the betting men favor the Athletics and as those who wager are actuated by what the "dope" sheet shows, it was to be expected. This "dope" has worked out well in previous world's series, and it is said it should prevail this year, which is not an argument to be scoffed at. Newarkers, though, do not think that the dope will cut much of a figure, as they are offering even money on the Braves, with more Boston money in sight than has been covered by Athletic cash. Sentiment across the river in the West Hudson district, where betting is made a matter of business by several people, is different, though, and there some 2 to 1 bets were made. The ratings of the clubs are as follows:

If Atheltics Win Second Game	2 to 1

If Boston Wins Third Game	3 to 1

SOME HEADWORK.

Josh Devore, the former Newark outfielder and ex-Giant, who is now playing with George Stallings and the Boston Braves, was discussing the coming world's series with a party of friends when he suddenly broke out as follows: "I'd like to see the Athletics and us each have three games won and one game left to decide the championship, one run needed to win the game, three men on base, and me at the bat." "What would you do?" inquired one of the party. "Well," said Josh, "I'd write my will first, and then I'd stick my head in the way of a fast one and die happy."

Off again, on again, Finnegan. That's the only way we can express our feelings on that Army-Navy football contest for 1914 now so much before the public. When the officials handling the arrangements get through with their baby play we will expect some sort of a contest.

Two contests are on the card for the Plainfield High School warriors over the week-end. Crowding games has always been an outstanding fault of P. H. S. managers and inasmuch as these two clashes promise to be hard ones it would have been far better to pull one ahead to the fore part of this week when the eleven has been idle.

Jim Smith's accident at the Brooklyn ball field yesterday afternoon may be the beginning of a "crack" in the Braves' camp that so many dopesters have been predicting of late. Smith has a broken leg and will get his returns from the big series on a cot in a Brooklyn hospital.

Football players are not the only athletes being received at these mending institutions just at present. Several ball players are "living" in hospitals in various parts of the country at this writing.

Jack Fritts has entered a protest to the A. A. U. officials regarding his disqualification in the mile walk at Newark Saturday afternoon. It's pretty tough when a fellow is robbed of a prize after romping home first place in such a strenuous event and the affair at Newark didn't appear to be altogether "on the level." Go to it, Jack.

The rush for world's series tickets opened this morning. The annual "bread line" awaited the opening of the turnstiles and some fancy prices were secured for the choice positions in the line.

Watch the Daily Press for world's series dope. Jack Martin, former Boston Brave, will be on deck to offer his comment on each play and player.

The war troubles will be pushed into the background Friday. Who would let such a minor happening as a war interfere with a fight for a world's baseball gonfalon?

News item says Woodbridge High School football warriors are after State and county honors. A couple of years ago Woodbridge was merely a station on the P. R. R. and a majority of sportsmen didn't know it existed.

Mayor Curley, of Boston, will not attend the World's Series baseball games in Philadelphia on Friday and Saturday, it was announced yesterday. His secretary said that previous engagements would keep him at home. Among Mayor Curley's friends it is said that he will not attend the series because former Mayor Fitzgerald will lead the Hub delegation of rooters. Mayor Curley and former Mayor Fitzgerald are bitter political rivals.

One of the hardest football teams in the country to face is that of Gallaudet College, which played at Fordham Field, New York, last Saturday. Gallaudet, which is located in Washington, is exclusively for deaf mutes. The quarterback cannot therefore call any signals. The players learn their formations by series—ten in a row, and it is only when they have run off the ten plays that they get together and "talk" over the next few formations. As they know the plays by rote, they line up and get into action with lightning rapidity. The team which encounters Gallaudet has to be on the jump every second.

BASEBALL NOTES

President Ebbets, the Brooklyn boss, has signed eight new pitchers, all of them right-handed.

The Boston Red Sox are the only team in either major league with a chance of winning every season's series.

Instead of the "Grand Old Master," as Christy Mathewson has been called in the past, New York fans now speak of him as "Old Matty."

Until this fall, Providence has not had a pennant winner since 1905, the year Jack Dunn piloted the Grays to the Eastern League championship.

Pitcher Joe Engel, of the Washingtons, has been in no fewer than 29 games this season, in which he shared the flinging with from one to four men.

When it is remembered that a National League pennant has not been raised in Boston in sixteen years, it is easy to understand what a big hit the Braves have made in the Hub.

Captain Johnny Evers, of the Braves, will get into his fifth world's series when the Braves meet the Athletics this week. As a Cub, John was in the big money in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910.

Keating and Fisher, the Yankee pitchers, had it on Ty Cobb when the Yanks met the Tigers in the last series of the season. Ty faced the New York pair seven times and failed to connect with a single hit.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

FRITTS TO ENTER PROTEST TO A. A. U.

Local Policeman Claims He Was Not Treated Right at Newark Last Saturday.

John Fritts, a member of the local police force who competed in the athletic games of the Newark police at that place, last Saturday, has entered a protest because he was disqualified and could get no satisfaction from the officials after he had proven that he had been treated wrongly.

The row came in the mile walk event in which the local entrant was leading at the finish. The rules for disqualification are that a man can be instantly put out of the race for cutting the course, but he must be warned three times before disqualification for running, provided he has not yet reached a point which is within 220 yards of the finish mark. In the event of his being less than that number of yards from home he may be instantly put out of the running for the prizes.

Fritts was not the only entrant put out of the race, as the man who was a close second to him was called out for cutting the course. He had no cause to kick and took his misfortune as best he could. Fritts had just regained his first place position, which he took at the start and later last, at the 350-yard mark, and the judge called for a disqualification of the local walker without giving any warnings. Immediately after the race the local man protested, but the judge sent him away, stating that his decision was final and he would not change it even after a rule book had proven him to be wrong. The referee, who is always the highest official on the field, would not listen to him and the prizes were given out to three Newark men who finished in that order.

Fritts won the quarter mile event with ease, but has not yet received his prize. He may file a protest with the A. A. U. to see why such officials are put in large events of that kind.

BOSTON LEADS CITIES IN LANDING PENNANTS.

With a record of eighteen pennants won by teams representing the city Boston leads all cities for baseball honors. The National League championship was captured by Boston in 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1877, 1878, 1882, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1897, 1898 and this year. The Boston Brotherhood team won the championship in 1890, the Boston American Association captured the honors in 1891 and the Boston Red Sox won flags in 1903, 1904 and 1912. The Red Sox also captured the world's series from the New York Giants in 1912 and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates for the world's championship in 1903.

MRS. H. R. STOCKTON WINS GROSS PRIZE

Local Women Earn Prizes in One-day Competition at P. C. C.

Members of the home club monopolized the prizes in the one day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association played yesterday over the course of the Plainfield Country Club. As generally expected, Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of this city, won the gross prize with a well played round in 91, but the other two Plainfield victories were rather unexpected, and resulted in sending all of the visitors away empty handed. Miss Leila Hedges won the net prize with a score of 106, 20-86, and the winner of the approaching and putting competition was Miss Maud Von-Boskerck. Her score was 8. About forty women golfers played in the tourney.

The next one day tournament of the W. M. G. A. will be played on Friday of this week at the Montclair Golf Club, and there also will be one on Tuesday, October 20, at the Hackensack Golf Club. The scores:

Miss Leila Hedges, Plainfield, 106, 20-86; Mrs. H. R. Stockton, Plainfield, 91, 3-88; Mrs. L. L. Blake, Cranford, 99, 10-89; Miss M. L. Johnstone, Glen Ridge, 104, 14-90; Miss Edith Hillier, Cranford, 99, 7-92; Mrs. R. Rowland, Plainfield, 117, 25-92; Mrs. H. Avery, Plainfield, 106, 14-92; Mrs. F. B. Ryan, Cranford, 100, 7-93; Mrs. N. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, 95, 1-94; Mrs. H. Wallace, Glen Ridge, 114, 20-94; Miss Marion Worth, Fox Hills, 109, 15-94; Miss Allaire, Fox Hills, 120, 25-95; Mrs. F. E. Donohue, Montclair, 103, 7-96; Mrs. Lester Ketcham, Fox Hills, 113, 17-96; Mrs. H. T. Thomas, Hackensack, 105, 9-96; Mrs. W. L. Kighter, Plainfield, 121, 25-96; Mrs. C. L. Greenhall, Hollywood, 101, 5-96; Mrs. H. D. Brown, Forest Hill, 112, 15-97; Miss Bertha Graham, North Jersey, 109, 11-98; Mrs. C. Woodruff, Forest Hill, 108, 10-98; Miss Spencer, Glen Ridge, 112, 14-98; Mrs. A. M. Collens, Plainfield, 124, 25-99; Mrs. H. D. Mannel, Westfield, 112, 12-100; Mrs. J. A. Philbrick, Montclair, 115, 15-100; Mrs. S. Wetherill, Cranford, 112, 12-100; Miss M. Von-Boskerck, Plainfield, 112, 10-102; Mrs. E. Mitchell, Glen Ridge, 110, 8-102; Miss M. Wilson, New Brunswick, 114, 10-104; Miss H. Gardner, Westfield, 126, 18-108; Mrs. R. L. Johnstone, Glen Ridge, 120, 10-110; Miss L. B. Kirkpatrick, New Brunswick, 121, 10-111; Mrs. A. Cowperthwaite, Plainfield, 138, 25-113; Mrs. H. Brown, Plainfield, 138, 25-113; Miss Eva Browne, Plainfield, 148, 25-123.

FOOTBALL NOTES

No less than 13 players on the varsity football squad at Harvard first gained prominence as Greater Boston school boys.

Captain Ernest Graves, who has coached the line candidates for the Army eleven in recent years, is once again on the job at West Point.

Larry Splawn, the "Texas Booter," of the Michigan squad, bears all the earmarks of being a second Brickley in the art of drop kicking.

Princeton is the first Eastern college to number its players in football games. Large figures are sewn on the backs of the Jerseys worn by the Tigers.

Andover has yet to select a captain for this season's eleven. Captain Callahan, who was honored last spring with the team leadership, has not returned to the academy.

REGULAR GAMES.

The regular Wednesday night matches of the Knights of Columbus individual bowling league will be rolled on the club alley tonight.

THIRTEEN REPORTED FOR HOPE PRACTICE

Good Lot of Material Out and Prospects Are Bright for Chapel Aggregation.

Thirteen candidates reported to Coach Martin at the Hope chapel gymnasium for the first basketball practice of the season, last night. The material that was present indicates that a fine team will be put on the floor and, although thirteen is sometimes an unlucky number, the Fourth street tribe are going to make things hot for all of the teams in this city this winter, including the two High School aggregations from whom Manager Leighs would like to hear in regard to games. Of the total number that reported last night, three are first team men of last year, but the second string men have developed into players who can take places on the first five this season.

Jack Martin, who put out such a fine team last year, is again working hard with the squad and will have his men primed for the first battle of the year which takes place next month. The players were put through some light work and will gradually work up to scrimmages in the course of the next two weeks. Those who are picked to play on the first team will get some fine practice before their hard games, as the second team will be one that can take the floor at a minute's notice and the team will have the finest set of substitutes ever.

Most of the games will be played at home, which will be an advantage to the team, but several aggregations gave them hard runs in the Fourth street gym last season and one bunch even went so far as to beat them. Those who reported for practice last night are George Leighs, Arthur Walls, Mark Bradford, Frank Clark, Arthur Grisley, Thomas Heron, Dave Warhop, Dick Schott, Henry Overland, Norman Voehl, Alex Campbell, Russell Cratsley and Arthur Thorn. The next practice will be Tuesday night.

MAY ALL STUDENTS WEAR SCHOOL TIES?

Question Brought up in Borough Institution Over New Neck Fad.

May anybody and everybody wear North Plainfield High School ties? That is the question that confronts the Boys' Athletic Association of the borough institution at the present time. One of the local sporting men in this city has laid in a stock of school goods and among his stock are neckties made up in the school colors with the insignia on the front. The maroon and black neck pieces have sold in large quantities and many of the boys in the school now wear them.

The question has arisen as to whether they should be allowed to have this privilege, as in former years no one could wear the High School monogram until he or she had won it in athletics. About eight or ten years ago this rule was strictly inforced in the borough school as well as in other institutions and there were even cases when fellows were subject to rough treatment if caught with one on. This custom has gradually been done away with and for the past two years monograms could be bought at local stores for sweaters. No action has been taken to stop it and consequently many who are not in athletics wear an "N. P. H. S."

Now the question comes up as to whether or not the pupils may sport the letters of the High School on a tie and a meeting will probably be held soon to decide on the matter.

LOCAL ELKS WILL PRACTICE ON THE ALLEYS TOMORROW

The senior bowling team of the local Elks will practice tomorrow night on the Watchung avenue alleys and Captain Nash would like all members of the team to be present. The State league opens next Monday, but the local "Bills" are not scheduled to play until the fifteenth, when Jersey City will appear here.

The local captain is trying to have the match postponed because of another function that takes place at Elizabeth that same night. Nothing definite has yet been decided.

It will be tough sledding for Manager Miller Huggins should Wingo, Magee and Dolan, three of the Cardinals' brightest stars, jump to the Federals. The desertion of this Card trio would wreck the speedy machine developed by Huggins this season.

ALL STARS LOSE THIRD TO BARACAS

Consistent Pinning by the Winners Gives Them Two Matches of Series.

After winning the first match and losing the second of the three-game series between the Baracas and All Star bowling teams, of Dunellen, the former took the third and deciding match on the Presbyterian alleys, last night, by annexing the first and third games. The largest crowd of the season was present to see the All Stars win the match, but they were sadly disappointed when the Baracas won two games with many points to spare.

Both teams were in the game to win the deciding match, but the picked five could not come near the pinning of their opponents in the opening game and the best score of the night was made by the Baracas, the final count being 811 to 701, which is a lead of 110 points. No wonderful scores were turned in during the match, but the winning men bowled consistently throughout and one score below the hundred mark in the second game gave it to the All Stars. George Voehl, Dunellen's baseball magnate, who has shone for the Stars in all the games, hit the pins hard and made two high scores, but his teammates could not get much above 150 and most of the scores were below that mark. In the first, Oakley, of the Baracas, pinned 187 and Voehl went him three points better.

The scores of both teams were low at the end of the second game, the Stars winning with a total of 741 against their opponents' 726. Zink and Fagley hit for 150 and 157 respectively in this game, which put their team in the lead. Voehl's 197, which was high score for the night, in the third game, could not win the series, as only one of the Baracas scores were low, that being 118. The scores were 788 to 717. The scores:

RUNYON AND FRITTS IN ATHLETIC MEET

Will Enter in the Small Club Events at Brooklyn Next Saturday.

Ralph Runyon and Jack Fritts, the two local athletes who put the name of Plainfield in the summary columns of most all the athletic meets they enter, will compete in the Small Clubs' games that take place next Saturday afternoon at Washington Park, Brooklyn. Many of the noted athletes of the East will be there and the local entrants will have to go the limit to get places in the events they take part in.

Fritts is planning to enter the half mile run and he will be against Willie Weber, the fleet-footed Elizabeth runner, who created a great sensation several years ago when he pounded home a winner in the duel five-mile road run between the local and Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. teams on a local course. Several other good men will be ready at the start of the half and Fritts will have to run his best to finish with the prize winners. He will also enter the javelin throw, and stands a pretty good show in this, although he will also meet some very strong competition. He is practicing regularly in the run and wants to place near the head if possible.

Plainfield's pole vaulter will also be in the meet with his fourteen foot pole and should make a fine showing for first place. The local boy took third place last week against the best in this part of the country and should come home a winner this time. He may also enter in the broad jump, but will probably give all his attention to his special event.

ONLY THING LEFT IS WORLD'S SERIES

Today is the Last of the Season for Leagues With a Big Series to Be Played.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 7—The crowning event of the professional baseball season is near at hand. The series for the world's championship between the Philadelphia team, the four-time champions of the American League, and the Boston Braves, winners of this year's pennant in the National League, will begin on Friday of this week.

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that, with a large proportion of the American public at least, the war now on in Europe will drop into second place in interest while the world's series is being fought out. From the hour that the umpire cries "Play ball" at the initial contest until the championship flag is cinched by one or the other of the contesting teams the tens of thousands of baseball fans, from Hudson Bay to the City of Mexico, from Coney Island to Manila, will crowd around the tickers, scan the bulletin boards and buy the newspaper extras.

Probably no series that has ever been played in baseball will attract the attention this one will, and probably no series, the weather being suitable, will equal it in attendance. And what a time those eligible Athletics and Braves will have when the financial melon is sliced after the series is completed. Fenway Park, where the Boston games will be played, has been put in shape to accommodate 50,000 or more spectators, while the park in Philadelphia will take care of about the same number. The winning players are pretty sure of making a rake-off of from $2,500 to $3,500 each. If the series should go to the limit the profits of the club owners would be enormous.

As to what the series will bring forth the partisan fans have been keyed up to a high pitch trying to convince themselves and others why their favorite team cannot lose. In view of the fact that the Philadelphia team is made up of veterans, even when it comes to contesting for the world's flag, while the Boston Braves might almost be termed novices in comparison, it is somewhat surprising that so many newspaper critics and others should pick the Hub players to win. The average Philadelphian, of course, can see nothing to it but Connie Mack's team, but it is a noticeable and significant fact that around the hotels and other places where sporting men congregate there appears to be a ready taker for every bet offered on Philadelphia. Whichever way the series goes, there is already one thing that seems certain, and that is that a larger amount of money will change hands on the result than has ever been the case before.

CHAMPIONS OF 1907 WILL BATTLE PETS

Jack Martin Will Lead the Intercity Champs Against the Locals Saturday.

Jack Martin and his 1907 champions will appear here next Saturday afternoon, against the Pets on Parker Field and the team which played the great games on Crescent Oval seven years ago will probably make their opponents hustle during the entire nine innings and one of the best games of the schedule is looked for. The aggregation that will face the Pets is identically the same team, man for man, that won the intercity amateur baseball championship seven years ago, when Somerville, Scotch Plains, Clinton Avenue, Dunellen, Raritan and Bound Brook were struggling for first place. This team came out on top.

Cliff Randolph, who pitched in those days and was largely responsible for the successes of the team, will be here Saturday and set them up for the Pets to hit. All the men will play as was announced some time ago with Jack on short and his brother at the keystone sack.

Gene Mathews will toss them over for the Pets.

FIRST PRACTICE FOR Y. M. C. A. TEAM TONIGHT

For the first time since last March the Y. M. C. A. athletes who expect to try for the association team this season will don their uniforms tonight and give Captain Brynairski a chance to see what material he has to pick from. Present indications are that the number of candidates will be large and one of the finest teams the association has ever supported will be on the floor this year.

Many of the old players and several new ones will appear tonight and every Wednesday night from now on as that will be considered a practice night. Only light practice will be indulged in for the first few days and then hard work for the first game will be started. Physical Director Mermans will not be able to be present tonight, but will plan to be with the squad every night possible.

ANOTHER P. H. S. BOOKING.

Owing to the disbanding of the Roselle High School football team the game scheduled for October 17 has been cancelled. Manager Updike has scheduled a game with the Randolph Military Academy for that date to be played at Morristown.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The sophomore class held its annual class meeting yesterday afternoon, for the election of officers. Chester Alpaugh was elected president; Kathryne Endress, vice president; Harold Spicer, secretary, and Eugene Martin, treasurer.

The minstrel show, which is presented annually by the B. A. A., will be held in the auditorium on November 7. Tickets have been distributed among the members of the school. These may be exchanged for reserved seats at Miller's drug store after October 31.

The following have been appointed by President McNamee to select the pins for the senior class: Edward Ryder, Nicholas Zelmas, William Peacock, Muriel Cockburn, Dorothy Stelle and Elsie Stevens.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Maude Adams did not plan to make a very long tour this season. She decided that she would visit the principal cities, spending from two to six weeks in each of the biggest of them. It is true that Miss Adams is very punctilious in her promises and that when she makes up her mind to do a thing it is virtually as good as done. She has never broken a contract on any pretext. However, it is in the province of every woman to change her mind there are those who will claim that every woman does change her mind and it is on record that Miss Adams has changed her mind regarding her tour. Hardly had the actress settled down for her long stay in New York last season when requests began pouring in on her that she visit certain cities. Hundreds of these requests were received and not a few were from places unknown to the actress' management. There were offers from nearly every important city in the Canadian northwest and to comply with all of the requests would necessitate a tour that would take three seasons to cover. Of course it was impossible for Miss Adams to take advantage of the promises and offers made her, but they had the effect of turning what was to be a tour that took in but a limited territory into one that will take her as far as the Pacific coast. Throughout her tour Miss Adams will make known J. M. Barrie's new comedy, "The Legend of Leonora." This will be her principal offering. The piece, which is hailed as one of the cleverest that has come from the Barrie pen, is said to be a most satisfying and successful work. This play will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow night.

Flushed with her great conquest of New York and with the plaudits of the audiences which filled the Comedy Theatre, for more than one year, still ringing in her ears, "Kitty MacKay" comes to the Plainfield Theatre on Monday night, October 12, under the direction of William Elliott. "Kitty MacKay" outlasted every other play presented in New York last season. Catherine Chisholm Cushing's brilliant comedy caught the public fancy from the very start and not even through the warmest of the summer months, was the attendance at the performances diminished. The story of "Kitty" has to do with the adventures of a winsome Scottish Cinderella in London and comprises so many funny situations and so much brilliant dialogue that it must be seen to be enjoyed.

German Valley. and Chester

Mrs. Mary Gilen, of German Valley, is spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seals, who live near Hackettstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hawkins, of Califon, have concluded a visit to Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barker, of Chester.

Miss Nellie Tredway, of Park Ridge, and Miss Edith Tredway were over-Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Tredway, of Chester.

John R. Hardin and family, who spent the summer near Chester, will leave for Newark this week.

Cyrus Conover and Alvah Conover, of Lebanon, were Sunday visitors to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Conover, of Chester.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swick, of Gladstone, are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Stout, Sr., of Chester.

Owing to the continued drought the wells near Chester are nearly dry.

The Young People's Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church, the borough, will hold their monthly business meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Eckhart, of 33 Regent street.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

The details of the fall campaign are rapidly being perfected by all three of the leading parties. The first large event for this city will be the gathering of the Republican county and city candidates in the Frost building Thursday evening. The campaign of the G. O. P. will not, however, be in full swing until after the dollar dinner of Thursday evening of next week at Elizabeth. After that gathering, meetings of one nature and another will follow in quick succession.

Complete canvasses of the entire city is being made by both parties, in preparation of securing as large a registration October 20 as possible. The above date will be the last date set aside for the registration of voters, when the district Boards of Elections wil set from 2 in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening.

The impending campaign in Union county promises to be one of the warmest in years, with both Democratic and Republican parties working the entire county to the greatest extent. A number of speakers of national reputation are promised during the two weeks preceding November 3..

C. A. REED SPEAKS AT BAR ASSOCIATION DINNER

Elizabeth, Oct. 7.—Charles A. Reed, former State senator, was one of the speakers at the dinner of the Union County Bar Association given in Carteret Arms yesterday. The guests of honor were Justice James J. Bergen, Judge William H. Speer and Judge James C. Connolly. Former Chancellor William J. Magie also spoke. The association has added twenty-six new cases for law books to its library.

DECISION RESERVED IN THE DREIER WILL CASE

Elizabeth, Oct. 7.—Counsel in the Samuel Dreier will case, which has been in litigation for some time, announced today that Vice Ordinary Backes, sitting in the Prerogative Court at Trenton, yesterday, reserved decision on the appeal of Mrs. Bertha Senger, whose exceptions to the accounting of the will as filed by her brothers, Harry and Garret Dreier, were over-ruled by Judge James C. Connolly. Exceptions to an additional accounting have been filed and will be heard by Judge Connolly, October 16.

MUNICIPAL ORCHESTRA WILL MEET TO RE-ORGANIZE

Announcement has been made to the effect that the Municipal Orchestra, which was one of the features of the work of the Public Recreation Committee last year, is to be re-organized Monday evening at 7:30, in the auditorium of the Franklin School. S. Frederick Smith, the new director of music, is desirous of maintaining the highest possible standard of music in the organization by studying symphonies and classical selections.

It has, therefore, been deemed wise to limit the membership to invitation or those who have a desire to join who have ability such as will not retard the work of the orchestra. Three concerts during the winter season are being planned to be given at the High School auditorium. A successful season is being looked forward to by both the leader and the committee in charge.

PERSONAL.

Miss Katheryne Ruttledge and Miss Frances Newman, of this city, spent the week-end with relatives at Garfield and East Rutherford.

Mrs. Louis Khune, of Troy, N. Y., is spending two weeks with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Wendell, 998 Arlington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Jordan, of Lerona avenue, are the proud parents of a six and a half pound girl born last week.

Miss Adelle C. Phelps has returned to her studio in the Babcock building. Miss Phelps has been spending the summer in Asbury Park with her people.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ulmer and family have moved from 603 Berckman street to 314 East Second street.

George Krogg, of East Sixth street, who was confined to his home by illness, is convalescent.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Futnam, of 542 East Second street, who have been spending the past three months at Scotch Plains, have returned to this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Skinner, of 259 Leland avenue, are parents of a boy, born to them on Sunday.

RESERVOIR NOW COMPLETED

throughout its entire system, and will also enable the company to pump at a uniform rate of speed the twenty-four hours of each day. Heretofore having no storage capacity to speak of, the company has pumped sometimes at the rate of sixteen million gallons during some hours of the day, and as low as two million gallons a day at other hours, which of course requires too rapid operation of the machinery part of the time, and very slow movement at other times. Another advantage to be derived from the reservoir is that heretofore it has been impracticable to stop the pumping machinery for more than a few minutes at a time. Hereafter that difficulty will be obviated. To minimize the risk involved in this situation, however, the company has always maintained duplicate machinery, so that in the event of a breakdown of any particular part another could be started in a few minutes, and thus avoid a reduction of pressure.

A few days ago the company began to fill the reservoir, letting about a million gallons a day run in. At present the water is more than thirteen feet deep, and is so limpid that the bottom of the reservoir can be seen almost as distinctly as if empty. Every manhole and the door in the roof of the reservoir are securely fastened and locked, and a high iron fence is about to be constructed entirely around it, equipped with barbed wire on the inside to prevent intrusion.

As the reservoir was nearing completion a number of photographs were taken of it showing the condition of the work, and also a photograph was taken of the interior when finished. The Press today presents copies of these photographs to its readers.

It is the intention of the water company to raise the standpipe at Netherwood several feet higher, or possibly remove it altogether and operate the works on the Holly system hereafter, but on this point, however, no final decision has yet been reached. It is also expected that in the course of a year or so a large main will be laid from the reservoir to Scotch Plains, and thence to Plainfield along East Front street, and perhaps to the westerly end of the city, for the purpose of re-inforcing the mains heretofore laid and now in use.

ELY'S CREAM BALM OPENS CLOGGED NOSTRILS AND HEAD—CATARRH GOES

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely, Nasty Discharge Stops, Head Colds and Dull Headache Vanish.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; fullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat. Clears the air passages; stops nasty discharge and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Adv.

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine It in Plainfield.

People are somtimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Plainfield residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's drug store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

FOR A GREATER PLAINFIELD.

Political underhand work and saloon influence held back for twelve years the advance of the move for the consolidation of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield. The two municipalities are one community, divided only by an imaginary line. All their interests are the same, both business and social. Yet when the question of annexation was submitted to the voters of North Plainfield on September 16, 1902, the project was defeated by a majority of 161.

There was no secret as to the main cause for the defeat. An attempt had been made to put through a partizan political scheme to force consolidation of the two municipalities and a change in the county lines, regardless of the wishes of the residents. This attempt was frustrated in the Legislature, and then a bill was passed providing for a referendum on municipal consolidation alone. Those who favored the original scheme became active in support of consolidation, and the angered voters rebuked the would-be dictators.

In predicting the defeat of the plan at that time, the News declared that the consolidation was inevitable. A dozen years have passed since, and now the voters of North Plainfield have adopted by a substantial majority the provisions of the law they rejected in 1902. Plainfield is still to vote on the question, but an effort is being made to have the election deferred until next year to await more legislation. Should this move succeed, it will further defer the making of a greater Plainfield and might even defeat the project.

The adoption of the act will necessitate additional legislation to prevent complications that would otherwise arise. Plainfield is in Union county and North Plainfield is in Somerset. Though the law of 1902 reads that, upon its adoption, the territory of North Plainfield shall be "annexed to and made a part of 'inhabitants of the city of Plainfield,' in the county of Union," this does not mean that North Plainfield will automatically become a portion of Union county. Such a change in the county line could be made only be a special act.

There will be no insurmountable difficulty, however, if there should be no change in the county line. The two municipalities could be governed as one, even though a part was in Union and another part in Somerset. Modifications of school and tax laws would be necessary to meet the new conditions, but they would not be difficult to secure. If these modifications are brought about to meet the situation in the expected greater Plainfield, then a precedent will be set which may encourage adjoining municipalities in different counties elsewhere—such as the West Hudson towns and Newark—to join in a consolidation movement that they have long desired to bring about.—Newark Evening News.

The North Plainfield Board of Education has directed that hereafter spelling shall be a compulsory study in the High School. For the past five years it has been only elective, and the Board seems to have discovered that this is not good policy. The Board's action is a confession that spelling is an essential part of a pupil's education, that it is not sufficiently taught in the grammar schools to meet requirements and that the High School can well abandon some of its so-called "frills" to teach correct spelling. This will be commended by many educators and practical business men as a step in the right direction. It is to a degree a return to the educational policy of teaching thoroughly the elementary studies, especially the first two of the "three R's." Long and loud complaints that public school children do not know how to spell have been heard in many quarters of recent years, but North Plainfield's pupils will not rest under such an aspersion if the High School teachers carry out the intentions of the Board of Education.—Newark Evening News.

SCHOOL AND HOME GARDENS A SUCCESS

Satisfactory Results Are Reported by County Superintendent of Schools.

Early in April a movement was started in Union county for the establishment of school and home gardens. The interest at first was not keen because of a lack of general understanding as to the real educational value of such an enterprise. In some communities there still existed the traditional notion that work outside the classroom, not academic in character, had no real merit. While there were some doubting Thomases, there still remained a goodly number, who through previous experience or natural interest in such a project supported the movement and it is largely due to their efforts and co-operation that today the idea may be said to be firmly established.

Like all movements of its kind it is passing through the regular period of experimentation. Some mistakes have been made which will be remedied another season, when the project will be more carefully planned, the method of operation more intelligently worked out, and the actual work more skillfully undertaken.

In some districts no school gardens were planted either because plots could not be secured or because there were certain conditions which prevented their establishments.

The home garden plan was presented to the pupils in every school and principals and teachers were very earnest in their efforts to encourage the pupils to secure a plot in the cottage garden which the pupil might be responsible for and cultivate in his own way. In many schools seeds were given out with instructions how to prepare the ground and sow and cultivate. In many communities there were pupils who secured such plots in the home garden and in nearly every instance they became so much interested that no encouragement on the part of the teacher was necessary. One of the weaknesses of our last season's plan was the failure to establish a "follow up" method. This we have learned will be necessary another year. In some districts, however, this was done and the results were quite evident.

Feeling that the interest might die out with the close of the schools and the consequent withdrawal of the teachers' interest, a supervisor of home gardens was appointed, who secured a list of the pupils having home garden plots, visited the districts during the summer vacation and offered suggestions and encouragement to boys and girls, in this way establishing a general supervision of the home project.

Union county was fortunate in securing the services of Ralph Fraunfelter, a trained teacher and experienced gardener. Under his supervision boys and girls in nearly every district have worked energetically through the whole summer.

In one district, Springfield, the school garden has been conducted during the whole vacation season under the direction of E. V. Walton, the supervising principal, from 15 to 30 pupils have been in daily attendance. The Springfield plot consisted of one acre of land divided into individual plots and two sections planted and cultivated by two groups of boys on the community plan under the direction of a teacher.

On the whole the garden enterprise has given satisfactory results and has been a source of much pleasure and profit.

High Bridge-Califon.

William Drake has moved his family from Woodglen to a farm near Spring Valley.

Thirty-two friends tendered Mrs. David W. Apgar a birthday surprise party Saturday night at her home in Academy street, Califon.

Rev. Edwin Bronson, pastor of the Lower Valley Presbyterian church, has bought an automobile.

Having purchased the Tigar farm near Woodglen from Isaac Zeliers, of Newark, John Miller, of that city, has moved his family to the place.

Mrs. Joseph Apgar is ill at her home on Parsonage Heights, Califon.

Mrs. George Benner sold her personal property at Califon, Saturday, and will go to Newark this week to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Sutton, of Califon, recently visited the family of Richard Conover, at New Germantown.

While helping to erect the framework for a new building at the Philip Philhower farm, near Fairmount, Saturday, Paul Sutton, about sixty-seven years old, of Fairmount, was severely injured. A heavy timber fell, striking him on the head and rendering him unconscious.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbour Wyckoff, of High Bridge, spent the week-end at Nyack, N. Y.

William Hefferman, of High Bridge, is ill.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

WHAT IS POLITICS?

By nothing have we been more deluded and blinded than by the traditional interpretation of what politics means. It is really something very simple. People are everywhere finding out that their single strength is too weak. They have to group themselves and make certain regulations for protection; and that is politics. Are women less concerned than men in having clean streets, decent sewers, untainted milk, good schools, charities properly administered, hospitals put on a proper footing? Yet we cannot have to do with any of these things without taking part in politics, pure and simple

JOHN GRAHAM BROOKS.

THE WORTH OF A VOTE.

In an article on "The Economic Importance of the Extension of the Suffrage," C. C. Arbuthnot, professor of economics at the Western Reserve University, sets forth the solid benefits which the right to vote has brought to poor men, to working men, to the "plain people" of the United States.

This is Professor Arbuthnot's conclusion:

"There is no way to remove abuses like putting power into the hands of those who suffer from them. The ballots of the enfranchised workers, combined with those of the reform element, were sufficient to secure for the workers much that was helpful. A similar result would follow the grant of votes to women. What the public-spirited men cannot get now for women would be brought into existence of these men's votes were reinforced by women's ballots. No lifetime of wheedling persuasion will have to be spent to gain what women need, and what the whole race needs because of its vital effect on women. There would be in the ballot a great power for the improvement of the general conditions for women as there was for raising the standard for working men."

"IF YOU WANT A THING TO BE WELL DONE, DO IT YOURSELF."

To tell an educated thinking woman that she is "represented" by man on election day is to raise two questions in her mind. Is any particular man voting with special regard for her welfare? Is he voting for or against the thing that she would vote for? Uncertainty as to the way they are "represented" inclines many women to take the trouble to do their own voting.

HOW IT LOOKS TO A TEXAS EDITOR.

The rapidity with which the equal suffrage movement is gaining strength compels the conclusion that it will not be long before women will be in full possession of the ballot in practically all the States of the Union. This conclusion is inevitable, when the facts are dispassionately examined, without reference to personal opinions.—Beaumont (Tex.) Enterprise.

DIRECT AND CONVINCING TESTIMONY FROM COLORADO.

The following communications from Denver officials are sufficient to offset the misstatements so industriously circulated about Denver and Denver's women citizens:

"Denver, Col., Sept. 17, 1914.

"To Whom It May Concern:

"Thirty years ago I came to Colorado. Twenty years ago women in this State secured the full franchise. I have every reason to know that woman suffrage in Colorado has not in any way increased the public tax burden, as is charged by anti-suffragists in other States. Our tax levy is 11.8 mills on the dollar of valuation for all purposes, the lowest of any in the country. Women in Colorado take active part in political and public matters to a much greater degree than in other States and it is my firm conviction that here in Denver, where women are appointed for election judges and clerks, the cost of elections is materially reduced by reason of their efficiency, honesty and promptness.

"(Signed) OTTO THUM,
"Com. of Property."

"Denver, Col., Sept. 17, 1914.

"To Whom It May Concern:

"I understand that there is a rumor spread broadcast through the country that I have made a statement that women in Denver drink more liquor than men.

"For the information of those who circulated this story, I desire to deny the making of any such statement. It is absolutely false and uncalled for and untrue. I am,

"Very truly yours,
"(Signed) FELIX O'NEILL,
"Chief of Police."

"Denver, Col., Sept. 17, 1914.

"To Whom It May Concern:

"It is my opinion that women have had and are now having a greater influence for good in Colorado than they could have had without equal suffrage.

"Yours respectfully,
"(Signed) J. M. PERKINS,
"Mayor."

OHIO, HIGHER EDUCATION AND SUFFRAGE.

In 1822 Catherine Beecher opened a school for girls in Cincinnati.

In 1833 Oberlin College, the first co-educational college in the world, was established.

From 1832 to 1914 is a long stretch of time, and the events of the century show an interesting evolution. They prove to any open understanding that Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson was right when he said: "The suffrage movement began when some woman learned the alphabet."

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To IDA GREENBAUM—

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the first day of October, Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen, in a cause wherein Peder C. Thomsen is complainant and you are one of the defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the second day of December next, or said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage for $8,000.00 given by La Rue Realty Company, a corporation, to Peder C. Thomsen, dated the twelfth day of June, Nineteen Hundred and One, on lands in the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey.

And you, Ida Greenbaum, are made one of the defendants because you claim an interest in the said lands by virtue of an unrecorded deed or other writing.

Dated, October 6, 1914.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHEN STEAK IS HIGH.

DINNER MENU.
Farina Soup.
Potatoes au Gratin.
Creamed Parsnips.
Turkish Bean Salad.
Baked Round Steak.
White Pudding.
Coffee.

WHEN butchers' prices soar and the best steak comes high the cheaper cuts may be substituted for them. The tenderness and palatableness of a steak are largely dependent on the way it is prepared. A good way of cooking steak is given here.

Farina Soup.—Take one-half pound of butter, melt in a casserole dish, and when hot add three-quarters of a pound of farina. Cook on top of the range, stirring with a wooden spoon so it will not stick to the bottom. Cook until the color of a chestnut, then add two quarts of boiling water, season with salt and pepper and boil for one hour.

Bean Salad.—Take eight small onions, peel and slice in rings. Pour cold water on them and drain. Place in a salad bowl, add one pint and a half of boiled lima beans, or cold baked beans may be used. Mix the onions in lightly, together with a teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, two tablespoonfuls olive oil, one teaspoonful white sugar and three-fourths cupful of vinegar. Mold, garnish with olives, add two sliced hard boiled eggs and serve on lettuce with cheese fingers.

Baked Round Steak.—Take a slice of round steak, cut about one and one-half inches thick, cover with flour and, using the edge of a plate or meat pounder, pound as much as possible into the meat. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a baking pan and when hot brown the meat quickly on both sides, sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with a cupful of boiling water or tomatoes. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven for several hours, or until the meat is tender throughout. Serve with tomato sauce or with gravy.

White Pudding.—Take one heaping teaspoonful of granulated gelatin and soak in one-fourth cupful of cold water for ten minutes. Dissolve it in one cupful of boiling water, add a cupful of sugar and a quarter cupful of lemon juice. Strain and cool. When cool and just ready to set, beat until frothy and add the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs and continue to beat until the mixture will hold its shape. Mold in any desired form and chill thoroughly. Serve with custard sauce.

Sauce.—Beat the yolks of the eggs and add one-quarter cupful of sugar. Stir into this gradually two cupfuls of scalded milk. When completely mixed place on the stove in a double boiler and cook until the mixture thickens. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and chill

Anna Thompson.

"Friends and fellow workers," he began, with a great flourish.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How Labor Day Was Celebrated On a Farm.

"YOU liked the Labor day parade so well, children, that I am going to tell you about a funny celebration held on a farm on last Labor day."

"Upon this farm I am going to tell you about there was an air one late August morning of unusual activity.

"The cock began it. He crowed and crowed and crowed as the sun came up over the eastern hills and tinged the world with rose color.

"'Get up, get up, get up!' crowed the cock, and then all the animals on the farm began to stir. The horses neighed and whinnied, the cows mooed and bellowed, the sheep and lambs bleated, the dogs barked, the cats mewed, the pigs grunted and squealed, the ducks quacked, the chickens cackled, the goats blatted and the turkeys gobbled. Such a time as all those animals had and such a noise as they made welcoming the return of day.

"Then the cock passed around among them and told them to meet together at 9 o'clock in the barnyard, as he had something to say to them.

"Promptly at 9 o'clock they all assembled—the horses, the cows, the pigs, the chickens, the dogs, the cats, the goats, the sheep, the ducks and the turkeys—all with shining morning faces and with their clothing spick and span. Then the cock flew up on a convenient fence, made a low bow and began his speech.

"'Friends and fellow workers,' he began with a great flourish, 'as you have doubtless heard, there is to be a great parade of our fellow workers on Saturday next. I move that upon that day the horses stop drawing loads, the cows give no milk, the pigs stop growing their bristles for brushes, the hens lay no eggs, the goats give no milk, the dogs cease to watch, the cats to stop mousing, the ducks stop growing feathers for feather beds and the sheep cease growing wool for clothing and that we all go for a jollification over in the big meadow. What do you think of my plan?'

"And then such an uproar as there was. Of course they all assented to the plan. In the midst of the din came irate Farmer Gray and scattered them all about their business. But they went willingly enough because they would have their holiday to anticipate."

"Daddy, what was the rooster going to stop doing on the holiday?" asked Jack.

"I think the rooster, like every other thinker of great plans, worked that day just the same as any other day, for, you see, he would be obliged to waken the other animals by crowing on their holiday morning."

MANY BIDS FOR SEWER CONTRACT

One Plainfield Firm Among Thirty-seven Applicants for Work.

ESTIMATES ARE READ

Commission Received Proposals at a Public Meeting Held Last Night—Representatives of Firms From Wide Radius Present at Meeting.

Thirty-seven contractors, representing cities within a radius of many miles from Plainfield, were present at the meeting of the Joint Sewerage Commission held in the Common Council chambers, last night, and presented bids for the proposed construction of the trunk sewer and sewage disposal works. The bids came from firms doing business as far West as Pittburgh, as far East as Asbury Park, as far North as Schenectady, and as far South as West Virginia.

The sealed proposals were opened and read, each of the estimates giving figures on twenty-five separate items. No official announcement was made at that time, but the bids will be taken under advisement by a committee composed of Councilman Thomas Hylan, of this city; E. S. Boyer, of North Plainfield, and Erle M. Jones, of Dunellen. The name of the successful bidder will be announced at a special meeting called for next Wednesday night.

Arthur E. Smith, of this city, was the only bidder registered in a town this side of Newark. H. C. Brooks & Company sent a representative here from Martinsburg, W. Va.; one came from Andrew VanCleef's firm in Asbury Park; another from the Pitt Construction Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and another extremity was represented in the Pratt-Reed and Phillips Company, of Schenectady, N. Y.

The bids were presented on two separate contracts and all labor and materials will be furnished by the successful bidder. The trunk sewer will be constructed to connect Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen with the new disposal plant to be located at the Darling farm in Dunellen.

The bids received last night came from the following firms: Tusco Construction Company, New York and New Jersey Construction Company, of New York; Schneider, Stelle Company, of New Brunswick; Lou B. Cleveland, of Watertown, N. Y.; William McCarthy, of Baltimore; H. C. Brooks Company, Martinsburg, W. Va.; John Shrague, of Brooklyn; Ryan & Reilly, of Baltimore; Joseph L. Segratto, of Weedside, L. I.; Cauldwell Wingate Company, of New York; Eon Engineering Company, of Long Island City; E. L. Baeder, of Atlantic City; George Alcott, of Orange; Suburban Engineering Company, of New York; Stobaugh Construction Company, of New York; J. W. Weller, of Newark; Merrill-Ruchgaber Company, of New York; Mason Hilton Company, of New York; T. Foster Callahan, of Elizabeth; Whitney Turner Company, of Baltimore; Kelley, McFeely Company, of Camden; H. K. Corbin, of New York; Arthur E. Smith, of Plainfield, Michael-Garafano-Vinopolo-Toriello Company, of Summit; Herbert O. Goodwin, of New York; Andrew VanCleef, of Asbury Park; J. D. Penel, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Pitt Construction Company, of Pittsburgh; Pratt-Reed and Phillips, of Schenectady, N. Y.; Charles Ippolitto, of Orange.

LOCAL TOURISTS' THRILLING TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schwed and Party Returned Home Yesterday.

AMERICANS RESPECTED

Saw Thousands of Wounded Soldiers and Marching Troops—Red, White and Blue Flag Always Recognized—Return in Good Health.

After many thrilling experiences and delays in the European war zone the Schwed party, comprising Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schwed, of this city, Charles Schwed and daughter, Miss Emily, of Somerville; Max Schwed, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Babetta Kaufman, of Danville, Va., arrived in New York city yesterday morning, on the American Line steamship Ryndam from Rotterdam. Mr. and Mrs. Schwed arrived in Plainfield last night, and since their return have been beseiged by a host of friends anxious to hear of their experiences. They were not molested at any time while in Europe. Mr. Schwed stated this morning that Americans are treated with great courtesy in Germany and other countries.

He said that while Germans had to have a passport in traveling from one station to another all he had to do was to turn over the lapel of his coat and display a miniature American flag which he had pinned there. He says he will never part with the little bit of red, white and blue.

CIVIC BODY SEEKS A PERMANENT HOME

West End Association Will Launch Aggressive Membership Campaign.

The West End Civic Association, at its regular monthly meeting to be held in the Washington School, tomorrow evening, will celebrate its second anniversary. At the same time a campaign is to be launched looking toward a busy winter season, before which it is hoped to increase the membership of the hustling young organization to at least three hundred. Committees with this end in view already are formulating their plans and there is every reason to believe that their efforts will be successful, inasmuch as every task the West End Civic Association has set itself so far has been accomplished.

A report on the work of the committee having the summer band concerts in charge will be heard at this meeting. So gratified are the committeemen with the success of the concerts held on Friday evenings during the summer that they will outline plans for the coming season when a more pretentious form of public entertainment will be provided for the people of the West End.

It is the purpose of the members who will attend the meeting tomorrow evening to perfect arrangements whereby the association can have its own home. Heretofore the meetings have been held in the Washington School and as the room in which the association meets is only available at stated intervals the members feel the need of a home where they can drop in at will, and there meet fellow members and discuss questions of importance to all concerned.

Without such a permanent home matters that some member may desire to call to the attention of others of the association have to go over until the regular meeting night and as a rule valuable time has been lost by such delays.

If the membership can be brought up to the desired figure the officers of the association will feel sufficiently encouraged to seek quarters, either an entire house, or a part of one. An attendant will be placed in charge of the premises and members will be free to come and go at will.

Once the practice of dropping in to discuss matters of import to the West End is started the officers feel that it will soon become a habit and in this way many more questions of local interest and importance will come up for discussion at the regular meetings.

A complete canvass of residents of the West End is being made by the energetic committeemen and from reports already submitted they feel greatly encouraged and confidently predict that the membership will be beyond the three hundred mark long before the time set for the canvass to end has expired. The most active and influential residents of that section of the city already have joined and the greater majority of these have obligated themselves to bring in recruits at the next regular meeting.

RED MEN OBSERVE THEIR ANNIVERSARY

Miantonomo Tribe Celebrates Twenty-fifth Year of Its Organization.

Observing its twenty-fifth anniversary, Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., entertained a large number of their braves and pale face friends last evening, at which time speech-making, music and dancing marked the occasion. Professor Naylor's orchestra, of this city, furnished the music during the evening. The program was in charge of a special committee composed of Charles L. Holstein, Daniel W. Mundy, Peter Sheridan, Percy D. Culver and Edward F. Shimer.

Miantonomo Tribe was instituted ninth Sun Traveling Moon, G. S. D., 397 (October 9, 1889), in what is now known as Exempt Firemen's Hall, 109 Park avenue. The lodge started under favorable auspices with a charter membership of sixty-four. Abe Cunningham, of Paterson, great sachem, and Daniel M. Stevens, great chief of the records, of Camden, both of whom are still living, were in charge of the institution. Among the original members of the tribe, who are still living, and members are William Long, of South Bound Brook; B. F. Allen, George McGinnis, Peter Stram and Thomas Osment, of this city. During the past twenty-five years $8,921 has been paid out in sick benefits, while $5,214 has been paid out for death benefits. The present membership is 204.

The present officers of the tribe include the following: Prophet, E. F. Skinner; sachem, John Flynn; senior sagamore, Louis Clarke; junior sagamore, Ira Kimmel; chief of the records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of the wampum, Percy D. Culver; guard of the wigwam, Elmer D. Bailer; guard of the forest, Samuel Montross; sannaps, Daniel W. Mundy and Charles Meyer, Jr.; warriors, Peter Sheridan and Ira Klimek; trustees, D. W. Mundy, Thomas N. Parsons and Peter Sheridan.

Fraternal visitors were present from Somerville, Cranford, Westfield and Hackensack, while high chiefs were present from South Amboy, Camden, Bayonne, Cranford and Paterson. Corn and venison were served to the guests at a late hour. About 350 members, visitors and friends were present.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBIT APPROVED

Private Demonstration Given Under Auspices of Public Recreation Committee.

A private demonstration of moving pictures to be used by the Recreation Committee in its work during the coming season, with members of that committee as well as the Board of Education present, was held in the auditorium of the Washington School, last night. The program of six reels was pleasing, and the feature was endorsed by all present.

Beginning with this evening, moving pictures will be featured regularly for the remainder of the season, exhibitions being given for the general public Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, while those on Friday evening will be especially for the Dunbar Educational Club. Exhibitions will be given at 7:30 and 9 o'clock, with an admission fee of five cents. As the committee has no desire to make this a money-making proposition, the charge of admission may be reduced to two or three cents.

After the demonstration last night, Arthur B. Jones, the chairman of the Public Recreation Committee, took occasion to state that every department of the work of the organization was practically on a self-sustaining basis, and that the moving pictures would be no exception to the rule, that in no case would any of the work be used for the purpose of making money. Harry Marshall, who was the means of starting the moving picture affairs, was thanked for the interest manifested in the work along these lines. Educational films will feature the entertainments.

FIRST PUBLIC CONCERT.

The first of the free entertainments under the auspices of the Board of Education will take place tonight in the Plainfield High School. The Lotus Glee Club, which will give the initial entertainment of the series, is well known in this city and a large audience is expected. The doors will be open at 7:30 and the performance will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

—Neuman Brothers are holding a special sale of flour at remarkably low prices for the present time. Pillsbury's, Hecker's Superlative and Gold Medal are each offered at $7.25 a barrel.—Adv. ***

WORLD'S SERIES RESULTS

As has been the custom for two years past, the Daily Press will publish two editions during the World's Series. The first will appear at the usual time and contain the details of the game for the first four or five innings. This edition will go to all out of town readers. The final edition, immediately after the games are concluded each day, will be delivered to all subscribers in Plainfield reached by Press route boys. Those receiving the first edition can get the final result by 'phoning the Daily Press office—Plainfield 1300.

INJURED BY FALL INTO OPEN TRENCH

Rev. C. H. Mallery Victim of Accident as He Hurried for Trolley Car.

The Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, of the Heavenly Rest church, is confined to his home today, as the result of injuries sustained in a fall on Clinton avenue, last night. The clergyman was hurrying to catch a trolley car when the accident occurred.

The ditch in the road on Clinton avenue is not visible in the dark and the victim did not notice it as he approached. He fell headlong into the opening, landing on the ground, some sixteen feet below. A ladder was procured and he was taken out and continued on his way to a service in Bonnie Burn Sanitarium. Dr. J. E. Runnells, of the latter institution, examined Dr. Mallery and found that he was suffering from a sprained ankle and minor bruises.

A watchman is left in charge of the trench on Clinton avenue after dark and he was busy signaling an approaching automobile when the minister happened along, no warning being extended to the latter of his approaching danger.

MYSTERIOUS BLAZE IN THE WEST END

John Donnelly's Home is Damaged to the Extent of $500.

Fire, the cause of which is a mystery, was discovered yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock at the home of John Donnelly, of 660 West Fourth street. The blaze evidently started in the corner of the basement and worked its way through to the roof, confining itself to the one corner of the structure. At the time no one was at home, the fire being first discovered by a passerby, who sent a telephone alarm to No. 3 firehouse, from which a quick response was made. Headquarters on East Second street was also notified and the chemical engine, together with the hook and ladder were despatched to the scene.

The West End company was compelled to force an entrance into the house, and kept the blaze under control until such time as the headquarter companies appeared. The fire gave the fighters an hour's work and was finally extinquished by one hydrant stream and chemicals. The damage amounted approximately to $500, which was fully covered by insurance. The damage was entirely confined to the structure, the furniture being practically uninjured by either fire or water.

LOCAL FILM TO BE SHOWN AT PROCTOR'S TOMORROW

The vaudeville at Proctor's the last half of this week consists of the following acts: Edith Swan and her seven musical girls; Lasere-Lasere and dog, in their wonderful acrobatic novelty; Howell Sisters, dainty singers and dancers; Henry Hardgraves, in a comedy sketch, and Brown and Moulton, singing and walking comedians. The Mutual Weekly will be shown on Friday instead of Saturday.

Tomorrow afternoon a local exhibit will be thrown on the screne at Proctor's. The Mutual Weekly Film Company has a film showing the various advantages of the Tygard engine, invented by J. B. Tygard, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Evans, of Madison avenue, are parents of a girl, born to them this week.

REUNION OF 30TH REGIMENT IS HELD

Veterans and Their Wives Enjoy Annual Affair at Somerville.

About fifty members of the Thirtieth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, together with their wives and guests, numbering about twenty-five, celebrated their annual reunion at the armory in Somerville, yesterday. The business session took place in the morning, after which the veterans, with their guests, enjoyed dinner at the Hotel Cawley.

The Thirtieth Regiment was recruited under a call by President Lincoln, August 4, 1862, for 300,000 volunteers, to serve for nine months, unless sooner discharged. Of this number New Jersey's quota was fixed at 10,482. The regiment was formed of five companies from Somerset county, three from Union county, two from Hunterdon county and numbered 39 officers and 972 commissioned officers and privates, a total of 1,011. The companies enlisting in Somerset county were A, E, F, I and K.

The various companies assembled in the barracks on the old fair grounds, at Flemington, and were sworn into the United States service September 3, 1862. They were mustered into the United States service September 17 and left camp on October 2, in the morning, reaching Philadelphia in the evening, and Washington the following midnight, sleeping in the streets. They were marched to Fort Baker, where they remained until December 1. They were marched to Aquia creek, where for a time they were given duty unloading freight for General Burnside. The Thirtieth Regiment joined its brigade January 20, 1863, and served until they were discharged June 27, 1863.

During the past year 10 deaths have been reported in the regiment.

PLAN COLUMBUS DAY CELEBRATION

Watchung Council, K. C., Arrange Fine Program for Monday Night.

In accordance with their annual custom, members of the Watchung Council, K. of C., will hold a special celebration on Columbus Day in the club's auditorium on West Front street, an elaborate program of speech making and music having been arranged. This year's event promises to be one of the most unique patriotic demonstrations ever presented by the organization and the speech making will be confined to topics particularly appropriate to the occasion.

The affair will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night and a committee of members has been busily engaged for some time completing the details for the celebration. Last year's event was enjoyed by hundreds of friends and relatives of the members and the Monday night entertainment promises to eclipse by far the preceding feature. Speakers of nation-wide prominence, as well as popular local orators have consented to be present, while patriotic songs and other forms of amusement will be on the program.

Following the first half of the program the floor of the spacious auditorium will be cleared and the terpischorean art will be enjoyed. Music will be furnished by VanEpps' orchestra. Congressman Kinkead, of Jersey City; former City Judge William N. Runyon, Rev. Bernard M. Bogan and others will speak. A flag drill and national songs will be rendered by the following young women of St. Mary's School: Margaret E. McCarthy, Margaret Gallagher, Margaret McCarthy, Madeline Dugan, Margaret Diskin, Helen McCarthy, Mary O'Keefe, Maria Brandt, Margaret Higgins, Elizabeth Mottley, Gertrude Brown, Mary Butscher, Norena Dunny, Helen Bebout, Nora Regan and Cecelia Fee.

WILL ELECT OFFICERS.

The first fall meeting of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will be held tomorrow afternoon, at the church. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

ACCORDING TO FRENCH STATEMENT CONFLICT IS REACHING OUT UNDER CONDITIONS FAVORABLE TO ALLIES.

ANTWERP IS BOMBARDED AS RESIDENTS FLEE

Belgian Deputy Says That If the Country Becomes a Republic King Albert Would Be Elected First President—Fugitives go to Holland and England—Uhlans Reported to Be Demoralized and Ready to Surrender.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The French war office issued the following statement this afternoon:

"On our left wing in the northern region the enemy has made no progress at any point. He has withdrawn at certain points particularly at the north of Arras, where the conflict is spreading out under conditions favorable to us. The operations of the two cavalry forces are now spreading out almost as far as the North Sea.

"Between the Somme and the Oise in the region of Roye the enemy is always in force, but we have retaken the greater part of the positions which we had been compelled to yield previously. At the north of the Aisne the compactness of the German troops appears to have diminished.

"At the centre between Rheims and the Meuse there is nothing to report. On the heights of the Meuse between Verdun and St. Mihiel, the enemy has withdrawn to the north of Hatton-Chattel. He continues to hold St. Mihiel and some positions north of St. Mihiel on the right bank of the Meuse.

"In the Woevre region the violent attack which the enemy had attempted to the east of Appremont has been repulsed. On the right wing, Lorraine and the Vosges, there is no change.

"In Russia on the front of East Prussia the Russian offensive continues. There is sharp fighting on the frontier west of the Suwalki.

Amsterdam, Oct. 8, (Central News Cable)—The bombardment of Antwerp is in full swing. Ten thousand fugitives have arrived here and wounded from the battle ground are expected momentarily.

"The government of Belgium will remove to London if necessary," declared Belgian deputy Terwagne, who is now in Holland, to the editor of the Handelsblad. Another statement made by him in the same interview was: "If Belgium becomes a republic, King Albert will be elected the first President."

Six thousand fugitives from Antwerp and its environs have arrived at Breda, in Holland, and hundreds are on the Dutch frontier awaiting trains. When it was announced yesterday morning that Antwerp would be bombarded a panic occurred and the trains were taken by storm. Tuesday the city had been calm. Shells fell in Antwerp, but did not explode.

The legations in Antwerp have been evacuated. It is stated that the French minister has left for The Hague and that the French consul at Antwerp has arrived with the archives of the consulate at Roosendaal, where he will take the train for The Hague.

Since the fighting on the banks of the Deudre, particularly that at Alost and near Ghent no engagement of importance has taken place. Troops have passed there and still pass, proceeding toward Antwerp. A despatch concerning the fighting at Termonde says that the Belgians have resumed fighting on the Dende, occupying a good position near Termonde. Another effort of the Germans to advance north of Termonde was unsuccessful. Numerous detachments of the enemy are still in Flanders, including many Uhlans, who for the most part are demoralized and ready to surrender.

Petrograd, Oct. 8.—Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister, announced that the powers comprising the Triple Entente, Russia, Great Britain and France, are taking steps to secure the reopening of the Dardanelles.

An official statement issued today says that the main Russian army in Poland has taken the offensive against the Austro-German forces along the Vistula river. Skirmishing between cavalry detachments has been in progress for nearly a week, and now the artillery has been brought into action. The eastward march of the Germans and Austrians along the Vistula has been unopposed up to the present except for attacks by Cossacks, but now the invaders have reached the ground selected for battle by the Russians. The conflict has now begun. In the meantime the Russian attack on the Germans driven from Suwalki is increasing in strength. Naval guns have been brought up to shell the fortifications occupied by the enemy in the Mazurian Lake region.

Five of the forts at Przemysl have been silenced. It was learned that the Galician stronghold will have to yield or be destroyed. Fire is now raging in three parts of the town. Several sorties attempted by the enemy have been repulsed.

Vienna, Oct. 8, (Central News Cable)—The Rundeschen learns from Constantinople advices that the anti-Russian agitation in Persia is increasing. Threatening letters have been found in the Derehan legation to the effect that Russia intends to send troops to protect the people of her nation and her diplomats.

Tokio, Oct. 8.—The following announcement was made officially today: "At Tsing Tau the German fire is slackening."

Pekin, Oct. 8.—The Japanese legation announced today that several German batteries at Tsing Tau had been silenced by the Anglo-Japanese bombardment. "The fall of Tsing Tau is only a matter of time," said the statement, "the garrison is short of food and it is reported that the soldiers are on the verge of mutiny."

WOMEN'S BOWLING TOURNEY.

At the meeting held in the Baraca classroom of the Presbyterian chapel, Tuesday evening, under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Arnold, for the purpose of making final arrangements for the opening of the Ladies' Two-team Bowling Tournament on the Presbyterian alleys, it was decided to start the tournament on Tuesday evening next. A schedule is being drawn up and the teams that will oppose each other that evening will be announced in these columns later.

There will be eleven teams in the tournament, ten teams of which have been made up as follows: Team No. 1, Miss Pearl Dodwell and Miss Ruth Voorhees; Team No. 2, Mrs. H. A. Wickham and Miss Helen Shively; Team No. 3, Miss M. L. Crawford and Mrs. William Johnson; Team No. 4, Miss Mabel Noyes and Mrs. Emmet Dice; Team No. 5, Miss Luella Stryker and Miss B. M. Ward; Team No. 6, Miss Florence Smalley and Miss Josephine Dealaman; Team No. 7, Mrs. Robert Craig and Mrs. Elmer Russell; Team No. 8, Miss Florence Smalley and Mrs. Fred Vail; Team No. 9, Mrs. E. R. Brown and Mrs. H. B. Arnold; Team No. 10, Miss Mabel Bennett and Mrs. W. J. Smith.

Each team will roll twenty games, making 223 the total number of games to be rolled during the tournament. These games will be disposed of at the rate of 12 games an evening, three teams bowling each other two games. During the remainder of the month, Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be tournament nights. From then on until the tournament has been completed the women have only been granted the use of the alleys for one evening a week. They do not like this, claiming that at that rate it will take them all winter to complete the tournament. They contend that since the men have been granted the use of the alleys twice a week for tournament purposes that they should be granted an equal privilege. Furthermore, they say that there is an evident lack of appreciation shown by somebody over the way that their bowling tournament of last summer kept the interest in the alleys stimulated during the off season. The women have appointed a committee to see what can be done about the matter.

The Gustav Winter house on North avenue, vacated yesterday by Mrs. Mary Murphy and family, who moved into the John Rinehart house on the same thoroughfare, has been sold through the John Fedderman agency to John Herensky, of South avenue.

The Baracas will roll the crack Rollers "5" of Somerville, on the Presbyterian alleys tomorrow evening.

The members of the Crescent Tennis Club will hold their first dance of the season in the W. G. Holton Hall, tomorrow evening.

Lewis Wahl, Kasper Fuchs and George Baldwin are planning to leave on Saturday afternoon on a week-end trip to Massachusetts.

Contractors Francis Teeling and John Daniels are through with their part of grading the ground about the new Lincoln School.

BASKETBALL TEAM.

The young women of the borough have organized a basketball team and have elected Miss Mabel Bennett manager and Miss Luela Stryker captain. They have been granted, it is understood, permission to play on the Presbyterian courts.

SALES MANAGER NOW.

Fred K. Wilcox, Jr., son of Fred Wilcox, of Dunellen avenue, and a former resident of this place, is at present a sales manager for the Oliver Typewriting Company. His territory covers half of the State of Oklahoma. Recently he was temporarily transferred from the Southern part of the State to the wheat district in the northern part. The farmers have harvested an enormous wheat crop this year and the Oliver people figured that they could sell a large number of machines to the farmers if they placed a live wire sales manager in charge.

Arthur Voorhees, of Jackson avenue, was a visitor at Somerville, last evening.

Contractor Bethume Dunham, of Plainfield, is repainting the residence of Edward Haynes, on Dunellen avenue.

MRS. KNOX ILL.

Mrs. William A. Knox, wife of Dr. William A. Knox, a former pastor of the local Methodist church, is quite ill at her home at Blairstown, as her very many local friends will regret to hear.

AT POINT PLEASANT.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith, of Dunellen avenue, spent the week-end at Point Pleasant as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fergerson. Prior to moving to Dunellen from Westfield about six weeks ago, the Smiths used to spend the entire summer at Point Pleasant, stopping at the Maple Grove Hotel.

James Cashin, one of the Cashin grocers, was in Somerville recently looking over the ground for a cash store that will be opened in the near future.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bird, of Park place, is spending a month with relatives at Annandale.

The Presbyterian alleys are now open on two afternoons a week, Tuesdays and Fridays, for those who may care to indulge in the sport of bowling an afternoon or two a week.

The Fred K. Wilcox apartment on First street, recently vacated by Charles L. Leach, has been rented to Edward M. Sutton, of Front street.

Assessor and Mrs. John H. L. Peters spent Monday and Tuesday with friends at Changewater, Warren county.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred K. Wilcox, of Dunellen avenue, entertained Mr. Wilcox's mother, Mrs. J. N. Wilcox, of Westfield, yesterday.

Mrs. Frank Mohan, of North avenue, is recovering slowly from the effects of her recent operation.

Miss Lillie Felmley, of Plainfield, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mark Hipp, of Front street.

MEETS THE VOTERS.

Edward Houghton, of New Brunswick, the Democratic candidate for sheriff of this county, visited the borough last evening upon the request of Democratic Committeemen Willard N. Apgar and Thomas J. Reynolds. M. Houghton was acompanied by Freeholder Anthony J. Gebhardt. Mr. Houghton was escorted up and down North avenue by Committeeman Apgar throughout the evening and introduced to all the voters who hapened to be traversing that thoroughfare. All whom thus had the oportunity of meeting and shaking hands with him were impressed by his natural geniality. Mr Houghton has been deputy sheriff of the county for some years back and he is therefore naturally thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office for which he is running.

Mrs. Irving Mundy visited friends at Westfield, yesterday.

AUTO ACCIDENT.

While Tax Collector W. B. LaRue, of Piscataway, and family, were proceeding through the streets of New Brunswick, on Sunday evening, in their automobile, the rear axle of the car broke. Fortunately, Mr. LaRue, who was at the wheel of the car at the time, was complying strictly with the speed laws of the city, and no one was hurt. The car was left at a nearby garage, the tax collector and his family returning home by trolley.

Stylish SR Reliable

THIS TO PROFESSIONAL MEN

You doctors and lawyers depend very much on your appearance for success. You know that it is necessary to wear dignified garments — clothes that give an air of solidity —of importance. Such clothes are sold at Rothberg's.

Not because they are dignified in appearance are they lacking in style. Far from it!

Come in and see the garments; better still, try on some of the suits—you will readily see how thoroly in keeping with your calling in life, and how much less they cost than garments of the same character made by a custom tailor.

"The Legend of Leonora," Barrie's new comedy which has been attracting so much attention through its own charm and the fact that Maude Adams is being seen in it, is in three acts. Two of its scenes are laid in London's most famous criminal court known as the Old Bailey. It is here that the capricious and loveable Leonora is being tried for she deliberately pushed a horrid man from a moving train. Can you imagine a Barrie heroine being a murderess? But Leonora is no common murderess. There is never anything common about Barrie's plays. Just how Leonora came to do such a rash thing is easily explained. Leonora and her little daughter, Milly, were in a second-class English railway carriage. There was the horrid man and he had the window open. Milly had a sniffy cold. She was not a strong child. The open window endangered her health. Leonora asked the man to shut the window. Being the traditional brute he stood upon his rights and refused. Under the circumstances what was Leonora to do but push the man off the car and then close the window. There was no regret to the action for she felt that she had done her duty and was within her rights. The scenes in the court are delightfully humorous and in a measure travesty English rules of procedure and justice. The most unconcerned figure in the court is that of Leonora and judge, jury and prosecutors eagerly endeavor to keep the young woman from convicting herself out of her mouth, too great a calamity to even give it a thought. Leonora is one of the most charming roles that Miss Adams has ever had and in it she has scored one of her most satisfying successes. Miss Adams will appear at the Plainfield Theatre tonight.

At the moment last season when the New York stage so reeked with sex plays, disease dramas and criminal orgies in dramatic form, the Roman Catholic Church for the first time undertook to lead its followers into the less troubled channels of theatrical decency; not by forbidding them to visit theatres, but by informing them of other places of amusement where their senses would not be subject to the shock of uncleanliness. This undertaking was the work of Cardinal Farley, and resulted in the immediate issuance of the Catholic Theatre Movement White List, which mentioned just twelve plays regarded as fit to be seen by persons within the influence of the Church. Supplementary White Lists, issued more recently, have materially increased the number, but of the original dozen endorsed plays it is worthy of record that only two were being shown in New York at the time. These were "The Things That Count," enjoying an entire season's run at William A. Brady's Playhouse, and "Peg O' My Heart," which, oddly enough, was being presented directly across the street at the Cor. Theatre. Of the entire twelve pieces in the first White List, Mr. Brady was the director of three, including the example already mentioned, and "Little Women" and "Bunty Pulls the Strings." "The Things That Count," sometimes spoken of as "the play that led the New York public back to stage decency," will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening.

TOURISTS' THRILLING TRIP

July 18, and landed at Antwerp, July 27. In giving an account of the trip, Mr. Schwed said:

"Upon landing in Antwerp we received no intimation of war, but while on the ship crossing the Atlantic we had a wireless information that Servia and Austria had declared war. We were unconcerned as we thought it was only another small Balkan uprising.

"From Antwerp we journeyed to Brussels and even there did not hear of the war and were ignorant of conditions until we arrived at The Hague, where we received the first news that Germany had declared war. We wanted money changed but the banks would not take our travelers' checks. We figured that Holland was a bad place for us to stay but went to Amsterdam and there met Americans who urged us to return to the States. We decided to continue our trip, however, thinking that it would be foolish to turn back. Even while in Amsterdam we did not know that the war would prove to be of any magnitude.

"We went to Cologne, Germany, and there found that the Germans were mobilizing and great excitement prevailed. We stayed in Cologne six days and in the meantime telegraphed to Nuremberg, Bavaria, our objective point, to ascertain how conditions were there. We received word that all was quiet, and to come.

"We started. It ordinarily takes twelve hours to travel from Cologne to Nuremberg, but it took us a long time. We would endeavor to get a train and then be ordered out. We made five attemps before securing passage and then had to put up with third class passage on first class tickets. We got as far as Kobienz, a fortified town in Germany, where we remained over night and had a few interesting experiences. We then got as far as Mainz, where we again had to stay over night and the next day started from Frankfort, where we were forced to stay two days. We again started for Nuremberg, but could get no further than Bad-Kissingen, where we had to remain for two weeks longer.

"Bad-Kissingen is a watering place of about 20,000 population, among whom are many Americans, but at this time everyone had left the city with the exception of about 500 stranded Russians as their money was no good. They were well treated, however, by the German people, who fed them in spite of the fact that Germany and Russia were at war.

"We finally arrived at Nuremberg, where we stayed three weeks in visiting our two brothers and sister. I also met three of my nephews. One is an officer in the Bavarian army and was at home, owing to having been shot through the leg. He was unable to go to the front again so was appointed to drill recruits. Another nephew, Carl Bergman, who is well known in Plainfield, having spent four years here, is also in the war. I met him while there and asked him if he would not rather be in the United States. He said he would rather fight for his country. Another of my nephews, Carl Schwed is also in the war. We had a very pleasant sojourn in Nuremberg.

"Upon arriving in Antwerp we lost five trunks and only succeeded in getting them the day we started for home. We telegraphed from Amsterdam to Antwerp, asking if they had found the trunks and much to our surprise we received word that the trunks had been found, but had to wait two days for the return of them to Rotterdam. We were rather crowded in state rooms upon the return trip, but suffered no serious inconvenience."

Mr. Schwed says that they did not see any of the fighting but did see thousands of wounded soldiers being conveyed from one place to another and also saw many troops on the march. While the troops were marching they were singing and appeared to be very enthusiastic. Mr. Schwed states that he did not see anything to be enthusiastic about.

Every member of the party is in excellent health and none the worse for their experiences.

RECREATION NOTES

DEAN MATTHEWS CHOSEN BISHOP

Elected on Fifth Ballot at Episcopal Convention in Trenton.

IS HIGH CHURCHMAN

New Prelate Will Succeed the Late Bishop Scarborough—Is a Native of Ohio and Graduate of Princeton University, Class of '87.

Trenton, Oct. 8—Rev. Paul R. Matthews, dean of the cathedral at Faribault, Minn., was elected yesterday to succeed the late Bishop Scarborough as Episcopal bishop of the diocese of New Jersey. The election was accomplished on the fifth ballot. The convention then adjourned for two weeks, by which time it is believed Dean Matthews will have signified whether he will accept.

When the selection of Dean Matthews had been made unanimous, Rev. Thomas A. Conover, rector of St. Bernard's church of Bernardsville, read a communication from a member of the dean's present flock expressing the hope that he would not be called to New Jersey because of the high regard in which he is held at Faribault. In this communication Dean Matthews was described as a high churchman.

The reading of the letter after the choice had been made prompted George J. Bergen, a lay delegate from Haddonfield, to criticise the rule of the convention which prohibited discussion of the qualifications of those voted on. If such discussion had been permitted, Mr. Bergen intimated, a different result might have been reached. His remarks led to the belief that he was not pleased to learn that a clergyman with high church tendencies has been selected as bishop. High churchmen had an active following in the convention, but were far outnumbered by the low churchmen.

On the first ballot Dean Matthews received 24 clerical and 17 lay votes, a total of 41. Others voted on this ballot included Rev. R. Bowden Shepherd, of this city, archdeacon of the diocese, 26 votes; Bishop C. M. Griswold, of Salina, Kan., 14 votes; Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, of New York, 12 votes; Rev. E. R. Parsons, of California, 8 votes, and Rev. C. H. Burch, suffragan bishop of New York, 7 votes. Scattering votes were cast for a number of other clergymen.

As the balloting proceeded Dean Matthews continued to gain steadily and on the fourth ballot he received 65 clerical and 40 lay votes. The number necessary to a choice was 62 clerical and 42 lay. On the fifth ballot he had 63 clerical and 42 lay votes, having lost two clericals and gained two laymen.

Bishop Charles H. Brent, of the Philippines, was elected to succeed Bishop Scarborough at a convention held last spring, but declined to accept the office.

Dean Matthews is a son of the late Stanley Matthews, who represented Ohio in the United States Senate before his appointment to the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1881. He was born in Glendale, Ohio, December 25, 1866. He attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Princeton University in 1887. Later he studied at the General Theological Seminary, New York. He was the rector of St. Luke's church, Cincinnati, when called to the deaconship of St. Paul's cathedral, Faribault, Minn.

JOHN B. BASINI DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

John B. Basini, aged seventy-two years, died yesterday afternoon, at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he has been receiving surgical treatment for some time. Mr. Basini had been a resident of this city for the past six years, and conducted a confectionery store at Prescott place and West Fourth street during that time. He had a wide circle of friends in the West End of the city, and was a communicant member of St. Mary's R. C. church.

Beside a widow, Mr. Basini is survived by five sons, John, of Montana, Raymond, of Newark; Louis, of New York; Caleb, of Carteret, and Eugene, of Staten Island, and three daughters, Mrs. Marenghi, of Westfield; Mrs. John Bartelle and Mrs. Ibo Bartelle, both of Newark. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

POVERTY PREVENTION.

Not wholly visionary is the statement that povery may be prevented. We are doing a great deal these days to prevent disorders in society and doing more than we realize to avert poverty and want. Man long ago discovered that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. We are preventing disease in place of only curing it while we are seeking to prevent accidents instead of compensating them, to prevent strikes rather than settle them or fight them out, even to prevent widowhood rather than relieve it. In reality, too, we are deeply engrossed unknowingly in preventing poverty as opposed to relieving it. The world grows better and the secrets of better living are being discovered.

In fact, society has at its disposal the resources material and abstract, to enable a decent standard of living to be maintained in every class and this means less want and sorrow. To quote Edward T. Devine, a New York writer:

If this seems to involve various kinds of social action, such as shortening hours of labor, fixing a minimum wage, preventing the exploitation of women workers and child workers, extending women's work in directions which are not injurious and restricting children's work in directions which are, taking the mentally defective under more complete social protection, organizing employment exchanges for the better distribution of labor, shifting the geographical location of industries, aiding the immigrant to find the place where there is a legitimate demand for his labor, providing for social insurance against dependence from death, illness and even unemployment and above all modifying our elementary educational system in such a way as to increase substantially the efficiency, earning capacity of those who yearly enter industry, commerce or agriculture, then we are ready to consider any and all such measures, if for no other reason because they are necessary steps, although by no means the only steps, in the abolition of poverty.

Poverty prevention means constructive charity and all of that. It requires the provision of helping others to help themselves. No man worth while would willingly be a ward of charity. We have in Plainfield many of the resources available for poverty prevention. Abolition entirely is a far step, but modern charity is, in reality, preventing poverty itself.

Some of the ministers in Paterson, who have a peculiar idea about religion, have entered a protest against parades of the Holy Name Society in that city, the principal protest being based on the fact that bands play in the processions. This is the most ridiculous thing of the kind that we have ever heard. When thousands of men are willing to appear in public, to make a mighty protest against the blasphemous use of the Master's name, it must be conceded by all that it is a fine example to set, regardless of the day chosen for the demonstration. The Paterson authorities would do well to ignore absolutely any such protest as the one made.

The Paterson Call evidently has no obliging reader to tell the editor how to pronounce some of the names of towns found in the war news. They are still struggling along with Przemysl, which Plainfielders settled through the Press columns long ago. And what is worse, the Call has been ill advised for it says that the way to spell the word is "Pshemizl." The town which needs further explanation just now is Verjbolovo, which was mentioned in last night's dispatches.

There's not much evidence of race suicide in Union county. Plainfield is building an $80,000 school house; El Mora one to cost $51,000; Linden one to cost $50,000 and Elizabeth's Board of Education wants $700,000 for sites and buildings during the next five year. Summit, Roselle Park and Scotch Plains all have new school buildings under consideration. This truly must be a county after T. R.'s own heart.

A hard working, public spirited, local young woman is preparing the editorial for the issue of Saturday. In it she will tell of some of the difficulties which will confront local people this winter, and the topic under discussion will be of more than passing interest to every Plainfielder.

If the metropolitan papers keep on engaging special writers for the world's series baseball games, we'll soon be reading in big black type that Ella Wheeler Wilcox, W. J. Bryan, Mrs. Pankhurst, W. de LaRoche Anderson and Walter Linbarger are on the job.

You don't mean to say that it really did rain!

"FIRE PREVENTION DAY" OBSERVANCE

Commission of Labor Requests Each Factory to Practice Fire Drill.

Lewis T. Bryant, State Commissioner of Labor, in compliance with a proclamation of the Governor setting aside tomorrow as "fire prevention day for this State," has requested each factory in New Jersey to practice a fire-drill, and make a demonstration of its fire-fighting organization and equipment in accordance with instructions already issued by the local department. Mr. Bryant's announcement in part is as follows:

"In addition to making this test of your facilities for proper action in the event of fire, I would particularly remind you of the necessity of adequate preventive regulations, and would suggest that as a further commemoration of this day your premises be especially cleaned and renovated in a manner to lessen the fire hazard. Particular attention should be paid to cellars, under stairways and places not frequently visited in the regular course of business.

"All oily waste, loose sweepings, excelsior, or other material of an inflammable character should be placed in safe receptacles, and a general effort made to prevent the possibility of the origin of fire, as well as the promotion of means to extinguish it in the event of its occurrence. Too great care cannot be paid to the matter of both the storage and careful handling of matches, and a special effort should be made to see that only the match which will not strike other than on the box should be used.

"As a further precaution, attention should be given to the matter of both approaches and general character of the methods provided for egress, and an inspection should be made as to the operation of fire escapes, fire doors or other retards.

"I trust that you will completely co-operate with the spirit of the Governor's proclamation, and make this initial fire prevention day a distinct success.

"I would be very glad to have you advise me of the results of your efforts in this direction."

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Prospects look bad for the interscholastic tennis tournament as the freshmen will not give their two dollars as entrance fees. The other classes will not run the tennis matches this year as expected. The matter will be brought up to the Athletic Association to decide at the next meeting.

Women's Shoes

A Splendid Endorsement of Our Shoe Dept.

Children's Shoes

In last Wednesday's issue of the Plainfield Daily Press, under the heading, "Advantages of Trading in Plainfield," there appeared an article written by a lady of this city for the "Trade in Plainfield Contest" which was such a splendid endorsement of our Shoe Department that we herewith take the liberty of reproducing it:

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I write this letter, hoping that practical mothers, who have tall girls to dress, may know where to obtain sensible heeled shoes. Our daughter of fifteen is statue like above mentioned, desired a pair of Colonial pumps of the latest style, but told me in a very unhaappy voice, that she and her friend had visited all the shoe shops in town to find a pair with low common sense heels, for which they were both hunting. Upon this information I addressed several of the large stores in New York, always receiving word the pumps they could furnish only with high heels of several styles. A week later reading our evening paper, the Plainfield Daily Press, I saw the sale of shoes for ladies and children at Woodhull & Martin's. As a last trial I visited their store to obtain just the shoe with the heel, for which I had been so anxiously looking.

WOMAN and WAR

"Shot. Tell His Mother"

By W. E. P. French, Captain, U. S. Army.

What have I done to you, Brothers,—War-Lord and Land-Lord and Priest,
That my son should rot on the blood-smeared earth where the raven and buzzard feast?
He was my baby, my man-child, that soldier with shell-torn breast,
Who was slain for your power and profit—aye, murdered at your behest.
I bore him, my boy and my manling, while the long months ebbed away;
He was part of me, part of my body, which nourished him day by day.
He was mine when the birth-pang tore me, mine when he lay on my heart.
When the sweet mouth mumbled my bosom and the milk teeth made it smart,
Babyhood, boyhood, and manhood and a glad mother proud of her son—
See the carrion birds, too gorged to fly! Ah! Brothers, what have you done?

You prate of duty and honor, of a patriot's glorious death,
Of love of country, heroic deeds—nay, for shame's sake, spare your breath!
Pray, what have you done for your country? Whose was the blood that was shed
In the hellish warfare that served your ends? My boy was shot in your stead.

And for what were our children butchered, men makers of cruel law?
By the Christ, I am glad no woman made the Christless code of war!
Shirks and schemers, why don't you answer? Is the foul truth hard to tell?
Then a mother will tell it for you, of a deed that shames fiends in hell:—
Our boys were killed that some faction or scoundrel might win mad race
For goals of stained gold, shamed honors, and the sly self-seeker's place;
That money's hold on our country might be tightened and made more sure;
That the rich could inherit earth's fullness and their loot be quite secure;
That the world-mart be wider opened to the product mulct from toil;
That the labor and land of our neighbors should become your war-won spoil.
That the eyes of an outraged people might be turned from your graft and greed
In the misruled, plundered home-land by lure of war's ghastly deed;
And that priests of the warring nations could pray to the selfsame God
For His blessing on battle and murder and corpse-strewn, blood-soaked sod.
Oh, fools! if God were a woman, think you She would let kin slay
For gold-lust and craft of gamesters, or cripple that trade might pay?

This quarrel was not the fighters':—the cheated, red pawns in your game;
You stay-at-homes garnered the plunder, but the pawns,—wounds, death, and "Fame"!
You paid them a beggarly pittance, your substitute prey-of-the-sword,
But, ye canny beasts of prey, they paid, in life and limb, for your hoard.
And, behold! you have other victims; a widow sobs by my side,
Who clasps to her breast a girl-child. Men, she was my slain son's bride!

I can smell the stench of the shambles, where the mangled bodies lie;
I can hear the moans of the wounded; I can see the brave lads die;
And across the heaped, red trenches and the tortured, bleeding rows
I cry out a mother's pity to all mothers of dear, dead "foes."
In love and a common sorrow, I weep with them o'er our dead,
And invoke my sister woman for a curse on each scheming head.

Nay, why should we mothers curse you? Lo! flesh of our flesh are ye;
But, by soul of Mary who bore the Christ man-murdered at Calvary,
Into our own shall the mothers come, and the glad day speed apace,
When the law of peace shall be the law of the women that bear the race;
When a man shall stand by his mother, for the world-wide common good,
And not bring her tears and heart-break nor make mock of her motherhood.

FEELING AGAINST GERMANS BITTER

Adolphus Libeau Tells of Conditions in Canada Following a Visit to His Home.

Adolphus Libeau of West Third street, one of the best known residents of Plainfield, returned a few days ago, following a four weeks' trip to his native home in Canada. He visited relatives at Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, and several other cities. He also spent a week at the home of his son William Libeau, formerly a resident of Plainfield, who is now master mechanic with one of the St. Lawrence Steamship companies, with headquarters at Montreal. The latter's friends in this city will be pleased to learn that he has been successful. [illegible] of his old friends who were greatly pleased to hear from him.

In speaking of the feeling among the Canadians under the war cloud of Europe, the European war, Mr. Libeau said that the feeling against the Germans is quite bitter and a semi-official ban has been placed on the trade in trading with the German merchants. While he was in Montreal he witnessed the mobilization of 35,000 recruits, who were encamped in one of the public parks awaiting uniforms and other equipment. These men have since been transported and are now among the Allies fighting on French soil.

GRAPHIC CHAPTERS IN NEWS OF GREATEST WAR DRAMA IN HISTORY

Picturesque and Thrilling Scenes on Europe's Battlefields.

Interesting Incidents Showing the Lighter Side of Great Conflict.

MANY a paragraph in the news from Europe's theater of war is a story in itself. Some of the best of these graphic bits are given here:

Details received of the fighting near Verdun show that it was an African battalion that checked a recent attack of the German imperial guard. A survivor of the battle, who has arrived in Paris, told the following story of the fight:

"The sun was just rising when our outposts came back on our main force and informed us that the imperial guard was coming. Soon afterward we could see pointed helmets glistening in the sun rapidly advancing.

"Deceived by our silence the guard had come on even to the barbed defenses and began cutting them before our trumpets sounded an order for volley firing. The first line of the enemy seemed just to melt away under our fire. The second line appeared to be shaken for an instant, but on it came.

"We could plainly see the officers in the lead, waving their swords and encouraging their men to the assault. Another volley and the second line thinned out, but a third line came on, and the mass crossed the line of wire defenses.

"When 'Charge!' was sounded we rushed forward to meet them. Then our boys commenced to fall, but our impetus was too much for the guard, which was mowed down and dispersed.

"Of one regiment only a single company remained. It was led by a tall lieutenant, with a boyish face. He wore a monocle and carried a revolver. This company stood to the last man and that last man was the lieutenant. He refused to surrender and stood his ground alone until the bayonets of the zouaves beat him down."

Air Scouts Save Brigade.

General Gough of Curragh fame saved his dashing cavalry brigade from annihilation by his lightning-like last moment decision. Three times his hussar lancers formed to charge a row of invisible German guns. Three times the gallant 1,800 had to disperse, their errand unaccomplished.

For the fourth time the brigade assembled. The men only awaited the word to charge. A score or more on the extreme right had actually anticipated the order to move forward when General Gough rode furiously through the ranks.

"Good God, Dickson!" he yelled to a subordinate. "Stop them! There is barbed wire just ahead!"

Those who had rode ahead heard the wild shout and turned in their saddles just in time to save themselves. The brigade had been warned in the nick of time by air men who had seen the wire glimmering in a sudden burst of sunshine.

Hit Twice, Runs to Safety.

"Men fell like corn before the reaper," a wounded lance sergeant in the King's Own Yorkshire Light infantry wrote home to his mother from the hospital ship St. David. "Now it's over I must say the last few days have been horror, fighting all the time," he continued. "Our last action was the worst. I tell you truly I never expected to get out alive. The Germans must have lost thousands, but they were ten to one, so we had to retire. The shrapnel and hail of lead and bullets—I see it all now. I won't say more, but I got a bullet in my right leg and kept on for twenty yards or more. I got a great piece of shrapnel shell in my neck—laid me senseless.

"I came to again and ran through it all and made good. It's wonderful how you can run with a bullet through your leg. I have not been at it long, but fellows say they saw more in the last four days than they did in three years in Africa. That's the truth. Ah, well, I'm not grumbling! I'm not disfigured or maimed like so many poor fellows, so let us rejoice over it all."

A story is told in England of a farmer boy who came from the field to be informed by his father that his brother had been killed in action. "Well, I must take his place," said the boy. Then he walked to the recruiting station, enlisted and is now at the front.

The War's Iron Foundry.

An opportunity to watch closely the German and Austrian artillery attack on French forts south of Verdun, was given a correspondent who had been with the Germans at Metz. His trip over the battlefield showed nothing of the traditional battle tumult, such as attacking infantry, racing cavalry and galloping artillery. The heavy artillery could not be seen. There was the tremendous detonation of siege pieces and large columns of smoke arose from burning villages. The black surface thus created was studded everywhere with the white clouds from exploding projectiles.

On the road a few wounded were making their way to the base hospitals. Beyond that the battlefield gave the impression of a tremendous iron plant, with its masses of artillery machinery and attending noises.

The German and Austrian heavy siege pieces were marvelously concealed and placed and the working of them was like clockwork. Men brought ammunition and placed it with astounding regularity, as if they had done nothing else all their lives.

Friendship Greater Than War.

Among the wounded arriving at Petrograd were a Russian reserve officer, a teacher by profession, and a German, likewise a teacher.

The two men lay side by side, unconscious, on the battlefield of Tannazaow. The Russian teacher had lanced the German with his sword, severely wounding him, but himself had received a bullet from another German soldier. They were put into the same ambulance. When they regained consciousness the Russian finding in the German the soldier whom he had sabered was seized with a sudden emotional compassion for the victim of his sword and started speaking to him in a friendly and remorseful tone.

The German, at first reticent and morose, did not answer the Russian but eventually yielded to his kind, winning attitude and entered into a conversation. The foes were brought to the same hospital in Petrograd and placed in the same ward. The German was overjoyed at this and said to his fellow professional in excellent Russian:

"War is war, but friendship after the war is a totally different thing. I never dreamed that Russians were such nice, generous people. I cannot believing them now after the kind treatment received at their hands. We are fighting with them in vain."

Spared Foe by Ruse.

The London Standard prints the following anecdote sent from Petrograd and having for its setting the fighting which recently took place at Tilsit near the Russo-German frontier:

A German Pole of Posen came upon a Russian and raised his bayonet. While he was about to pierce through the heart of the soldier the latter, who was a Russian Pole, addressed him in Polish:

"Aren't you afraid of God to kill one of your own?"

The Pole of Posen answered likewise in Polish:

"Well, what can we do? Here they are coming, my comrades. They will catch me in the act of speaking to an enemy in Polish. We are both lost. You lie still and pretend to be dead."

In order to complete the deception and give no cause for suspicion the German Pole raised his bayonet again and struck the ground, crying out loudly so the approaching German soldiers could hear him:

"I have killed three Muscovites. Now there are no more here. Let us go a bit higher up."

When complete darkness enveloped the battlefield the German Pole carefully made a close search and managed to find the Russian Pole whose life he had spared, thanks to the racial bond existing between the two foes.

Carrying the wounded man on his back, the German Pole got away from the German zone unobserved and, after a long journey on foot, brought his wounded coreligionist to the Russian front lines just after midnight, where he left him, wishing him a friendly farewell, and returned to his own camp.

German Amazon Regiments.

Says a dispatch from Copenhagen:

Germany is considering plans for the formation of regiments of amazons. Details as to the styles of uniforms to be worn and the brand of powder to be used have not been decided upon. But the government is seriously entertaining the suggestion that women regiments be organized to take the place of the landwehr troops when the latter, constituting about the last set of reservists, are sent to the front. The women would doubtless be employed in defensive service.

Many Men Left In Berlin.

Berlin in wartime is very much the same as ever, according to Miss Clara Meyer of St. Louis. Miss Meyer spent the first two weeks of the war in Munich, after which she was in Berlin until Sept. 12. According to her story the German empire is very little affected in its daily life by the fact that half of its men are in foreign parts.

"It looks as if there are enough men on the streets of Berlin," said Miss Meyer, "to win the war all by themselves. And they are not old men and cripples, but men in the prime of life who for one reason or another were not in the reserves. And this is in spite of the fact that 2,000,000 volunteers are being trained for use when needed. A German friend of mine who was not in the reserves wanted to enlist in this force, and visited the recruiting headquarters of eight regiments in Berlin, only to be told at each place that the ranks were full. At last he went to a small town in the suburbs, where he managed to get into a regiment being raised there.

"Both the Royal Opera in Berlin and the Charlottenburg Opera are running as usual, and with large crowds in which men are very numerous. The Berlin cafes are doing business as usual despite the war. I know, for I lived just across the street from the Cafe Kerkau, and the music usually kept me awake till 3 o'clock in the morning."

Kaiser at the Front.

A typical day with the kaiser is thus described by an eyewitness:

"On this particular occasion the kaiser had been sleeping in a French chateau, but not without elaborate precautions against a surprise attack. Soon after sunrise the kaiser emerged from the chateau and greeted his soldiers with the customary good morning, to which all of those in the immediate vicinity replied in unison, 'Good morning, your majesty.' A motorcar was in readiness, and the kaiser was whirled swiftly toward the front. While the troops guarding him stood rigidly at attention, ten drummers of the bodyguard beat their drums by way of a salute.

"The imperial standard was conveyed in a second motorcar, and the officers of the imperial suit followed in others. The cavalry of the bodyguard preceded the monarch to the place where he left the motorcar to mount his horse. As he was helped into the saddle troopers saluted with their swords, and another set of drummers beat drums.

"The kaiser rode off with his mounted guard thickly clustered around him. The standard bearer, riding immediately behind him, bore the imperial flag. Then followed a spectacular progress from point to point in the rear of the fighting line.

"The kaiser halted and addressed a fervently patriotic oration to one regiment and another to a second regiment. So he rode from place to place, and during the morning he delivered no fewer than nine speeches."

Oddities In the War News.

When Swiss officers superintended the exchange of German and French Red Cross officers at Basel the French and Germans exchanged cards and drank one another's health.

No matter how great the danger, British soldiers will not be kept from their bath or their tea. Between two recent attacks on a town the British officers took tea, and the men had a "tub" in the river.

After passing through the censor's hands the Intransigeant appeared recently with headlines in the first column of an article on German trade marks. The signature of the writer, Leon Bailby, also appeared, but the entire text of the story was missing. The column was simply blank.

Censor Left Writer's Name.

Several Paris newspapers present a queer aspect as a result of the censor's activities.

One day a third of the Guerre Sociale was blank. For two days Gustave Herve vainly endeavored to communicate to this paper's readers, but the censor on both occasions slashed out the entire article, but obligingly left his name signed at the bottom.

A German officer who was captured at Rheims said:

"With what grief we learned each evening of the death of our comrades! It is necessary to have lived the battle and to find one's self in the evening without food and with only the hard earth for a bed to appreciate the truth of the words."

No German made toys are now sold in England except German toy soldiers. The demand for these is so great British artisans will have to begin making them. Little English boys want the German soldiers to pit against their British toy soldiers and what always happens to the German soldier has diminished the supply amazingly.

Football on Battle Line.

A dispatch from the battle front in France says the French soldiers were surprised to see their English comrades retire some distance to the rear and begin lively games of football. Notwithstanding the fact that some of the British battalions lost a large proportion of their numbers in battle the zest of the men for the sport was unabated. There was a regular match between two battalions, on the result of which there was considerable betting.

DEFENSES OF ANTWERP.

How Belgian City Is Protected From Advance of Hostile Army.

Antwerp, the temporary capital of Belgium, which has been the object of several sieges during the last 500 years, is protected by a modern line of fortifications designed by General Brialmont and completed in 1908. It is regarded as one of the strongest fortresses in Europe and is considered to be, because of its natural position and fortifications, as nearly impregnable as it is possible to make a modern city of such size. Including the suburbs within the outer ring of forts, the population is about 400,000 today.

The new fortified positions were designed in 1878, when it was planned to erect a strong line of forts on a curved line extending about nine miles from the walls of the city.

Fifteen forts were placed along this line, of which ten were completed in 1900 and the remaining five since then. A new enceinte, or rampart, connecting the eight forts of the inner line was begun in 1908.

All the defenses are on the right bank of the Scheldt. Two old forts, the Isabelle and the Marie, are the only protection of a fortified nature on the left bank of the Scheldt, but by nature of the ground there it is practicable to flood all the territory to the north and northwest of Antwerp, which would make it impossible for an enemy to advance on the city from this direction. In consequence no strong forts have been erected there.

JEHUDA-HALEVI CAMP GIVE SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

Under the auspices of Jehuda-Haveli Camp, No. 88, Order Zionists, a successful concert and dance was held in Columbus Auditorium, last night. There were more than one hundred guests from this city, Somerville and other nearby places. The proceeds from the affair will be given to the Red Cross Society to aid Jewish people who are suffering because of the European war.

Prof. Gottschalk, of this city, gave several violin selections, which were greatly enjoyed. There were also other musical features on the program, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Music was furnished by Albert Naylor. The hall was attractively decorated with American flags and pennants.

LUNATICS' TABLE MANNERS.

Chronic Madmen Have a Lively Dinner Party as Guests of Illinois.

The state of Illinois gave 220 maniacs a dinner at the Asylum For the Insane in Kankakee. The feast was intended to show the good effects of the gradual elimination of restraint.

Without chains, straps or guards 220 occupants of cottages Nos. 4 and 12 found themselves at liberty on the lawn in a distant part of the hospital grounds.

The sane guests will not soon forget that dinner. As soon as the first course was put on the tables a madman smashed a plate of soup on his neighbor's head. With course No. 2 a diner brought a heavy mug down on the head of the patient next to him. With course No. 3 a patient who was reading a newspaper upside down aroused the anger of a neighbor and was knocked in a heap. An imbecile ran up and down beside the table choo-chooing in imitation of a locomotive. All the distinguishers were marshaled back to their cottages in safety after the dinner.

"These men are the most violent and unreliable chronic maniacs in Illinois," said Dr. Fish. "Aside from the pleasure the outing undoubtedly gives these men after so many years' restraint the innovation has a therapeutic effect which is desirable."

MAGNET EXTRACTS BULLETS.

Wonderful Device Draws Out Lead Imbedded Two Inches In the Body.

Dr. A. Dastri has given details to the French Academy of Medicine of the successful use of a powerful electro magnet for the extraction of splinters of steel and even rifle bullets. One such employed by Professor Rollet drew to the surface fragments imbedded to a depth of six inches and bullets two and a quarter inches.

Other members have advised that soldiers in the present war wear specially prepared paper under clothes to prevent cold, such as have been successfully used by the Japanese.

Invents Pocket Wireless.

A dispatch to the London Times from Rome says that it is reported from Aquila that a priest named Domenico Argentieri has invented a system for receiving wireless messages whereby communications may be received even in closed rooms. No poles or batteries are needed. The apparatus is of the simplest description and can be carried in one's pocket.

NEED MORE HORSES.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The increased demand in European countries for American horses caused by the war, presents an excellent opportunity to farmers of the United States, the Department of Agriculture announced today. It is stated that this demand may continue for a decade or longer, as when peace is restored more horses will be needed for agricultural purposes.

BUSINESS MEN'S ADV. WRITER.

The Business Men's Association adv. in the Daily Press today was written by A. R. Tranchand, of this city, who has had a wide experience in the advertising business. Mr. Tranchard has lived here for many years, is thoroughly conversant with local business conditions, and he presents many timely suggestions.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

WAR NEWS

Rome, Oct. 8 (Central News Cable)—A despatch from Vienna to the Giornale d' Italia says that the Mayor of Sziget and 50 prominent citizens went to meet the Russians when they approached the city last Friday, to ask them to spare the town. The Russian commandant promised. When the Russians entered the city they fired a volley into the air. The population, in a panic, fled to the country, but returned the following day. The Russians are said to be treating the inhabitants well.

A German has been arrested attempting to pass the Austrian frontier bearing half a million francs in gold. Much secrecy is being maintained regarding the arrest.

Pope Benedict XV. has issued an admonition to members of religious orders in belligerent countries instructing them to refrain from bellicose addresses.

Boston, Oct. 8—The steamship Bohemian has sailed with a large quantity of rubber boots and cardigan jackets for the British army. The vessel will stop at Halifax and take on about 800 horses.

Paris, Oct. 8 (Central News Cable)—After two weeks spent within the German lines, a French company of infantry reserves has made its way back to the French lines. It was accompanying a battery of artillery as a rear guard, was cut off by a superior force, and found itself in a wood in the midst of the enemy. Two weeks later, after several fights, it has succeeded in rejoining the French lines, some distance from the station of the regiment to which it belongs.

Frantz, a French aviator, with Private Quenault as mechanic, brought down a German aeroplane containing two aviators at Jenchery, in the Rheims district on October 5. The German machine caught fire and crashed to the ground. Sergeant Frantz was decorated with the Legion of Honor cross.

One of the English regiments now fighting on the battle front has a trophy captured in a peculiar manner. It is a German flag found in an unoccupied trench under a heap of corpses directly before the British front.

Amsterdam, Oct. 8 (Central News Cable)—An official announcement says that a Sofia newspaper, Narodal Frava, prints as follows, a declaration of the Bulgarian premier: "Behind our backs, against our will, men of our own kindred, non-residents of Bulgaria, are undertaking enterprises which are not in keeping with the peace reigning in our country. Bulgaria declines all resposibility for these enterprises."

The Drewnik learns that activity among the insurgents of Greek Macedonia is increasing and that they have destroyed three railway bridges between Ostrovo and Viadovo. A fight of eight hours duration took place Thursday between Bulgarian and Servian bands, near Guogeli, the Bulgarians finally retiring.

The Wolff agency, the semi-official German News Bureau, announces that Budapest papers report that the Russians have evacuated Sziget, a Hungarian city on the railroad East of Budapest.

The Sudalavische correspondent of Vienna, has learned that the Roumanian minister of war shortly will give extended leave of absence to a part of the mobilized troops.

The Reichepost, of Vienna, says that according to Bulgarian fugitives arriving in Sofia, last Monday, furious fighting has taken place between the Servians and the Bulgarians. The latter having been reinforced, began the seige of Istip. Over 200 Bulgarian families have been removed in chains.

London, Oct. 8—Advices from Antwerp via The Hague say that there is increasing nervousness on the part of the populace. The correspondent of the Times, at Rotterdam, confirms the report that there are 100,000 fugitives leaving the city.

The Canadian troops arrived in home waters today.

A despatch from Amsterdam says that the municipality of Amsterdam has published a decree fixing the price of wheat.

London, Oct. 8—A news agency despatch says that the following official statement was given out last evening at the German headquarters in Berlin: "The engagements on the right wing in France have not led to any decision. The attacks of the French in the Argonnes and from the northeast front of Verdun have been repulsed. Off Antwerp, the attack has crossed a section to the River Tethe.

"The attack of the Russians on the government of Suwalki have been repulsed, the Russians losing 2,700 prisoners and nine machine guns. In Poland, in minor successful engagements west of Ivangarod, we captured 4,800 prisoners."

TAX ON CIGARETTES.

Washington, Oct. 8—The finance committee in accordance with the directions of the Democrat caucus, today, fixed a graduated tax on the manufactures of cigarettes instead of the flat tax of $24 on cigarette manufacturers provided in the House bill. The tax will be $24 on the manufacture of cigarettes up to 15,000,000 a year; $48 on 15,000,000 to 25,000,000 and $96 on production over 25,000,000.

FRANK BRUGGY GOES TO BOSTON CHAMPS

Statement Has Been Confirmed but One Club Loses a Sum of Money.

It has just come to light how Frank L. Bruggy went to the Boston Nationals. The circuitous route was a profitable thing for the Braves, for the management of the champs saved $450.

Bruggy was first drafted by the Rochester club, of the International League. Rochester, in turn, sold him to the Boston Braves. Boston tendered him a contract, which he signed, and he is now the property of the Boston club. The Rochester club will pay to the Lawrence club the sum of $750, which is the draft price paid by Class AA clubs for players from Class B teams. If Boston drafted Bruggy, it would cost the club $1,200. The Lawrence club loses, therefore, $450, while Boston is in that amount.

There is hardly and doubt but that Bruggy was drafted by Rochester for Boston, and that in payment for its part in the transaction, Rochester will have preference on the player if he is turned back to a minor league club. Boston had a prior claim to Bruggy by the draft route, and did not use it, showing clearly that the club preferred to have Rochester put in the draft for a less sum. Boston might have paid Rochester more than $750, but it is doubtful.

It is not very pleasant for the Lawrence club to lose $450, following a season none too successful. It was shrewd business on the part of the Boston club, however.

The Lawrence club has not been officially notified of the draft. But that is not a necessary procedure in the present "war time" until the player is all signed up. The players are first drafted secretly, then approached, signed and then the club from whom the player is drafted is notified. The club is considered last.

The Rochester and Boston clubs are working well in hand these days. Toronto was the club that was supposed to have the inside track on Bruggy if he were "farmed out," but developments would tend to show that it was Rochester and not Toronto.

Bruggy may not have been told that Rochester drafted him, for that club was really eliminated from the transaction when it disposed of the player by sale to Boston.

18 HOMERS HAVE BEEN MADE IN WORLD'S SERIES.

Eighteen home runs have been made in the world's baseball series played between the American and National League pennant winners since 1903.

The runs are recorded as follows:

1903—Pat Dougherty, Boston Americans, 2; Sebring, Pittsburgh, 1.

1905, 1906 and 1907—No home runs made.

1908—Tinker, of the Cubs, 1.

1909—Fred Clarke, of Pittsburgh, 2; Davey Jones, Detroit, 1; Sam Crawford, Detroit, 1.

1910—Dan Murphy, Athletics, 1.

1911 — Frank Baker, Athletics, 2; Rube Oldring, Athletics, 1.

1912—Larry Doyle, Giants, 1; Larry Gardner, Boston Red Sox, 1.

1913—Frank Baker, Athletics, 1; Waly Schang, Athletics, 1; Fred Merkle, Giants, 1.

DEAL TO PLAY THIRD BASE FOR BOSTON

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—While the accident to "Red" Smith in Brooklyn, Tuesday, has upset the Boston Braves, most of the players and Manager Stallings had recovered from the shock as his men finished a strenuous workout at the National League grounds here yesterday morning.

After the tall leader had sent his men through practice in all points of the game Stallings was asked who he would put at third base in the place of Smith.

He replied: "Why, Charlie Deal will be the man to play that bag for me in the bouts with the Athletics on Friday and Saturday. Yes, it was a hard blow to lose such a timely hitter as Smith and a player who was going great guns for us. But that is all in the game and we must make the best of it."

"How about some talk that Whitted would play the bag?" was the next question put to the manager.

"Deal will be the man," was the answer.

Deal is well-known in baseball circles. He was a member of the Detroit Tigers and took the part of utility man two years ago with the Tigers. Deal is a good fielder, but is not the hitter Smith is.

Deal worked out at the third corner yesterday morning and the players were giving him all the encouragment in the world. Unless the Boston manager changes his mind at the last miute Deal will be the third sacker.

READY FOR WORLD'S SERIES.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—Everything has been placed in readiness for the first game of the world's series to be played at Shibe Park tomorrow by the Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the American League, and the Boston Braves, the winners of the National League pennant. This afternoon the league and club officials, the umpires and others officially interested in the series met in conference and arranged the final details in regards to the rules and arrangements to govern the contests. Philadelphia hotels and boardinghouses are filled to overflowing with baseball enthusiasts, some of whom have journeyed hundreds of miles to witness the games for the world's pennant.

COURTESIES OF WAR.

George Stallings, yesterday, requested permission to take his men out on the Athletics' diamond for a few moments this afternoon in order to accustom them to the light and general conditions of the field. This permission was refused by Connie Mack. The games in Boston will be played on the Red Sox grounds, with which the Philadelphians are, of course, perfectly familiar. This incident will not tend to lessen the bad blood which already exists between the teams.

CHIEF KIELY IS AGAIN A WINNER

Takes Five Out of Six Games and Makes High Score in K. of C. Tournament.

Chief Kiely increased his individual average some last night, in the regular play for the Knights of Columbus one man tournament, when he won five out of the six games played, and made high score for the night. The last time the Chief rolled he also made high score and won the majority of his games. Cannon could only get one last night, while Sullivan took four and dropped two. Hillman was just the opposite, losing four and winning a pair. Many of the games were close and exciting and in the first game of his second match, Kiely only won out by one scant point.

In the first game of the night the police chief had a close shave also and it was only in the last few frames that he took the lead and won the game by three points, his score being 193. Both men pinned low in the second game and at the end Hillman was seven points behind his opponent. Hillman rushed Kiely in the third game also and with a final spurt in the last part he finished ten points ahead of the Chief. The scores were 191 to 181. In this game Kiely made a poor start and Hillman's score could not be overcome.

The other two men took part in the second match, Sullivan taking the first and third games after a hard fight and was forced to drop the middle game to his rival. Five points separated the scores in the first game but "Sully" went way down in the second and only scored 160 while Cannon took advantage of this low mark and hit the wood for 179. The deciding game went to Sullivan by a good margin. A couple of two hundred scores and a 169 enabled Kiely to make a clean sweep in all three games in this match with Cannon, and in the second he rolled his high score, which was 222. The third was a 214. Cannon was not troublesome in either of the last two games, but he came within a point of spoiling the Chief's clean sweep in the first. Sullivan took two from Hillman in the last match, the highest score being 198, which was made by the winner in the last game.

The scores:

Kiely	193	163	181
Hillman	190	156	191
Sullivan	185	160	170
Cannon	180	179	154

ON VARIOUS COURTS

The Newark Stars, a fast traveling team, would like to arrange games with all teams within 50 miles of Newark, who will offer suitable guarantee for a good attraction. For games with the Newark Stars write to

SAMUEL HOLMES,
3 Humboldt St.,
Newark.

The United Five, a fast traveling team, is open to book games with first rate teams having courts of their own and wishing to book a good attraction. Manager Benzinger claims to have one of the fastest heavyweight teams in this vicinity and bars none. Teams wishing to book a good attraction can do so by communicating with

ENGENE BENZINGER,
406 Humboldt St.,
Union Hill.

The Hamilton Five, of Union Hill, will be seen on the courts again for their sixth season, and the team will consist of players capable of meeting the best of teams. Manager Weyland is now booking games with some of the first-class teams and would be pleased to book games with all managers desiring a first-class attraction. The Hamiltons are a traveling team and will only book games to be played on opponents' court. Managers desiring to book the Hamiltons should write to

WILLIAM WEYLAND,
110 Blum St.,
Union Hill.

THEY'LL BOWL TONIGHT.

The Pets and Saurer pinners will meet on the Eagle alleys tonight. There will probably be some good games rolled as both teams consist of excellent pinners, but the odds are with the Mackmen again

LOCAL MASONS AT SOMERVILLE.

The local Masons will take their bowling balls and travel to Somerville tomorrow night, where they will meet their brothers of that place in the first of a five match series.

WILL BAKER LIVE UP TO HIS REPUTATION.

What will Baker, Collins, Schang, Maranville, Evers and the other stars of the season on the Athletic and Boston teams do in the world's series? Will Baker resume his home run proclivities where he left off with Marquard in the first game at the Polo Grounds last year? Will Collins, who played well in each of the three series in which he has participated, get a chance to outshine his teammates? Will Schang repeat his splendid work of last year, when he engaged in a world's series for the first time? Will Maranville play as he has been playing all season? What will the tricky Evers do?

Each of these men has his admirers, as have also the other members of the teams. The admirers of each are expecting their favorite to be the star of the games.

SOMERVILLE NOW HAS FINE COURSE

New Eighteen Hole Green Has Attracted Many Prominent Golfers There.

The Somerville Country Club has succeeded, after two years of effort, in developing a fine eighteen-hole golf course, which is attracting many players to membership, not only from Somerville, but from Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Englewood, and New York. Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen has been the most active force in developing the club, which owns its own grounds, consisting of 140 acres. The country is rolling and there are fine views from almost every tee. All of the greens are piped so as to furnish proper water in dry weather, and at present are in excellent condition, considering their youth. The fair green is also in good condition, considering the recent dry weather.

Donald Ross, the Massachusetts course architect, recently mapped out a plan for additional trapping, which will be carried out before another season. The members will be busy with competitions for another month.

The club championship, recently decided, developed unusual interest. William C. Freeman, of New York, won the title, defeating Jack Barcalow, of Bound Brook, 3 up and 2 to play. This is the first time that Freeman ever has won a club championship, although he has been knocking at the door for several years. For a year back he has been badly off in his game, but he has come back and is playing a strictly match game at present of the kind not easy to beat. It so happened that Freeman won his first title on the thirty-third anniversary of his wedding, and the occasion was observed with a dinner party at his home at Annandale.

In the semi-final round, Freeman defeated J. A. Mack, of the home club, on the eighteenth green. The former was one down at the fifteenth, but by winning the next two holes with threes and halving the home hole he won the contest. Barcalow defeated Master Howard, a promising player of sixteen years, only after the contest had been carried to the limit.

In the thirty-six hole final Freeman won the first five holes from Barcalow in the afternoon, having finished the morning round all even. The figures for these holes were 5, 4, 4, 3, 5, but Barcalow was only two down going to the fifteenth which Freeman halved by laying his opponent a dead stymie. Then Freeman won the sixteenth in a par three and ended the match.

Somerville is rather a difficult course to score on, for Jank Hobens, the Englewood professional, after playing on it three times, has been unable to get under 75. Oswald Kirkby, the metropolitan amateur champion, has a 79 to his credit and Alec Smith, former open title-holder, has a 77. The next mark is the 73 of Marty O'Loughlin, of Plainfield, and was made when the course was somewhat easier than now.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

A few cents for a Press want ad and some one who needs the very article that lies rotting in your garret will call and pay you for it.

You are better off—new owner is pleased—and the article itself is contributing to the reduction of the high cost of living.

SMALL TURNOUT FOR Y. M. C. A. PRACTICE

Only Six Candidates Responded to Initial Call But More Are Expected.

Basketball does not seem to have appealed as yet to those who are thinking of playing the court game this season, as only a few candidates reported to the first practice of the Y. M. C. A. five at the association, last night. Several players who have been on other teams in former years have stated that they would try for the Y. M. C. A. five this year. Only six men responded to the call last night and a short practice was held.

Captain Brynairski was present, but Coach Mermans could not be there. The first part of the practice consisted simply of shooting and getting the eye on the little iron rim after a summer's layoff. Some of those who have been practicing for the last two weeks are already in form for the first game, but steady practice will have to be had to round out a fast team for the opening battle which comes the first part of next month. The first squad was lined up against two second teams and two short periods were played. The players went at it hard, but were only allowed to get a sweat up and then stop for the nght. A new man appeared who has had quite some experience in the court game. Walter Koechlein, of Bound Brook, will try for a guard position and was out last night, but was forced to retire early because of a strained ankle. Last year, Koechlein played with the Bernardsville Tigers, which held the championship of a tri-county league.

The local manager is planning to have some fine attractions here every Saturday night and lovers of basketball will not suffer for the want of good week-end games. The team may go out of town in the middle of the week to play return games. Those who reported are Albert Brynairski, Myrton Glover, Harry Moulton, Walter Koechlein, William Taylar and Frank Dunning.

The weakfish and croakers will stay in Raritan Bay until the equinoctial storms set in and drive them out of the bay and send them on their way South, according to the guides at Morgan Station. Good catches are being made daily, and some exceptionally large fish are being picked up by those who go out at night. The croakers are feeling along with the weakfish, and both varieties are running large.

Two anglers were out from Morgan Station, Monday, and fished between the monument and the shad nets. They accounted for thirty-six fish. Another party was out and caught a dozen weaks and croakers before the wind drove them in.

Good reports of catches of bass and pickerel continue to come from Greenwood Lake. Several men bagged a nice mess of both bass and pickerel.

There is good fishing on the beach at the Highlands and when the east wind ceases it will be better. The fishing is best at night, although they bite well in the daylight. At night the big fish come close to the shore for the spearing that are now working south as food for the bluefish. Pretty tough to be a fish whose only aim in life is to furnish food for larger fish, especially when that food must be one's own anatomy. Such is the spearing, a small transparent fish of three inches that goes along the coast about the time the food fish migrate and just now they are thick off the Highlands.

A fisherman went out to the fishing banks recently on the Elite and returned with seven sea bass, three fluke and two blackfish.

Sunday afternoon and evening out from Keyport, fifty-six weakfish and fifteen croakers were caught. The fish ran large, several of the weaks scaling over three pounds. The anglers fished about fifty yards off Lorillard's pier.

LUCK PLAYS BIG PART IN THE TITLE DUEL.

Will luck, in any form, manifest itself in the series between the Braves and the Athletics? 'Tis well, always in doping the winner of such a short series, to make allowances for the vagaries of fortune. Luck has decided more than one world's series.

Was it luck that saved the Red Sox from defeat in the world's series in 1912? Well, rather! A double-barreled dose of it. In the tenth inning Snodgrass made his famous $30,000 muff on Engle's fly, for which he was well set. Merkle then failed to get an easy foul from the bat of Tris Speaker. Speaker took advantage of the life thus awarded him and singled, sending in Engle with the tying run. Yerkes, who had preceded Speaker and been given a base on balls, reached third on the hit, from whence he scored later on Lewis' sacrifice fly, ending the game and the series in favor of Boston.

TWO TALLIES FOR PRINCETON SCRUB

Princeton, Oct. 8.—The Tiger varsity football squad was driven through a stiff forty-five minutes drill in receiving and running back punts, yesterday, before it was lined up against the second eleven. Then, in a ten-minute scrimmage, the scrubs scored twice while holding their opponents without a tally.

A forward pass to Moore resulted in the first touchdown. A few minutes later Ames was given the ball and crossed the line in a long end run through a broken field.

PUMPELLEY IS OUT.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 8.—The work of Scoville resumed desterday's scrimmage between the Yale first eleven and the scrubs. In scoring the first touchdown on a sixty-yard run around the end, he displayed a burst of speed that earned him the "long cheer" from the watching students. Scoville also figured in the next score, tossing a perfect pass to Ainsworth, who took the ball over. Guernsey rammed tackle for the third. Captain Talbot, Legore and Knowles, of the regulars, did not play yesterday. Two of Yale's most valuable players will be out of the lineup for at least two weeks. Hal Pumpelley, one of the most consistent players of the team, seriously twisted his ankle and Ashie Wilson is still suffering from the wrenched knee acquired in last Saturday's game.

JOINT DRILL VS. CARLISLE.

Carlisle, Pa., Oct. 8.—The Carlisle and Dickinson College elevens held their second joint football practice on Indian Field, yesterday afternoon, following an hour's work by each team on its own gridiron. Dickinson's preliminary drill consisted of elementary work and a great deal of stress was laid on tackling and endeavoring to formulate line bucking and opening plays for use against the strong Albright team on Saturday. The Indians, in their preliminary practice, also devoted attention to tackling and the smooth running of signals. Warner's new backfield, including Quarterback Crane, Halfbacks Calac and Booker and Fullback Pratt, worked satisfactorily. The closing scrimmage was three-quarters of an hour long and saw the substitution of all available Indian and Dickinson scrubs.

PENN COACHES DELIGHTED.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 8.—The University of Pennsylvania football team had one of its best practices of the season yesterday afternoon, and the coaches are more hopeful of victory over Lafayette on Saturday than they have been at any time since their defeat by Franklin and Marshall. All the backfield players, particularly Avery and Gotwals, went in to their work with an abandon that enabled the varsity to score four touchdowns against the strong scrub team. A new man who showed great promise in the backfield was Wray. He broke through for many long runs. The shifting process among the linemen was continued. The most important change was that of Norwald for Borie at centre and of Henning for Norwald at tackle.

ANOTHER CRIPPLE AT ITHACA.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Charles Lahr, who played fullback last year on the Cornell University varsity eleven, is the latest addition to the hospital list. Lahr was caught in a scrimmage yesterday and, when the two squads were untangled, it was discovered he had suffered an injury to one leg which will keep him out of the game for the rest of the year. This blow, coming on top of the news that neither Captain O'Hearn nor Quarterback Barrett would be in condition to play Saturday, has cast considerable gloom over the campus. The varsity scored twice on the scrubs yesterday. Outside from Hill's end run for forty yards, the practice was without feature. Bailey and Cool were two new men seen on the first eleven.

IDEAS AND IDEALS

A globe trotter once said that PLAINFILD was an IDEAL city, its people possessed of good, sound IDEAS, these IDEALS AND IDEALS perhaps better reflected in the sound excise and school policies of its government.

Plainfield merchants reflect its IDEAL government the same as Plainfield government reflects its people.

PLAINFIELD MERCHANTS PRACTICE THE IDEAL TRADING POLICY OF "ALWAYS GIVING A LITTLE MORE FOR WHAT THEY RECEIVE" AND NOT "RECEIVING MORE FOR WHAT THEY GIVE." NOW YOU THE STRANGER TO THE SHOPPING DISTRICT OF YOUR HOME TOWN COME IN FOR YOUR SHARE OF "THIS LITTLE MORE THAN YOU GIVE."

You will find the stores in Plainfield reflecting IDEAS, this in the arrangement of counters, display of goods and selection of stock, this you will note in every line, whether it be shoes, dresses, millinery, suits, furs, gents furnishings or in the wonderful selection of phonograph records carried in the music stores.

WORLD'S SERIES RESULTS AT PARKER FIELD.

Baseball fans who go out to Parker Field next Saturday to see the Pets-Clinton Avenue baseball game, will get the results of the Athletics-Boston game almost as quick as those who stand around town and watch the boards. The Daily Press will supply the service by which all results may be quickly relayed to the playground, where they will be megaphoned to the spectators and players by Jack Martin. The score by innings will also be placed in sight of the crowd so that they will not miss a point of the big game.

Last year this system was used and was very successful on the Saturday afternoon that the big game was played. This year an even quicker method has been found and the gathering at the field will not have to wait so long for the results.

The results, play by play, will also be announced through a large megaphone that can be heard a great distance, the instant they are flashed over the ticker and every ball and strike that is called by the umpire at Shibe or Fenway Parks will be announced from this office several seconds after it leaves the official's mouth. Within five minutes after the last man has been called out in every game, The Daily Press will have a baseball edition on the streets with the complete box score of the game.

UNSETTLED WEATHER FOR WORLD'S SERIES

Washington, Oct. 8—The Weather Bureau says that conditions indicate unsettled weather for Friday and Saturday, the first two days of the world's series championship baseball games." There is a chance, though, said the general forecaster, Dr. H. C. Frankenfield, today, "that the weather will not seriously interfere with the games."

BROOKLYN TEAM PLAYS HOLY CROSS SATURDAY

The Holy Cross football team will lineup against the strong Glenmore A. C. eleven, of Brooklyn, on Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, and will have one of the toughest propositions of the year to handle. This aggregation is the champion eleven of Brooklyn and is a strong rival of the Emerald A. C. team, which it has beaten and tied. Captain "Arite" Sheridan who is the champion lightweight boxer of the world, plays fullback and the man in the leftback position is a Colgate player.

The local team will practice on Marshall Field tomorrow night. The game will start at 3:30 Saturday.

SEVEN LOCAL FANS WILL SEE FIRST GREAT GAME

Seven local baseball fans will get up bright and early tomorrow morning and start for Philadelphia, where they will witness the first engagement of the Boston and Athletics in the world's series. The party will start at 5 o'clock and will make the journey in the automobile of Jacob Abrams.

Thost who will take the trip are Jacob Abrams, Hyman Abrams, John Duffy, Joe Sullivan, Bill Rentz, Isidor Rosenbaum and Alfred Ames.

TWO MATCHES FOR EAGLES.

The Eagles' bowling team will cross the brook Tuesday night and stack up against Stites' five pinners on the Somerset street alleys. On Thursday evening the Somerville Eagles will appear for the second match of the series between these two teams. The first series was won by the locals, but the county seaters have one game to their credit on the new series.

ELECT BASKETBALL MANAGER.

At a meeting of the Boys' Athletic Association, of the Plainfield High School, this noon, Nicholas Zelmas was elected manager of the basketball team for this year. He will start immediately arranging games for the team. Roscoe Blanchard was elected manager of the tennis team, to be assisted by Rodius Parvin.

LOCAL FEATURES IN UNIQUE EXHIBITION

Plainfield Board of Health in Charge of Affair to Be Held in High School.

Featured by motion pictures and lectures, the tuberculosis exhibition to be conducted in the Plainfield High School from October 12 to 16 and from October 19 to 23, promises to be the most novel affair of its kind ever held in this section. The program of work comes under the direction of the State Board of Health and the local health authorities have been active in promoting the local exhibition. The Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield have also been active in the work and directors versed on the subject will be in attendance each day. Evening lectures will be given by well-known students of the cause and the committee is planning to receive large audiences.

Among the local exhibits will be the following:

Dr. T. S. Davis, president of the Plainfield Board of Health, will show by charts and models the various activities of the department, such as the prevention and control of infectious diseases, plumbing, vital statistics, dairy inspections, mily analysis, diagnostic work, the protection of food supplies from contamination, ice and water supply, nuisances, general housing conditions, etc.

Dr. A. H. Dundon, president of the North Plainfield Board of Health, will display cards, and charts showing the work of their department.

Miss M. C. Phillips, the executive secretary of the Charity Organization Society, will prepare contrast rooms, showing the difference between sanitary and unsanitary conditions, and also placards showing the cost of tuberculosis to the city, etc., which will be in a window on East Front street.

Miss Helen Lovell, who is in charge of the Nursing Bureau and Day Nursery, will give a demonstration of their infant welfare work.

Miss Jessie M. Cann, directress of nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, will have a room furnished like a room in a hospital.

Dr. H. D. Corbusier, of the Orthopedic Clinic, will have a demonstration of plaster jackets, braces, etc.

Dr. Charles G. Davis, of the Dental Clinic, will exhibit its equipment.

Miss Florence M. Bowman, librarian of the Public Library, will have books on hygenic work in general.

Robert Mermans, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and Miss Elizabeth Wetheral, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., will have exhibits, and the latter will demonstrate the work being done at the housekeeping center, showing a model flat.

Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield public schools, and D. Fred Aungst, supervising principal of the North Plainfield public schools, will have statistics of the medical and health work being done in the public schools of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Mrs. Charles J. Monro, representative of the Mothers' Association, will have a demonstration of the public school luncheons.

Miss Bernice Beatman, representative of the Open-Air School, will have charts of statistics, pictures and demonstrations of their work.

Dr. Edward Krans, of the Tuberculosis Clinic, will be represented in a graphic manner, as also the Union County Tuberculosis Sanitorium, known as Bonnie Burn.

Herbert E. Parker, representative of the Public Recreation Committee, and Harry Marshall, representative of the Playground Commission, will each have exhibits, and also Paul Walrath, of the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission.

"FIRST AID" PRIZE TO BE OFFERED

Will Be Competed for by Boy Scouts at Coming Meet.

When the Plainfield Scout council meets at the Y. M. C. A. parlors, on Monday evening, to elect officers for the year and to hear the report of J. W. Aughiltree, chairman of the field day committee planning the scout work demonstration at Parker Field, on Saturday, October 17, it will receive an offer from Dr. H. D. Corbusier to present a first aid trophy to be contested for by the patrols competing for the Paul R. Collier championship scout pennant now held by Wolf Patrol, John Causbrook, leader. This will make the third prize that will be competed for by Plainfield scouts this year in addition to the pennant.

The council will also receive the resignation of Allen E. Beals as scoutmaster of Troop 5 to be effective as of October 7. In his letter to Secretary George T. Moors, Mr. Beals gives as his reasons for resigning from the active leadership of the troop connected with the First Presbyterian church, the fact that the Boy Scout movement is growing so rapidly that the duties of commissioner performed by the retiring scoutmaster of Troop 5, have become so exacting as to make desirable his official relinquishment of the active leadership of Troop 5. Another reason given for the resignation upon the eve of the third annual scout field day and championship competition is that it is highly important that the commissioner be unidentified with any of the competing troops or patrols as a commanding officer of such unit.

A. V. Searing, Jr., who has been second assistant scoutmaster of Troop 5 ever since its inception three years ago, has been appointed scoutmaster of the troop subject to confirmation of the council, to succeed Commissioner Beals.

E. A. Sprowl, scoutmaster of Troop 11, of Grace Episcopal church, has been appointed second deputy scout commissioner to serve with A. V. Searing, Jr., as confrere to the commissioner in matters pertaining to field operations in the Plainfield scout council's jurisdiction subject to the council's approval. The appointment comes to Mr. Sprowl in recognition of the splendid scout organization he has built up during the last year and a half in Grace church parish. The patrols in this jurisdiction will be strenuous competitors in the championship match and the commissioner's recommendation carries with it the suggestion that his appointment be confirmed in time for him to serve as a deputy commissioner at the field day demonstration.

HELPLESS OLD MAN PUZZLES THE POLICE

Turned Out of the Industrial Home He Has No Place To Go.

Since last Saturday night a problem has arisen in the local police department that has to date proven itself unsolvable to Chief Kiely and other city officials. On the above date George Johnston, old and decrepit, and physically unfit to care for himself, was picked up as a vagrant and lodged in a cell. His condition was such Monday morning that the court could make no disposition of the case and City Physician Norman W. Currie was summoned to examine him. He was pronounced sane but his discharge would probably place his life in immediate jeopardy as he is hardly able to walk and can utter but few words that can be understood.

City Judge DeMeza and Chief Kiely made an investigation of the case and it was found that the man had recently been an inmate of the Industrial Home, but because of his habit of violating the regulations was turned out. Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham, who is vested with supreme control over the inmates, refused to take him back and as a result the man has no place to go. His infractions of the rules may readily be accounted for by his old age and subsequent childishness, according to Chief Kiely, and there is no apparent reason why the man should not continue to be a charge at the city alms house. At present he spends his time staring blankly at the whitewashed walls of his cell partaking of three meals a day served by the police department, but apparently has no other interest in wordly doings. Conferences with the corporation counsel, the councilman in alms committee and the Mayor have profited Chief Kiely little. In each case he has been informed that Mr. Dunham's word is law but there is a general feeling existing that the overseer of the poor is in wrong in this case. The man is harmless. Old age has brought about frequent lapses of memory that his condition is such that he would not be received at the State asylum.

Attempts to make Mr. Dunham overlook his petty grievances against the man have been futile. It is not the police department's place to care for him, but Chief Kiely contends that it is against the laws of human nature to turn a fellow being into the streets to meet certain death, for that would soon be his fate. He is caring for the old man temporarily, but something radical will have to be done within the next few days by the overseer of the poor in the matter as the police headquarters has none of the conveniences of a home for the aged.

WILL GIVE AID TO POOR FAMILIES IN FRANCE

Some very interesting reports were heard from foreign missionaries at a meeting of the McAll Auxiliary which was held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. The reports came from France and told of the suffering among the families, where the men had been called to the front to fight..

Help was asked for and a call has been issued to all the presidents of auxiliaries in this country to gather at a meeting to be held in New York with Mrs. C. H. Parkhurst, who is president of the American McAll Society, for the purpose of making plans to raise money for those on the other side.

Woman's World

Leader of the New Woman's Educational Movement In the Orient.

DR. MARY MILLS PATRICK.

The most remarkable woman's college in the world is Constantinople college, where women from all parts of the orient are sent to be grounded in the arts and sciences of the occident. Forty years ago the small school which was the beginning of the college was established in Constantinople. It was a missionary enterprise, and in those days the orient looked with suspicion on the occident and with disapproval on anything like the higher education of women. All this is changed, however. The sultan has set the seal of his approval on the school and recommends the education of Turkish young women, while from Armenia, the Balkan states, Greece and the farther orient girls of the best families are sent to enjoy the educational advantages of an institution which is as well equipped as the average American woman's college. Many rich Americans have contributed generously for improvements, the total cost of the college buildings and equipment being about three-quarters of a million dollars. Recently five splendid new buildings were dedicated.

The head of this college is Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, an American, to whom are due the high standard and the success of the institution. She was born at Canterbury, N. H. From New England she removed to the state of Iowa with her parents, residing during her school years at Lyons and there being graduated from Lyons college.

Soon after her graduation she went to Turkey under appointment received from the American board of foreign missions and first spent several years in the eastern part of Asia Minor, where her work was chiefly among the Armenian people.

Here she acquired a knowledge of the Armenian language that marked her from the beginning of her career as gifted especially in linguistic faculty. Besides the Armenian, she speaks fluently Turkish, Greek, Bulgarian, French and German.

After several years' residence in the Armenian provinces Miss Patrick was called to the American school for girls at Constantinople, to which institution she has devoted more than thirty years of untiring effort, establishing there a standard for the education of girls that has changed the entire attitude of the various races of the near east and the ideas of the Ottoman government as well on this most important subject. From a high school, established in 1871, this American institution for the higher education of young women has grown under the able direction of Dr. Patrick into the strong and well equipped college, the only college for girls in the Ottoman empire. Seeing the need of such a college in Constantinople, which draws to itself people from all parts of the entire Levant, even influencing the thought and life of Persia and Arabia, Egypt and southern Russia, as well as the whole of the southeast of Europe, Miss Patrick early determined to work for the establishment of a permanent educational work of high standard. Spending all her vacations in study and research work, taking courses successively at the universities of Heidelberg, Zurich, Leipzig, Berlin and Berne, she finally took the doctor's degree from the last named institution, her major work being in the field of Greek philosophy. She has done notable work in psychology also and in ethics, as well as in Greek literature and history. In 1890 the school over which she had for nearly ten years presided was incorporated into a college, and it is due to the splendid efforts of Dr. Patrick that this institution is now established in its beautiful new home on the European shores of the Bosporus, the center of intellectual life for the women of the near east.

The Cane Umbrella.

Perhaps in the course of your shopping or walking tour you have noticed a smart woman with a long cane. And then perhaps you have been surprised when rain began to fall to see the some smart woman open the top of her cane and draw out an umbrella. As if it were not enough for women to carry canes without carrying these surprising long staffs that turn out to be umbrellas and canes combined!

The incroyable costumes and fashions have brought about the carrying of canes by women. And the really smart woman who is in search of something new chooses the umbrella sheathed in a canelike case of wood.

—If you have a really desirable house or apartment to rent, your "ad" will constitute GOOD NEWS to some anxious people in this city.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

The lunches at Bryant School served by the luncheon committee of the Plainfield Association of Mothers will be opened on Tuesday, October 13, for the ensuing school year. The price of soup and cocoa will be raised to two cents a portion and all children as heretofore will be compelled to buy a bowl of soup before purchasing other delicacies. All persons who have pledged contributions to the support of the lunches will kindly send their cheques to Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, Park avenue. All persons having promised to contribute jellies, jams or marmalade can send same to Bryant School at any time.

At a reception given by the executive officers and the chairman of committees to Professor and Mrs. B. F. Aungst, Mr. and Mrs. Earley, members of the Board of Education and their wives, to all new teachers and to all old teachers and the members of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association and their husbands, the following letter was read from Mrs. E. H. Warner, of Roselle, N. J., setting forth the aims and policies of that association. This letter was highly appreciated by the members of the borough association as it expressed so clearly the things of which as a body the North Plainfield association approves and are working so hard to obtain results.

"The Roselle Parent Association was organized December 6, 1911, and as we look back over the few years since our little 'beginning,' we marvel at the work accomplished, and realize that it means interest and conscientious work by each officer, chairman and members of the association. We claim with pride, as no doubt you do, Mrs. William Sandford, of Plainfield, as the mother of our Parent-Teacher Association, and feel more and more how much we owe to her as the work progresses. Our aim and object is as our constitution states. (I am sending you a copy.) To study the welfare of the child in home, school and community; to create a better mutual understanding between parents and teachers, and to secure their co-operation in all work for the interest of the children. Besides our regular officers we have many committees.

"Our hospitality committee welcomes the strangers and new members, introduce teacher and parent, and later serve refreshments. We have found that little cup of tea very conducive to sociability. At our last meeting in June we all ate ice cream cones. This committee the first year gave a little entertainment and earned enough money to purchase cups and saucers, plates and spoons. From time to time from the money allowed them for each meeting, they have saved enough to buy dish towels, tea kettle, etc. We allow the High School the use of these dishes whenever they care to entertain.

"Our membership committee is very large. All the teachers, and each teacher selects a mother who has a child in her grade to assist her in securing new members. We have fathers as well as mothers in our association, for we feel that we need the interest and co-operation of both parents. This committee has a banner in the schools colors, which is given to the grade having the greatest number of parents present at the meeting. The children work very hard to win the banner for their grade. The notice of the meeting is placed on the blackboard of each room and every child must carry home a copy. This saves the expense of post cards.

"The corresponding secretary notifies only those who have no children in the school, for our association receives as members anyone interested in the child and willing to work for his welfare. Of course, we have a program committee of seven, three teachers and four mothers, and they have arranged some very helpful meetings. The chairman of the question box is always the supervising principal of the school, and he has assisting him three mothers, who decide how best to answer the questions. Articles 9 and 10 in the constitution are a great help.

"One day we heard that a little girl had gone to school poorly clad. At our next meeting we formed a poor committee. We called it child welfare committee. Our principal gave us a part of an unused room, and there we kept the clothing sent by the mothers. The first year many children secured mittens, warm clothing, shoes, rubbers, etc. The next year we still kept our committee in the school, but being anxious to reach the mothers and little children in the home we formed a charity organization. I am sending you the report of their first year's work. Let me say that from this organization, which is still under the Parent-Teacher Association, a needle-work guild was formed. That, of course, is natural, but they work with us. We have a legislative committee who report on bills which have or are about to be passed in the Legislature bearing upon the interests of the association.

"At one meeting some mothers were found who had a desire to read books that would help them in the training of their children. It was arranged then and there that any mother who had found a book helpful in her family, should loan it for the use of some other mother. A teacher was appointed librarian. The little library numbers now about thirty books and as we belong to the Congress of Mothers, we have helpful literature to give away. I wish I could tell you all about our motion picture venture which has proved so successful. Just let me tell you a very little about its origin.

"The desire to keep our young people in their own town, and give them clean entertainment started the idea, and we went to work with a will. At the end of nine months we had raised $80. Then the commercial man came to our town, asking permission to give performances. Our Mayor and Council and property holders were opposed, so no license was granted, and it was suggested by the Council that we enlarge our committee and take up the work. The new committee comprised ten gentlemen and six ladies. We at once incorporated our Parent-Teacher Association. The bank loaned us $500 on proper endorsement. The machine was installed in the school at a cost of $525, with a stereopticon attachment for school use. The ladies select the films, the gentlemen manage the business end, usher, take tickets, etc. Last September, on account of the crowded condition of the school, we moved to the Borough Hall until the new school should be completed. We give performances every Tuesday and Saturday evenings (two performances an evening).

"During the fourteen months we have been in operation, have paid our indebtedness, and are about to pay to the Board of Education $250 to assist in equipping a gymnasium for the school. This year we are planning to work with the Citizens' League in arranging for a playground. Our Board of Education has very kindly offered us a room in the new building which we can open evenings for our young people. We would like to teach folk dancing. Last winter the association invited Miss Sarah B. Askew, of the Public Library Commission of our State, to speak before the association on 'How to Start a Public Library.' As a result of that meeting a library was started. The president of the board of trustees is a member of the Board of Education, secretary our supervising principal, and the treasurer our mayor. The Clio Club (a literary club), gave us 1,600 books. We opened in a store (which we hired for a year), the middle of May. Our books now number nearly 3,000 and last month the librarian gave out 1,596 books. It may interest you to know that the Public Library in Plainfield, hearing about our work very kindly sent us a box for fumigating our books. This year the library is supported by private subscription, but before very long we hope to make it a municipal library.

"We have been able to present two of our schools with Victrolas. Mr. Davis, the supervising principal, has so often spoken of the help of the association. Mothers talk over their school troubles with the child's teacher, and a better understanding is reached. We have the pleasure of entertaining the teachers in our homes and the first meeting in the fall is always a reception for them when they receive especially those who are new with the president, the other teachers assisting the hospitality committee with the introducing. The child is the key-note and in our meetings color, nationality, creed, social position, all disappear, and we are parents and teachers workings for the good of the child. May I enclose greetings from the Roselle P. T. Association, and our best wishes for the success of your work."

HALE STATUE AT YALE.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 8—The statute of Nathan Hale, designed by Bela Pratt, is now in its place near the East side of Connecticut Hall, the only building of Hale's time now remaining on the Yale campus. The bronze figure, which is but a few inches above life size, represents Hale at the moment of his sacrifice. The aim of the sculptor was to represent a youthful, and even boyish figure, since Hale, although he was a captain in the army of the United States, had not long passed his twenty-first birthday when he met his fate. His last words: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country," form a circular band of lettering cast in the bronze just below the feet of the figure. The simple pedestal, which stands but three feet above the turf, is of hammered granite chosen on account of its harmony with the old masonry of Connecticut Hall just behind it.

M. E. PREACHERS CONFERENCE.

New York, Oct. 8—The annual conference of the National Association of Local Preachers of the Methodist Episcopal church began at the John Street M. E. church in this city today and will continue over Sunday. The president of the association and the presiding officer of the conference is Rev. John H. Crankshaw, of Norristown, Pa. In connection with the conference the fifty-seventh anniversary of the association will be celebrated.

FISH is so much cheaper than meat that it is wise at this time to make as much use of it as possible. The great variety of fish and the many ways of serving it which may be taken advantage of make it possible frequently to substitute it for meat.

Potato Omelet.—Take the yolks of three eggs and beat very light. Season one cupful of cold mashed potatoes with salt, pepper, one-half cupful of milk and a little chopped parsley. Beat the yolks into this, then add beaten whites. Heat pan piping hot and butter, pour omelet into it. Brown lightly, turn and serve very hot.

Boiled Black Bass.—Put in a pot enough slightly salted water to cover fish, add one gill of vinegar, one onion, eight whole peppers and a blade of mace. Sew up the fish in a piece of thin cheesecloth fitted snugly to it. Lay in water, bring slowly to boil, then boil steadily, allowing twelve minutes to each pound of fish. When done remove cloth, lift fish on platter and serve with cream sauce.

Pepper and Grapefruit Salad.—Cut slices from the stem ends of six green peppers and remove seeds. Refill with grapefruit pulp, finely cut celery and English walnut meats broken in pieces, allowing twice as much grapefruit as celery and two walnut meats to each pepper. Arrange on chicory or lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Stuffed Cucumbers.—Take four good sized cucumbers, peel, cut in halves lengthwise, and scoop out the seeds. Mix together one-half pint of bread crumbs, one level teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of pepper, one-half cupful of finely chopped nuts, one good sized onion, one tablespoonful of chutney. Stuff the cucumbers; fasten them together with wooden skewers or tie with string. Put six tablespoonfuls of olive oil in a shallow baking pan; when hot put in the cucumbers, turn them until carefully browned on all sides. Add one-half cupful of water and bake slowly for one and one-half hours, basting frequently.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — What the Wild Goose Brought From The Northland.

A Big Wild Goose In a Crate.

"I HAVE told you before about the migratory habits of birds, haven't I, kiddets?" asked daddy.

"Yes, but we don't object to hearing something more," said Evelyn, snuggling down beside daddy and reaching around to give Jack a sly dig with her bare toes.

"Very well, then," said daddy and began his story.

"Once upon a time a great ship was chartered and laden with everything needed for a long trip at sea.

"The crew of the ship was made up of men who were filled with the spirit of adventure, for, you see, this ship was going away up into the icy regions of the north exploring.

"One of the officers of the ship, Lieutenant Crandall, was a young man and was engaged to be married to a beautiful girl who was very much opposed to the exploring trip. She cried and cried and felt so bad about it that the lieutenant would have remained home could he have done so without seeming to be cowardly.

"He explained all this to her, and at last Alice consented to let him go.

"The day the ship sailed Alice stood at the dock and waved her handkerchief until the ship was only a speck in the distance.

"Then began for her the cruel suspense of waiting for the ship to return. She had wireless messages from Alaska telling her that all was well with the ship, the crew and the gallant lieutenant.

"No further word came, and several months later official notice was sent out to all the newspapers that the ship which had gone so gallantly out to explore was lost with all her crew.

"Of course this was a terrible shock to Alice and made her very ill. The news of the loss came in August, and it was the last of November before Alice could sit up in bed for a little while.

"One day she saw the parcel post man coming along with a big parcel, and he rang their doorbell. The maid went to the door, and, what do you think, there was a big wild goose in a crate, and the crate was addressed to Miss Alice Waldorf; also there was a letter addressed to her.

"That goose had been very slightly wounded by a hunter, and when he went to bag it he found its leg bound around with a piece of silk oilcloth. It was perforated in such a way that the perforations made words.

"It was a message from Lieutenant Crandall, who said he and a sailor had been rescued and as soon as possible would be home.

"That goose had flown all the way from Alaska to the Louisiana swamps."

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE
Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.
If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.
To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.
Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK
Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.
Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.
Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

COMPLETES TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR AS SOCIETY TREASURER

At the annual meeting of the Women's Society for Christian Work, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, held in the church parlors yesterday afternoon, the officers for the coming year were elected. All of the old officers were re-appointed to their positions. They are Mrs. W. T. Hubbard, president; Mrs. Sarah Wardner, vice-president; Mrs. Edwin Shaw, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Clarence W. Spicer, recording secretary, and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, treasurer.

Mrs. Dunham has just completed her twenty-fifth year in this capacity and was given an expression of appreciation from the members of the society for her faithful duty. Pleasing reports of the various committees were read.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Raymond T. Kline, of East Seventh street, will entertain her mother, Mrs. Alfred Jennings, of Fairview Farm, tomorrow.

Mrs. Benjamin Fritts, of West Fifth street, is visiting friends at Raritan.

Arthur Ross, of East Seventh street, spent yesterday with Arthur Millar, of Brooklyn.

George Hummel, of Duer street, the borough, who has been employed as a salesman by A. E. Force & Co., has accepted a position with the Public Service Gas Company.

Louis Krogg, of East Sixth street, has been confined to his home with malaria.

Mrs. Oliver Ulmer, of Second street, has been entertaining her sister, Miss Ethel Harrison, of Coontown.

TWO OF INNER FORTS GUARDING ANTWERP REPORTED SILENCED; FLOOD CITY BY OPENING DYKES

REPORTED TO BE BURNING IN PLACES AS RESIDENTS FLEE TO HOLLAND—KING ALBERT SAID TO BE AT FLANDERS.

NO CHANGE IN THE SITUATION IN FRANCE

Cavalry Fighting North of Lille and Artillery Battle Reported in Woevre Region—Montenegrins Continue Advance on Sarajevo—Steamer Red Cross Coming Home With 100 Passengers.

The Hague, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable).—The bombardment of the inner forts around Antwerp, and the outlying parts of the city started at 12:30 yesterday morning, according to latest advices received here. At noon the city was reported burning in four places. It is said today that numbers four and six of the inner forts have been silenced.

The people of Antwerp continue to leave the city as fast as they can get away, and it is reported that the dykes have been opened.

London, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable).—According to advices received here the bombardment of Antwerp continues with violent fury. Shells from the German guns have caused heavy damage and together with the big Zeppelins' continuous dropping of bombs in all directions, has thrown the city into a wild panic.

According to the latest advices from Antwerp, received via Amsterdam, the bombardment by the Germans continued uninterruptedly this morning. Borgohaut, a suburb of Antwerp, is burning, according to a despatch from Amsterdam to a news agency. A news agency despatch from Ostend, dated Thursday, says that the Germans have occupied the southeast semi-circle of the third fortified line of Antwerp. The Belgian government is completely installed at Ostend.

The Tribuna, of Rome, publishes a report that Przemysl has fallen to the Russians.

The steamship Red Cross will sail for the United States from Rotterdam next Monday, carrying 100 passengers.

Paris, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable).—The war office this afternoon gave out the following statement:

"The general situation has undergone no change. On our left wing the two cavalry forces are operating continually north of Lille, and LaBassee, and the battle continues on the line marked by the regions of Leas, Arras, Bray, Sur-Somme, Chaulnnes, Roye and Lassigny.

"At the centre, from the Aisne to the Meuse, there are only minor engagements.

"On the right in the Woevre region, there has been an artillery battle along the entire front.

"In Lorraine, in the Vosges and in Alsace there is no change.

"In Bosnia the Montenegrin troops continue their advance in the direction of Sarajevo, having reached the fortified lands which protect the city at a distance of eight kilometres."

Amsterdam, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable).—King Albert, of Belgium, has arrived in Flanders, in Belgian territory, close to the Dutch frontier.

Paris, Oct. 9—A despatch from Cettinje says that Montenegrin detachments operating in Herzegovina, inflicted heavy losses on the Austrians and occupied important positions near Gatzko. After hard fighting the Montenegrins occupied Ablak, Stepen and Klipjutch, taking a large number of prisoners and much ammunition. The Montenegrin offensive toward Sarajevo, is developing favorably. Continuing the despatch states that an Austrian aeroplane, while attempting to observe the French batteries, was hit by shells and fell into the sea.

Petrograd, Oct. 9—It is semi-officially announced that the Germans have lost so many officers thus far in the conflict with Russia that there are not enough in the reservists to fill their places.

London, Oct. 9—Three of Premier Asquith's sons have volunteered for service. Two are in training and the third has failed to pass a physical examination, while convalescing from a recent illness.

The daily mail's Belgian correspondent says that the Ostend railway line has been cut between Courtral and Thourout.

A despatch from Berlin states that an official communication, issued by the German general staff, dated last night, says: "From the western scene of war no facts of decisive importance can be mentioned. Small progress has been made near St. Mihiel, and in the Argonnes.

"Before Antwerp Forth Breendonk, to the south of Antwerp, has been taken, and the attack on the inner fort line has begun therewith. The bombardment of the quarter of the town lying behind was begun after the declaration of the commander of that stronghold that he took the responsibility.

"The airship hall at Dusseldorf has been hit by a bomb thrown by a hostile aviator. The roof of the hall was pierced and the cover of an airship in the hall was demolished.

"In the east the Russian column is marching from Lomza, Russian Poland, and has reached Lyck, in East Prussia, just beyond the frontier and almost directly west from Augustow."

A news agency despatch from Rome says that General Grandi, minister of war in the Italian cabinet, has resigned.

A despatch from Vienna dated October 8th says that the following official announcement was issued by the Austrian General Staff: "Our troops have made further advances and yesterday they repulsed the enemy on the road to Przemysl, near Barycz, west of Dynow. Przescow has been recaptured and guns taken. In the same territory, between the Vistula and the San, we took many Russian prisoners. The renewed violent attacks on Przemysl have been steadily repulsed and the enemy's dead and wounded are counted by thousands. We have had victorious battles at Sziget, in Maramaros county, Hungary, and in East Galicia, the Landstrum, and the Polish legionaries rival each other in gallant work."

Advices from Gettinje say that the Montenegrins now occupy all the strategic points surrounding Bilidistka, whose fall is imminent.

Copenhagen, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable)—Italy now has 1,400,000 men under arms, a total of 30 army corps, according to a despatch from Berlin.

Rome, Oct. 9 (Central News Cable).—Gen. Barone, considering the situation, expresses in the Giornale D Italia the opinion that the eventful surrender of Antwerp will not improve the situation of the German army. Germany will have to continue to hold considerable forces immobile at Antwerp while the Belgian garrison will be able to join the French and British forces will still be able to disembark at other Belgian ports for operation in that vicinity.

WILL GIVE A BALL.

RUNKLE WILL IS UPHELD BY COURT

Judge Martin Makes But One Change in Effort to Upset Document.

BROTHER CAVEATOR

Local Man Unable to Upset Will Filed by Relative, a Well-known Resident of Orange—Several Bequests to Charity.

Changed in but one respect—that of the executorship—the will of William Runkle, of Orange, disposing of a $2,000,000 estate, was upheld in a decision signed yesterday by Judge William P. Martin, at Newark. The caveator was Harry G. Runkle, of this city, brother of the testator.

The vital conclusion found by the court concerned the first sheet of the will which not only was separated from the remainder of the testament when discovered, following Mr. Runkle's death January 31 last, but which was established as having been written by the testator after he had originally executed his will.

Mr. Runkle's will, consisting of twelve pages, was executed May 11, 1912, and the codicil was drawn April 23, 1913.

Judge Martin held that while the first sheet was made subsequent to the original execution of the will, and apparently was a substitute for another page since torn away, it was written prior to the execution of a codicil to the will. Under a principle of law, well laid down, and accompanied by numerous reference cases in this country and in England, the local jurist held that the execution of the codicil also constituted a republication or a re-execution of the will itself in its condition at that time.

The decision names Randolph Rodman, of South Orange, as executor of the estate in place of William E. R. Smith. The latter's name was in the will, but it was found to have been written over a chemical erasure of Mr. Rodman's name. Judge Martin, in this connection, stated in his decision that inasmuch as there was not "even a scintilla" of evidence adduced during the contest over the will to show whether the substitution of executors was made by Mr. Runkle before or after the execution of the codicil, the inference is that it occurred afterward, and Mr. Rodman must be named as executor. The court quoted a number of similar cases to justify his ruling.

The other point decided by Judge Martin was relative to paragraph 9 of the will, in which the testator bequeathed $25,000 to Charles I. Scholfield, of New York, and subsequently canceled the bequest by drawing lines through the words. On the margin of the paper he also noted "canceled October 5, 1912." Judge Martin ruled that the cancelation was legally effective, commenting that Mr. Runkle, in his margin note, indicated that his intent to cancel the bequest was clear.

The will provided for a trust fund of $750,000, the income of which is to be divided between Harry G. Runkle, of this city, and his two children and upon the death of the father the principal is to be divided equally between the two children.

As a result of the decision church and charitable institutions will receive about $1,000,000.

The principal bequests made by Mr. Runkle for charity and public purposes are: Lafayette College, $100,000; Orange Orphan Asiyum, $25,000; Orange Free Public Library, $25,000; St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, $25,000; Orange Memorial Hospital, $10,000; Children's Aid and Protective Society, $10,000; Orthopedic Hospital, $10,000; Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church, $25,000; Presbyterian Board of Relief, $50,000; College Board of the Presbyterian church, $25,000, and the American Sunday-School Union, $25,000.

Among the important private bequests was $50,000 to Miss Kathryn Tully, private secretary to Mr. Runkle, who now is the wife of Morris Lynch, also a former employe, to whom was left $5,000. They are living at 344 Centre street, Orange, in a house which was presented, all furnished, to Miss Tully by Mr. Runkle before his death.

Miss Tully was in Mr. Runkle's employ for many years, first as a nurse, but who was retained as private secretary by Mr. Runkle after her duties as nurse were concluded.

William H. Hulick, of New York city, a partner of Mr. Runkle's in the Warren Iron Foundry at Phillipsburg, was left the Runkle home on Centre street, Orange, and $50,000 in cash.

WOMAN SUES AUTOIST TO RECOVER DAMAGES

Mrs. Agnes Vail, of Park Avenue, Was Run Down by Chas. Dana's Machine.

Mrs. Agnes Vail, of Park avenue, appeared as plaintiff in the Circuit Court in Elizabeth, yesterday, before Judge William H. Speer and a jury to secure damages for injuries she sustained in an automobile accident November 9, 1913. Mrs. Vail was run down by the machine owned by Charles L. Dana, who is made defendant in the suit. She had her leg broken and was badly shaken up.

The defense, represented by McDermit and Enright, claims contributory negligence, holding that Mrs. Vail turned to the right in the pathway of the machine, while her husband, who was with her at the time, turned to the left. In so turning, it was contended, she walked in front of the car. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of the firm of Reed & Hetfield, of this city, appeared as counsel for the plaintiff. The witnesses examined yesterday were Dr. E. W. Hedges, Frank J. Hubbard and Frank C. Langhorn. The suit will be continued Tuesday, there being no sessions of the court today or Monday.

AUTO OVERTURNED BUT NO ONE HURT

Bad Turn in Stelton Road Responsible for Second Accident.

Returning from a social event in New Brunswick, last night, Edward Maurer, Jr., of Madison avenue, Dunellen, and a number of friends who formed an automobile party, had a narrow escape from death at the sharp turn in Stelton road, near New Market. Young Maurer, who was driving the car, failed to notice the break in the thoroughfare and in an effort to avoid ditching the heavy vehicle, drove it diagonally across the road.

The sudden swerve caused the axle on one side of the car to snap and the machine turned over. Fortunately for the occupants the jolt was sufficient to throw them clear of the wreckage and they escaped with a few scratches and bruises. This is the second accident of its kind to happen at this place during the past month, L. B. Randolph meeting a similar fate several weeks ago.

HOME FOUND FOR AGED MAN PICKED UP BY THE POLICE

Following his detention at police headquarters since last Saturday night, George Johnston, a decrepit old colored man, was taken charge of by Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham, last night, and placed in a local boarding house for colored people, where he will be provided for in the future. Johnston's case has excited no little amount of sympathy from city officials since he was picked up by the police in the business section Saturday night, after being put out of the Industrial Home.

Mr. Dunham, who has charge of the inmates at the alms house, refused to take the man back to that institution because of his habit of violating the regulations, and would not remain at the home. The law provides that an inmate shall be given his freedom when he demands it and when Johnston left the institution unknown to the superintendent, Saturday morning, he could not be returned under compulsion, and Mr. Dunham had to be governed by the law. He is destitute and the disposition of the case puzzled the department considerably.

RUSSIAN CHEWED A POLE.

Michael Horlick, a Russian employed by the Central Railroad, was arrested last night in the business section by Patrolman Muir on a disorderly charge and when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, he was fined $8. When apprehended the man was intoxicated and attempting to chew a telephone pole in half.

FORMAL OPENING OF CAMPAIGN

Republican Voters Meet Candidates and Discuss Election Plans.

EXCELLENT ADDRESSES

City Chairman J. J. Carroll Urges the Co-operation of All Party Men—Predicts Success of Ticket at the November Election.

The Republicans of this city formally opened the campaign here last night, with a "get-acquainted" gathering at the party's headquarters in the Frost building, at which time many of the candidates were present to meet the voers. Some of the local candidates were prevented from being present owing to another meeting. Among those who attended the meeting were John H. Capstick, Congressional candidate; Cariton B. Pierce, candidate for State Senator; Arthur Pierson and C. L. Morgan, Assembly candidates, and Dr. Dengler, candidate for coroner. The new county chairman, William Newcorn, and former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman were also present and addressed the gathering. John J. Carroll, chairman of the City Republican Committee, was in charge of the meeting and introduced the several candidates. Mr. Carroll in his introductory remarks said in part:

"Gentlemen, I have asked you to come here tonight for the purpose of meeting, in an informal way, the workers of our party, the men who labor day and night, oftentimes while others slumber, in order first, to get the voters registered and then to get that registered vote cast on election day. In other words, I want you to meet the Republican organization of the city of Plainfield; and while I know that every member of this organization intends to work to the best of his ability for the election of our candidates and thus again bring victory to our party, nevertheless, I feel that if each member of this organization knows you personally his work will be much more interesting than if he work for you merely or only because you are our party's candidates.

"The strife within the family as it were, is over. The efforts to become the standard-bearers of the party have resulted in your favor. Not all could win, though every aspirant to a place on the ticket put up a gallant fight, but as I have already said the contest within the party is now over and we are all ready for the crucial test. Whatever bitterness may have been engendered, whatever harsh things may have been said in the heat of a fierce party struggle will be forgotten in the greater contest which we are about to enter, and with such a splendid choice of candidates which we have made, if each man does his duty, if everyone of us will do his share of the work, on the third day of November victory will rest upon the banner of the old party, and a beacon light will put courage in, and bring hope to the hearts of thousands of the best mechanics in the world, who, because of the application of Democratic principles of free trade and tariff for revenue only, walk the streets of our cities looking for work which they cannot obtain because of our inability to compete with the underpaid labor of other lands."

After the informal speeches by the several candidates, the rest of the evening was spent in discussing plans for an aggressive campaign not only in this city, but throughout the whole county and the Fifth district.

ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Eastern Seventh-Day Baptist Association will convene with the Marlboro church, near Bridgeton, October 15-18, and it is expected that a large delegation from the local church of that denomination will attend. A week from today in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, Rev. J. J. Allen, of the South Plainfield Baptist church, will preach here.

BOSTON 7; ATHLETICS 1

Boston	0	2	0	0	1	3	0	1	0	7

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—Stallings' Boston Braves drew the first blood in the world's series championship baseball games for 1914, when they defeated Connie Mack's Athletics in a well fought battle before an enormous crowd of fans. Mack selected Bender to do the slab work for his team, but the veteran of many previous world's series games was not at his best when he opposed the Boston batsmen, and when the opponents landed on him for several runs in the sixth inning he was taken out of the box and Wyckoff was sent in to finish the game.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—With 20,562 fans crowding every available space, the first game of the world's series started here this afternoon. The lowering clouds of the early morning had all disappeared, and the air was balmy as the umpire shouted play ball. At the start the teams lined up as follows:

BOSTON (N. L.).	PHILA. (A. L.).
Moran, rf	Murphy, rf
Evers, 2b	Oldring, lf
Connolly, lf	Collins, 2b
Whitted, cf	Baker, 3b
Schmidt, 1b	McInnis, 1b
Deal, 3b	Schang, c
Maranville, ss	Barry, ss
Gowdy, c	Strunk, cf
Rudolph, p	Bender, p

The umpires were Klem, Byron, Dineen and Hildebrand.

The demand for tickets for today's games was unprecedented, and speculators had no trouble in disposing of them at several times their face value.

FIRST INNING.

Boston—Moran fouled out to McInnis; Evers flied out to Collins; Connoly struck out. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy singled to centre field; Oldring sacrificed, Gowdy to Schmidt, Murphy going to the keystone sack; Collins drew four balls; Baker fouled out to Schmidt, and Murphy was doubled at third base, Schmidt to Deal. This was a fast play. Three outs. No runs.

SECOND INNING.

Boston—Whitted walked; Schmidt flied out to Oldring and Whitted was held at first; Gowdy doubled to centre field, Whitted scoring the first run of the 1914 series. Maranville singled to centre field, Gowdy scoring on the play. Deal forced Maranville at second on a play from Barry to Collins. Collins threw to McInnis at first, completing a fast double play. Three outs. Two runs.

Philadelphia—McInnis drew a free ticket. Strunk singled, Moran letting the ball go through his legs, McInnis scoring and Strunk going to third; Barry fanned out; Schang hit to Evers and Strunk was caught at home plate, Evers to Gowdy. Bender forced Schang at second base, Maranville to Evers. Three outs. One run.

THIRD INNING.

Boston—Rudolph went out, Bender to McInnis; Moran whiffed the air three times and retired to the bench; Evers flied out to Oldring. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy hit the empty order as a starter in this inning, being retired on three straight strikes; Oldring followed suit, putting three more dents in the atmosphere. Collins grounded to Rudolph, who retired him at first. Three outs. No runs.

FOURTH INNING.

Boston—Connolly singled to centre field; Whitted hit into a double play, Bender to Barry to McInnis. Schmidt went out, Collins to McInnis. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker started the Athletics' half of the fourth by fanning; his retirement was followed by loud applause, Philly fans having been rooting for a home run clout when he stood at the plate. McInnis fanned; Strunk singled to left field, but was caught trying to stretch it to a double on a play from Connolly to Maranville. Three outs. No runs.

FIFTH INNING.

Boston—Gowdy tripled to deep centre field and Maranville singled, scoring the Boston catcher; Deal hit into a double play, Bender caught his fly in an attempt to sacrifice and threw Maranville out before he could return to the initial sack. Rudolph struck out on three pitched balls. Three outs. One run.

Philadelphia—Barry opened by flying out to Maranville, the little shortstop making a fine catch in short left field after a hard run. Schang struck out. Bender flied out to Whitted. Three outs. No runs.

SIXTH INNING.

Boston—Moran foul flied out to Barry; Evers singled to centre field. Bender took a chance on walking Connolly, forcing Evers to the midway post. Whitted tripled, scoring Evers and Connolly. Schmidt singled, scoring Whitted. Gowdy came to the bat amid wild cheering from the plentiful sprinkling of Boston fans. Bender was derricked at this juncture, Wyckoff being sent out to face the bombardment. This was the first time in the history of the world's series, during Bender's regime, that the big Indian has been taken from the box. Gowdy, who had previously banged out a triple, took his place at the bat, and the new twirler passed him to the first station. Maranville hit to Wyckoff, who tried to catch Schmidt at third but his throw was wild. Schmidt was safe and the bases were filled. Deal hit into a double play, forcing Schmidt at third, Baker unassisted. Baker then threw to McInnis, retiring Deal. Three outs. Three runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy was retired, Evers to Schmidt; Oldring went out, Deal to Schmidt, and Collins died, Rudolph to Schmidt. This was one of the fastest half innings of the game. Three outs. No runs.

SEVENTH INNING.

Boston—Rudolph singled. Lapp was sent in to catch for the Athletics at this juncture. Moran forced Rudolph at second base, Baker to Barry. Evers struck out and Moran stole second, this being the first pilfered sack of the contest. Connolly went out, Wyckoff to McInnis. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker hit to Evers who fumbled the ball and the batter was safe at first. McInnis was given four balls, forcing Baker up one notch. Struhk was retired by Schmidt without assistance. Baker took third base on the play and McInnis sprinted to second and was safe. Barry fanned. Lapp went out, Rudolph to Schmidt. Three outs. No runs.

EIGHTH INNING.

Boston—Whitted flied out to Baker; Schmidt singled to left field. Gowdy singled to left field, Schmidt taking third base. Maranville struck out. On a double steal Schmidt scored, but Gowdy was caught at second. Three outs. One run.

Philadelphia—Wyckoff doubled to right field. Murphy went out, Maranville to Schmidt. Wyckoff going to third. Oldring struck out. Collins flied out to Connolly. Three outs. No runs.

NINTH INNING.

Boston—Deal out, Baker to McInnis. Rudolph out, Barry to McInnis. Moran out, Baker to McInnis. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker doubled to right field. McInnis grounded out, Deal to Schmidt. Baker held on second. Strunk popped flied out to Evers. Barry out, Moran to Schmidt. Three outs. No runs.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day In Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

Miss Mamie Sullivan, of Newport, R. I., is spending two weeks in the borough as a guest of her brother, Daniel Sullivan, of Dunellen avenue.

Kenneth Dealaman, son of Mrs. Margaret Dealaman, of Washington avenue, who has been ill since Monday with tonsilitis, is able to be out and around again.

Sylvester Tuple, of Penfield place, is spending a portion of his annual two weeks' vacation at Niagara Falls.

Thomas Beck, of Jackson avenue, who has been confined to his home for the past two weeks with rheumatism, is now able to take short constitutionals.

Mrs. James Gallagher and daughter, Miss Catherine, of Oyster Bay, who have been spending a few days in the borough as the guests of Marshal and Mrs. Owen Mohan, returned home yesterday. Mrs. Mohan and Mrs. Gallagher are sisters.

INFANT IMPROVING.

The five months' old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Miller, of New Market road, whose condition since his birth has been the cause of much concern to his parents, appears to be getting along very nicely at the present time.

Mrs. Albert N. Randolph and Mrs. George W. Day are spending the week at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Paul Carpenter, of Prospect avenue, has returned from Philadelphia, where she has been visiting her parents since Saturday.

WILL HOLD A SOCIAL.

The Y. P. S. C. E., of the Presbyterian church, are going to hold an unique social in the chapel of the church on Monday evening. The social is called a rubber social on account of it being necessary for all who desire an admittance to bring a pair of discarded rubbers. What is going to be done with the old rubbers is only known at the present time by the committee on social arrangements. That committee's invitation to the public is come and have a good time rubbering.

The new Harry Boice house on Culhane place has been rented to a local couple who are to be married next month.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Platt, Jr., have moved from the Charles A. Corliell, Jr., house, on Dunellen avenue, to their recently erected home adjoining.

Mrs. George K. Post, of New Market road, and her mother, Mrs. C. F. Richards, were recent visitors at Newark.

Contractor Edward Ayers is decorating the interior of the Alvah Gray flat over the Dunellen Apparel store.

The board of trustees of the Presbyterian church met in the Baraca class room of the church last evening.

Borough Engineer Churchill was in Garwood on business all day yesterday.

C. Wesley Blaine, of Lincoln avenue, was in the county seat attending to court duties yesterday.

BOWLING TOURNEY.

All lovers of good bowling should not miss the opportunity of seeing the match between the Baracas and the Rollers "5" of Somerville on the Presbyterian alleys this evening. The Rollers have the reputation of being a 900 pin team and the Baracas will have to roll their very best game to a man in order to even make a look-in. The Baracas will be reinforced by Jack Messenger, a crack bowler from Jersey City.

CUT HIS HAND.

Manager Louis L. Block, of the National Beef Company, cut the index finger of his left hand quite badly yesterday morning, while sharpening the wheel like blade of a slicing machine. He was turning the handle that propels the blade with his right hand and holding a patent grind-stone in position with the other when the stone slipped, the particular finger coming in contact with the revolving blade. Closing up the store and binding a handkerchief around the profusely bleeding member he hurried to the office of Dr. Roger L. Cooley, on Dunellen avenue, where the doctor found it necessary to take three stitches. The pain of the operation, combined with the amount of blood that had been lost, was more than Mr. Block could stand and he lapsed into a state of unconsciousness after the last stitch had been taken. He quickly responded to restoratives, however, and was able to reopen the store for the day.

Contractors DeWitt C. and Earl Fulton are repainting the Dr. T. H. Platt, Jr., house, on Front street, tenanted by Oscar Harris.

DR. HOGAN IMPROVING.

Mrs. Thomas J. Hogan has returned to her home after a sojourn at Liberty, N. Y., with her husband, Dr. Hogan. The rarefied air of that place has been doing the doctor a world of good, as his many friends will be glad to hear, and he will remain there until the coming on of winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, of Prospect avenue spent yesterday with relatives at Somerville.

Howard Van Ness has resumed his old position with the New Market roller mills.

The regular monthly meeting of the Piscataway Taxpayers' Association will be held on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Frank Chapman and children, who have been spending two months here as the guests of Mrs. Chapman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Nelson, have returned to their home at Berlin, Wis.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

A meeting of the Farther Lights Young People's Missionary Society will be held at the home of Mrs. David Griscom, down country, tomorrow afternoon. In addition to the regular business meeting there will be a social. All members are urged to make a special effort to attend this meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ladies Aid Society, of the First Baptist church, will be held in the lecture room on Wednesday afternoon of the coming week at 2:30 o'clock.

Eighteen past councilors of the Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Charles E. Tinsman, of William G. Helton Council, attended the meeting of the Middlesex County Past Councilors' Association at the lodge rooms of Good Intent Council, New Brunswick, last evening. Jamesburg captured the attendance banner. Friendship Council ranked second.

Watchung.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, held its regular monthly meeting, yesterday afternoon, at the home of one of its members, Mrs. Dirk de Haas, on the Washington Rock road. The general routine of business was gone over and the ladies decided to donate ten dollars to the Red Cross Society. After the business meeting a social hour followed, during which refreshments were served by the hostess. A large number of the society were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Smith are the proud parents of a little baby girl, born to them yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jamerson, of Hillcrest road, have moved to Mrs Handel's house on Dagway Hill.

The North Plainfield Township Committee held its regular monthly meeting yesterday, in its rooms in Improvement Hall.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Exercises appropriate to Columbus were held in the various classrooms of Schools No. 1 and 2 this afternoon. Recitations of a patriotic nature were rendered by the pupils and S. Dana Townsend made a short address to each class in School No. 1, while William D. Althouse did the same at the other school. The schools will be closed Monday.

Advertised mail matter at the borough postoffice is as follows: R. W. Hitchcock, Mrs. J. C. VanCleef, Mrs. Peter Stevens, W. S. Brown and A. R.

Now that the Borough Council is going to have water extended along Martine avenue from LaGrand avenue to the borough line, the residents of King street, which forms the boundary line, are going to club together to bear the expense of having it piped along that thoroughfare. As the present time the only water supply for them is from wells and in case of fire it is impossible to save the structure, as was shown by the burning of the Sinker residence sometime ago. Several parties owning land have hesitated about building on that account and it is on the petition of F. C. Martin, who is now building in that vicinity, that the Council took action.

There is now about thirty local people who belong to the Westfield Golf and Tennis Clubs who joined these organizations on the disbanding of the old township club a number of years ago. All of the local members are prominent in all of the tourneys held and at the present time Mrs. S. W. McAneny and Miss Hazel Gardiner, of this place, are fighting it out with the leaders in a tennis tournament with excellent chances of coming out ahead.

Borough Tax Collector Charles Sheelen started work on the sending out of the annual tax bills yesterday, and John Z. Hatfield will send those of the township out right following the tax sale on the coming Wednesday.

F. A. Dunham, of Plainfield, is working on the new tax maps in order to have them done by the first of November, when they must be delivered to the borough. The old maps did not pass the State Board of Equalization of Taxes and new ones had to be made within a year. The township was placed in the same predicament, although their maps had been made but a short time.

Nearly fifty Masons from the township and borough left yesterday for Atlantic City to attend the State convention of that body.

The weekly social held in the Baptist church every Friday night under the direction of the young people of the church, will be held this evening beginning at 8 o'clock. The committee for this week is composed of Miss May Weller, Miss Edith Jahn, Edward Hetfield and Harry Pall, have arranged a pleasant program for the occasion.

The Tuesday Afternoon Literary Club, which was organized and flourished last winter, has resumed its semi-monthly meetings after the summer. The first meeting of the season will be held on the coming Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Salle Kyte, on Martine avenue, at 2:30. The subject chosen for the present is the Victorian Reign in English history and articles and clippings prepared by different members will be read after which an hour or talk on current events will follow. The club started with a half dozen members and has more than doubled. It is composed of women and is open for others. The meetings are held at the homes of the various members.

After discontinuing its meetings for the past three months the Women's League of Fanwood and Scotch Plains, has again started its activities. A meeting was held at the home of Miss Salle Kyte the forepart of the week when plans for the coming winter were discussed and at the next meeting topics for talks will be decided on. The league has a membership of nearly fifty and is growing rapidly. An effort will be made to secure prominent women speakers to address the members at each meeting.

A number of girls of Scotch Plains have formed a sewing class under the guidance of Miss Fannie Haskard, of Grand street, and are going to hold weekly meetings during the winter at the home of Miss Haskard.

ANNUAL RECEPTION A GREAT SUCCESS

Fine Program Enjoyed by Large Number at Y. W. C. A. Rally Last Night.

The annual reception and rally of the Y. W. C. A. was held in the parlors of the association, last night, and was a success. There were one hundred and thirty-five guests present and the pleasing program was enjoyed by all. Mrs. James R. Joy, of the borough, was in charge of the reception. Miss Helen Besler rendered several pleasing vocal solos and Mrs. Alice Bolington presided at the piano and gave several solos. Each secretary gave a five-minute talk on the work of the association.

After the entertainment a social time was had and the registration of members took place. Cards representing the various lines of work and classes were placed on the wall and those who wished to enter classes placed their names on the card. The rooms were decorated with autumn leaves. During the evening refreshments were served by the social committee, of which Mrs. Lewis Williams is chairman. The membership committee assisted the other committees with the receiving.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY

"JIM" BABBITT DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Colored Man Who Led Varied Career in This City Passed Away in Hospital.

James Babbitt, one of the best known and respected colored residents of this city, died last night in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an illness that caused his removal to that institution last Tuesday. Complications are given as the cause of the aged man's demise. He was sixty-six years of age and had been a resident of this city the greater part of his life.

For twelve years Mr. Babbitt was a special officer in the local police department and figured in a number of interesting episodes in his day. He was a chimney sweep by trade and conducted this work on an extensive scale here for over a quarter of a century. He was for years the political leader among the colored populace and was well-known among the old guard of both the Republican and Democratic parties..

He was an enthusiastic hunter and annually indulged in a trip through the neighboring forests with which he was well acquainted. He gained prominence as a trapper and invariably returned with large bags of rabbits and other forest and stream game.

The deceased was born in Tennessee, where he lived until the outbreak of the Civil War, enlisting with a Northern colored regiment.

He is survived by seven children, his wife having died several years ago. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

KORULIMO BIBLE CLASS HOLDS ANNUAL OUTING

The annual meting of the Korulmo Bible Class of the First Presbyterian church was held in the chapel of the church, last night. There were about twenty members present who enjoyed the excellent dinner, after which there was speech-making. Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, the president, was in charge of the affair. She made a few remarks, after which H. W. Herrman, teacher of the class, made an interesting address. The election of officers was postponed until the next meeting.

After the dinner, the class provided an enjoyable musical program, singing a number of popular selections. The class now numbers thirty. It was organized last year and meets every Sunday morning.

PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION TO BE HELD AT MT. BETHEL

Mt. Bethel is to have a patriotic demonstration tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time Fairview Council, No. 248, Jr. O. U. A. M., will present the new public school of that place with a large flag. R. P. F. vonMinden, of New Market, State vice-councilor of the order, will speak, as will Rev George Hauser. Rev. J. Morgan Reed, State treasurer of the order, wil make the presentation address. The members of the lodges of this order are invited to assemble at Fairview Hall at 2:30, from which they will parade to the school building, headed by the Uniform Rank of Franklin Council, of this city.

WILL HAVE AERIAL CONTEST AT PANAMA EXPOSITION

San Francisco, Oct. 9—Officials of the Panama-Pacific Exposition announced here today, that a $150,000 aerial contest from the Pacific to the Atlantic coasts will be one of the features of the big fair. The race will be held in May and probably will be started from this city, with a city on the Atlantic seaboard as the finishing point.

The contest was arranged as a substitute for the globe circling air race that was abandoned on account of the war. Philadelphia and this city have been suggested as the finish for the flyers. Officers of the Aero Club, of Philadelphia, are expected to start a movement to have the contest ended in this city.

MOTION PICTURES

The first of the public motion picture shows at the Washington School Auditorium, last night, under the auspices of the Recreation Committee were shown, with a goodly number of people in attendance. These entertainments will be given a trial for the next month, the committee desiring to see if this form of entertainment in the West End might be put on a self-sustaining basis. Under no consideration does the committee desire that it should become a money-making scheme, being contented if it pays for itself.

PLAN SEASON'S WORK.

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest met last evening and discussed plans of work for the year. Another meeting will be held Thursday, October 22, when officers for the year will be elected.

POLITICAL NOTES.

October 30—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

County Clerk Gannon, of Middlesex, has refused the petition of William A. Quackenbush, of Monroe, as an independent candidate for county clerk in Middlesex, because it lacked an affidavit. William H. Quackenboss is in the race as an independent Democratic candidate against Mr. Gannon, and the similarity between his name and that of Mr. Quackenbush would have aided the present incumbent if the Monroe man's petition had been accepted.

Progressives are interested in the report that Colonel Roosevelt may speak in Newark later in the campaign. It is possible that an effort will be made to have him appear in Union county, but in any event a speech so close to home as Newark would have an effect, they believe.

LARGE AREAS OPENED.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9—Orders recently signed by Secretary Lane have opened to settlement and entry, under the enlarged homestead law, 3,600,000 acres of land in California, New Mexico, Colorado and Washington. Under the enlarged homestead act lands in the West are examined by the Geological Survey to determine whether there is any available water supply by which they may be irrigated. If not, they become subject to entry by settlers in tracts of 220 acres each, as against the 160 acres under the original homestead law.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Miss Winnie Kelly and John Raftery, of this city, will be married at St. Joseph's church, Sunday, October 26. Mr. Raftery is in the employ of the Eastern Bottling Company and both he and Miss Kelly have many friends.

DIRECT PRIMARY AGAIN.

Some New York newspapers, which evidently do not want to see the direct primary succeed in that State, are claiming that it has already been a failure there, because on Monday last almost one million voters, out of a total of 1,300,000 failed to vote. This is a poor argument, as every one knows. With us, when the Geran law was first adopted, the primary was poorly attended, and yet in recent years, the people have turned out in some sections of the State in almost as great numbers as at the general election. Even this year, where there were unimportant contests creating but little interest, the vote was light, but New Jersey people do not think the law is a failure.

As an exchange says, the direct primary law in New York is a novelty, and it was not expected that a large vote would be polled in the first experiment under the new law. Small though the vote was, however, it was much larger than the vote heretofore polled at primaries for the election of delegates to nominating conventions. When the people of New York fully realize that they can control nominations they will make use of the direct primary as extensively as occasion demands.

That the people will do this was shown in the large vote polled in Union county at the recent primary. This contest was a direct fight between a number of desirable candidates in all parties and the best men won. The people of New York will win similar victories whenever they choose to do so.

As it was, the direct primary on its first trial resulted in the overthrow of no less than four unworthy district Democratic leaders in New York City, an achievement that would have been impossible under the machine system.

A direct primary law is not a magic wand with transforms political machines and bosses into agencies of public uplift. It is merely a measure that puts the power of selecting candidates for political office where it belongs, in the hands of the voters. If the voters neglect their duty, the machines will make nominations, but that is no fault of the primary act. It is rather a merit, for it brings punishment upon the people for their culpable neglect.

NEWS IS NEWS.

There is no necessity for a defense of the newspapers and the newspaper methods of this country; but there seems to be occasion for setting right a large number of persons, who, failing to have much business on their own account, are willing to spend their idle hours criticising a profession that has had to do with the making of all modern history.

It is a fact that practically all of the positively stated announcements concerning the present war have been based on actual occurences. It is the common thing to hear loose-talking persons say that they "will be glad to find out the truth about the war in Europe." The person who makes this statement deliberately is either foolish or morally oblique. The news may not be always to the liking of sympathizers of France or Germany or England, but, in the main, it is accurate and unvarnished.

News is news—a simple picture of what is happening. Yet, as the St. Louis Times says, the land is filled with curbstone statesmen and swivel chair soldiers who wouldn't know the smell of gunpowder from the smell of face powder, all of whom are denouncing the correspondents and the newspapers that are attending strictly to their own business and serving their readers with actual facts at a very low price. Some of the bravest men of the war are the men who send their telegrams from the front, who take photographs under fire and slip them across unfriendly frontiers, who seek to tell the world at its supper and breakfast tables of the doings of the day and night.

The contributed editorial for tomorrow's Daily Press has been prepared by Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, secretary of the Charity Organization Society, and she will set forth some of the difficulties which will confront that organization this winter. It is feared that they will have almost double the work that they have had in any season in the past.

Thousands of men are being killed daily in Europe; tens of thousands are out of work and in want in this country; an election will be held in less than a month and there's another revolution being started in Mexico. But what are all those trivial things as compared with the world's series baseball games! That's what the fan says.

Judging from recent developments there are two things that are bound to come in this country in the life time of most of us. One is national prohibition, and the other is general woman suffrage.

Rummage sales seem to be very much the thing these days. Two are planned to take place within a stone's throw of the Daily Press office within the next week.

"Play Ball!" by a single umpire in Philadelphia was heard from one end of the country to the other this afternoon.

WATER COMPANY MAKING INSPECTION OF HYDRANTS

John Schenck, engineer for the Plainfield-Union Water Company, is now engaged in making the annual inspection of water hydrants throughout the city ad borough, prior to the arrival of winter weather. Already he has found some of the hydrants needing atention said to be due to alleged carlessness on the part of drivers of the water wagons who do not open and close the hydrants properly.

There is some talk of erecting special pipes from which water wagons can be filled more easily and thereby doing away with the use of hydrants for that purpose. This matter was considered by the Comon Council at one time, but nothing came of the proposition. With the completion ofthe water company's new reservoir the concern is now in a position to maintain an even pressure in the mains.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Robert Bogardus, who is the local representative of three hustling daily newspapers, is planning to make an early start on his regular autumnal pedestrian tours. Mr. Bogardus is a rival of the celebrated Edward Payson Weston (Weston the Walker) and regards a stroll from Dunellen to New Brunswick as a mere before breakfast jaunt. Robert Bogardus, the popular and well known newspaper man, who has been the efficient local representative of the Plainfield Press for some time, is now blossoming out as a sort of associated press. He is handling the local work at present for both the New Brunswick Home News, Plainfield Daily Press and the Courier News, and doing it well.—Dunellen Call.

EVENING CLASSES PROVE POPULAR

Over 200 Pupils Are Enrolled for Different Studies at High School.

The registration for evening High School work in the three nights the building was open, this week, shows a demand much greater even that was anticipated. Two hundred and four pupils have already signified their desire to take one or more subjects in the evening classes. Undoubtedly still more will come in when the classes are opened, next Tuesday evening. Taken in connection with the 200 pupils expected in the elementary grades, the evening school work will assume large proportions this winter.

The preferences, as shown in the enrollment, were mainly as follows: Stenography, 31; typewriting, 46; bookkeeping, 40; spelling, 14; English, 26; arithmetic, 22; penmanship, 25; comercial law, 6; sewing, dressmaking, 22; millinery, 8; domestic science, cooking, 13; mechanical drawing, 60; woodwork, 9; shop work, 6; algebra, 23; geometry, 23.

Superintendent Maxson is trying to arrange plans for giving work in each of these subjects to all that may apply.

WOLVES OF LABRADOR.

Story of a Child and the Squaws Who Tried to Save Her.

A Labrador missionary, says Mortimer Batten in the Wide World Magazine, told me a curious story which occurred on the Labrador coast some years ago. One night the little daughter of a certain brave was missing, and, on discovering the child's tracks in the snow, a party of squaws set out to look for her.

What was their alarm when, a little way from camp, they found that the footprints of a great gray wolf accompanied those of the child. The brute did not appear to have harmed her, but had apparently frisked along ahead, enticing the child farther and farther from camp. In all probability the child mistook it for a dog and followed readily, though the superstitious Indians, of course, believed that the brute had exercised some devilish influence over her.

Darkness was creeping on and, though much afraid, the squaws continued to follow the tracks of the wolf and the child. Night found them far from home, when what was their horror to find that they themselves had been deceived and were now surrounded by wolves!

Only one squaw survived the night of horror that ensued to return next morning to bear tidings of the calamity to camp.

SHORTHAND BLUNDERS.

Misplaced or Wrong Vowels Lead to Queer Translations.

A volume could be filled with amusing stories of shorthand mistakes, the greater number of them due to mistaken vowels. For instance, "This day is big with fate" was transcribed "This day is big with fat," while "Do not indulge in spite" came out "Do not indulge in spit," and "A house of many gables" was transcribed into "A house of many gabbles."

The use of the wrong vowel may have the most amusing result, as in the phrase "Man, know thyself," which was once converted in the report of a sermon into "Man, gnaw thyself." To misplace a vowel is in shorthand the easiet thing in the world. T. A. Reed, the well known reporter, tells of a pupil who by this means turned "mighty acts" into "mighty cats," and another report of a sermon was spoiled by the advice "Return a blow with an ax," instead of "a kiss."

The "reporting style," in which the vowels are omitted altogether for the sake of rapidity, is responsible for the famous American story of the shorthand clerk who took down a note of his wife's instruction to "be sure to remember to bring home some castile soap" and, as a result, returned home with a tin of oxtail soup!—London Strand Magazine.

No Airs About Her.

"Airs!" exclaimed the proud mother and shook her head vigorously. "My Elsie, for all her learning, hasn't any more airs, so to speak, than her poor old dad."

"Then she won't turn up her nose at her old friends?" queried the visitor.

"La, no!"

"How refreshing! Most girls who go through college nowadays will hardly look at you after they're graduated."

"Well, they ain't like my Elsie, that's all I can say," retorted Elsie's ma. "She's become a carnivorous reader, of course, and she frequently importunates music, but stuck up—my Elsie? Not a bit! She's unanimous to everybody, has a most infantile vocabulary and, what's more, never keeps a caller waiting while she dresses up. No, she just runs down, nom de plume, as she is."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The weekly fifteen-cent suppers that are served on Tuesdays and Saturdays will not begin for about two weeks yet.

The Junior Bible Class has found it necessary to change its meeting time from Thursday afternoon to Monday at 4 o'clock. Miss Aller is the leader and the subject of the course is "Before Jesus Came."

Noonday lunches are being served every day at the association and all business and factory girls are invited. Soup, tea and cocoa are served and girls may take their lunches there and buy these things. The rest room and the piano are open for use at noon.

JUNIOR PRACTICE.

Captain Chauncey Stout, of the Elks' Junior League team, announced this morning that the regular weekly practice of those trying for the team would be held this evening, starting at 8 o'clock. In order that there might be no confusion with the regular bowlers, the house committee gave special permit to Stout's warriors to have use of the alleys without interference. All brothers desiring to try for the team should be on hand early.

FRIENDS LEARN OF A DOUBLE WEDDING

John and Howard Toms, Jr., Bridegrooms in Interesting Ceremony.

The details of a double wedding which took place recently in St. Paul's church, New York, and which united two young couples widely known locally, were made public, today, occasioning much surprise to many friends. The ceremonies were performed on August 27 last, the bridegrooms being brothers. They are John Toms and W. Howard Toms, Jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Toms, of Warrenville. John Toms wedded Miss Katherine Winzenreid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winzenreid, of Lee place, while Howard Toms and Miss Ida Hauser, daugater of Rev. and Mrs. George Hauser, of Warrenville, were united immediately afterwards. Rev. J. F. von Herrlich, assistant rector of the church, was the officiating clergyman, each couple acting as attendants for the other.

The families of the contracting parties were apprised of the nuptial event soon after it took place, but no formal announcement has yet been made. Mr. and Mrs. John Toms are making their home in Elizabeth, where the former is employed in the plant department of the New York Telephone Company. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Toms are keeping house at 43 Harrison avenue, the borough. Mr. Toms is a valued employe of the Woodbrook Farms. Both couples have hosts of friends throughout Plainfield and vicinity, and a number of them are arranging a reception to be accorded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Howard Toms at Warrenville within the next two weeks.

BOARD MAY ISSUE SHORT TIME NOTES

Corporation Counsel Advises Against Selling Bonds for New School.

Matters pertaining to the erection of the proposed new school on Evergreen avenue were considered at a joint conference of the Common Council and the Board of Education held last night in the Council chambers, but no definite action was decided upon. William S. Tyler, representing the Board of Education, told of the need of additional school facilities, explaining that at present there are seven classes on half-time, and he presented figures to show the need of another school to meet the increase in attendance.

Corporation Counsel Chas.A. Reed, speaking for the city and the Common Council, explained that owing to the preset stringency of the money market and the difficulty experienced in selling bonds of any kind, he thought this an inopportune time to undertake the project of erecting a new school.

It was suggested, however, that it might be possible to issue short-time notes, as a temporary measure, until such time as there is relief in the money situation.. It was the opinion of some of the school commissioners that this plan would make it possible to start the work before cold weather sets in and give employment to many Plainfield men.

E. M. Waldron & Co., of Newark, was the low bidder for the school work, but as yet the Board of Education has not awarded the contract. The matter will probably be held up for a short time until it is decided whether to issue short time notes or not.

MISS REED TO WED.

Miss Madeline Reed, daughter of Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of this city, and William Arrott, of Philadelphia, will be married tomorrow afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents. Owing to the recent death of Mrs. Reed's sister, Mrs. Madeline Mack, of Somerville, the affair will be a quiet one. There will be no reception.

PLANS TO ATTACK CARMAN DEFENSE

District Attorney Said to Have Prepared Several Sensations.

New York, Oct. 9—Whatever may develop along the line of sensations promised by counsel for Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman when she goes on trial next week charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise Duryea Bailey, it will be well matched by sensations that District Attorney Smith is said to have prepared.

It was declared today that District Attorney Smith had the indictment changed to first degree murder because of the reports laid before him by detectives he had working on the case.

Smith scoffs at the statement of George M. Levy, associate counsel for the accused woman, to the effect that the defense will not only prove Mrs. Carman's innocence, but indicate that a man was the murderer of the Hempstead woman.

"If Mr. Levy or Mr. Graham, his associate, knows that a man killed Mrs. Bailey, it is incumbent upon them to lay such facts before the district attorney," said Smith.

Mendelssohn Surprised Them.

The church of St. John's, Waterloo road, has an interesting association with Mendelssohn. The late R. J. Horsley, R. A., tells in his reminiscences how the great musician, while staying with a friend on Denmark hill—in the house where he wrote the "Spring Song"—was induced to go to St. John's one Sunday morning and give a recital on the organ. On reaching the organ loft Mendelssohn was annoyed to find himself exposed to the full view of the congregation and vented his displeasure in a thunderous improvisation which greatly startled the worshipers, used as they were to the "subdued" music then in vogue. Not being in the secret, they were still further surprised when the music ceased and the eccentric performer sprang up, clapped on his hat and abruptly left the building.—Westminster Gazette.

Treaties.

A treaty is a form of disagreement between two countries reduced to language which enables each of them to crawl out of it. It belongs in the same family as the insurance policy except that no one can understand an insurance policy, whereas a treaty reads as though it were perfectly plain until something happens that makes one of the parties to it wish to get out of it. Treaties are used for various purposes—to promote typewriting agencies, lawyers, diplomats and to furnish material for editorial writers to convey the impression that they know something of what they are writing about. The principal use of treaties, however, is to bring on wars. —Life.

Didn't Have to Ask.

"I didn't ask her, mother," said Elsie; "I know where she keeps them."—Delineator.

Ides of March.

In the calendar of old Rome the fifteenth day of the months of March, May, July and October and the thirteenth day of the rest of the months were known as ides. In old Roman writings one hears of the "ides of March," which is a poetic way to express the date.

WAR IN ALL ITS WORST HORRORS

Moments When No Man May Boast of His Courage.

FIGHTING FOE EYE TO EYE.

Charging Over Heaps of Bodies, Going Almost Mad From Thirst After Giving Horses Last Drop of Water—"A Gentleman Has to Do That," Says Zouave Hero Wounded at Meaux.

"That is the story, without any retouching of my pen, of a young lieutenant of zouaves whom I met after the battle of Meaux, with blood still splashed upon his uniform," says Philip Gibbs of the New York Times-London Chronicle war service in a dispatch from Creil.

Said this zouave, who was put out of action by a piece of shell

"They did good things, those zouaves of mine, but it wasn't pleasant work. We fought from village to village, very close fighting, so that sometimes we could look into our enemy's eyes. The Moroccans were with us. The native troops are unlike my boys, who are Frenchmen, and they were like demons with their bayonet work.

"Our gunners were shelling Germans from pillar to post, as it were, and strewing the ground with their dead. It was across and among these dead bodies that we infantry had to charge.

Quick Firers' Clever Style.

"The enemy's quick firers were marvelous. They always maneuver them in the same style, and a very clever style it is. First of all, they mask them with infantry. Then when the French charge they reveal them and put us to the test under the most withering fire. It is almost impossible to stand against it, and in this case we had to retire after each rush for about 250 meters. Then quick as lightning the Germans got their mitrailleuses across the ground which we had yielded to them and waited for us to come on again, when they repeated the same operation.

"It is quite untrue to say that the Germans have a greater number of mitrailleuses than the French. I believe that the proportion is exactly the same to each division, but they handle them more cleverly, and their fire is much more effective than ours.

"The German aeroplanes are really wonderful in the way they search out the positions of our guns. We always know that within half an hour of observation by aeroplane shells will begin to fall above gunners unless they have altered their position.

"For four days this hunting among the villages on the left bank of the Ourcq went on all the time, and we were not very happy with ourselves. The truth was we had no water and were four days thirsty. The heat was terrific during the day, and some of us were almost mad with thirst. Our tongues were blistered and swollen. Our eyes had a silly kind of look in them and at night we had horrid dreams. It was intolerable agony.

Thirsted That Horses Might Drink.

"I have said we were four days without drink, and that was because we used our last water for our horses. A gentleman has to do that, you will agree. Even then the horses had to go without a drop of water for two days, and I'm not ashamed to say, I wept salt tears to see the sufferings of those poor innocent creatures who did not understand the meaning of all this bloody business and who wondered at our cruelty.

"The nights were dreadful. All around us were burning villages and at every faint puff of wind sparks floated about them like falling stars.

"But other fires were burning. Under the cover of darkness the Germans had piled the dead into great heaps and had covered them with straw and paraffin, then they had set a torch to these funeral pyres.

"Carrion crows were about in the dawn that followed. One of my own comrades lay very badly wounded, and when he wakened out of his unconsciousness one of these beastly birds was sitting on his chest waiting for him to die. That is war.

"When Every Man Is a Coward."

"The German shells were terrifying. I confess to you that there were times when my nerves were absolutely gone. I crouched down with my men (we were in open formation) and ducked my head at the sound of the bursting shell, and I trembled in every limb as though I had a fit of ague.

"It is true that in reality the German shells are not very effective. Only about one in four explodes nicely, but it is a bad thing when, as happened to me, the shells popped around in a diameter of fifty meters. One hears the zip-zip of bullets, the boom of the great guns, the ste-tang of our French artillery, and in all this infernal experience of noise and stench the screams at times of dying horses and men joined with the fury of gun fire and rising shrill above it, no man may boast of his courage. There were moments when I was a coward with all of them.

"But one gets used to it, as to all things. My ague did not last long. Soon I was shouting and cheering. Again we cleared the enemy out of the village of Bregy, and that was where I fell, wounded in the arm pretty badly by a bit of shell."

TWO MEETINGS FOR LEAGUE FORMATION

City Lodge Bowlers and State Eagles Meet in This City Tonight.

Two important bowling league meetings will be held in this city tonight, when the representatives of the State Eagles' League will meet in the local club rooms on Second street and the city league delegates confer in the offices of V. W. Nash, Jr., on Park avenue. The former meeting will be for final arrangements for the starting of the league and a schedule will be submitted for acceptance. The league will probably be started in the course of the next couple of weeks and the prizes will also be decided on tonight.

The city league meeting is the second this week and will be held to discuss plans for the running of the league and about the schedule. There are six lodges in this league which will undoubtedly be very interesting as soon as things are going in full swing. Mr. Nash is the temporary chairman and James Mahoney, the Eagles' delegate, is the secretary.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR BILLIARD LEAGUE

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9—Arrangements have been completed for the opening of the season of the Interstate Three-cushion Billiard League next Monday night. Thirteen cities are to be represented in the league this year, the circuit having been doubled in size. Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Milwaukee, Indianapolis and Buffalo were the members last year. Chicago and Cleveland will each have two representatives.

The new cities are Kansas City, Cincinnati, Toledo, Rochester and Buffalo. Johnny Kling, former Chicago baseball player, and who will represent Kansas City, and Jerome Keough, former champion pocket billiard player, are the most noted of the new players, although Pierre Manpome, the Mexican, who will represent Philadelphia, is almost as well known.

Chicago will be represented by Charley Morin and Jess Lean. Another Chicago player, Charles LeGros, will be seen in action. He will play for Cincinnati.

The tournament this year is expected to be the biggest three-cushion event ever staged. Last year the prize money approximated $800. This year it will total nearly $2,000. The greatest portion of this amount has been donated by the roomkeepers of the league. An additional $300 has been added for forfeit money to enable the winner to challenge the holder of the world's three-cushion title. August Kieckhofer, who won the championship last year, again will represent Milwaukee.

BOB HAMILTON ASSISTANT.

Bob Hamilton has been elected assistant manager of the Holy Cross football team. He has been spending the summer building a dock and tearing down a mountain with Tom Muir at Lake Hopatcong.

NOVEL SCHEME TO BE TRIED BY RAILROAD

Patrons Will Receive World's Series Returns Inning by Inning.

The baseball fan who happens to be a passenger on a daylight train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad during the progress of the World's Series is going to have an opportunity to keep up with the games, beginning today, inning by inning. And he will not have to leave his seat to do it.

The score will be flashed all along the line of the railroad and trainmen will announce it by innings in every car. It will also be posted in the diners and in the smoking compartments of sleepers and parlor cars. The score also will be posted on the bulletin boards in stations where newspaper bulletins are not convenient.

One feature of the opening of the World's Series from a Lehigh Valley standpoint was the special all-steel train arranged by the Buffalo News for fans from that city. It left Buffalo last night and reached Philadelphia early this morning.

BRUGGY PLAYS BASKETBALL.

Frank Bruggy, under contract to catch next season for the Boston National League club, yesterday signed to play basketball during the coming season with the Gloversville club on the New York State League circuit. Bruggy played with the Gloversville team last winter and proved a star performer, running close to the individual lead for field goals scored during the season. He is the only member of the 1913-14 Gloversville quintet to return this season.

OLDRING RELEASED.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—"Rube" Oldring, the Athletics' outfielder, who was arrested yesterday afternoon on charges brought by his wife, was released on bail, and it was stated by his teammates that "things have been so fixed that Oldring won't be kept out of the series."

BIG GAME ON AT PARKER FIELD

Cliff Randolph Will Oppose Gene Mathews at Parker Field Tomorrow.

The World's Series crowds will have nothing on the mob that goes to Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, to see Jack Martin perform with his bunch of old Clinton Avenue men who played for the title of this city many years ago. Their opponents will be Dorflinger's Pets, who came in the limelight last week, when they shutout the Saurer champs by one run. The game will probably be a fine exhibition as Jack has secured all the 1907 champions and will have the same team on the field tomorrow that played seven years ago for the title.

Cliff Randolph will make his first appearance in this city in a long time and many will undoubtedly go to the game to see what Mack's recruit can do in the pitching line. Billy O'Loughlin has been practicing with the big mit on his right hand for some time and will be there to receive Cliff's fast ones as they ride across the middle of the plate provided Lou Dixon does not get one of his usual three baggers. Jim Emery will play the Benedict Arnold stunt and perform at third base against the Pets. He has played second base for the local team in the last Saurer series. Jack will cover the shortfield and Brit Martin will be on second.

Gene Mathews has again been signed by Dorflinger to do the pitching duties and will know his teammates better after one game's experience. It will be remembered that it was the Bound Brook man's hit that helped win his own game last week in the eighth inning. He has all the stuff that a pitcher needs but last week he was a bit timid as this was his first appearance in this city. Brown will cover the position behind pitcher tomorrow in the absence of Emery and Norman Harney will adorn the right garden. All of the other players will be the same.

The Daily Press will have the results of the big game in Philadelphia announced at the field as soon as possible after they reach the office and a score by innings of the league game will be kept. There is some talk of a big league scout visiting the field to give Jim Emery "the once over" and see if he is made of big league material and if such a visitor arrives there is no doubt but what he will be favorably impressed with Jim's performances. The game will start at 3:30.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF THAT SUNDAY SCHOOL B. B. LEAGUE

Many local basketball fans are wondering what has become of the junior basketball league that was to be started among the local Sunday-schools. About six weeks ago the league was almost formed and then it suddenly fell through. There were six good teams that had practically agreed to enter but nothing has been done lately regarding the matter.

Paul R. Collier was asked to give a cup to the winner and readily agreed to if at least five teams would enter so as to make the league interesting to the public.

HUNT CLUB ANNOUNCES ITS RUNS FOR OCTOBER

Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H., of the Watchung Hunt Club, has announced the following schedule of runs for October, in which farmers are invited to take part:

October 12, Mt. Pleasant, 9:30 a. m.; 14, kennels, 3:30 p. m.; 17, Water Tower, Netherwood, 3 p. m.; 21, kennels, 3:30 p. m.; 24, Plainfield Horse Show grounds, 3 p. m.; 28, Plainfield Country Club, 3:30 p. m.; 31, New Market pond, 3 p. m.

SAW THE GIANTS WIN.

Among those at the Polo Grounds, yesterday afternoon, when the Giants beat the Yankees in a ten-inning game, the first of the city series, was Roundsman Charles Flynn, of the local police department. The Yanks were beaten after putting up a hard fight, Doyle's single in the tenth frame scoring Bescher, who had previously clouted the pill for a triple.

BOUND BROOK BOY ON RUTGERS' ELEVEN

Somerset County Youths Taking Prominent Part in Athletics.

The biggest surprise of the football season was experienced at Rutgers, last Saturday, when Howard F. R. Mason, of Bound Brook, started the game against Rensselaer at guard for the New Brunswick team. Mason, who hails from Bound Brook High School, is one of the giants of the Rutgers squad, weighing over two hundred pounds, but none of the students suspected that he would start the R. P. I. contest.

The Somerset boy played an excellent game, however, and is assured of a place on the team. He gained his position at guard in spite of the fact that he was opposed by several men who have already won their varsity letters, among them Ralph Todd, Warren McClosky, Bradley Folensbee and Harvey I. Todd.

Clarkson A. Cranmer, of Somerville, has been selected as a member of the Rutgers Glee and Mandolin Club for the coming year. Cranmer is a musician and singer of no mean ability, and his selection is considered a big honor.

LOCAL ELKS BOWL 200 SCORES IN PRACTICE

The Elks' senior bowling team practiced on the club alleys last night and all of the players hit the pins for high scores. Edward A. Laing smashed the club record for this year with a 256, which beats Pope's 248 by a good margin. All of the men made two hundred scores and from the present outlook the Jersey City "Bills" will have their hands full when they roll the first game of the league season against the locals here next Thursday.

Chauncey Stout's juniors will occupy the alleys tonight and are getting in trim for their league which starts soon. This team has not yet been picked but there is some good material out for places.

DAILY PRESS WORLD'S SERIES RETURNS AT PARKER FIELD TOMORROW.

The Plainfield Daily Press will furnish the fans who attend the game at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, with detailed accounts of the world's series games after each inning is played. Jack Martin, the Daily Press baseball writer, who will play on the team that will oppose the Pets, will megaphone every play made in the Philly-Boston contest, details being furnished by this paper.

Arrangements have been made by Manager Dorflinger to receive a large crowd at the field and the added feature is expected to prove an attraction to many who would otherwise have spent their time watching the scoreboard in the central part of the city.

DUNNING Y. M. C. A. MANAGER.

Frank O. Dunning, last year a member of the North Plainfield High School basketball team, has been appointed manager of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team for the coming season to succeed James J. McNamee, who has resigned. Dunning is a candidate for the team this year and is already busy booking a schedule of formidable rivals.

HOLY CROSS WILL PLAY GLENMORES

Fast Brooklyn Eleven Will Appear on Cricket Field Tomorrow Afternoon.

The Holy Cross football players will meet one of the fatest teams of Brooklyn tomorrow afternoon on the Cricket Field, when the strong Glenmore A. C. team will appear here. The locals will have to go some to come out ahead as this team holds the amateur championship of Brooklyn and plays all the good teams of that place and Greater New York. The borough team is all ready for the fight and will have a short practice tonight on Marshall Field, on Watchung avenue. The same men will be used tomorrow that played the opening game last week and will undoubtedly make as good, if not a better, showing than in the initial encounter.

Coach Martin wishes to give all the candidates a show in the first few games, but last week no chances could be taken by putting in new men. The Brooklyn team will come here tomorrow with the expectation of taking the measure of the boroughites and will use their strongest men against the locals. The game will start at 3:30 and the admission fee has been lowered considerably.

"EVANGELINE" WILL BE SHOWN AT Y. M. C. A.

Longfellow's "Evangeline," in motion pictures, will be shown at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium this afternoon and evening and at the regular Saturday performances tomorrow. This great film was produced by the Canadian Bioscope Company at a cost of $30,000 and is considered as one of the finest ever made.

Those who have read or studied this work would be greatly interested as it produces it in a way that books fail to do. Once this picture is seen it will never be forgotten. The picture will be shown at 2:00, 3:45, 7:00 and 8:45 p. m. both days.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE OF KING'S DAUGHTERS HOLD A RALLY

The first fall meeting of the Brightside Circle of King's Daughters was held at the home of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of 16 Mountain avenue, yesterday afternoon, with a good attendance. Mrs. Jones is president of the organization and had charge of the devotional exercises which preceded the regular business meeting. The regular routine business was held and readings from the Silver Cross were given by Mrs. C. Frank French and Mrs. L. W. Randolph.

Mrs. Maria Claypoole, who was before her death, the oldest member of the organization and the founder, was greatly missed at the meeting. It had been the custom to hold the meetings at her home each year, but now they will be held at the homes of the various members. The society is still doing good work of helping the poor and also along other lines.

BELGIAN RELIEF FUND NEARING $1,000 MARK

At a meeting of the local women who form the Belgian Relief Fund Committee, which was held yesterday a the home of Mrs. Frederick Wallace, 996 Hillside avenue, encouraging reports of the success of the work in this city were received. Already between $900 and $1,000 has been contributed for the relief of the women and children who have been left husbandless and fatherless in King Albert's kingdom. Most of this money has been raised through subscriptions given to the members of the committee, but some has been sent to the Daily Press to forward to those interested. The Press will be glad to receive and acknowledge further contributions for the cause.

The despatches from the scene of the fighting around Antwerp indicate that before that city falls thousands more of the Belgians will be lost, which will, of course, increase the suffering and want of those dependent upon them. Antwerp is reported to be within range of the big guns, and homes are being destroyed by the hundreds. That means that the already large list of homeless will be greatly increased. Hence the need for funds for the aid of the non-combatants grows greater every day. Every person who can possibly spare a little to aid the cause (no contribution is too large or too small) is urged to send the money to the Daily Press or to the members of the committee.

P. O. OF A. TO HOLD A DISTRICT MEETING HERE

Mrs. Andrew McDowell, of this city, district president for Union county of the Patriotic Order of America, has appointed a district meeting to be held in the rooms of Camp No. 8, in the Babcock building, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. This will be the initial district meeting between Camp No. 1, of Plainfield, and Camp No. 60, of Elizabeth, and plans are being made for an enjoyable time.

Camp No. 1 was the only one in Union county from 1901 until February 3 of this year, when Camp No. 60 was instituted. All the members are urged to be present, as it is expected that Miss Hannah Myers, of Camp No. 8, Jersey City, national conductor, and George Smith, of Phillipsburg, national secretary, will attend. After the business session there will be an open meeting at which friends of both camps are invited.

MISSIONARY AND AID HOLD ALL-DAY MEETING

The annual all day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society, of Warren chapel, was held in the church parlors yesterday. Sewing began at 10 o'clock and hot luncheon was served at 1 o'clock. Mrs. John Higgins had charge of the lunch and was ably assisted by a large committee consisting of Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Mrs. Joseph Randall, Mrs. Peter Seader, Mrs. Frank Causbrook, Mrs. David Kline, Mrs. William Baker, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. William Newmiller, Mrs. J. H. Snyder and Miss Hattie Taynor.

Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, president of the society, had a general supervision of the meeting and the sewing work was in charge of Mrs. Henry Bishop, who was assisted by Mrs. Henry Woodland, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. Charles Harring and Miss Frances Bishop. The sewing work is being done for the box which is to be sent to the Pease School for Orphan Children at North Carolina. Meetings will be held every Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock until the sewing work is completed.

NEW CHORAL SOCIETY TO HAVE LARGE MEMBERSHIP

Plans for the new Choral Society to be organized by the Public Recreation Committee are well under way and many prominent musicians of the city have expressed their pleasure that Plainfield is to have a large chorus able to give productions of the oratorios of the masters.

All singers and those interested are urged to be at the meeting Tuesday, October 13, at 8 p. m., in the auditorium of the Franklin School, Arlington avenue and Fourth street.

A chorus of two hundred voices is hoped for and S. Frederick Smith, the musical director, will begin work on an oratorio at once, possibly Handel's "Messiah."

H. S. CLUB MET.

The Plainfield High School Commercial Club held an interesting meeting in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, the attendance being large and the program of speech-making very appropriate. Miss Rae Canter, a former pupil in the Plainfield institution, gave a demonstration of speed work on the typewriter.

RUMMAGE SALE.

The rummage sale under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle, King's Daughters, was opened this morning at the store until recently occupied by Mrs. L. J. Denton. A large number attended the sale today. The sale will be continued tomorrow.

RESCUE MISSION NOTES.

John Blower will be in charge of the service at the Rescue Mission this evening. The Sunday evening service will be in charge of Sidney T. Perrine, at which time there will be special music and singing.

SCENE OF BATTLE OF THE AISNE LIKE COUNTRY TORN BY CYCLONE

Striking Descriptive Story Tells How One Town Was Razed by Shells.

Daring Exploit of a French Air Man—Remarkable Incidents at the Front.

A REMARKABLE pen picture of the Aisne firing line and the destruction wrought in the greatest battle of the world's history is given in a dispatch to the New York Times:

Going over the battlefield of the Marne we found the battle had followed much the same tactics as a cyclone, in that in some places nothing, not even the haystacks, had been disturbed, while in others everything, the villages, roads and fields had been utterly devastated by shells.

[illegible] carelessly over the [illegible] where the road dipped [illegible] into the town, we were in direct line with the German fire, as great holes in the ground and fallen trees testified. On the way in we noticed a church steeple shot completely off, so after finding an inn, where the proprietor came from the cellar and offered to guard our car and prepare luncheon, we decided first to examine the church. The innkeeper explained that we had come during a lull in the bombardment, but the silent, deserted place lulled all sense of danger. The verger showed us over the church, and we were walking through the ruined nave when suddenly we heard a sound like the shrill whistling of the wind.

"It begins again," our conductor said simply. As the speech ended we heard a loud boom and the sound of falling masonry as a shell struck the far end of the building. We hurried to the hotel, the shells screaming overhead. We saw the buildings tumbling into ruins, glass falling in fine powder and remnants of furniture hanging grotesquely from scraps of masonry.

Sensation Under Fire.

All my life I had wondered what would be the sensation if I ever were under fire—would I be afraid? To my intense relief I suddenly became fatalistic. I was under fire with a vengeance, but instead of being afraid I kept saying to myself, "Being afraid won't help matters; besides, nothing will happen if we just keep close to the walls and away from the middle street."

On the way we met two men in English uniform, who later denounced us as spies. We hailed them, and they replied that they had been cut off from their regiment and were now fighting with the French. Just as luncheon was announced eight soldiers filed into the hotel, arrested us and marched us before the commandant, who saw that our papers were all right, but suggested that on account of the dangerous position we leave as soon as possible.

During the episode of arrest there was another lull in the bombardment, which began again as we were seated at luncheon. All through the meal the shells whistled and screamed overhead, and the dishes rattled constantly on the table.

When the meal was over the proprietor called us to witness what had happened to the far wing of the hotel. It was completely demolished. "Alert" had just been sounded, and the soldiers were running through the streets. We ran out in time to see a building falling half a block away, completely filling the street by which we had entered the town an hour earlier.

Airship In a Hail of Shells.

In a few minutes we heard the sharp crackle of infantry fire about half a mile away, and we had a sudden desire to get away before the automobile retreat was cut off. Just then we heard the sound of an aero engine overhead. It was flying so low that through a glass we could easily see the whirring propeller. The machine was mounted with a rapid fire gun which was trying to locate the German gunners, who immediately abandoned the destruction of the town in an attempt to bring it down. For ten minutes we saw shells bursting all about it. At times it was lost in smoke, but when the smoke cleared there was the monoplane still blazing away, always mounting to a higher level, and finally disappearing toward the French lines.

We passed the night at a village where considerable execution had been done by German shells. We saw one curious effect of them. In a historic building near the city hall there was a shell imbedded in the wall, with a plate affixed beneath it, showing it struck there in the year 1814. Just next to it was an unexploded shell of a hundred years after sticking in the wall.

We again struck out toward the battle line, but when we were within sound of the firing the authorities decided we had seen enough of war and detained us for two days as guests of a regimental staff which was quarter[illegible] There we were [illegible] the French soldiers with them and slept with them in the straw until finally orders came to send us to Paris.

A Story of Heroism.

French soldiers were walking into German ambush. French and English who tried to signal them were picked off by sharpshooters. Only way to intercept them was over open land raked by German guns. Two English cyclists were shot down trying to ride it. A third made it through an inferno of bullets. The French commander of the halted column advanced and pinned his medal to the breast of the British cyclist. "It was given me for saving one life," he explained. "I have the honor of giving it to you for saving hundreds."

Convicts Eager to Fight.

Convicts in nearly every prison in England are voluntarily working three hours overtime daily to provide army requisites. Most first offenders are begging to go to the front. A burglar spokesman pleaded to be permitted to "work out the rest of our time on the firing line, if it is only digging trenches."

Added to such names as Alsace Lorraine Jones appear the following on the London insurance register, showing the effect of the war on newcomers in the world: Kitchener Barry, John Jellicoe Walker, George Bank Holiday Smith and Only Fancy Henry White.

A woman of Raon l'Etape during the German bombardment spent four days and nights in the same cellar where in 1870 she took refuge from the Germans.

Tricking Enemy's Air Men.

A correspondent of the London Chronicle sends a description of the crafty way in which the French sappers construct trenches so that they are hidden from the eyes of German aviators.

"I watched them at their task," he says, "and they made it a work of art, covering the trenches most craftily with grass and leaves, so that even German aviators flying low would never perceive these pits along the wayside whence French riflemen would pour withering fire upon the enemy's battalions."

Eats as Legs Are Cut Off.

The immediate amputation of an Austrian officer's legs was necessary. When this information was conveyed to him he said:

"All right, but first give me some food."

The food was furnished and the officer ate all through the operation, which was performed without the administration of an anaesthetic.

Give Up Gems For Guns.

According to reports received in Rome a committee of women has been formed to induce all the women of Germany to give up their gold ornaments to be turned into a fund to buy arms.

Several million marks have thus been gathered. Each woman receives in exchange an iron ring inscribed, "I gave gold for this."

The Merciless Censor.

The strictness of the censorship may be judged from an article in the Echo de Paris, which begins:

"There is no danger of my being indiscreet. I know no more than anybody. But I believe that without saying too much I can say"—

Then followed six lines of blankness. The censor evidently was of opposite opinion to that of the writer.

SECOND LARGEST HARBOR.

That at Rockport, Mass., Will Rank Next to Cherbourg, France.

At Rockport, Mass., close to the tip of the shores of Cape Ann, a breakwater is being built which is one of the most notable examples of marine engineering on record. It was commenced in 1885, when it was estimated that ten years' labor and $5,000,000 would construct it. The completion is not yet in sight, however, the delay having been occasioned by the smallness and infrequency of appropriations which have never been above $200,000. There have been years, indeed, when no stone was laid.

The breakwater, which, in the form of an oblique angle, will shut off Sandy bay from the ocean proper, is, at its angle, two miles out from Rockport and when completed will inclose an area of water of 1,664 acres, making Sandy bay the second largest harbor in the world—that of Cherbourg, France, standing first.

The harbor under construction will have two entrances, one at the north and another at the south, so that, in any wind, it will be an easy matter to make one or the other of the openings.

Smith-Lever Act Is Educational.

Many letters are being received by the United States department of agriculture, which indicate that farm women in various sections believe the government is about to assist them with grants of money. This mistake appears to have arisen through a misunderstanding of the Smith-Lever act, under which funds contributed both by the federal and state governments are made available for practical demonstration work in agriculture and home economics. The purposes of the act are thus entirely educational, and there are no provisions whatever for direct financial assistance.

Tomorrow in New York—at Wanamaker's

The John Wanamaker Store, formerly A. T. Stewart & Co. Eighth to Tenth, Broadway to Fourth Avenue.

Exceptional Purchase of 750 Brand New Garments for Women

Afternoon and Evening Dresses at $19.75 to $75

This collection of new dresses cut in excess of orders by one of the cleverest makers in New York, includes seventeen different styles.

As we took them out of the boxes today, they seemed so pretty that we have planned an exhibition as well as a sale of them in the Gray Salons. They are picture frocks.

Yes, even to the inexpensive black velveteen frock, with its long, graceful lines and white satin collars and cuffs, for as little as $22.50.

The velvet bodice dress comes in black satin; the chiffon overskirt is trimmed with wide black velvet bands, also in white, combined with black, $40.

Serge dresses start as low as $19.50, and evening gowns of exquisite brocades, with bodices embroidered in rhinestones and pearls, are $75.

A great many charming dancing frocks and dresses for afternoon functions, always so much in demand, at $29.50, $32.50 and $42.50.

These are the styles of today only three, four or six of a kind dresses which will be priced at the regular higher rates as soon as this collection is gone. It is just an opportune moment for a woman to pick up a pretty frock that she wishes at a price pleasantly less than she expects.

Exceptional Purchase of Fine Winter Coats at $17.50 to $25

Ten styles in coats of beautiful zibeline and the finer grades of plush, broadtail cloth and Persian lamb cloth.

Built in the new flare model with long plain lines—coats with a great deal of dignity. Lined throughout with fine satin.

They are better coats than we can recall offering in any season at the remarkable prices of $17.50, $19.50, $22.50 and $25.

150 New Skirts, $5

A maker of fine skirts cut up the remainder of certain materials, made them up in two styles, and the collection is here at this one price. Fine Roman striped woollens, corduroy, novelty black and white checks, stripes, plain colored serge and gabardine. Gathered in the back, buttoning down the front and with one pocket.

New Suits at $35

These have the new coat with medium length square tail in back, but cut short in front for youthful women. The new gathered collar is of velvet edged with opossum, and, the skirt is the flare model with deep yoke. Either in fine broadcloth or gabardine, brown, green, navy and black.

Another Day of New Blouses

It is originality that counts in blouse styles these days. Any shop can have old styles and sell them inexpensively — but the Wanamaker Store originates styles and yet offers them for little.

New Models Tomorrow

The cape blouse—a new version of the dernier cri of Paris; fine crepe meteor in white, navy and black, at $9.50.

The blouse bouquet of white crepe de chine, with high black panne velvet collar and rose on the shoulder, $5.

Crepe de chine blouse, with narrow pleated frills and corded silk waistcoat girdle, $5.

Afternoon blouse of crepe chiffon with bolero effect, trimmed with fine lace and braid-bound, in flesh pink, $7.50.

Crepe meteor blouse, with underbodice of chiffon and long tight-fitting sleeves, in soft gold shades, navy or black, $7.50.

Nearly a Thousand Styles

in this Blouse Shop, all new within the last few days and weeks.

Third floor, Old Building.

New Hats at $9, $10, $11

A remarkable collection of moderately priced hats from our French millinery workrooms. Hats with an air, a tilt and individuality seldom equaled at much higher prices.

Only one hat of a kind. Picture hats with ostrich feathers, tiny close fitting turbans with curious quills and a touch of monkey fur, sailors and many, many others.

Customers will find that the head sizes are apt to fit perfectly without any alteration. This saves a great deal of time in selecting one's hat, and it means that the shape is not spoiled by stretching.

French Millinery Salons, Second floor, Old Building.

Serge Apron Frocks for Young Women, $16.50

Over a complete dress of black satin, slips a long straight apron-tunic of serge, fastened at the side with straps. It is bound with satin piping, has a bead design embroidered in front, and collar and vestee of bengaline.

These dresses are new and exceptional value for $16.50. Tete de negre, navy blue, black and Russian green.

Another serge dress, with wide braided belt, white collar and vestee, and bone buttons to give it a tailored air, is $16.50.

Other dresses in silk and serge combinations of cloth and silk or velvet for $10 to $175 (including numberless imported gowns.)

Topcoats for Every Occasion

Beautiful fur cloth, zibeline and corduroy coats for dressy wear; splendid broadcloth, cheviots, velour, zibeline and mixtures for every-day wear, are priced $10 to $47.50.

Find plenty of fur collar coats, too, and note that the fur is the soft, beautiful Kolinski.

Exceptional half satin lined coats if imported zibeline, with new square cape effect, $25.

Broadcloth Suits, $23.50

New finger tip length coats with black caracal cloth collars and cuffs, becoming backs with flowing coat skirts, pretty silk linings, and flannel interlinings are $23.50.

Black, navy and military blue. All these garments in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years.

Second floor, Old Building.

Hundreds of Warranted, Wanted Weaves at About Import Cost

(Below any current price for equal qualities)

These rugs come from a world-large organization which takes approximately two-thirds of the output of Persian Rugs and an even greater proportion of the rugs woven in Asia Minor.

Its agencies in London, Paris, Berlin, Frankfort, Vienna, Budapest and Petrograd have temporarily ceased their great businesses; and there has been an extreme contraction of banking facilities in Asia Minor.

Money required for financing the rug-weavers has been asked of the New York agents, who were instructed to turn as much of their stocks as possible into cash.

So They Come to Wanamaker's

as all dealers in fine merchandise do when they desire quick distribution of a large quantity of goods.

The collection is as fine as it is varied, embracing rugs of virtually all desirable weaves and sizes, from an 18x39 inch mat to a 32x19 foot carpet, every rug embodying the

Three Cardinal Points of an Oriental Rug

(1) Beauty of design, (2) fastness of color, (3) durability. We warrant the two latter. The first point is a matter of individual taste, for the satisfaction of which there is ample variety.

The Persian Rugs

Selected by the large buying force resident in the rug-weaving districts; men who top the list of those who know Oriental rugs and their exact commercial value.

The Asia Minor Rugs

woven in the same manner (by hand) as the Persian rugs. For greater efficiency in their production, the great organization from which these rugs come maintains factories in which the raw wool is assembled, cleaned, spun, dyed, and sold to the individual weaver who weaves his rugs at home and brings them back to be marketed. These rugs are in exquisite and permanent colorings, among the finest that come out of the Orient.

MISS DUNCAN WEDS CLINTON M. BAKER

Rev. F. L. Greene Performs Ceremony at Home of Bride's Parents.

Miss Jessie R. Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan, of West Third street, and Clinton M. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Baker, of Rahway, were married at 8 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated in the presence of about eighty relatives and friends from New York, Rahway and this city.

The bride was gowned in white and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Her only attendants were two flower girls, Veronica and Catherine Wilson, both of whom were dressed in white and carried flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding march was played by Thomas M. Jones, organist of Hope chapel.

Following the ceremony, there was a reception during which supper was served. The couple received the congratulations of the guests prior to their departure on a wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Baker will reside in Rahway, where the bridegroom is engaged in the grocery business with his father.

Mrs. Baker has been active in Hope chapel, being a member of the choir and a teacher in the junior department of the Sunday-school, and last year she was one of the best players on the girls' basketball team at the chapel. She was the recipient of a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends.

The home was attractively decorated for the affair, there being a profusion of palms and autumnal foliage, while in the dining-room the arrangement was especially effective.

LOTUS GLEE CLUB RENDERED FIRST CONCERT IN SERIES

Members of the Lotus Glee Club, of this city, appeared in the first of the series of free public concerts given in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School, last night, the affair being a thoroughly enjoyable one. The solos and quartet numbers were rendered by the various members of the organization, led by F. J. Smith, the director.

The program included the following numbers: "On the Road to Mandalay," by the club; "Roses, Roses Everywhere," by Mr. Hindermyer; "Blow, Bugle, Blow," by the club, "A Chip of the Old Block," by Mr. Lewis; "My Old Cabin Home," by the club; "Awake, Beloved," by Mr. Stricklett; "You Never Can Tell About a Woman," by the club; "A Song of Steel," by Mr. Glenn; "An Act of Up-to-date Grand Opera," with the following characters: Mrs. Tyler, Mr. Hindermyer; Mr. Tyler, Mr. Lewis, and the Janitor, Mr. Glenn; "A Resident of the Fifth Floor, Mr. Stricklett," by the full chorus.

W. C. COREY PESSIMISTIC ABOUT PEACE PROSPECTS

New York, Oct. 9—William E. Corey, the former president of the United States Steel Corporation, arrived in this city on the Lusitania, this morning. In an interview he said that the great thing which struck him while in France, was the total absence of men everywhere. He was far from optimistic about the prospects for peace. "It is ridiculous to talk of peace at the present moment," said Mr. Corey.. "By October of next year will be ample time to even begin talking about peace. From all I could learn the Germans are amply supplied with provisions and munitions of war for at least one and a half years. They will be able to weather one winter and two summers, considering that just past as one summer, but it is probiematical how they will fare during the second winter.

DR TOMLINSON TO PREACH.

Rev. Dr. Everett T. Tomlinson, of Elizabeth, will occupy the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Dr. F. Y. Pierce, who was a stated supply for a month, left this week on an evangelistic tour. He may return later and preach at this church.

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

The princess slip is a most desirable garment for the growing girl. It does away with the belt of the petticoat and is both shapely and comfortable.

This one can be made of lingerie material, as shown here, or it can be made of one of the thin silks.

India silk, crepe de chine and the very thin taffetas are the preferred silks, and for such use the lower edge will preferably be finished with a hem only, although embroidery and lace frills are pretty.

For the twelve year size the slip will require one and three-quarter yards of material thirty-six or forty-four inches wide, with three yards of insertion and two and a half yards of embroidery.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for girls eight to fourteen years. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 8374, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

Some Cookery Suggestions

VEGETABLE SOUFFLES.

FOR luncheon or dinner a vegetable souffle is delicious. Most vegetables may be used for the purpose. Care should be exercised in mixing the ingredients.

Browned in the Oven.

Cauliflower Souffle.—Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs. Chop finely half a pound of cooked cauliflower and add half a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of pepper and grated Parmesan cheese to taste. Mix this with the yolks of eggs and put in a well buttered pie dish with the stiffly beaten whites of eggs on the top. Bake in a quick oven.

Tomato Souffle.—Take three large tomatoes, scald, skin and slice them. Cook in a double boiler with one bay leaf, a teaspoonful of salt, a slice of onion and six peppercorns for half an hour until the tomatoes are thoroughly cooked. Now melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Cook for a few minutes and then add one cupful of the strained juice of the cooked tomatoes. Keep over the fire, and when smooth pour into it the beaten yolks of three eggs and set aside to cool. When cool add the whites of eggs, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in a moderate oven.

Novel Use of Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet Potato Souffle.—Select small sweet potatoes for this purpose. Slice lengthwise in order to get a layer of potato without slicing across the grain. Cut about twice as thick as Saratoga potatoes in order to allow for two crusts to the puff. Drop into cold water for an hour, drain and wipe perfectly dry. Have two pans of fat in readiness, one with the blue smoke just rising and the other rather hotter. Drop a few slices at a time in the first kettle and let them remain until half done. Drain and put them into the oven where they will keep hot for five minutes, then plunge into the second saucepan. Cook until brown.

Spinach Souffle.—Take a half peck of spinach, pick over, wash thoroughly, drain and put into a kettle with a half cupful of water and a teaspoonful of salt. Simmer ten or fifteen minutes, take up, chop and press through a colander. Add two tablespoonfuls of cream, the yolks of four eggs and a dash of cayenne. Fold in the beaten whites of four eggs and turn into a buttered dish. Cover the top with grated breadcrumbs and bits of butter, sprinkle with cheese and bake in a hot oven. Serve with egg sauce.

The Beautiful Seagulls Predict Storms.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Our Animals and Birds Are Natural Barometers.

"KIDDIES, do you know what a barometer is?" asked daddy as Jack and Evelyn ran to him to hear the evening story.

"I do," said Jack, while Evelyn stuck her finger in her mouth and said nothing. "It tells you the weight of the air, and that's how you know whether it's going to rain or be fair."

"Right-o!" said daddy. "But I know several natural barometers aside from that long tube that hangs out in the piazza.

"There is the spider, for instance. When a great wind and rain storm is brewing this busy little insect will run all over his web and shorten and strengthen the guys of his fairy house, and then when the storm is over he lengthens them all out again.

"The beautiful seagulls predict storms by assembling upon the land, not because they are afraid of the storm, but because they know that the rain will bring earthworms and larvae to the surface.

"The swallows fly high in fair weather and skim the ground when foul weather is coming. You see, they follow the flies and gnats which remain in the warm currents of air.

"Swine upon the approach of a storm will carry hay and straw to a hiding place.

"Oxen will lick themselves the wrong way of the hair, sheep will bleat and skip about, and hogs turned out in the woods will go to their pens, squealing and grunting.

"Colts will rub their backs against the ground, crows will gather in flocks, crickets will sing more loudly, frogs will croak and change color to a dingy hue, dogs will eat grass and rooks soar like hawks."

"Daddy, why do they do these things?" asked Evelyn.

"Well," said daddy, "maybe they feel as I do when there is going to be a storm, because, you see, kiddiets, besides being your story telling old daddy, I, too, am a human barometer.

"When there is going to be a storm I have rheumatic pains in my joints and muscles, and on my little toe there is a corn that's a wonder. I guess I just do know when there is a storm coming, for that little corn makes as big a fuss about it as any animal of the lot. Of course it's the electricity in the air that affects us.

"But I do think that the spider is the most wonderful barometer of all, don't you?

"Now, babies, you must skip along to bed while I read the war news.

"So good night and pleasant dreams."

BROADWAY-NEW YORK-33rd STREET

WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR S. A. EDUCATION

First Meeting to Be Held on October 20, With Well Known Speakers.

Plainfield has been selected as the opening place for a vigorous movement looking to the extension of American influence in South America. At a time when American mercantile and transportation interests are having their attention called to the "continent of opportunity," which lies in the South, the American churches are uniting in an endeavor to assist these backward nations in their problem of educating the masses of their people and instilling them with Christian ideas. The National Commission for Latin America, headed by Dr. Robert E. Speer, has planned a campaign, which is to be launched this month in New Jersey, and will be developed all over the country. The first meeting will be here and a local committee, consisting of William C. Hubbard, Arthur M. Harris, George E. Hall, Joseph W. Gavett, William D. Murray, F. E. Smith and James R. Joy, is arranging the details. It will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday evening, October 20. The speakers will be Bishop William Fitz-James Oldham and Herbert S. Harris, the latter presenting a large number of beautiful views of South American buildings and scenery, collected by him on a recent tour of investigation.

The outbreak of the Great War in Europe has brought out very clearly a fact which we have known but have regarded with indifference for several years past; namely, that the United States has been falling far short of getting the share of the trade of our South American neighbors which should naturally be ours. Two circumstances have directed the attention of American business men more than ever before to South America. One is the closing of European markets to American goods on account of the war, and the other is the opening of the Panama Canal, giving us easy access by water to both coasts of the southern continent.

American Failures in Past

The history of our past trade dealings with South American customers is by no means flattering to the United States. Unwillingness to study the needs of buyers, to use the Spanish and Portuguese languages, and to grant long-time credits have made Americans careless of whether they secured any South American trade or not. This they have shown in the unsatisfactory manner in which orders have been filled and the goods packed. The Germans and English on the other hand have taken pains to build up commerce on sound and permanent lines, with every consideration for South American wants. They have been amply rewarded for their pains.

The total commerce of Latin America in 1912 was $2,811,000,000, of which $1,240,000,000 was imports and $1,571,000,000 was exports. The total trade with the United States amounted to about $825,832,000, of which $519,025,000 was exports and $306,807,000 imports. We bought over $200,000,000 more from them than they bought from us. Brazil exports most of her products to the United States. She imports most of her supplies from Europe. Under present European conditions we have an unrivaled opportunity to correct the disparity and to get a fair share of South American business.

Even before war began there was a change for the better. Last year our business with Latin America had an encouraging increase. In the last seven years our trade with the southern republics has gone up from an annual value of $450,000,000 to one of $850,000,000.

If American business men apply themselves to the trade problems intelligently and tactfully they may more than make up for past mistakes. How great the opportunity is can be partly realized by a glance at the size and the vast resources of the continent—the "empty continent" which is now rapidly filling up and which will before many years, Lord Bryce estimates, have a population of more than 200,000,000. Mr. John Barrett gives Americans an idea of the size of the countries to the south of us in a number of striking comparisons:

In Argentina could be placed all that part of our country east of the Mississippi, plus the first tier of states west of it.

Bolivia is half a dozen times larger than the combined areas of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Into Chile could be put four Nebraskas. Peru, would obscure, if placed over Cuba on the map, California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona, Utah and Idaho.

Paraguay is four times bigger than the state of Indiana, while little Uruguay could wrap within its limits North Dakota.

Peru could be twice lost in Venezuela, and still leave room for Kentucky and Tennessee.

Brazil exceeds the whole United States in size by [illegible] square miles. We could put all of the United States, without Alaska, within Brazil and still [illegible] for the major portion of the Continent of Africa.

Into Bolivia Ecuador does not spread [illegible] but it could hold New England, New York and New Jersey.

Chile has an area of Germany, France, Holland and Belgium combined. [illegible] that South America [illegible] as densely [illegible] United States [illegible] as Belgium, [illegible] that the now undeveloped South American republics have a great future and that Mr. Barrett is justified in calling it the Land of To-morrow.

NEGRO FINDS 20-FOOT SNAKE

George Mines, Bound Brook's Sweet Singer, Has Lively Experience.

SHATTERS SKY LINE

Presence of Python in Stable Rafters Causes Sudden Departure of "Gawge," and He is Running Yet, It is Said.

A lion exploded out of the stables of a circus wintering at Bound Brook one night, and, as readers may recall, had to be shot in the rear of Freddy Chiaravalli's barber shop at 407 East Main street, and the very next night toward dawn Douglas Z. Doty, head of the Century Company's publishing department, who used to commute from Bound Brook while doing paternal peg post duty carrying his oldest and only born up and down the room, began to sing "The Campbells Are Comin'," and the whole town, naturally waking up, thought he meant "camels" and again began to flee, and once George Washington and army boarded for the winter at the Chimney Rock Hotel in Chimney Rock road—or was it at the Central, 222 East Main?

Since then nothing much has happened—at least, not until very late last Monday.

Night fell. Now George Mines (he called himself Gawge, but that isn't his real name), who is perhaps the greatest bass singer in all of Bound Brook's Afro-American younger set, decided that masmuch as he had nothing to do between his supper hour and bedtime he'd put it in getting down a lot of hay from the United States Express Company stables at 17 Maiden lane (this story is still in Bound Brook), opposite the Central Railroad freight station, so he wouldn't have to get so much hay down from the hay loft when he got up early next morning, which was yesterday, to spend the day getting down hay from the hay loft.

Gawge was accompanied by an aid, the identity of whom was lost in the subsequent cataclysm. Joe Dunn, expressman and Bound Brook councilman, recalls distinctly, however, that he saw with Gawge a man of about the same general complexion as Gawge and that Gawge and the assistant hay forker, although carrying a lantern rapidly, were submerged in the night and the express stable.

"Gawge," said Councilman Joe, pausing pleasantly at the door of the loft, "what, mayhap, are you about to do?"

"Mr. Dunn," replied Mr. Mines, "I'm going to get down a lot of hay from," etc., relating the substance of a preceding paragraph that begins "Night fell," and which therefore in these days when the war news crowds out so much real live matter need not be repeated in this paragraph in detail.

"And by the way, Gawge," continued Councilman Dunn, "now that you've turned up your lantern wick, I see that what I first took to be a wooden supporting beam just behind you is about as large and certainly the most beautiful specimen of the Ceylon python that it has ever been my good fortune to see. Look, Gawge—swaying gracefully from the rafters behind and just to your left."

Gawge turned around and, sure enough, swinging down from the express company's stable rafters was somebody's python.

You may recall that any time you have ever gone to Bound Brook and taken a good jump out of the loft door of the United Express Company's stables, you almost invariably land about seventy-five feet short of a sign at the crossing that reads, "Stop! Look! Listen!" Although Gawge Mines hit the ground less than five feet short of the sign he could not read its directions because of the darkness. He therefore continued on his way.

For a time he was accompanied by his assistant, no news of whom has been received since yesterday in the late afternoon, when the gateman at the Hazel street crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Wilkesbarre, Pa., while lowering the gates on the supposition that the road's crack train, the Black Diamond Express, was approaching, found that it was a man acting strangely while disappearing around a curve and heading in the general direction of Lake Erie.

Gawge himself stayed around Bound Brook in a manner of speaking. He struck the State of New Jersey twice before stumbling over the skyline of the Ramapo Mountains. He was then so weak from loss of voice that by the time the python had been prodded off the rafter with long, old, extremely long poles in the hands of a posse headed by Station Agent Anthony Feil and Joe Dunn and forced to flop into a barrel, Gawge was persuaded that a hayman's place is in the hay.

You may have the python if you want it, and it's a perfectly good python. Last night it was still in the barrel which, after a slatted cover had been slammed on by Joe Dunn, was rolled over to the freight station. Maybe it is the twenty foot python that was exhibited at Bound Brook when the Tent City Carnival Company gave a show there a few weeks ago. Anyway, as Gardiner Youngman, who catches cusk in the Bound Brook hills and knows every pet in the region, put it last night:

"Take it and no questions asked because we're all agreed around here that nobody in Bound Brook has lost a python."

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, backaches, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back aches or the urine is cloudy, febrile, contains sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a scalding sensation, take a tablespoonful of Jad Salts four times daily, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lithia, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink that everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

My Clearing, Healing Balm instantly clears Nose, Head and Throat, Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharge—Dull Headache Goes.

"Ely's Cream Balm"
Get a small bottle then get to work and put a little in the nostrils and in the morning your stopped nose and stopped up air passages of the head will open. Your head will be clear, the dull headache will go, the catarrhal mucus will loosen and be easily blown out. Its morning's catarrh will be gone. The catarrhal soreness will be gone.
End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nose, penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat. It opens the air passages, stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleanness and soothing relief comes immediately.
Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nose feels dried, hawking and blowing, attacked by a cold, with its running, sneezing, coughing, dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.
Put your faith—just once—in Ely's Cream Balm and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Adv.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"The theatre has never since it was built sheltered a play which has kept an audience swaying so successfully between tears and laughter as 'The Things That Count,' "says Acton Davies, the noted dramatic critic of the New York Evening Sun. Hundreds of others have expressed themselves even in much stronger terms, including leading educators, critics, clergymen, dramatists, actors and prominent persons generally. "The Things That Count" will be seen for the first time in this city at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening.

"Kitty Mackay," the brilliant comedy of love and laughter from the pen of Catherine Chisholm Cushing, will be presented here at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday night. That "Kitty" is a success no one can gainsay; for it takes a comedy of exceptional merit and interest to amuse the "blase" playgoers of the metropolis for more than a year, which "Kitty" has done. This merry romance is said to possess a subtle charm and a heart interest that appeals to all. Winsome "Kitty," a Scotch Cinderella, is taken from a life of poverty and ill-treatment among the Highlands to fashionable London, where she is quick to learn that "all that glitters is not gold." When poor "Kitty" is denied marriage to the man she loves she carries the audience with her sorrow. When she and "Mag" start to rewrite the Bible to suit themselves they do it entirely without offense, but in a manner that convulses with laughter all who hear it. "Kitty" is in no sense a Scotch play. It is said it cannot be compared to "Bunty Pulls the Strings." "Kitty" is all Scotch, herself, but around her are her rivals, the "English," who help furnish the fun. Produced under the masterly direction of William Elliott the charm and fun of the play is shown to the best advantage by such well-known and finished artistes as Irene Haissman, Reginald Denny, Elizabeth Merson, Bertha Kent, John F. Glancy, Jock McGraw, Margaret Calvert and others.

TO DEMONSTRATE PARCEL POST.

Forth Worth, Texas, Oct. 9—A demonstration booth in connection with a substation showing the proper manner of packing and explaining all points connected with parcel post matter, will be maintained at the National Feeders and Breeders' Show which will open in this city tomorrow for a week's engagement. Experts of the Postoffice Department will explain to the stockmen how to pack goods properly, how to figure rates, what classes of goods can be sent by parcel post, and all the rules governing the system.

TO HAVE PROFESSIONAL SUFFRAGE ORGANIZER

Men's League Decides to Employ Man to Work up Sentiment in State.

The New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage will employ a professional organizer whose time will be devoted to increasing the membership of the league and to rousing the interest of voters in the special election which will be held next September, when the question of Votes for Women will be passed upon by the people. There is, of course, the possibility that the next Legislature may fail to pass the concurrent resolution submitting the question to the people, but the best informed opinion seems to be that the fight is over so far as Trenton is concerned.

The action of the State Committee of the Men's League was taken yesterday, after careful study of the suffrage situation throughout the State, and means that this organization will push the work of enrolling voters as rapidly and systematically as possible.

The meeting was held in the office of ex-Senator Everett Colby in Newark. Among those who responded to the call either in person or by letter were: Edgar A. Knapp, of Elizabeth; G. M. Howell, of Paterson; Frank Willing Leach, of Tuckerton; Charles Hecht, of Lakewood; Judge Clarence L. Cole, of Atlantic City; Marion R. Owen, of Absecon; Dr. Edward S. Krans, of Plainfield; Ralph W. Wescott, of Camden; Royal P. Tuller, of Vineland; Hon. George W. V. Moy, of Plainfield; T. Alex. Cairns, of Newark; Hon. Charles O. C. Hennessy, of Haworth; Samuel Wilson, of Newark; E. F. Feickert, of Dunellen; F. E. Bodin, of Watchung; Francis D. Potter, of Bridgeton; Winston Paul, of Jersey City; Hon. Everett Colby, of Orange; Rev. T. J. Scott, of Ocean Grove; Herbert A. Drake, of Camden; Fillmore Condit, of Essex Fells; Rev. Edgar S. Wiers, of Montclair; Champlain L. Riley, of Plainfield, and John T. Simms, of Passaic.

TO ATTEND INSTALLATION.

Rev. Karl A. Martin, who has been in chage of the Swedish Lutheran church here, for several weeks, went to New York, this morning, to attend the installation of Rev. Olaf Lundgren as pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church at Sixth and Hudson streets, West New York, which takes place this evening. The installation will be in charge of Rev. Dr. L. H. Beck, president of the New York Conference of the Swedish Lutheran churches.

NATIONS TO FACE WORSE FOE YET

How Will Armies Bear the Rigors of Winter?

FACTOR IN FORMER WARS.

Has Science Reached the Point Where Cold Weather Can Be Disregarded In the Fortunes of Battle?—Few Exceptions to the Rule of Abatement of Activities In the Past.

When a new factor enters the European war—the cold of winter—the field armies will find a more persistent, a more formidable enemy than the troops of opposing nations. The first advance of winter has been felt already by the soldiers intrenched along the river Aisne. Chilly winds, following a wet week, sent a shiver through the lines of both forces.

More than anything else, says the Kansas City Star, cold weather will hamper the mobility of the armies. Their already heavily taxed transport trains will have the added burden of winter supplies. Troops will not be able to cut loose from their advanced bases even for brief periods. Shelter and warmth will have to be provided at each stop of a marching force, no easy task when millions are on the battle lines.

Undoubtedly the general staffs of both sides have elaborate preparations made to keep the suffering necessarily caused by winter at a minimum, but the greatest human endeavors cannot eliminate all hardship, even if an army is given a permanent station and no movement made until spring.

Winter Dull Time In Former Wars.

Whether the science of war has progressed to the point where winter can be disregarded in a measure is yet an undetermined factor. In almost all the wars since history began the coming of frost has heralded a period of decreasing activity by field armies, while winter has forced generals to establish permanent camps and wait for warmer weather before any extensive operations are started.

Washington had one brilliant success in the Revolutionary war by disregarding the extreme hardships of winter and attacking the Hessians at Trenton. His army remained active several weeks after Christmas that year, but ultimately was forced into inactivity. The sufferings at Valley Forge show the formidable enemy winter can be.

In the Crimean war fighting practically stopped with the battle of Inkerman, Nov. 5, 1854. The Russians retired into Sebastopol, and the allies built a permanent camp of investment around it.

In our civil war considerable fighting was done in the winter months, but all the more important campaigns began in the spring and were suspended when cold weather came.

Sherman's march was made in the winter months, and even in that southern climate the suffering from cold among his troops was intense. Grant campaigned against Fort Henry and Fort Donelson in February, 1862, and the following winter was active in Mississippi.

The Japanese advance on Mukden in 1904 was halted about the 1st of September by severe cold. Neither army was prepared to withstand winter, so for a month the fighting forces lay inactive almost within striking distance. A few engagements were fought in October; then operations practically halted until Feb. 19, when the Japanese army, swathed in overcoats and padded leggings, began to advance.

The investment of cities has been less affected by cold weather than the operations of field armies. The reason is obvious. Investing armies can build permanent earth huts, where a small fire and the bodily warmth of a squad of men will keep them nearly as comfortable as in their own homes. The Japanese assault on 203 Meter hill was made on Nov. 30. Port Arthur capitulated, after a series of assaults, Jan. 2, 1905.

Wars Begun In Spring and Summer.

The war between the Balkan allies and Turkey, contrary to usual custom, began in the fall. Most all wars have been inaugurated in the spring or summer. The troops of Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro started to war with complete winter kits, heavy overcoats, thick blankets and shelter tents.

The fighting in northern Thrace during October was a trying period on the Bulgarian invaders. Their descent on Turkey carried the troops into new camps each night. They rapidly became expert in constructing wind shelters and huts in which bodily warmth took the place of furnaces. The soldiers besieging Adrianople and also the field armies when they reached the Tchataldja lines near Constantinople constructed lean to huts, thatched with reeds and straw. Rolls of thick blanketing were wrapped around the legs of men on duty. Caps were pulled down over the ears.

None of the armies now in the field, except the Russians and Belgians, probably, have headdresses that will afford adequate protection for the winter. All probably will be able to withstand cold fairly well until the first of the year, when winter will begin to make inroads unless protection is given.

—If you have a really desirable house or apartment to rent, your "ad" will constitute GOOD NEWS to some anxious people in this city.

GERMANS IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF ANTWERP; FIRED ON AMERICAN FLAG WHEN BOMBARDING CITY

U. S. PENNANT, FYLING OVER OIL TANKS, WHICH WERE SET ON FIRE—EXPLANATION TO BE ASKED THROUGH AMBASSADOR GERARD.

BELGIANS RAISE WHITE FLAG ON CATHEDRAL

Expect Portugal to Declare War on Germany—Italy to Raise 56,000,000 Francs for War Purposes—Belgians Ordered to Accept German Currency—French Foreign Office Reports That Allies Entire Battle Front Has Been Maintained, Despite Desperate Efforts by Germans to Break Line.

London, Oct. 10, (Central News Cable)—The British war office announced today that Antwerp was evacuated by the Belgians yesterday.

A despatch from The Hague says that the surrender of Antwerp to the Germans occurred at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The war flag was removed from the cathedral and a white flag raised in its place at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The actual surrender took place five and one-half hours later.

A despatch from Amsterdam says that it was announced officially in Berlin today that Antwerp had fallen. The Morning Post says: "We are informed on good authority that Antwerp has fallen." The news was submitted to the press bureau which permitted its publication. The Daily Chronicle says the Germans have entered Antwerp. The inhabitants are quite calm. Most of those who desired to leave the city did so before the bombardment commenced. A news agency despatch from Amsterdam says that thirty-two merchant ships, including a large number of steamers, were blown up in the port of Antwerp.

Advices to the Central News from Charles Hodson, the agency's special correspondent in Antwerp, dated Thursday afternoon said that houses were burning everywhere, and that a continuous torrent of fugitives was crossing the river by means of pontoons. Mr. Hodson said that up to that time more of the public buildings had been hit. They were flying the flag specified by The Hague convention. As a result of the bombardment all the oil tanks along the river were ablaze.

A despatch to the Daily Chronicle says that Henry W. Diederich, U. S. Consul General at Antwerp, arrived in Ghent yesterday with his family.

A wireless message from Berlin gives the following details regarding the fall of Antwerp:

"Yesterday forenoon several forts of the inner line of fortifications of Antwerp fell. The town since midday has been in our possession. The commander and the garrison evacuated the fortifications. Only a few forts are still occupied by the enemy, and this is without influence on our position in Antwerp."

A despatch from Amsterdam says that the correspondent of the Telegraaf at Rosendaal, Holland, learns from a Belgian medical officer that the Belgians blew up Fort De Meuxen, to the north of Antwerp.

The Rotterdam Courant hears from a reliable source that the Belgians themselves destroyed the oil tanks in Antwerp, while another report indicates that Fort Waehle was also destroyed by the Belgians.

A message from Amsterdam says that Berlin expects Portugal to declare war on Germany at any moment.

Washington, Oct. 10.—German artillery fired upon and set fire to the oil reservoir tanks in Antwerp, who now are in flames, in spite of the fact that the United States flag was flying above them. This was the announcement cabled to the State Department today by Consul General Diedrich. Representations to the German government are to be made through Ambassador Gerard at Berlin.

Paris, Oct. 10, (Central News Cable)—Continued satisfactory conditions are reported in the official bulletin issued by the French war office today at noon. "Our entire battle front has been maintained," says the bulletin, "despite violent attacks by the enemy at several points. On our left wing in the region comprised between LaBassee, Armentiers and Cassel, the engagements between the opposing cavalry have been intricate, because of the land formations.

"At the north of the Oise our troops have gained some real advantages at several points of their zone of action. In the region of St. Mihiel we have made evident our advance.

"In the Belgian theatre of war it is announced that Antwerp was taken yesterday, but it is not yet known under what conditions the city was taken by the enemy.

"In the Russian war theatre severe fighting continues on the frontier of East Prussia, where the Russian troops have had some partial successes. They have occupied the city of Lyck. The siege of Przemysl continues under conditions favorable to the Russians, who have taken by assault one of the forts of the principal line of fortifications."

London, Oct. 10.—A news agency despatch from Toulon says that two French torpedo boats collided yesterday off the Isles of Porquerolles, in the Mediterranean, and sank. The crews were saved. Salvage of the boats will be impossible.

A despatch from The Hague states that Field Marshall Baron von der Goltz, Governor General of Belgium, has in the name of the German Emperor, ordered the Belgians to accept German currency on the same quoting as Belgian currency. This is causing trouble at Brussels.

A despatch from Rome says that at a cabinet council today, at which Foreign Minister San Guiliano, who is ill, was the only absentee, the resignation of Minister of War Grandi was accepted. His successor was not named. The cabinet authorized an expenditure of 56,000,000 francs for military purposes, including supplies, motor wagons, medical stoers and winter equipment for army and navy.

Rome, Oct. 10 (Central News Cable).—While the capitulation of Przemysl is denied by the Russian Ambassador here, it is declared by him that his latest advices from Petrograd are that the city is afire and that its surrender is inevitable.

A despatch from Budapest announces that a new battle is on at Nagy Boscko, a few miles northwest of Szigeth. The Russians have received strong reinforcements and are making desperate efforts against the

VALUE OF LUNCH COUNTER SHOWN

Is Filling Great Want at the High School These Days.

DETAILS OF SYSTEM

Mothers' Association Plans to Furnish Children With Wholesome Food at a Nominal Price—Sample Menu.

The High School lunch counter is filling a great want in these days. There are now 1,100 pupils in the High School, and 600 or 700 of them file before the lunch counter each noon and get either a full lunch or a glass of milk or a bowl of soup to piece out the lunch which they have brought from home. The pupils in this building come from all parts of the city and the majority of them live at such a distance that they cannot go home for lunch and return. The question of a lunch counter is therefore very important for them.

Since the High School draws from every part of the city, practically all cities have found it necessary to make the lunch room and its equipment an important part of the High School outfit. The service is conducted in different ways in different cities. In some places the privilege is given to a caterer. In other cases the counter is run by the High School faculty and in still others by some organization closely allied with the school in sympathy and purpose. Where a caterer comes in, he of course conducts the affair for personal gain. The kind and amount of food served is more or less affected by this aim, so that most cities follow one of the other two methods.

In the Plainfield High School, the counter is being conducted, this year, by the Mothers' Association, and the aim of the service is to furnish the pupils food that is most suitable in every way for growing children and at a price that shall merely cover cost. The Board of Education furnishes the equipment and what little gas is needed to cook the soup and chocolate. The Mothers' Association purchases all the food, and pays the cooks and others engaged in the service, and the price of the food is fixed to barely cover the cost of the material and cost of service. This enables them to furnish the food at a very low price. If the final working out of the management should show any surplus, it will be used in running the penny lunches in the other schools. To keep the child in good health and in good condition for school work, it is desirable that he should have a substantial lunch at noon. The lunch counter enables him to get a full lunch at 10 cents or 15 cents, or to get a bowl of soup, a cup of cocoa, or a glass of milk, to piece out his home lunch, at 3 cents. Pupils who wish nothing at the counter eat their lunch with the others just the same.

The lunch assembly at the noon hour is a very interesting sight, and any one interested in the school will be made welcome at any time to visit it or to sample the lunch.

A sample menu is as follows: Macaroni soups, 3 cents; egg sandwich, 3 cents; tomato sandwich, 3 cents; peanut butter sandwich, 3 cents; cake, 1 cent; cocoa, 3 cents; pork and beans, 3 cents; milk, 3 cents; ice cream, 3 cents; crackers and chocolate, 1 cent. It is varied each day so as to give the children variety and to appeal to their natural appetite.

WELCOMED MRS. C. G. ROSS BACK TO PLAINFIELD

A number of friends surprised Mrs. C. G. Ross, of East Seventh street, yesterday afternoon. The affair was to welcome her back to Plainfield again after spending the past year in Brooklyn. The party was arranged by Mrs. Manning and Mrs. Borrup, of Terrill road. Among those present were Mrs. W. Manning, Mrs. Fred Borrup, Mrs. James Borrup and son Roger, Mrs. T. Edwards, Mrs. H. McKeverly, Mrs. R. Karnell and son Louis, Mrs. R. Krogg, Mrs. A. Krogg and daughter Elizabeth, Mrs. R. Ritter, Mrs. R. T. Klimi and son Philip, Miss Francis Manning, Miss Jennie Sears, Miss Katherine Russell and Andrew Krogg, Jr., all of Plainfield.

C. E. CONOVER TO WED MISS TICE

Ceremony Will Be Performed This Afternoon at Home of Bride-elect.

RECEPTION TO FOLLOW

Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans and Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong Will Officiate—Couple to Live in Home the Gift of Bridegroom's Parents.

Miss Jessie Gilmore Tice, daughter of Mrs. Mary A. Tice, formerly of this city, but now of Westfield, and Charles Ernest Conover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, this city, will be married at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's mother on Highland avenue, Westfield. Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Westfield, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, of which Mr. Conover is a member.

Miss Tice will wear a gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with shadow lace and carry bride roses. She will be attended by her sister, Miss Marion Tice, as maid of honor, who will be gowned in pink charmeuse trimmed with lace. She will carry a bouquet of pink roses. Francis M. Whitely, of this city, will be the best man and Herbert Vance, of Jersey City Heights, a nephew of Miss Tice, will be a page.

The house has been attractively decorated with autumnal foliage for the wedding. The ceremony will be performed in the parlor beneath a large arch of autumnal flowers and greens. The wedding march will be played by an orchestra. Miss Tice will enter the parlor accompanied by her brother, Richard Tice, but her mother will give her in marriage.

There will be about seventy-five guests, relatives and intimate friends, at the wedding and the reception to follow. This evening the couple will leave on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside on Elmwood place, the residence completely furnished being a gift of Mr. Conover's parents. Miss Tice has received a large number of gifts, including cut-glass, furniture, linen, etc.

Both Miss Tice and Mr. Conover have a large number of friends. The latter is associated in the painting and decorating business with his father. He is active in the First Baptist church, of which he is a member. Miss Tice is also active in the work of the Presbyterian church, Westfield. She is well-known here, where she formerly lived and has since visited frequently.

AGAIN IN THE LEAD.

Eight minutes after the last* ball was pitched at Shibe Park yesterday afternoon, the Plainfield Daily Press had a baseball edition on the streets with a complete box score and detailed account of every play made in the opening world's series engagement at Philadelphia. This was one-half hour before any other local paper appeared on the streets and two hours before the metropolitan papers circulated in this city. The latter extras did not contain the detailed account of more than seven innings, although some of them had box scores.

Six hundred fans thronged the streets in front of the Daily Press office and were supplied with information concerning each play a few seconds after it was made in the Quakertown ball yard. The old time enthusiasm, so conspicuous when McGraw's men are in the big series, was missed by some of the more observing but nevertheless plenty of bleacherite conversation was passed around and the throng was one assembled purely for baseball. One enterprising business man on North avenue formed a temporary grandstand of benches in front of his place of business and during the match some fortunate "bugs" comfortably awaited the returns from the Daily Press office.

Three hundred 'phone calls were received at this office after the game inquiring for results and the information was supplied in each case. Watch the Daily Press for the best dope on the big attraction and read Jack Martin's comment on the individual combatants.

MISS REED AN OCTOBER BRIDE

Will Wed William Arrott, of Philadelphia, This Afternoon.

DR. SEARLE OFFICIATES

Bride-elect Will Have No Attendants—Howard Sheble, Jr., to Be Best Man—Couple to Live in Philadelphia After Extended Honeymoon.

Miss Madeline Reed, daughter of Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Charles Arthur Reed, of Woodland avenue, and William Arrott, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Arrott, of Philadelphia, will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of the bride-elect's parents. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. J. Preston Searle, president of Rutgers Theological Semiaary, who married Mr. and Mrs. Reed when he was pastor of the Reformed church, Somerville.

The guests who will witness the ceremony will be restricted to the members of the two immediate families, the affair being a quiet one owing to the recent death of Mrs. Reed's sister, Mrs. Madeleine Mack, of Somerville. In consequence of this there will be no reception, the invitations having been recalled.

Miss Reed will be gowned in embroideredl silk net over silver lace, with a long court train of embroidered satin. The gown will be trimmed with old lace, an heir-loom which was worn by her mother when she was married. She will carry lilies of the valley and white orchids. The bride-elect will have no attendants, but Mr. Arrott will have for his best man, Howard Sheble, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Following the ceremony, supper will be served, after which the couple will leave on a wedding trip. They will reside in Philadelphia upon their return. Miss Reed has been prominent here in the younger society set and has a large circle of friends and acquaintances with whom she is popular. She has received a large collection of costly gifts from relatives and friends. The decorations will comprise roses, greens and autumnal foliage.

Mr. Arrott is a member of an old Philadelphia family. He is engaged in the insurance business with his father, the business having been established by his grandfather. Mr. Arrott is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has a wide acquaintance in Philadelphia.

CHEERFUL WORKERS, K. D., PLAN ENTERTAINMENT

What promises to be an unusual entertainment is being planned by the cheerful Workers Circle of King's Daughters, for Friday evening, October 30. Mme. Labadie, who has gained much fame in New York and other cities as an interpreter of plays, will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, in a reading of "The Great Galeoto," by Jose Eschegary, and the proceeds of the evening's entertainment will be devoted to the work which the Cheerful Workers are doing. Mme. Labadie comes highly recommended to this city. She gives an entire performance unassisted. Among other places at which she will appear in the near future will be the Little Theatre in Philadelphia, and the Little Theatre in New York, her date at the latter being set for November 17. Further details will be announced later.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mrs. Evans, of Lynchburg, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Evans, to Silas Brown, of Plainfield. The wedding will take place on December 30.

ENTERTAINED HER CLASS.

Miss Louise Layton, of Somerset street, teacher of the junior department in Trinity Reformed church, entertained her class last evening.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—George Stallings Boston Braves added another victory to the string which they expect to gather in their quest for the World's Championship of 1914, when they took the Philadelphia Athletics into camp this afternoon.

The game was a pitcher's battle from start to finish. Not until the sixth inning were any of the Athletics' heavy hitters able to hit James. The Boston team had a little better luck, Evers beating out a bunt in the first inning.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Clear and warm weather made the day pleasant for the 25,000 fans who crowded into Shibe Park, beginning at 10:30 this morning, all intent on seeing the second game of the World's Series, which started yesterday with a 7 to 1 defeat for Connie Mack's Champion Athletics, at the hands of the Boston Braves. The crowd had been standing on all sides of the park since before daylight, awaiting the opening of the gates.

The grounds were never in better condition than was the case when the umpire called "play ball."

The victory of the Braves yesterday changed the betting this morning, and even money was offered on today's game, as well as on the series, as compared with odds against Boston prior to yesterday. When the game started today the Athletics were just as confident of victory in the series, as they were before the series started.

There were about 20,000 fans inside the grounds at 1:15 o'clock. A band entertained the crowd during the wait for the start with popular selections.

At 1:45 James and Tyler started warming up for the Braves, while Plank warmed up for Connie Mack's clan.

The Athletics lined up as they did yesterday at the opening of the game, with the exception of the pitcher, Plank being sent into the box. For Boston, Stallings sent Mann into right field in place of Moran, Cathers into left field for Connolly, and James was the pitcher.

*Batted for Plank in ninth.

Two base hits—Schang, Deal. Double Play—Maranville to Evers to Schmidt. Struck out—By Plank, 6; by James, 8. Bases on balls—Off Plank, 4; off James, 3. Hit by pitcher—by Plank, Maranville. Stolen bases—Deal, 2. Sacrifice hit—Maranville. Passed Ball—Schang. Wild Throw—James. Time of game—1 hr. 50 min.

FIRST INNING.

Boston—Mann grounded out, Collins to McInnis. Evers hit a slow one toward the pitcher's box and in a wild scramble the runner beat the throw. Cathers was the first strikeout victim of the contest, swinging wide of the pellet three times in quick succession. Witted worked Plank for the first free ticket of the contest, shoving Evers along to the keystone bag. Boston fans were numerous at today's contest and with two men on the bases the cheering became frantic. Schmidt cracked a long high twister to Strunk in deep centre field. The mid-field guardian smothered the pellet for a sure putout. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy opened the Athletics' half of the initial stanza with a walk to first. Wild cheering from the Philly stands was the result of this pass. James made a number of unsuccessful attempts to nab the runner at first, but finally threw wild and Murphy sprinted to second, being put out when he arrived at the bag by Johnny Evers, who waited for him with the ball. Oldring was retired by Deal on a neat throw from third to Schmidt. Collins died via the same route. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

SECOND INNING.

Boston—Gowdy was passed to first, the play appearing to be intentional on the part of Plank inasmuch as he displayed a hitting streak yesterday afternoon. Maranville followed with a sacrifice, sending Gowdy to second. Maranville's hit was over the second sack and Murphy nabbed the ball and threw it to McInnis. Deal duplicated the little shortstop's stunt by hitting a liner at Plank, who threw to Baker and the latter returned the ball to Collins, who retired Gowdy. Deal was safe at first. Three men handled the ball on this play, assists being credited to both Plank and Baker. Deal was caught off first but made a dash for the mid-station and arrived there safely. James fanned the atmosphere and ended the inning. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker fouled out to Schmidt, who made a pretty catch of the high twister after a short run. "Stuffy" McInnis appeared on the scene at this juncture and after collecting two balls and a pair of strikes, whiffed the third time. Strunk, the only Philly man to collect a brace of bingles in the opening game, started today's contest by fanning. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

THIRD INNING.

Boston—Mann went out, Barry to McInnis, and then Evers singled to centre field and Cathers followed with a pop fly to Baker, Evers being held at the first corner. Evers attempted to steal second after Whitted's second strike but was thrown out on a pretty throw from Schang to Collins. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Barry flied out to Cathers in deep left field. Schang cracked out another fly in Cathers' direction, it being turned into an easy putout. Plank struck out, ending the third inning. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

FOURTH INNING.

Boston—Whitted, who had two strikes and one ball on him when Evers was retired at second in the previous inning, came to bat in this session and completed his work by hitting a high spiral to Strunk. Schmidt singled to right field. Gowdy followed with a long fly to Murphy and Maranville advanced Schmidt to second on a neat single. Boston now had two men on the sacks and Deal, who fell down in the pinches yesterday, forced Maranville at second base, hitting a slow one to Barry, who made the putout unassisted. This ended a rally. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy hit a slow one at James, who threw him out at first. Oldring fanned. Collins died on a throw from Maranville to Schmidt, after he had hit a scorcher at the little shortstop. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

FIFTH INNING.

Boston—James fanned out, only three balls being necessary to do the trick. Mann singled to centre field; following his first strike. Evers was given three balls and two strikes before he flied out to Strunk, Mann being held at first, having a close call from being caught off the base while trying to each second. Cathers closed the inning by forcing Mann out at second base on a play from Barry to Collins. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker went out on a fly to Whitted. McInnis, after letting a wide one go past, fanned. Strunk fanned out. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

SIXTH INNING.

Boston—Whitted pop flied out to Collins, after two balls and a strike had been given to him. Schmidt was hit by a pitched ball on the shoulder, but the umpire refused to let him take his base, after which he flied out to Murphy. Gowdy walked on four wide ones, given in a row. Maranville was hit by one of Plank's wide ones and sent to first base, and Deal closed the session by forcing Gowdy out at third base, Baker unassisted. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Barry grounded out on a play from Maranville to AUTOMOBILE COLLISION.

While Contractor Charles D. Nonemaker was in the act of turning his automobile, in which beside himself were his wife and son, Harry, from Richmond street, Plainfield, into Second street, at about 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening, an eastward bound Main Line car swung from Second street into Richmond cutting him off and giving him the alternative of either hitting an electric light pole or the car. Mr. Nonemaker decided to hit the pole, which he did head on, the force of the collision throwing his son against the windshield and bruising his head. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Nonemaker were injured in any way, the only thing that saved them being the fact that their automobile was being driven slowly at the time. The radiator of the car of the machine was damaged and the starting crank was bent to such an extent that Mr. Nonemaker had to jack his car up in order to turn it. The mechanism of the car was apparently not damaged in any way, as Mr. Nonemaker and his family were able to return home in the machine. The Nonemakers were returning from Free Union where they had been attending the funeral of Mrs. Nonemaker's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Bartow.

Joseph Morgan was a recent visitor in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Mattis, of Washington avenue, were visitors in New York yesterday.

Richmond Ritterbusch, of Dunellen avenue, is visiting his grandmother at Brooklyn.

Miss Anna Rinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rinehart, of Penfield place, is expected to come home shortly from St. Peter's Hospital, at New Brunswick, where she underwent an operation about ten days ago.

Rev. E. S. Jamison, a former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, and his daughter, Miss Ethel, have been spending a few days in the borough as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Firman H. Gise, of Front street. Mr. Jamison at present has a charge at Bloomsbury.

Richard Walker, of Grove street, has accepted a position at Manville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Doerr, of Brooklyn, who have been spending two weeks in the borough as guests of Mrs. Doerr's mother, Mrs. George Lee, of Grove street, have returned home.

Kenneth Dealaman, of Washington avenue, has resigned his position with the Vacuum Oil Company, of New York.

Mrs. Joel C. Gides, of Lincoln avenue, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marvins, of Watchung, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Martha Apgar, of Front street, is visiting two sisters, both of whom are ill, at Califon.

Mrs. George Margentino and daughter, of Plainfield, were visitors yesterday at the home of Mr. Margentino's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Margentino, of North avenue.

Austin Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Wilson, of Washington avenue, who has been confined to his home since Wednesday by illness, is considerably better at this writing.

RETURN FROM OMAHA.

Miss Dora Victorson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Victorson, of First street, has returned from Omaha, Nebraska, which was her last stop on a three weeks' trip through the West as saleslady for Philip Marks, a New York city wholesale manufacturer of ladies' dresses. This is Miss Victorson's last trip as she is to be married in the early spring to Meyer Morowitz, of New York, who will be admitted to the New York bar next month.

Daniel McGovern, who has been boarding at the home of William Doyle, on Front street, for the past year, has returned to his home at Skowhigan, Me.

Mrs. Lena Suhr, of Dunellen avenue, is making her son, David Suhr, of Jamaica, L. I., a week-end visit.

PRIZE BANTAMS.

Joseph R. Wiener, of Prospect avenue, has purchased a prize pen of white Cochin bantams from a poultry dealer at Cannonsbury, Mich. Mr. Wiener expects to exhibit his stock this fall at the poultry shows at Somerville and Plainfield.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's Catholic church will hold a meeting after the last service tomorrow morning, to decide whether they will accept an invitation to participate in the Holy Name parade at Westfield, on Sunday afternoon.

CLARK RAMSEY ILL.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. David C. Ramsey received word at noon yesterday that their son, Clark Ramsey, who is attending Blair Academy, at Blairstown, was taken suddenly ill with heart trouble. Attributing the cause of their son's illness to the altitude at Blairstown, which is 1,500 feet, as Mr. Ramsey was bothered with the same trouble while pastor of the Methodist church there, Dr. and Mrs. Ramsey hired H. E. Nelson's taxi and started immediately for Blairstown to bring their son home. Up to 9 o'clock this morning neither the Ramseys or Taximan Nelson had returned.

Special October devotional services are being held every Friday during the month at St. John's Catholic church.

ANNUAL SERMON.

At the morning service in the Presbyterian church tomorrow, the pastor, Rev. E. R. Brown, will preach his annual temperance sermon. In the evening the subject of his sermon will be "Looking Forward."

WILL ENLIST IN NAVY.

Andrew Doyle, of Front street, and Christopher Lesses, of Skowhigan, Me., who is boarding at his home, will go to Newark the first of the week and endeavor to enlist as machinists in the United States Navy. Failing in this they may enlist as common seamen.

Fred Wrage, of Washington avenue, is making an indefinite sojourn in the State of Colorado for his health.

Mrs. Edith Peddie and daughter, Miss Eleanor Peddie, of New York city, and Mrs. C. R. Clawson, of Alfred, N. Y., are visiting their brother, J. Alfred Wilson, of Washington avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Rentschler and daughter, Miss Bessie, of Ringstown, Pa., and a niece, Miss Katherine Schanks, of Reading, Pa., are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Rentschler's son, Supervising Principal Guy H. Rentschler, of the local schools over Columbus Day.

Miss Laura Pery, of Skowhigan, Me., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle, of Front street, for the past two weeks has returned home.

Tax Collector W. B. LaRue is able to be out after a two days' illness.

Jesse Neff, a former teacher in the district school here, visited some of his former pupils in the village today. Mr. Neff is at present teaching at Woodbridge.

Mrs. A. C. Ogden, of Kenilworth, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Nagle, of Main street, has returned home.

E. A. Torbett, of New York city, a partner of Herbert L. Pierce's roller mills, was a visitor in the village yesterday afternoon.

Manager Wicks, of the Morey-LaRue Laundry Company Plainfield branch, has moved into the old Maltbie cottage.

The Narmanna brand of canned sardines, and mackerel, etc., is being demonstrated in the H. L. Pierce grocery store.

'Plains & Fanwood.

The Rev. George H. Houghton Butler will conduct the usual services at the All Saints' Episcopal church tomorrow: Sunday-school at 10:00, and morning service at 11:00.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be held at the following hours: Bible school at 9:30, church service at 10:45, and B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7:30 in the evening. The Rev. J. Madison Hare will conduct the services.

Dr. H. K. Carroll will occupy the pulpit at the Methodist church tomorrow at both the morning and evening services. The morning service will be held at 10:45, Sunday-school at 3 o'clock, Epworth League meeting at 7:15 and evening service at 8:00.

Services will be held in the Willow Grove chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock as usual, with Superintendent Sisserson in charge.

Mrs. Robert Chadwick will lead the services at the St. John's (colored) Baptist church tomorrow.

The young people of the Baptist church held their weekly social in the church last evening, and spent an enjoyable time playing games, after which light refreshments were served.

A cake, pie and bread sale is being conducted in the Baptist church this afternoon and will be continued this evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the church. The proceeds of the affair will be for the church treasury.

All of the local members of the Westfield Golf and Tennis Clubs will be at Westfield most of the day Monday, where tournaments are in progress. The young people will go to Parker Field, Plainfield, at 10:30 in the morning to see the annual football game between Plainfield and Westfield High Schools. The game has stirred up considerable interest in this place, as graduates of the local school now go to Westfield instead of Plainfield High School and that makes about twenty local pupils in Westfield and the same number in Plainfield, who have gone there previous years.

A regular meeting of the Lend-a-Hand Society, of the Baptist church, was held in the parlors of the church yesterday afternoon, and a profitable time was spent sewing.

The residence on the old Cramer property at Goodman's Crossing, at Willow Grove, was destroyed by fire last Friday, from an unknown origin. The blaze had gained great headway before the Westfield fire engine could travel the three miles to the scene and the building was burned to the ground. All of the furniture was saved by neighbors. A possible solution is that a spark from a passing train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad lighted on the roof, which was very dry from lack of rain. The property was occupied by Michael Schilling, who places his loss at between $2,500 and $3,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ripley have returned to their home in the township, after spending the past ten days with Mrs. Samuel Jackson, of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Eckardt, of Midway avenue, are the parents of a young son born last Tuesday.

Several small donations to the Red Cross fund have been received since the offering taken at the peace meeting in the Baptist church last Sunday.

Midway avenue is again open for traffic after being closed for several weeks while part of it was being macadamized.

A number of local boys have joined others from Netherwood and formed a football team under the name of the Netherwood A. C. Some of the local players are Beeken, McAnneny, Anson and Hetfield. They play their first game tomorrow against the Mt. Pleasant A. C., at that place.

Eugene Martin has returned from the Middle West, where he has been the past two weeks in the interests of a New York firm.

After being erected for nearly thirty years, the Fanwood firehouse is beginning to sag in various places. The structure was built on top of the ground without a cellar and on this account the weather has made the doors warp and walls crack and it has been necessary to prop it in several places. The building was built soon after the borough was set aside from the township to house the fire apparatus and has been used on all social occasions in the borough. It will not be long before the firehouse will have to be replaced by a more modern structure for other reasons, as it is getting too small for the social functions and the borough officials wish a room to hold Council and Board of Health meetings in and where they can keep other borough property.

The Junior Order degree team is holding drills in the lodge room at intervals so as to be ready to travel to some other place at any time and initiate new members.

New Providence.

The Board of Health of the borough will hold a special meeting in the borough hall this afternoon.

Henry S. Woodruff has returned from a visit to relatives at Bedford, N. Y.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church met Thursday afternoon and made preliminary plans for the annual church fair.

New Providence township boys captured three prizes at the home garden show held at the library in Elizabeth, this week. The winners were Wendell Carolan, first; Walter Kuntz, second, and John Romano, third.

Westfield.

The house of John Schilling in Clark township was destroyed by fire Thursday. The Westfield department went to the fire. Taking water from a brook they saved the outbuildings. The loss was about $2,000.

Plans for Holy Trinity parish bazaar are about completed. The bazaar will be opened at Flagg's Hall, Monday, and will be continued for the week.

To accommodate its patrons the Westfield Mutual Building and Loan Association has fitted up offices at 14 Elm street, which will be open during business hours each day.

Miss Jessie Tice, daughter of Mrs. George Tice, and Ernest Conover, of Plainfield, will be married this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother in Highland avenue.

N. P. H. S. FRESHMEN GIRLS ARE GUESTS

Tendered a Reception at Y. W. C. A. Last Night by Sigma Gamma Kappa Club.

About forty members of the freshmen class of North Plainfield High School were guests at a reception given in their honor by the Sigma Gamma Kappa Girls' Club at the Y. W. C. A., last night. There were about sixty present in all, including the members of the club and a fine program, arranged by the entertainment committee, was enjoyed by all. The guests were received by the president and vice-president of the club. This event is an annual function given by this club to the incoming girls of the school in order to let them get acquainted with the other members of the school.

College games were played and in the image-making contest, Miss Margaret Ewart took first honors and Miss Helen Ryno was awarded second prize. Miss Katherine Aller, the new secretary of the association, made a fine speech to the audience and then the "freshies" were formally introduced to Miss Marjorie Burtis and Miss Margaret Ewart, president and vice-president of the club, respectively. The rooms were decorated with autumn leaves.

The executive committee, which consists of the officers and a representative from each class, had charge of the reception and was ably assisted by three other committees. Those in charge were: Executive, Marjorie Burtis, president; Margaret Ewart, vice-president; Katherine Giddings, secretary; Marion Avery, treasurer; Lucy Douglas, senior class; Gladys Sullivan, jupnior class, and Marjorie Chandler, sophomore class. The freshmen have not yet elected their representative. Entertainment, Elsie Debele, chairman; Bertha Keller, Dorothy Martin, Lillian Spencer, Katerine Britting; decoration, Ann Hull, chairman; Carol Hughes, Naomi Wisch, Louise Seader, Margaret Smith; refreshment, Laura Smith, chairman; Lucy Hughes, Hester Stebbins, Marion Woolley and Dorothy Lee.

CIVIC ASSOCIATION INCREASING ROSTER

Eight New Members Added at Meeting Held in Washington School.

Eight new members were added to the roster of the West End Civic Association at the meeting held in the Washington School Auditorium, last night, considerable enthusiasm being evidenced on that occasion over the membership campaign now in progress. J. R. Heaton and A. R. Parkhurst petitioned the association to take some action to induce the Public Service Railway Corporation to put more cars on the Fourth Street line Sunday mornings between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock. At this time of the morning it is said that a large number of church people use the trolleys on that line and crowding is always experienced.

President T. C. Vail was in the chair at the meeting and he appointed Barton Davis to act as a committee of one to take up the subject with the Public Service, making a request that cars with larger platforms be substituted for the ones now in use. Among the visitors present were Percy H. Stewart, Leighton Calkins, George S. Clay, Thomas Hylan, David L. Coleman and J. J. Carroll. Several of the visitors gave short talks and in their addresses Mr. Clay and Mr. Carroll advocated annual pay for the members of the Common Council who now give their services to the city gratis.

MEMBERS OF SOMERSET COUNCIL FORM AN ORCHESTRA

At the regular meeting of Somerset Council, No. 102, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night, one candidate was initiated by the degrees team. Following the meeting the council's orchestra put in an hour of practice.

The orchestra promises to become one of the leading musical organizations of its kind in this city. The musicians, comprising members of the council, has been organized for the past two months and the leader is pleased with the results thus far. The council is preparing for another social event to be held in the near future.

WILL GIVE A CONCERT.

A concert is to be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall by the artist pupils of the New York School of Music and Arts, Friday, October 16, under the auspices of the Plus Ultra Bible Class of the Netherwood Reformed church. The proceeds will be placed in the new building fund.

STILL ALARM.

A still alarm called out the chemical auto fire engine shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon to a blaze at the Arlington avenue dump. But one engine was necessary to care for the blaze.

JACOB KRINEY DIES SUDDENLY ON STREET

Well Known Citizen Succumbs to Acute Attack of Heart Trouble.

Stricken with heart trouble while walking on Liberty street, near West Third, early this afternoon, Jacob Kriney, aged 73 years, one of the best known citizens of Plainfield, died before a physician could be summoned. Mr. Kriney fell on the sidewalk and was assisted to the home of Nathan Lewis nearby. Dr. Norman W. Currie was called, but when he arrived an examination showed that Mr. Kriney was beyond merical aid. The body was removed to the dead man's home on Clinton avenue by A. M. Runyon & Son, undertakers.

Mr. Kriney was born in New York city. He spent his boyhood days at Watchung. When a young man he married and took up his residence on Clinton avenue, near West Sixth street. He engaged in the contracting business, being a carpenter, and continued in this business for many years.

Later he removed to West Front street, opposite Albert street, where he lived for several years, and at that time was instrumental in securing the Jefferson School for the West End. Of late years he had been in the produce business, owning a large truck farm on Clinton avenue, near South Plainfield, and he was in this business at the time of his death. He was a staunch Republican and a member of the Ancient Order United Workmen. There survives three daughters, Mrs. Derwood W. Silvius, Mrs. Charles Christianson, Miss Mary Kriney, and three sons, John Kriney, of Clinton avenue; Samuel Kriney, of Mariners place, and William Kriney, of East Sixth street. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CHIEF KIELY A DELEGATE TO STATE MOTOR MEETING

Chief of Police Kiely has been appointed a delegate to the State meeting for the revision of the motor vehicle laws to be held in Trenton, October 19. Mayor Percy H. Stewart received an invitation from State Superintendent Lippincott requesting him to have a delegate present at the session and he made his selection today.

BOYS ON PAROLE ARE TAKEN BACK TO JAMESBURG HOME

John and Fortunus Sweeney, two colored boys, were arrested this morning charged with stealing lights and other automobile accessories from an automobile owned by C. W. Spicer, which were stored in his garage on West Fourth street.

The boys were recently paroled from the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg and will be taken back there today. They made confessions which implicated them in several other such robberies in this vicinity lately.

PLAINFIELDERS ATTEND STATE C. E. CONVENTION

The Misses Isabel Scarborough, Clara Karner, Ruth Bunker and Bach and Clarence LaRue, Frank Dunning, Robert Butler and Newell Karner, of this city, were among the Union county Christian Endeavorers who attended the closing session of the State Christian Endeavor Society in the Bergen Reformed church, Jersey City, last night.

The officers elected for the year were as follows: President, J. T. Sproull; secretary, Miss Nellie K. Foote, of Elizabeth; treasurer, W. M. Ackens, of Metuchen. The same vice-presidents were chosen. Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder and president of the United C. E. Society, was the speaker of the evening.

It was voted to join the International Christian Endeavor Peace Union. The convention next year will be held in Elizabeth. In response to the roll call each society responded by either reciting Scripture or singing a hymn. The convention was considered one of the best in recent years. As a mark of esteem a large bouquet of flowers was presented to President Sproull.

HEALTH BOARD CAMPAIGN.

The Boards of Health of both city and borough are now waging a campaign against those who have been making it a practice of throwing garbage and rubbish into Green Brook from the various bridges which span the stream. All of the bridges are now being watched, and those found guilty will be punished to the full extent of the law.

CARBONA PLEADED GUILTY.

Elizabeth, Oct. 10—David Carbona, charged with the larceny of a bicycle from Harry Christiansen, of Plainfield, admitted the theft in Special Sessions Court yesterday, and pleaded on an allegation. He will be sentenced by Judge Connolly next Friday.

BASEBALL

Schmidt. Schang doubled, making the first hit of the game for the Athletics, and the fans were on their feet, cheering the catcher. Schang was thrown out at third, Gowdy to Deal; Plank out, Maranville to Schmidt. Three outs. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

SEVENTH INNING.

Boston—James fanned out, and Mann swung at three wide ones, but Schang dropped the ball. The catcher later recovered the ball and threw Mann out at first. Evers followed Mann, and went out on a grounder to Baker, who threw to McInnis. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Murphy was easy for James, fanning on three straight after he had let one ball go by. Oldring, after striking once, went out, Evers to Schmidt. Collins reached first by beating out a hit to Evers. Baker was at the bat, but was unable to do anything, as Collins was caught napping off first, on a play by James to Schmidt. Three out. No runs.

Score—Boston, 0; Philadelphia, 0.

EIGHTH INNING.

Boston—Gather went out on a play, Barry to McInnis. Whitted hit to Barry, who fumbled the ball for a second and then threw to McInnis who muffed the ball, putting Whitted on first. McInnis made a great one-handed stop, but lost the ball. Schmidt hit to Collins, who threw to Barry, catching Whitted at second. Gowdy flied out to Strunk. Three outs. No runs.

Philadelphia—Baker out, Evers to Schmidt. McInnis, after hitting three fouls, put the fourth into Deal's hands, and Strunk went out, Evers to Schmidt. Three outs. No runs.

NINTH INNING.

Boston—Maranville went out, Barry to McInnis. Deal doubled over Strunk's head and pulled up at third after Baker failed to cover the bag. James fanned. Mann singled over short, scoring Deal. Mann went to second on passed ball. Evers had three balls and two strikes and was given his base. Cathers forced Evers at second by a play Barry to Collins. Three outs. One run.

Boston—Barry walked. Schang fanned, but Gowdy dropped the ball, recovering it in time to catch Schang at first, but Barry reached second. Walsh went in to bat for Plank. He received a base on balls. Murphy hit into a double play, Maranville to Evers to Schmidt. Three outs. No runs.

Final score—Boston, 1; Philadelphia, 0.

UNSELFISH SAVAGES.

Generosity of the Semisavage Eskimos of Arctic Siberia.

Probably no more clannish—and unselfish—people exist than the natives of the arctic coast of Siberia, the lowest type of semisavage Eskimos. They are ever thinking of one another's welfare, and if one comes into possession of anything of value he never thinks of keeping it for himself, but calls the other members of the tribe to share with him. If a whale is taken or a polar bear, caribou or walrus is killed the meat is divided among all the igloos. Even during the hard winter, when there is a shortage of food, if a seal is brought in by some fortunate hunter the meat and blubber are equally distributed.

Four men from East Cape, the Siberian side of Bering strait, were taken aboard the whale ship Narwhal to make up the boat crews for whaling in the Arctic. All through the summer season they remained aboard the vessel, doing their share of the perilous and wearisome work. When the vessel returned to East Cape on its way south the captain made a pile of flour, sugar, hard bread, calico, tobacco, cartridges, needles and thread, tea, matches—everything dear to the Eskimo heart. It was their wages, and the Eskimos were proud of their wealth.

The walrus hide canoes came alongside, and the four men were taken ashore with their riches. At the water's edge every article was delivered to waiting hands, and when the men who had worked all summer for these necessaries and luxuries started for their igloos they carried all they kept for themselves in their hands. They were almost as poor as they were when they started on the cruise, but the village was temporarily happy, and so were they.—Exchange.

Alleged Scottish Kings.

Jests innumerable have been showered upon the hundred portraits of alleged Scottish kings, with a strong family likeness, especially about the nose, which adorn Holyrood—kings, as Scott says, "who, if they ever flourished at all, lived several hundred years before the invention of painting in oil colors." The late Mr. W. C. Hazlitt, recalls the London Chronicle, had a story of a visitor who gravely inquired of the old woman who showed him over the palace, "Did you do these?" She shook her head as gravely, and he added, "You might have done better."

When the Long "S" Was Abolished.

In the latter part of February, 1800, a London publisher instituted a trifling though welcome improvement in printing. His name was Bell, later the founder of the well known Weekly Messenger, and at the date mentioned he caused to be submitted the short for the long "s" in the setting of certain works he produced. His example was generally followed a year or two later.—St. James' Gazette.

FREDERICK SHEELEN DIES, AGED 89 YEARS

Fanwood's Oldest Citizen Passes Away at His Home Last Night.

Frederick Sheelen, the oldest resident of Fanwood township and borough, passed away last night at the home of his son, Charles Sheelen, in the eighty-ninth year of his age. Mr. Sheelen was a German by birth and came to this country when twenty-six years old.

He engaged in the wholesale grocery business in New York and later came to Springfield where he resided for several years. Coming to Scotch Plains sixty years ago he bought a farm, now part of the Westfield golf links. He lived on the farm until the death of his wife several years ago and then went to live with his son. The deceased took an active interest in everything that was done by Scotch Plains as a municipality and took great delight in reviewing incidents pertaining to the growth of the village.

He was one of the founders of St. Mary's church in Westfield, and has been a communicant at that edifice since its erection. He has been in remarkably good health of late and his death came as a great shock to his many friends and relatives.

Nine children survive him, Charles, Augustus, Fred, John and Joseph being the five boys, the first three residing in Fanwood and Scotch Plains, and three daughters, Sister Conradma and Sister Bathasara, who are in a convent in Washington, D. C., and Mrs. George Lambrecht.

Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church, Westfield, on Tuesday morning, where high mass will be held at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

CARDINAL DEAD.

Rome, Oct. 10 (Central News Cable)—Cardinal Ferrata, papal secretary of state, died here at 1:45 this afternoon. He had appendicitis and peritonitis. Pope Benedict sent the papal final benediction this morning, as death has been expected for some hours.

SEVEN BOYS PASS CLASS G EXAMS AT Y. M. C. A.

The first Junior Life Saving examinations which will be held this year in the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. were given to the members of the Indian League this morning and seven boys were successful in passing the first. This was known as Class G test and now they are ready for class F work. They will continue climbing up until they have passed Class A when they will receive a gold medal.

The test consisted of a fifty foot swim on the breast, twenty-five foot swim on the back and three dives for form. These exams will be given to the members of other classes soon. Those who passed the first ones are James Brownlee, Edward Boyle, C. Goss, Charles Gates, Edwin Mackey, Donald Willett and Harold Wilson.

WILLIAM BURTIS BACK TO HAMPTON ROADS FROM HAYTI

William Burtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Burtis, of Fairview avenue, who is an ensign in the United States Navy on the Battleship New Jersey, has sent word to his parents that he is now at Hampton roads, having just arrived there from Hayti where his ship has been for some time.

When the trouble started at that place the New Jersey was ordered into Southern waters and nothing was heard of it for some time. Mr. Burtis was also in Mexico shortly after the taking of Vera Cruz. He has not been away seven months, but will probably get a furlough soon.

L. G. DENNICK'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services of Leonard G. Dennick were held yesterday afternoon at his late residence on West Third street, being attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, officiated. Services were held at the home Thursday evening under the direction of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of which he was a member, a number of the fraternal brothers being present. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

The Daily Press will be glad to have its attention called to any misleading or untrue statement, if such should appear at any time in an advertisement in its columns.

Readers are requested to assist in protecting themselves and legitimate advertisers.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, OCTOBER 10, 1914.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own viewss. The contributing editor for today is Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, Executive Secretary of the Charity Organization Society.

NEIGHBORS NEAR AND FAR.

In times like these it is not easy always to bear in mind the neighbors in our own town, the stranger at our gates. We are stirred to our depths by the desire to help those distant neighbors in distress and Mr. Bicknell, the National Director of the Red Cross just returned from Europe, says "It is up to America, too much cannot be done, remember that." We hear that clear call and in manifold practical ways hasten to render aid.

In the meantime Peace, that devoutly-wished-for good is as remote from some of our own and nearest neighbors as from Belgians or Germans. Hunger, like war, ights peace. There is no peace in the heart of a father whose hands are idle and whose wife and children can claim no shelter nor bread. Already the shadow of war has reached our own little city, where it is believed 250 able-bodied men are out of work. Many of these, doubtless, have savings and many will soon secure other employment, but to the Charity Organization 37 such men have come in the last month.

A year ago in August 358 applications for assistance were made, in September, 1913, 403. This year 508 came in August and 551 in September. This increase of 150 applications per month has necessitated a corresponding increase in relief given, viz., $439 in September, 1914, vs. $339 in September, 1913.

To meet these enlarged demands the resources of the Society for the last few months have fallen off so that the year closes with a deficit of over $400, where last September a debt of $1,000 was paid from sums received during the year.

These indications in one Charity alone suggest that as citizens and Americans there is an opportunity for all to share. "The greatest privilege which has ever presented itself to a democracy," writes a neighbor in Montclair. "Let us," she says, "energetically concentrate our thought and action upon finding some way to hold aloft the standard of friends and all that true friendship implies."

What does true friendship imply right here in Plainfield? Obviously, and first of all it implies work for every man and food for his family. All who can, including the city government, should employ as many persons as possible. There is room for improvement and much labor on our streets, there are low places in our city where the malarial mosquito breeds which it will take 30 years to fill at the present rate. There is a sewer contract to be awarded which would mean not only more men employed but some unspeakable conditions remedied. If the contract for the new school has been given out there is still no reason why the contractor should not be requested to employ 90 per cent. local labor as one of the thoughtful Councilmen suggests.

In England the war was no sooner begun than circulars were issued reminding all town and county councilors that it was their duty "not to curtail their undertakings and reduce their staffs but to increase their operations" and in the House of Commons manufacturers were urged to show patriotism by keeping their factories in operation by reducing hours instead of dismissing employees.

Shall we in a republic show less patriotism and true friendliness for our neighbors? Let us knit socks and make garments for the Belgians or English, send doctors and nurses to Germans and Russians alike, but let us not neglect to help further Peace by courageously pushing ahead on public work here at home, by remembering the unemployed, the sick and the aged in our midst, and by living up to those old obligations towards our neighbors which neither "passed" dividends nor Red Cross activity in Europe can wipe out or even diminish.

MABELLE C. PHILLIPS.

AUTHOR OF JOHN MARTIN'S BOOK IS A PLAINFIELDER

Estil's Book Shop, William F. Williams, proprietor, has secured the exclusive sale in Plainfield for "John Martin's Book," a monthly magazine for little children. This announcement will be received with unusual interest here for the fact that Albert MacDonald, the author of the stories which are delighting children everywhere, is a resident of this city, having leased W. B. Tyler's house on Evergreen avenue.

John Martin's Book is a perfect picture and story book, and is printed in three colors on a stock that will stand the repeated handling of a child. It is an ethical and educational force in every home which it visits, establishing a new understanding between parents and children. It creates a new atmosphere of interest in the wonder of the development of the child mind.

QUARTERLY MEETING.

The second quarterly meeting of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, for this conference year, will be held tomorrow. There will be a love feast at 10 o'clock in the morning, with a sermon afterward by Rev. R. B. Smith, of Orange, presiding elder. There will be preaching at 3 o'clock by Rev. Dr. J. J. Adams, of Westfield. The pastor will preach in the evening on the subject, "The Best Home." Holy communion will be celebrated at the afternoon and evening services.

BUILDING TRADES APPRECIATE COUNCILMAN'S ACTION

The Building Trades Council held an interesting session, last night, at which time several matters of interest to the trades were discussed at length. During the course of the evening, a vote of thanks was ordered sent to Councilman John H. Cose for the interest he manifested in the local craftsmen at he last meeting of the Common Council. The text of Mr. Cose's resolution which was presented to the Council last Monday night recommending to the Board of Education that provision be made in the contracts for the new Evergreen Avenue School so that Plainfield workingmen may be employed on the building as far as was practical.

The question of the proposed trolley extension to South Plainfield was again a subject of discussion, as nothing definite has been heard from the Public Utilities Commission as to what was being accomplished in this direction. The committee from the Trades Council will undoubtedly cooperate with the Board of Trade and the Business Men's Association in promoting this idea of the South Plainfield extension to the local trolley.

CONCERT AT SOMERVILLE.

A concert was given last evening at the Second Reformed church of Somerville, under the direction of Miss Anna Case, formerly the soprano soloist of the First Presbyterian church choir of this city. Miss Case was assisted by Jacque Kasner, violinist; Charles Cross, pianist, and Mr. Kasner (brother of the violinist), as accompanist.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY FOR SIR KNIGHTS

Trinity Commandery, of This City, Win Honors at Atlantic City.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city, won high honors yesterday, in the annual field day held at Atlantic City, in which all of the commanderies of the State took part. The local sir knights had the second largest turn out of members and in view of the fact that Grand Commander Nelson Y. Dungan, is a member of Trinity Commandery, was given the right of line. During the parade the sir knights from this city executed a number of formations, including the maltese cross, perfectly, winning the applause of the thousands of spectators along the line. Afterward at the dinner given to the visiting commanderies, Trinity was highly complimented for its fine showing.

The crack commanderies of the State appeared in the exhibition drills during the afternoon on South Carolina avenue, the entire avenue from Pacific avenue to the Boardwalk being taken for the performance when the State Commandery officers sat in review. Trinity Commandery had its headquarters at the Hotel Raymond. All of the grand commandery officers were present.

Last night the sir knights appeared in full uniform at the Steel Pier for a dance, which was one of the big features of the affair. The local members were delighted with the entertainment provided at Atlantic City, declaring this year's affair to be one of the best in the history of the order.

BRANCH OF ENGLISH SOCIETY FORMED

Plainfield Women Will Make Articles for British Soldiers in the War.

Several Plainfield women attended a meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Freeman, at Colonia, when there was organized a New Jersey Branch of the Prince of Wales Fund. The women will make mufflers, belts, socks, etc., for the British soldiers in the European war. The articles will be forwarded to Charles Bowing, the New York chairman, who will personally attend to the transportation.

A New York firm has given the use of a room for a headquarters free of charge and another concern has agreed to furnish packing boxes, while the White Star Line will carry free all the goods intended for the British army. This work will not in any way interfere with the charity work in Plainfield, as the women will continue their efforts here as before.

The Plainfielders took over 200 mufflers to Colonia, yesterday, and arrangements will be made to send them with other articles to England for distribution among the soldiers in the war.

WAR NEWS

stand which has been taken by the Hungarians to stop the invasion of their country.

A fierce fight continues at Zgyborco, near Szigeth, according to a communication given out by the Austrian embassy here. The communication also states that another Russian detachment has appeared south of Szigeth and says that a large force of Austrians and Germans is marching toward Przemysl from the West.

Information received here from a Russian source indicates that other forts in the circle about Przemysl have fallen, and that the bombardment of the city has assumed gigantic proportions. The Russian advance into East Prussian is said to continue successfully.

All the incidents of "The Things That Count" take place before the forenoon and night of Christmas Eve. One of these in particular, representing a Christmas Eve party in an East Side tenement, is conspicuously diverting. In this tenement there are families of American, German, Irish and Italian origin, and their young offspring are constantly at war, sometimes drawing their parents into conflict. The various [illegible] are present at the party, guests of the little American girl and her [illegible] mother, who are living in the tenement in reduced circumstances. The children and some of the grown-ups contribute various features to the entertainment, which is constantly on the verge of physical violence as the opposing elements clash, and the audience is in an almost perpetual roar of laughter, punctuated at intervals with applause for the "specialties" introduced by the youngsters. "The Things That Count" will be seen for the first time in this city at the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon and evening.

Irene Haisman, the Dainty Little "Kitty," in William Elliott's Production of "Kitty Mackay," to be Seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday Night.

"No [illegible] could live in the atmosphere of "Kitty MacKay," is the [illegible] way one New York newspaper de[illegible] scribed Catherine Chisholm Cushing's [illegible] novel, which is to be seen here at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday night. "Kitty" will come direct from New York, where the play was enjoyed by audiences that taxed the capacity of the theatre for more than one year. "Kitty MacKay" is a [illegible] quick tongue and a vivid imagination and when the fairy prince comes to take her to London town she takes it all as a matter of course. Those who know, declare that "Kitty MacKay" is the funniest play that has been in [illegible] William Elliott's production [illegible] Elizabeth Merson, Jack [illegible] Calvert and others.

Robert B. Mantell, as "Shylock," in "The Merchant of Venice," at Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday Night.

He Got There! But ---

By George I. Sill.

He Got There!—But——

"No sirree," said Uncle Zeke Pettigrew, as he sat in Mr. Blobson's office awaiting a check for several cords of hickory logs cut fire-place size, which he'd brought on his old fashioned sloop from somewhere up the river. "No sirree bob!—things aint what they uster be nohow—not by a durn sight. I dunno, mebbe its because I'm a gittin' old, an' my eyesight an' legs kinder faltin', but seems to me these young fellers we hev 'round us now'days, growin' up inter citerzens of our great republic, haint got no more spunk than a passel of rabbits! — no sir, no more spunk than a passel of rabbits! An' its ben jest thataway ever sence these nere planners an' autermabiles come in. You keep in tetch with things down here, Mr. Blobson, an' know what's goin' on, an' I ask you a plain question—where will it all end?—where will we be fifty years from now? Will each one of us hev a autermabile or planner then, or what?

"I can't say, positively, Uncle Zeke," answered Mr. Blobson, "but I hardly think any of us will take much interest in pianos and automobiles fifty years later on."

"Now up to num before th' war, continued the old man, "folks was peaceable an' contented, an' ev'rybody 'tended strictly to his own bisness. Not but what they wa'n't goin' on's now an' then, but never no sich skyiarkin' an' carryin' on as they is today. We hed Fourth of July celebration, an' 'twould done your heart good to hear old Deacon Lobdell read th' Diclaration of Independence an' larn from that immortal dockerment how we was all created free an' ekal; we uster hev town meetin' an' county fair ev'ry year, an' if the' gals an' young fellers wanted to be extry lively, p'rhaps they'd git up a huskin' bee. But shucks! —nowadays sich things as huskin' bees aint heerd of scurcely; th' gal hes to hev a planner or a Victoria roller, an' the' young feller must git a autermabile with a carberater an' a limaseen tank onto it. In them days about this time or mebbe a little later when th' craps was all in an' th' heft of th' farm work pritty wal finished up, we'd hev gin'ral trainin' in Squire Hasbrook's medder. Crackee though!—how Col. Van Loan would make us boys drill! Nothin' but drill, drill, drill, from mornin' 'till night, an' I kin see th' Colonel a settin' there on his big black hoss Andrew Jackson same as yisterday, yellin' 'hay-foot,' 'straw-foot' like he was fit to bust or hev a stroke—you know we uster to put a whisk of hay on one foot an' a whisk of straw on th' other, so's to keep step. An' we didn't hev no hilfalutin' uniform with no brass 'N's an' G's' stuck onto it nather—an' you know what N. G. stands for—but we could a fit like a pack of hungry, holierin' wildcats, an' shucks!—I bet thet there war I see by th' paper is now a ragin' in Europe would a ben settled in short order, if they'd only hed a few thousand sich boys as we was, fightin' on either side—yessiree, I bet twenty thousan' of 'em could a done it an' not half tried."

"Better make it thirty thousand, Uncle Zeke, while you're about it and establish peace on a permanent basis," said Mr. Blobson. "But tell me what you expect to do with yourself this winter—how'll you pass the time? It must get frightfully dull and lonesome up there in the Catskills when the days are dark and cold, with two or three feet of snow on the ground."

"Wal, its not so allfired bad at thet; I mek out to keep putty comf'able an' sorter edge along. Gin'rally, when th' weather's bad, I fetch a cheer clus up to th' fire an' set an' think—sometimes, I jest set."

"And smoke too, once in a while, don't you?—you wouldn't have to think while doing that. Here's enough tobacco, of the kind you're fond of, to last 'till spring anyway; I also had Welton tuck away in the package, one of those large calabash pipes—the kind Mark Twain used. A few weeks later on now, when the thermometer outside registers twenty below, and the wind at the door howls as if a few hundred wolves were trying to get in, you 'kin jest set' in front of a redhot stove and smoke like a chimney, or a house afire.

"But Uncle Zeke before you leave as a special favor, wont you give me the rest of that interesting yarn you left unfinished when here last? I think it was something about an experience you once had with a bear while attending a picnic in the happy days of youth—you remember it don't you?"

"I've hed so many wrassles with b'ars in my life, I can't egsackly say I do riccolec'. Let's see—was I tellin' 'bout th' time I killed thet there tremenjus she-b'ar an' two cubs, with a jack-knife?"

"No," said Mr. Blobson, "it seems to me you were on a picnic with some other young people, had your lunch nicely spread on the grass and were just going to sit down, when a bear appeared on the scene."

"Haw! haw! haw! Yes sir, now it all comes back to me, so funny I got to laugh yit. A whoppin' big b'ar was a nosin' 'round fur thet honey we'd brung, wa'n't he? Thet's it! —thet's th' time! Wal sir, my duds n' suds!—you'd a thought th' hull kit an' bilin' of them picknickers hed gone plum' crazy when thet there animal showed hissef. Skeert!—sich a screamin' an' hollerin' as them gals sot up you never heerd in all your born days. It nearly busted my nerves fur a spell, but I couldn't furgit th' strict military trainin' I'd hed; no sirree, I stood there firm an' solid as if I a ben planted, while th' other young fellers took th' weaker sect to a place of safety. Sich runnin', sich jumpin', sich hoppin' an' skippin' you never did see!—an' say, Adelaide Jones wore yaller stockins with blue stripes, an' beat 'em all!—my, my, how well I riccolec'! While I stood a watchin' 'em (a watchin' th' gals an' young fellers, I mean) Mr. B'ar was investigatin' thet there lunch. Putty soon, jest as he was going to put his paw on a big cake, he looks up sorter blinkin', an' finds me gazin' onto him; I see to once he felt kinder ashamed, fur he couldn't gaze back. Yes sirree, it was th' compellin' power of th' human eye you've heerd tell of, an' in them days I was somethin' of a gazer if I do say it mysef. But as I was tellin', I see the lunch would be a goner in a few minutes if I didn't do nothin', fur as soon as th' b'ar found out he couldn't gaze ekal to me, he begun projectin' round in his mind to git at thet there cake agin, as a starter. But as he'd concluded to grab it an' run, he looked up sideways, sneakin' like, an' see I s'archin' gaze still fixed onto him.

"'Git! consarn ye, git!' I yelled, an' fur a young feller my voice was putty pow'ful so thet ——"

"Was your voice even more powerful in those days than it is now, Uncle Zeke?"

"Shucks! haint nothin' 'tall to what it uster be! nowadays I aint got no wind."

"Your wind certainly seems all right to me," said Mr. Blobson.

"No good, fur nothin' no more but howsomever, you oughter see thet b'ar I'm tellin about, skeedaddle!—though he didn't go fur notwithstandin' my voice, because he still hed thet there cake onto his mind. 'I'll go up a tree,' says he, 'I have another.'

"So he looks 'round a bit, an' soon see th' biggest kind of a slipp'ry ellum tree—four or five foot through at th' butt, mebbe. 'Wal,' says he, 'thet'll be pie,' an' up he clum an' roosted big as life on a limb seven or eight foot from the ground. To see him settin' there free an' easy like, holdin' on by a little da[illegible] an' swingin' his legs was a sight! Sometimes he'd look over at th' cake, put his paw on his stummick, lick his chops an' kinder smile. Thet b'ar was a good natered cuss for sutin, an' I 'most split my sides laughin' at th' way he cut up.

"All of a sudden, though, he becomes serious; he gives a little growl, takes his paw an' fetches hissef a slap plum onto th' ear; then whack goes thet paw of his'n again this time right onto his nose. 'Bees' says he. Soon, I guess they was a million of th' varmints, more or less, congregatin' round Mr. B'ar, who fur all thet med out pretty well to keep 'em away from his eyes. Th' old feller knowed thet whenever them critters is mad they's sure to be honey not fur off, so of course he hed to keep his sight a goin'. It wa'n't long before he see they was pourin' out of a big hole on th' other side of th' tree, thick'ern molassers.

"I'd allus heerd tell how a b'ar'd resk his life fur a gob of honey no biggern a pertater, 'most any time; but if what happened now didn't pass all my previous experience, I'll be essenshally dum-swoggled! Fur of all things! if thet there b'ar didn't mek up thet there mind of his'n, to go down thet there hole, an' git thet there honey! I don't like to use no strong language, fur I haint hed no sich raisin', but thet place down there where th' bees hed they food all nicely stored away agin th' winter, was suttinly jest hell! Yes sir, jest hell! —and Uncle Zeke paused a moment, to let the last fearful word sink in. 'Howsomever,' he didn't seem to keer, but cool as a cucumber an' him end fust, began lettin' hissef down as a pus on might say, 'into th' pit, while I stood a watchin' an' feelin' sorry for the good natered old cuss on account of th' things I knowed was goin' to happen. You see I riccolec my gran-pap tellin' thet bees allus sorted out them fellers in th' swarm what hed to most fur reachin' fingers, an' kept them special fur guardin' th' hum.

"Wal sir, all to once, when I couldn't see Mr. B'ar no more—rrrip, snort, swi ..... sh! I heerd him go a-tear down th' inside of thet there tree an' lan' kerflummix at th' bottom, when I riccolec' about th' tree bein' a slipp'ry ellum. 'Sho', says I, 'it must have been like it was greased with axle grease—he couldn't git no grip with his claws, an' hed to slide.' But, wa'n't thet b'ar mad? Sometimes, though, he'd fairly give way, an' scream an' holler with pain—then I realized thet the hum guard was on deck an' doin' its duty as they see it. I was so sorry for th' old boy I swan, I could a most cried! But you see how it was, Mr. Blobson, I couldn't do nothin'. Putty soon, thet there slipp'ry ellum begun shakin' an' a tremblin' like it hed a reggler chill. 'Stars an' garters!' I says 'what's a comin' on?'—when—cr-r-r-r-a-a-ack! jest like thet, th' hull trunk of th' tree from top to bottom busted wide open an' Mr. B'ar rolled an' tumbled out, th' hum guard attendin' him an' still doin' their duty as they see it. The good natered old cuss (he wa'n't good natered at this particklar time) didn't stop to make no remarks nor nothin', but jest lit out anywhere to git somethin' 'coolin' an' refreshin' fur his nose, an' I haint laid eyes onto him from thet day to this.

"I s'pose," added Mr. Pettigrew reflectively, "I s'pose a b'ar when riled, is th' strongest an' most rambunkshus animal they is—exceptin' p'rhaps a elephant, or one of these here rinosserusses."

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Cole, of Central avenue, are entertaining their granddaughter, Miss Helen Cadmus, of Brooklyn.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Principal Early announced yesterday that Saengerbund Hall was ready for basketball practice and asked that all the classes expecting to support a team let him know as soon as possible so he could arrange periods for them.

A reception will be given by the High School, Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in the kindergarten room at the corner of Duer street and Lincoln place, in honor of Miss Eva Terry and Miss B. M. Attner, former teachers of the school.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

The Board of Education of North Plainfield does well in making the studying of spelling compulsory in the High School; provided, that is, that the High School pupils are not good spellers. It ought to be compulsory in every institution, from the kindergarten to the post-graduate university, until all students in all grades can spell with a reasonable degree of correctness. This talk about the difficulty of learning to spell English is all rubbish, and has its inspiration in sheer laziness.—Passaic Valley News.

RECREATION NOTES

The weekly municipal dance will be held tonight at 8:15 in the Washington School. The attractive auditorium, good floor, and excellent music afford a wholesome enjoyable evening to all the young people who attend.

Fine selected moving pictures will be shown at the Washington School, Monday evening. There will be two performances, at 7:30 and 9 p. m. It is hoped that both young and old will come and enjoy these pictures.

The Italian Social and Educational Club will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Lincoln School. A very pleasing musical and literary program has been planned. There will be dancing after the program. It is expected that this will be one of the most pleasant evenings that the club has ever spent.

CHAT AND DOPE BASE BALL

SALIENT FEATURES OF THE GAME.

While the men were practicing a big touring car, won by Eddie Collins for being the most useful player to his team in the American League, was driven upon the field and the star second baseman of the Athletics was escorted by his teammates towards the committee of presentation. The Boston players, with doffed caps, joined the gathering and the Keystone sack guardian, after accepting the gift, posed for his picture. Johnnie Evers, who was the victor in a similar contest in the National League, clasped hands with Eddie as the lenses were pointed and showing that all of Stallings' players did not believe that graciousness was inseparable from the fighting spirit.

Rube Oldring gained the first real outburst of enthusiasm when during batting practice he lined one of Coombs' offerings into the bleachers. It was Rube's greatest feat of the day and one fan afterwards remarked that the usually alert leftfielder must have determined to rest upon his laurels. During the game he seemed listless at the bat and several times nearly hit the plate when offering at Rudolph's spitters.

The audience found lots to interest them in the preliminaries. The plucky Bostonians who fought their way from the lowermost position in the National League race to a championship and a slice of world's series coin which gives with it, were given a rousing ovation by the loyal rooters of Philadelphia.

It was a typical audience for a horsehide derby. Rooters from all walks of life—society folk, bankers, brokers, millionaires, employers and employes—were there to slap their neighbor on the back when a good play was made. The Boston folk in the stands whooped things up a bit before the starting of festivities. In return for their efforts they received from supporters of the American League withering smiles of the "it's a a shame to take the money" sort.

Especially enthusiastic receptions were accorded Captain Evers, the Eddie Collins of the Braves; "Rabbit" Maranville, Hank Gowdy and Pitcher Rudolph. Every member of the Mack machine was cheered to the echo—before the start of the game.

The spirit of the Athletic players was in sharp contrast to that of the Braves. The hopefuls of Boston participated in their little tea party with rapid-fire actions. They gave the impression that they were out for the championship of the universe and would not give up until it is safely tucked away with other historical relics in the historical town which gives their team its name.

Manager Stallings did a neat and well chosen trick of overturning the doepsters' program when he announced Dick Rudolph as his pitching selection. It had been generally believed that James would work on the mound against the Mackmen.

Householders disregarded the decree of the Bureau of Building Inspection and garnered enough cash to lay in a goodly supply of coal and still have some loose change for next summer's ice by charging from $1 to $2 for seats on the roof.

Baker tried to cause some fun in the ninth inning by a near-home run, which hit the fence and was good for two bags, but he, too, finished the inning without seeing the home plate. It was when the last man had been retired that the crowd awoke, gave the conquerors a deserving cheer and left for home to take it out on the cooking.

Past world's series have developed in a short week's time many baseball heroes such as George Rohe, Babe Adams, Hugh Bedient and others, and if the timely and really wonderful hitting of Henry "Hank" Gowdy yesterday is going to continue, he is due to step up "thar" on that pedestal of baseball worship until displaced by some other fortunate member of the profession. It was really Gowdy's terrific and psychological batting which routed the Mackmen and Chief Bender. On three of his four trips to the rubber Hank carried a deadly mace, he combing out a single, double and triple and walking the other time up. For a player playing his first world's series game and on the enemy's grounds at that, to hit for 1,000 is an extraordinary effort.

While the Braves, the winning team, certainly looked good yesterday, history has a curious way of repeating itself at times. Two years ago the Giants won the first game from the Athletics and then the Mackmen went right to work, won the next three, and finally won the fifth game and series right here at home.

Manager Stallings is called the miracle man; but so is Connie Mack. Stallings is a tempestuous driver; Mack is a repressed adviser.

That double play pulled in the first inning by Schmidt and Deal might be called the turning point of the game. Had the Athletics scored in that inning a different story might have been told, as a brace of runs in that first inning would have given the Philadelphians the very desirable "jump."

Philadelphia backers are asking odds of 5 to 4 on the Braves just now—and they are getting them.

Moran's error on Strunk's hit in the second made a three-bagger out of a single and scored McInnis with the Athletics' first run of the game. Johnny Evers shut off a second run, getting Shang's fast one to Gowdy in time to head off Strunk.

A comparison of the crowd which saw the first game of the 1914 world's series in Philadelphia yesterday with that which attended the second game of the 1913 series in Philadelphia (the first in 1913 having been held in New York) shows that just one less person attended this year's battle than the first Philadelphia game last year, the respective figures being 20,562 and 20,563. To illustrate how much better New York can accommodate a world's series crowd it should be noted that the first game in the 1913 series attracted 36,291 and the total receipts were $75,255.50, as compared with the $49,639 taken in yesterday.

Bender disposed of the Braves in one, two, three order in the first inning on nine balls. He struck out Connolly, the Boston's slugger, with three of them.

All the "breaks" in the game were in the Athletics' favor—and still they made a miserable showing.

The thing that pleased the crowd most was the boyish enthusiasm shown by Governor John M. Tener as he headed the parade of the Bostonians around the field after the game. Tener, something over six feet six inches, danced around to the tune of "Tessie" and was as delighted over the Braves' victory as a child would be over the acquisition of a much-yearned-for toy.

BRAVES' MASCOT MAY WIN PENNANT

They Pin Their Faith to the Powers of Willie Connor, Jinx-Killer-in-Chief.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 10.—As something like ninety per cent. of the world's greatest baseball experters have opined that the Braves are up against it in their present struggle with the Athletics, it would seem that the only thing left for the Stallings' crew is to pin their faith to the mascotting powers of Willie Connor, their jink-killer-in-chief, and a bunch of Asters, the Braves' favorite flower.

If their trio of star slabsters, James, Rudolph and Tyler, are not able to fool the hard-walloping Mackmen, and if these same Mackmen can show "Hankerino" Gowdy that he couldn't nip John Bunny stealing second, if the Athletics' $100,000 infield should make the Braves' quartette of infielders look like they were tied, if Joey Connolly should be doomed to hit about .186 against Messrs. Bender and Plank, if Moran, Man, Whitted, Cather and Devore should prove of no help to the Braves in their efforts to down the world's champs, and if—but what's the use. Expert opinion has the Braves outclassed from turnstile to flagpole.

But the critics overlooked Mascot Willie and the Asters. True, the Mackmen have a fair sort of a mascot themselves—the same one who held the jody in check while his team breezed through on the winning end of three previous world's series. But Willie Connor and the Asters are something brand new in the mascotting line. Willie, who is known as the original "Willie Boston Beans," wears spectacles. Yes, sir, wears 'em right out on the field and gives everybody a chance to lamp at them.

Only one glance is needed to show that Willie is a high-brow mascot. He is the typical youth that the cartoonists have pictured for years whenever they wanted to do a little kidding at the expense of the Hub.

On all ordinary occasions Willie looks the part of the studious young Bostonian. But when he is fighting hoodoos on the field of battle he becomes as full of pep as Hughey Jennings. His antics near the Boston dug-out have pulled many a game out of the fire for the Braves this season, at least in the minds of the players, who have implicit confidence in the criss-crossing powers of their mascot.

But if Willie's powers should prove impotent, the Braves will still have with them their Asters. Dispel your thoughts of doubt, Julia, for 'tis true, absolutely true. Those hard-looking wops out on the field are passionately fond of Asters. Other big leaguers have carried with them all sorts of animal mascots, from birds and cats to elephants and alligators, but it remained for the Boston bunch to break into the greenhouse and cop a flower. The Aster mascot was adopted evidently with a view to impressing upon the minds of the ordinary rough-neck ball tossers outside the Hub the fact that the Braves stood for culture eight ways from the deck.

The Asters not only put the animal mascots out of business, but they did their share towards winning the National League pennant for the Braves. At any rate the Braves have a hunch that the blossoms helped the good work along, and all of them are keen for the posey. President Gaffney wears an Aster in the buttonhole of his coat every day and carries another one in his pocket. It is said Bill James places an Aster in his shoe before going on the pitching mound, and that "Big" Schmidt eats a few of the blossoms between innings.

However that may be, there's one thing certain in regards to the present world's series. And that is, that the Athletics will find Willie and the Asters a hard combination to beat. The Athletics may outclass the Braves in hitting, pitching, base-stealing, run-getting, inside stuff and all that sort of thing, but in order to win their fourth world's pennant the Mackmen will have to break the spectacles of "Willie Boston Beans" and also corner the Aster market.

Giant Cast-offs Responsible for Athletics' Defeat in Opening Game of the World's Series—Vanquished Players in no Respects Resemble World's Champions—Boston Looked Upon as Winner of Today's Conflict — Comment on Some of the Boston Braves and Their Respective Strong Points and Weaknesses.

By JACK MARTIN

Shorstop Philadelphia National League Baseball Club.

Upsetting all dope and putting to rout odds of 2 to 1, the Boston Braves, led by George T. Stallings, the "Miracle Man" of 1914 baseball, trounced Cornelius McGuillicuddy's Athletics in the opening game of the world's series at Shibe Park yesterday afternoon by a count of 7 to 1. With the overturning of the dope, thousands of dollars changed hands, many wiseacres having lauded the Phillies' chances of trimming the Braves for a week preceding the contest. The shifting of the scene of conflict from the nation's sporting pages to Quakertown terra firma was the signal for the influx of 20,000 baseball fanatics into the Philadelphia park. The keynote of the Athletics' downfall was the appearance of two Giant cast-offs on the playing arena. Dick Rudolph, of the Bronx, held the situation in the palm of his pitching mitt from curtain rise to curtain fall, while long and leany Harry Gowdy, on the receiving end, weilded the willow that sent out the telling licks during the nine round fracas. To say that the Athletics were outclassed tells the story of their defeat. The frenzied defeat of the Phillies was only one of a series of reversals that have been charged up to the sporting world of America during the topsy-turvy year of 1914. Tennis, polo, boxing and baseball have been treated to big bumps, the dope having missed its mark in all cases by a wide margin.

Not detracting from the credit handed to the players who actually participated in the big classic it seems pertinent at this juncture to pause and hand some of the laurels to one George Stallings. Warming a bench in the Braves' dugout Stallings was in the contest as much as any one of the eighteen players. To him should be handed the credit for advancing the Beantown tribe into first place in the National League and the subsequent drubbing dealt out to the Connie Mack crew. Every man that wielded the wagon tongue had his instructions from Stallings. Before the batter left the dugout he was told what to do and all knew what would happen if they violated this instruction. From the time the first ball left the fingers of "Big Chief" Bender it was evident that the 1914 series was not going to be one of the one, two, three kind. The Bostons early showed the spectators what they could do and kept up their habit of lambasting the pellet from the first frame until the last. Lack of pepper was in evidence in the Phillie fold, while the Boston combatants were on the jump every minute during the fray.

Three of the five men I picked to do the most damage to the Athletics came through yesterday. Rudolph, Maranville and Gowdy did their little pieces of spotlight work yesterday and I look forward to some choice performances on the part of Johnny Evers and Joe Connolly before the curtain drops. I have selected Gowdy and Maranville as the stars of the series and they started the good work right off the reel. This trio will bear careful watching in all games to come and their John Hancocks will probably appear on the sporting pages in all of the rest of the contests.

Bender's demise excited considerable sympathy from both sides. This is the first time in the history of baseball that a Philly pitcher has ever been derricked in a world's series contest. As he strode to the bench he was given some hearty applause, but it was evident on all sides that the fans had resigned themselves to a Quakertown defeat yesterday afternoon.

Rudolph and James will do the bulk of the twirling in this series. "Litte Dick" did part of his duty yesterday. More will follow. To see a McGraw cast-off like Rudolph hold the ferocious Athletic batsmen at his mercy in a manner which Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson might well envy—that was too much for the average fan.

Many baseball fans and players thought Charlies, alias "Dutch" Schmidt not of world's series calibre. He was classed as slow and too awkward for a first station agent. Having played with him for one year I consider him one of the best first basemen to throw to and one of the best I have ever played with.

We all know what Johnny Evers is capable of doing. While playing one day against the Chicago club Leach was given a free ticket, and Goode, one of the fastest men in the National League, grounded to Maranville who threw to Evers, doubling up Goode at first. For the first time in his career as a ball player Goode was doubled up. This was the cause for a handshake between the two veterans and was only an example of the Boston captain's speed.

Commenting on Maranville's work all I have to say is that he is the greatest shortstop in baseball. It is a real treat to see him pocket flies, having a peculiar "breast" capture all his own.

The Bostons miss Red Smith at third base, but I expect to see Deal come through. He was weak at the bat yesterday, but is a good fielder and will probably pick up during the remaining games for what bingles he missed yesterday.

The Braves have a trio of stellar performers in the field. Connolly, with his mighty wallop, has probably gained more prominence than any of the rest. His lick has figured in a number of wins. There is one man warming the bench that I consider one of the best outfield guardians that Stallings has. He is no other than Larry Gilbert.

As to the Athletics, one man was as good and as bad as the other in yesterday's tussel. Strunk led at the bat, but the tight twirling of the opposing slab artist was the nemesis of all of the world's champions, at one time or another.

I expect to see the Boston Braves pluck another victory this afternoon and will be surprised if they don't come through.

PLAINFIELD MOOSERS MAY ENTER BOWLING LEAGUE

The local Moosers have the bowling fever and will probably enter the State league that is about to be formed. There will be a meeting held at the Newark lodge next week and it is expected that Elizabeth, Jersey City and the local lodge will apply for admittance. The league was composed of six teams last year, and proved very successful and it is thought that ten teams would make the circuit more interesting.

The first game will probably be rolled the first part of next month and will continue till some time in April next.

PLAINFIELD vs. WESTFIELD.

The Plainfield High School football team will lineup against the Westfield High School team on Parker Field, on Monday morning, Columbus Day, at 10:30 o'clock.

WAR HAS AFFECTED N. P. H. S. CLASS TREASURIES

Although only the senior class of North Plainfield High School voted to give money for cups for the winners of the doubles championships in the N. P. H. S. tennis tournament, the matches will be played just the same, but will be held as a private tournament.

All teams wishing to compete in this tournament will pay an entrance fee, and the money collected from these fees will be used to buy the cups for the winners, as was done in the singles tournament which was completed last Monday.

The tournament will probably be started the last part of next week.

AFTER THE BATTLE STATEMENT.

By CONNIE MACK.
Manager of the Athletics.

Well, this was Boston's day. Tomorrow's another day. And there's a few more games after that. Of course, I'm not predicting that we're going to win out ultimately. Predicting isn't my line. But I have every confidence in the world in my boys. You can't always win, you know. And this was the time for us to lose. But losing hasn't disheartened or discouraged us. Watch us tomorrow.

By GEORGE STALLINGS.
Manager of the Boston Braves.

I knew my boys would come through. What they did today justifies my confidence in them. And what they did today they'll do again. We'll win the series, sure. And the series won't go the limit, either. We'll finish them before it's necessary to play seven games. I've always thought I had one of the best young teams ever put together. What they did today seems to bear me out.

HOLY CROSS WILL PLAY THE CUPIDS

Strong Brooklyn Eleven Due to Appear Here for Holiday Attraction Monday.

The "Cupids," of Brooklyn, will be the attraction at the Cricket Field, Monday afternoon, for local football fans and the Holy Cross team will meet one of the fastest aggregations in Brooklyn at that time. This team is in the same class as the one that are coming here today from that place. The visitors will bring their best men with them and have great expectations of taking the game.

The locals will use practically the same lineup that will play against the Glenmores today. "Bill" Rutledge stated to Manager Doyle recently that he finds it hard to keep off the field and will probably be on hand Monday for the game. "Bill" is one of the best tackles that the team has had and will be a great help if he decides to return to the old sport. Jack Fritts may also get into action in the backfield in this game, and his speed will strengthen the team considerably. The game will start at 3:15 sharp. The probable lineup of the teams is as follows:

Holy Cross—Caulfield or Manning, left end; Muir or Moore, left tackle, Glover, left guard; Carty, center; Smith, right guard; Bremble or Rutledge, right tackle; Webster, right end; Coyle, quarterback; J. Manning or Fritts, left halfback; Ricketts, right halfback; Wilson, fullback.

Cupids—Dutemple, Lulke, Roscoe, Gilcher, Wood, Glatzmayer, Lynch, Frugone, Coley, O'Shaughnessey, Woodworth, McKenna, House, Holman, Carew, Johnson, VanOlinda.

LOCAL ENTRANTS IN ONE DAY TOURNEY

Eight Plainfielders Participate in Eighteen Hole Handicap at Montclair.

Montclair, Oct. 10.—The largest field of the season played yesterday in the one day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association at the Montclair Golf Club. Nearly seventy women golfers participated in the eighteen hole handicap, the chief event.

Mrs. W. J. Faith, of Wykagyl, gained the honor of leading the big field when she made the round in 85, and won the prize for the lowest gross score. Mrs. L. D. Blake, Cranford, won the net prize with a score of 91, 10-81.

In the putting contest the winner was Mrs. E. F. E. Wanner, Essex County, and Mrs. T. H. Thomas was second.

There were about one dozen entrants from this city and Westfield, all of whom made good scores. The scores of these players in the order they finished are as follows: Mrs. H. Wallace, Westfield, 104, 20-84; Mrs. W. L. Lichter, Plainfield, 109, 22-87; Mrs. H. R. Stockton, Plainfield, 91, 3-89; Mrs. C. Koencel, Westfield, 103, 10-93; Mrs. H. E. Manyel, Westfield, 107, 12-95; Mrs. R. S. Rowland, Plainfield, 112, 16-96; Mrs. A. M. Collins, Plainfield, 118, 20-98; Mrs. H. Avery, Plainfield, 113, 14-99; Miss M. Van Boskerck, Plainfield, 109, 10-99; Miss H. Gardner, Westfield, 120, 18-102; Miss B. Hedges, Plainfield, 112, 10-102; Mrs. C. Symthe, Westfield, 131, 25-106 Miss H. Harmon, Plainfield, 129, 20-109.

NOTHING WAS DONE AT CITY MEETING

Delegates Had No Chance to Report and Meeting Postponed Till Next Friday.

Although the representatives from all of the six lodges that expect to enter the city bowling league, were present at last night's meeting, which was held in the offices of V. W. Nash, Jr., nothing was accomplished and all action was deferred until the next meeting, which will be held next Friday night at the same place.

The reason for this was that all of the delegates had not yet reported the work of the first meeting which was held last week, to their respective lodges, because they had had no meeting since that time and they could not act without the consent of the members. The next meeting will probably be the important one, and if the organization is formed a schedule will be made up immediately and play begun. V. W. Nash, Jr., the Elks' representative, has been appointed chairman, and James Mahoney, from the Eagles, is secretary. The lodges that were represented are Eagles, Elks, Knights of Columbus, Foresters, Red Men and Moose.

SOMERVILLE TEAM DEFEATS BARACAS

Rollers Take Two Out of Three Games From Dunellen Team at That Place.

The Rollers' Five bowling team of Somerville, supposed to be "900" pinners, defeated the Baracas, of Dunellen, on the Presbyterian alleys last night, but the winners came far from 900 scores, except in the second game, when they totalled 874. The Rollers took the first two and the Baracas took the third with many points to spare.

VanPelt, of the Somervillians, was high score pinner, making a 223 in the second game, which gave his team the game, as the Dunellenites had pushed them close in that game. Smith was second man for the Baracas in the grst game, but he only hit for 140 and was relieved by Zink, who made a 187 score, which was the highest for his team.

After this match was played, William J. Smith and Samuel Strickland competed in a three-game match for the championship of the Central Railroad employes, of Dunellen, over which there had been much dispute. Strickland won all three games without trying and is now the proud holder of that wonderful title. The scores:

ARRANGEMENTS FOR EAGLES LEAGUE ALMOST COMPLETED

At a meeting of the State Eagles Bowling League held in this city, last night, the New Brunswick Aerie dropped out and the Progress Aerie, of Newark, was taken on the circuit in its place. Nothing much was done at the meeting and the schedule committee will meet in Rahway next Friday to complete the schedule.

The question of the trophy was discussed and it was decided that the cup must be won three years in succession before it became the permanent property of the winner. This will aid to keep up the interest in the league from year to year. The governing rules presented by the rules committees were read and accepted. The league will start during the first week of November and each team will play nine games with every other team.

SUMMARY OF FIRST GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES.

Official paid attendance	20,562
Total receipts	$49,639.00
Players' share	26,805.00
Club owners' share (equally divided)	17,870.10
National Commission	4,963.90
Total	$49,639.00

The paid attendance of the first game last year between the Giants and the Athletics, played at the Polo Grounds, on Wednesday, October 8, was 36,291, and the receipts were $75,255.

The players will share in the receipts of the first four games. The winning team will receive 60 per cent. of the players' share and the losing team will get the remainder. The Boston Braves have twenty-seven eligible players and the Philadelphia Athletics have twenty-five. On the basis of 60 and 40 per cent. division, each member of the winning team will receive $595.67 of yesterday's receipts, and the members of the losing team each will receive $428.88.

BLATZ INCREASED HIS AVERAGE SOME

Rolled Four 200 Scores and Took Five Out of Six Games Played Last Night.

Two hundred and forty-five was the highest that was rolled last night in the Knights of Columbus individual bowling tournament, although there were six other scores above the two century mark and the competition was keen throughout all the matches. George Howe made the high score mark in the last game of the last match of the night in which he defeated Caulfield two out of three.

Shannon started off well in the first game and did not let up until he had taken all three from Caulfield without much work. His best roll was 211, while his opponent hit in the second game for 180. Blatz made two two hundred scores in his match with Howe and, although he dropped the first he won the best out of the three by taking the last two. His best was 215. Not satisfied with taking two out of three games, Blatz whitewashed Shannon in their match and hit the wood in the first and third games for 236. Shannon made a two hundred in the last. Caulfield took the first from Howe with a 180, but was not in it in the next two, which Howe took easily. Those who will be matched next Wednesday are Sullivan and G. Taylor, Duffy and Strappe, Duffy and Strappe, Duffy and Sullivan and Strappe and G. Taylor. The scores:

Shannon	211	193	181
Caulfield	173	180	116
Blatz	170	205	215
Howe	186	167	155
Blatz	236	179	236
Shannon	190	170	200
Caulfield	180	166	176
Howe	157	196	245

BASEBALL NOTES

The Detroit Tigers won just one game in the world's series against the Cubs in 1907 and 1908.

The Red Sox have signed "Heinie" Wagner for next season. Wagner drew down $5,000 this season and never played a game.

Christy Mathewson and "Rube" Marquard have no information to hand to the Braves' flingers concerning the batting weakness of "Home Run" Baker.

A picture of "Rabbit" Maranville, labeled the "world's greatest shortstop," is on sale in Boston. The little fellow about fills the bill at that.

Having defeated Muskegon in the Michigan "world's series," Ducky Holmes' Saginaw outfit are now the champions of the Wolverine State.

Up to the present clash of the Athletics and the Braves the American League had been victorious in six out of ten world's series with the National League.

Outfield Bill Jacobson, of the Chattanooga team, who won the diamond trophy for being the most valuable player in the Southern League, has been purchased by the Detroit club.

Pitcher Mordecai Brown has been able to win very few games since he joined the Brooklyn Federals. The Miner's experience in St. Louis earlier in the season must have crabbed his teasers.

A three-cornered baseball pact between Yale, Harvard and Princeton will probably be completed before the college schedules are made up. The scheme is to have a round-robin series of three games among the three varsity teams.

SMALL PROPORTION OF EMPTY HOUSES

Real Estate Broker Says Number Here is Not as Large as Reported.

During the consolidation election campaign held in North Plainfield recently, several references were made to the large number of houses which were idle and vacant in this city and a careful and thorough investigation has been made by the writer so as to ascertain as to just what extent these comments were justified, and as to the reasons which might be ascribed to this condition.

After careful investigation, it is found that the number of vacant houses in this city is far from being out of proportion to the number of houses in other municipalities of the immediate vicinity, and no more in proportion than in the borough of North Plainfield. Another fact which has been uncovered is that there are at present fewer houses looking for tenants than were apparent from six to seven months ago, or early in the spring.

One local real estate agent, in an interview, stated, to the best of his knowledge, but one dwelling of the $75 per month type was looking for a tenant at the present time. In speaking further upon the subject, he said, "While there are a number of large houses vacant in this city, the condition is not entirely up to the city, or any thing lacking from a municipal viewpoint. There are a number of reasons, all of which combine to create the condition as we find it today. In the first place, we most notice that a large number, if not a majority of the houses which rent from $50 per month and above, are old-fashioned, far from being modern, some out of repair (where the owner desires to have a tenant in sight before he makes the necessary improvements), and those which cannot be remodeled to an extent to bring them up-to-date, and consequently not of that type which would attract the stranger coming within our gates to seek a home. For this same reason, a few of those who have occupied these houses until recently have purchased vacant properties and constructed dwellings of a modern type, leaving the older houses unoccupied and unattractive for those who come from without to seek homes in this city. But what of those of which this explanation does not hold true? Well, those are what may be termed the 'broker and banker' type of houses, as a general rule being rented from $60 to $100 per month and above, and as Wall street is at present experiencing hard times, those things usually enjoyed by the men of that street are left unused, high priced dwellings included. In this respect Plainfield is not alone.

"Relative to those dwellings which rent from $20 to $30 per month, there are fewer of this type than there were five or six months ago. The 'out-of-repair' and 'lack of modernism' arguments, which apply to the type of houses apply to the homes of the middle class of people. The other reason which has brought about the present conditions in this type of houses is the lack of work in local shops, and the families of mechanics have, wherever it has been possible, jointly occupied a dwelling, thus leaving one of the two houses vacant, while other mechanics have left town because of lack of work. The conditions as we find them are far from being a discredit to the city as such. Let the industrial and financial conditions of the State and nation return to a normal state, and Plainfield will come into her own as far as the filling of vacant houses, the improvement of property, and the erection of modern dwellings may be concerned."

MANY SCHOOLS IN COUNTY COMPLETED

Thousands of Dollars Will Be Appropriated Soon for New Buildings.

The county as a whole is still enjoying considerable activity in building lines, as records at the offices of the county clerk at Elizabeth appear to indicate. During the week ending last Saturday, a total of fourteen contracts were filed. These contracts from various parts of the county call for the expenditure of $80,824.

One of the features of the building operations in this county is the great number of schools either in the course of construction or being planned for the immediate future. Westfield and Elizabeth have schools on which work is progressing at the present time, while work on others in various parts of the county will soon be under way. This city has already received bids on an $80,000 building on Evergreen avenue.

El Mora is to make a $51,000 appropriation for a schoolhouse, Linden has set aside $50,000 for building purposes, while the Board of School Estimate of Elizabeth desires $700,000 for sites and buildings within the course of the next five years. Along with these buildings already in sight, Roselle Park, Summit and Scotch Plains have plans for additional buildings for school purposes well under way.

Building contracts from this end of the county filed with the county clerk are as follows:

Thomas W. Reid et al. with Frank Austin, entire work, new building, Hunter avenue, Fanwood, $6,000; Muhlenberg Hospital with Clarence W. Mundy, entire work, alterations to building, Plainfield, $1,100; Joseph M. Coren with Myer Contracting Company, entire work, alterations, Plainfield, $11,000.

GARWOOD WILL BUILD $9,000 BOROUGH HALL

Garwood, Oct. 10.—Garwood will build its borough hall. The bonds, amounting to $9,000, for the erection of the building, have been sold at 5 per cent. interest.

Mayor Eriksen verified the report of the bond sale last week, but he would not say who the purchaser was, preferring to wait until the finance committee of the Council makes its report to the Council meeting.

Mayor Eriksen feels greatly pleased with the success of the borough hall proposition so far, and the work of building will now be acted upon by the Council and the ordinance for the borough hall passed.

JACOB SACHAR PLANS TO REMODEL PROPERTY

Jacob Sachar, of West Front street, is having plans drawn for the remodeling of the building located at 311 Plainfield avenue. The structure is to be raised about four feet, and is to have the plan of rooms changed, a fair sized store to occupy the front of the first floor. When completed the building will have two apartments of six rooms each, and all modern improvements. The contracts have not been let as yet.

Plainfield avenue, from Fourth to Second street, is fast becoming a business section in itself, several stores having been erected within the course of the past two or three years.

URGE UNIFORM REGISTRY LAW

Conference Considers Simplification of Land Title Acts.

Some active steps toward the institution of a uniform system of the registration of land titles throughout the country may be expected as a result of the conference to be held on the subject in Washington, beginning October 14 and lasting until October 19. The question has been in the hands of a commission, called the Commission on Uniform State Laws, and this Commission will report on what has been done and what further can be accomplished toward simplifying land title acts in the various States. One of the objects of the commission's study has been the so-called Torrens act, which ten States have adopted.

In New Jersey an amendment was enacted in 1903 making it compulsory to register all lands passing through the Probate Court. Efforts were made to defeat this provision, and the courts finally decided against it, but solely on the ground that it had not been properly submitted to popular vote. The Legislature then re-enacted the act in 1907 and it was confirmed by popular vote in 1910. In no other State has the Torrens act been the subject of such insistent litigation as in Illinois, having been before the Supreme Court in different aspects no less than sixty-one times.

It may not be generally known that the Torrens law has been adopted by the Legislatures of ten States as a legal means of registering titles. They are California, Colorado, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon and Washington. The act was adopted by New York in 1908, Ohio and North Carolina placed it on their statue books last year. In addition, the Torrens system prevails in Hawaii and the Philippines and over a great portion of the Dominion of Canada.

Although based upon the same fundamental system, the laws in these ten States differ widely. A tentative draft of a uniform act was submitted to the uniform laws conference last year and efforts are being made to secure necessary amendments to the conflicting State laws in the direction of greater uniformity.

In a very exhaustive report at the conference in Montreal a year ago, in which many of the cases to test the constitutionality of the act were cited, the committee on the Torrens act stated that the tide of Torrens legislation was evidently rising with irresistible force.

One of the principal benefits claimed for the Torrens system by its advocates is the opportunity afforded to make land titles as easy of conveyance in business transactions as registered stock and bond.

In Massachusetts a special court known as the Land Court has been established fo the system.

STOCK SHOW AT FORT WORTH.

Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 10.—The annual exhibition of the National Feeders and Breeders' Horse and Fat Stock Show Association was opened at the permanent grounds here today, under conditions that point to the greatest show of its kind ever held in the Southwest. The show comprises many carloads of exhibits from all parts of Texas and from Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and other States. The judging of exhibits was commenced today and will be continued until the close of the exhibition next Saturday.

HICKMAN-FOSS WEDDING.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—A notable wedding today was that of Miss Ether Foss, daughter of former Governor Eugene N. Foss and Mrs. Foss, and Albert Hickman, of Canada. The ceremony took place in the early afternoon at the Foss summer residence in Cohasset. Owing to the fact that the bridegroom is a British subject, and his country at war, the wedding was small and informal. Miss Helen Foss, the twin sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and only attendant.

TAFT TO PRESIDE.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—Former President William Howard Taft will preside over the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, which is to hold its sessions in this city from October 20 to 22. Mr. Taft was elected president of the associa-

...ed above hardly ...ut are enlighten... ...tactics being em... ... of the National ...sociation, and it ...fo ask, if Miss ... or any of her ...tes, really imag... ...ove anything of ...ical life.

Inaccurate, unfair and immoderate in the charges of which they can offer no proof, imputing motives and actions to Antis merely because they are Antis, to quote the above editorial from the New York Sun, "making reckless and false accusations."

Resorting to methods very similar to those of unscrupulous politicians—accusing all politicians of being unscrupulous—declaring at all times that the only way to purify politics and thwart their designs is to bestow the franchise on all women, good, bad and indifferent.

Strange arguments are these, to uphold such contentions.

Arguments which fortunately—as the above criticisms prove—affect, and influence none save those who employ and pin their faith upon them.

A favorite false accusation of the Suffragists is that the Antis—merely by their opposition to equal suffrage for reasons too many to enumerate at this time—discredit and malign their sex.

If such statements were true, do not the Suffragists give the Antis good material proof to put forth? But they are neither just nor truthful, for it is those in the fight for suffrage who have accused the large majority of their sex, of alliance with crimes of the worst description, at the same time that they are trying by every means that they can conceive, to put the ballot in the hands of these allies of vice!

Such is suffrage accuracy! Such is suffrage consistency!

The Contemporary Club, of Trenton, at its regular meeting on Tuesday last, adopted unanimously, a resolution to adhere to its established policy of neutrality, in all matters pertaining to religion and politics.

In view of the declaration of the Federation of Clubs, in favor of Equal Suffrage, the above might seem significant, though no mention of that declaration was made, either in the introduction or adoption of the resolution.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS DISCUSS BOILER FEED

Local No. 12, National Association of Stationary Engineers, held an exceptionally interesting meeting last night. The State Educational Committee, comprising ten men from Newark, was present and several gave interesting and instructive information on a patent boiler feed.

A large number of members were present and well pleased with the talks. During the evening one candidate was initiated.

IMPERIAL SOCIAL CLUB TO DANCE NOVEMBER 6

The Imperial Social Club, an organization made up of several well known young men, will hold its third annual ball in Sebring's Auditorium, Friday evening, November 6. The committee is arranging an elaborate program and has engaged Halbfoerster's orchestra to furnish the music for dancing. One of the features of the program will be a competition waltz.

The officers of the club are: President, William Hand; vice president, Jack English; secretary, George Servis, and treasurer, Rudolph Heinold.

EVENING SCHOOLS WILL OPEN TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13

The Plainfield Evening Schools will open Tuesday evening, October 13, at 7:30 o'clock. The sessions will all be held in the High School building at Arlington avenue and Ninth street. The students in the department of elementary work, in charge of Mrs. Wardner, will assemble in the gymnasium (in the basement). They should enter the building on the Arlington avenue side at the south entrance.

Pupils taking commercial and general courses should enter the building (new part) on the Park avenue side and report to room 245 for assignments. Pupils taking sewing, dressmaking and millinery should assemble in room 369. Those taking cooking should assemble in room 368. Those taking woodwork should assemble in room 28 (basement). Those taking mechanical drawing should assemble in room 340 (third floor, Arlington avenue side). Mechanical drawing students should bring all their drawing instruments and other equipment with them the first night.

PATRIOTIC SOCIETIES TO MEET.

The executive committee of the Union County Federation of Patriotic Societies will meet in Garwood next Wednesday night. The meeting will be an important one. It is expected that something of interest will be given out following the meeting.

CAKE SALE.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Netherwood Reformed church will hold a cake and candy sale this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ellston Johnston, of 221 Leland avenue. The proceeds will be used for the work of the organization.

DRUM CORPS TO HOLD A CARNIVAL

Novel Affair Being Planned for Week Beginning November 14.

A carnival that will be an innovation in this city and which promises to surpass anything of the kind ever before attempted here, will be held during the week of November 14, in Company K Armory, under the auspices of the "old" Independent Fife and Drum Corps.

The corps, which has been inactive during the past few years, has revived and will again be included among the active musical organizations in Plainfield.

According to the tentative program for the week the lovers of a good time will be given ample opportunity of satisfying their wants in this direction. There will be some novelties and stunts never before produced here. "Spot" dancing is to be one of the features every evening and the awards will be substantial.

The Independent Fife and Drum Corps was organized in 1888 and for many years was one of the most popular musical organizations of its kind in this section of the State. Many well known Plainfield men comprise its membership, which is thirty-seven active members at the present time. Now that the corps has revived, honorary members will be received. The corps will hereafter be a social as well as musical organization.

JOHN N. GULICK DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

John N. Gulick, of 15 Park place, the borough, for many years a highly respected resident of North Plainfield, died yesterday at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was a patient but a few days. Mr. Gulick was a carpenter by trade, and a member of the Carpenter's Union, Local No. 155 He was a native of Somerville and had lived in Somerset county practically all his life.

Mr. Gulick is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Samuel Powell. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home.

MEXICAN GENERAL TO TAKE VERA CRUZ PEACEFULLY

Washington, Oct. 10.—General Aguilar has issued a proclamation in Mexico City saying that he is about to take the port of Vera Cruz but that his entry will be peaceful and the lives and property of both aliens and natives will be protected regardless of whether their interest is with the government or not. The proclamation, which was received from the Secretary of Foreign Affairs in Mexico City, at the Constitutionalist Agency today, further says that Aguilar will not tolerate any hostile act against the establishment of peace or in contravention of the laws and regulations to be issued by the present government. The Secretary of Foreign Affairs in Mexico City said in the despatch to the agency here that this proclamation was issued by General Aguilar to relieve any alarm caused by statements issued by Huerttiists.

General Villa's revolution will not interfere in the least with the plans of the election convention which is to meet in Mexico City in the immediate future, was the declaration of the Constitutionalist Agency today. There will most certainly be a peaceful settlement of the present trouble, the same authority declared, even if the convention now in session fails to settle the trouble peacefully. It was pointed out that Villa cannot hope to win by force of arms, since he is outnumbered by almost four to one.

Another postponement of the removal of American troops from Vera Cruz was announced today by Secretary of War Garrison. Tomorrow was the date tentatively set for the American evacuation of the Mexican port. There is no remote possibility of the force being moved then, Secretary Garrison declared today. He also said that the time for bringing the troops back to the United States is altogether indefinite.

SALE OF PLANTS.

The Plant, Fruit and Flower Guild will hold a sale of potted plants, bulbs for winter flowering, and cut flowers on the grounds of the Friends' Meeting House, Wednesday of next week, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 4 in the afternoon. The proceeds will be used to cary on the work of the guild during the course of the winter.

FLOWER GUILD ACTIVE.

The local Flower and Fruit Guild will continue to receive contributions of flowers, fruits and delicacies for the shut-ins of the city. These contributions will be received at the usual hours Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning at the W. C. T. U. rooms.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., has postponed the social event indefinitely, on account of the death of two lodge members.

WHEN appetites are poor shellfish daintily served make good appetizers

The menu suggested is a well rounded one for the everyday luncheon or with some modifications for a company affair. The potatoes with peanuts are so nutritious as to make a good meat substitute.

Minced Clams en Casserole.—Take two thin slices of bacon cut in small pieces and brown in a frying pan. Add one tablespoonful of butter. Fry in this one onion cut fine and one potato cut in small pieces. Stir in and brown one tablespoonful of flour. Add two cupfuls of cooked minced clams with the juice and one cupful of milk. Let come to a boil. Place in a covered casserole and let remain in a moderate oven for about three-quarters of an hour.

Hashed Browned Potatoes With Peanuts.—Take three cupfuls of chopped cold potatoes, one cupful of chopped peanuts, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths of a cupful of milk, a few grains pepper, butter or drippings. Stir the potatoes, peanuts, milk and seasoning together. Put about three tablespoonfuls of drippings into a frying pan, or barely enough to cover the bottom of the pan when melted. When hot pack in the potato mixture, cover and cook slowly until the milk is absorbed and the food is brown on the bottom. Fold over and turn on a heated platter to serve.

Scalloped Eggplant.—Take an eggplant, peel, cut in dice and parboil twenty minutes. Drain and arrange in buttered baking dish with alternate layers of fine crumbs, sprinkling each layer with salt and finely chopped green peppers. When dish is full dot with bits of butter and moisten with milk or cream. Bake for a half hour, covered, then uncover and brown.

"There had come the most terrific crash over my head."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Ghost Story Without The Ghost.

"DADDY, tell us a ghost story," said Evelyn, creeping up close to daddy, while Jack snuggled down in one corner of the divan.

"I thought you didn't like ghost stories," said daddy teasingly.

"We do your kind, daddy. They begin all creepy, but they end all funny," said Evelyn.

"I'll tell you about a trip I took up in the mountains of Virginia once.

"It was in a very remote section of the mountains where the people still talk of 'before the war.' The house was a quaint weather beaten old structure, which looked as if it might boast of a family ghost.

"However, the evening passed pleasantly enough, with no hint of such creepy things as ghosts and haunted houses. Later I was shown to a great bedroom furnished with a 'four poster' and splendid old colonial furniture.

"I was obliged to climb up a little pair of steps to reach the 'four poster,' but when I did reach it it was like sinking down into foam.

"I had traveled a long way that day and was very fatigued, and I was hardly conscious of the comfort of my big bed until I became unconscious of everything.

"I slept very soundly for several hours, I should say. Then I started up, quite awake. There had come the most terrific crash over my head.

"I finally decided that the servants must be rolling some furniture about in the room above mine, though why they should take the middle of the night to do that sort of thing I couldn't imagine.

"I said nothing to my hostess the next morning, as I feared she might think me critical, but that night the same thing occurred—the awful thumping, followed by rollings and bumpings.

"The next morning at breakfast I asked my hostess if there was any legend about the house being haunted.

"'Why, no,' she replied, very much surprised, and asked me why I had inquired.

"Then I told her the story and asked her if the servants lodged above me.

"But my hostess assured me that there was only a garret over the room After studying the matter over she sent for the colored cook, old Aunt Julia.

"Aunt Julia came waddling in, her moon face one broad grin for the northern visitor. My hostess questioned her in regard to the attic.

"'Ki yi,' giggled Aunt Julia; 'it sure am dem rats! Why, ma'am, dey's big es cats, and dey likes dem walnuts heaped up in de attic jest as coons like possum! Yassum; dey bumps and rolls dem air walnuts cross de garret floo' and takes 'em to deir nestes!'

"So you see, kiddies, this ghost story had no ghost, after all."

HELPFUL WORDS.

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?
Does it ache especially after exertion?
Is there a soreness in the kidney region?
These symptoms suggest weak kidneys.
If so there is danger in delay.
Weak kidneys get fast weaker.
Give your trouble prompt attention.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
Your neighbors use and recommend them.
Read this Plainfield testimony.

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when they cured me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER
Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR
It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful— all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Adv.

MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS FOR SINGERS AND PLAYERS

Two musical organizations to be formed by the Public Recreation Committee will meet next week. The municipal orchestra will be reorganized Monday evening, and in future be known as the Plainfield Symphony Orchestra and Schuberts' Unfinished Symphony, Beethoven first and Fifth Symphonies are among the compositions for study and performance under the direction of S. Frederick Smith. The rehearsals Monday evenings will be held in the Franklin School Auditorium, and the concerts will be given in the new High School Auditorium.

On Tuesday evening a new choral society will be formed for the people of Plainfield. Choir singers, school teachers and all who like to sing are urged to attend. Sopranos, altos, tenors and basses are wanted. S. Frederick Smith will also direct the chorus and begin work on Handel's "Messiah," for the first concert. The rehearsals on Tuesday evenings will be held in the Franklin School Auditorium, and the concerts at the new High School Auditorium.

REV. MR. KUES TO SPEAK.

The monthly business session of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild will be held at the Friends' Meeting House, Tuesday evening, at which time Rev. Charles H. Kues, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will address the gathering. Matters of interest are to be discussed and the general public are invited to attend.

No man has as much fun at anything
As in conducting a successful business.

It takes good printing—Press printing—and the courageous use of the same—to drive a business and make it grow vigorously.

Study your business carefully and you will discover numerous ways to use good printing to advantage and profit.

If you lack the time or skill to properly prepare your copy, you can always depend on Press Service to perfect the details so that the completed job of printing will possess all the features that invite success.

Press printing—the result of Press service—invariably gets the business and the money.
